“In one Union, Macroom, a committee reports, that they were indisposed to the Relief Act before it came into operation, but have now great satisfaction in bearing testimony to its efficiency and economy; had they not witnessed it themselves they could scarcely have conceived it possible that such a change for the better could have been brought about in the health and appearance of the poor in so short a time, and at comparatively so small an expense.

“The strength of the labouring man does not appear to have been reduced, as the usual agricultural labour task has lately been performed with the usual spirit and ability. In consequence also from the use of cooked food, it is reported that fever has been less fatal, and dysentery has disappeared.

“Robinson’s steam cooking apparatus appears to have effected a great saving of fuel, and succeeded admirably.

“The women and children in particular much preferred cooked food, for it invariably secured to them their rations; not giving to a selfish husband or father the power of selling it, as was too often the case with raw meal.”

Listowel Union.

From this passage it will be seen that there are decided reasons why the Guardians should introduce cooked food, and the Commissioners request the Guardians to make arrangements accordingly to carry out the views of the Commissioners on this important subject.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain SPARK:—February 16, 1848.

WITH reference to your report of the 12th instant on the affairs of Listowel Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they have received the report of the Finance Committee to which you refer with much regret; they trust, however, that the steps you are taking in conjunction with the Board of Guardians will have the effect of stopping such irregular proceedings, and establishing a more correct course for the future. The Commissioners have the report of the Finance Committee under consideration, and will address the Guardians upon the subject.

In regard to the opinion expressed by you with reference to the determination of the Board, that all single able-bodied men above the age of 18 years be struck off the relief lists, I am to state that the Commissioners presume that the Guardians would not adopt any such measure without previously assuring themselves that, in the present state of the Union, no single able-bodied man above 18 years of age is really unable to find employment, as otherwise the striking them off the lists would be clearly illegal, inasmuch as it is the duty of the Guardians to give relief to all persons in the Union who are really destitute.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

IN obedience to directions of the Commissioners, to report fully the circumstances which induced me to recommend to the Board of Guardians the dismissal of the relieving officer (Mr. Cooke) of the Kilmoily district, I beg to state that that officer was accused by a deputation of rate-payers from that electoral division of having placed persons on his Application and Report Book on the recommendation of individual rate-payers, without ever visiting their houses or examining himself into their circumstances, agreeably to his instructions. On being examined by the Board, as is recorded on the minutes of its proceedings on the 3rd instant, this man acknowledged the accusation to be true; and I recommended his dismissal, feeling the necessity for some such example of punishment to deter others from being guilty of a like neglect of duty in violation of the instructions.

I consider such a person far from competent to fulfil the duties of a relieving officer, even if he were very well qualified in every other respect, which is not the case in this instance.

And at the same time I would call the Commissioners' particular notice to the conduct of the master, Mr. Dillon, in reference to the supplies, and the work he has had executed for the workhouse without written orders, and to the great extravagance of several of the supplies he has obtained with such orders, as shown in the report of the Finance Committee laid before the Guardians at their last meeting on the 10th instant. This practice, it is true, had long obtained previous to Mr. Dillon's appointment, and was the fruit of that neglect of the Guardians to attend to matters of expenditure in this Union, which I believe to have been the cause of much of its present embarrassment.

This meeting and report of the Committee will, I hope, be satisfactory evidence that my efforts to bring about an amended state of things in the management of the Union's affairs, and in particular in matters of expenditure, have not been without good effect.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. COOKE, Relieving Officer:—February 15, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have received a report from their Inspector, Captain Spark, in which he states that you were accused by a deputation of rate-payers of having placed persons on your Application and Report Book on the recommendation of individual rate-payers, without ever visiting their houses, or examining yourself into their circumstances, agreeably to your instructions; and that on being examined by the Board you acknowledged the accusation to be true.

Listowel Union.

In reference thereto, I am to state, that under the circumstances of the case, and considering the very peculiar situation of the Union, the Commissioners deem it undesirable that you should continue relieving officer of the Union; and the Commissioners request you to forward your resignation to this office.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—February 15, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state for the information of the Board of Guardians of Listowel Union, that they have received a report from Captain Spark, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, in which he states that the relieving officer of the Kilmoily district admitted that the charge preferred against him of having improperly placed persons on the relief lists was true; and in reference thereto, I am to state, that under the circumstances of the case, and considering the very peculiar situation of the Union, the Commissioners deem it undesirable that he should continue relieving officer of the Union, and they have accordingly called upon him to forward his resignation to this office.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I yesterday attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians. On the letter being read, dated the 15th instant, in reply to the Board's objections to the daily distribution of cooked or steeped food, and requiring that arrangements should be made to carry out the views of the Commissioners, I again very earnestly enforced these views, and repeated arguments I had before used, grounded on my own experience of the advantages of distributing meal in a cooked state.

I have the satisfaction to report that thereupon the Board passed a resolution stating, "That with a view of complying with the request of the Commissioners, the Board will, at their next meeting, cheerfully entertain and act on any practical proposition for the adoption of cooked food that may be submitted to them by the Commissioners or their Inspector."

By a practical proposition, the Guardians mean one that will not be liable to great abuse in the working—a point difficult to avoid, nor interfere with the labour test.

I had carefully read over and considered the extract from the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union on this subject. I stated to the Board that I would endeavour to lay before it at their next meeting a plan in detail, to which I hoped to have their hearty concurrence, with the object of carrying out the Commissioners' intentions as soon as possible; and if the Commissioners see no objection I will endeavour to form one founded on the measure set forth by the Vice-Guardians above mentioned. The document alluded to I find is marked "Confidential."

A revisor and valuator of the Union, and an assistant matron, were ordered to be advertised for. The first at a maximum remuneration of 100*l.*, and the latter to receive 15*l.* per annum salary.

I suggested a further change in the dietary with the sanction of the medical officer, who stated to the Board that it would be equally nutritious to substitute one pint of gruel for breakfast instead of half a pint of milk, my object being a great saving of expense under this head. Milk for the infirmary and work-house costs the Union about 32*l.* per week.

A petition to Parliament praying for the introduction of a measure to limit the area of taxation in the Union was introduced without notice of his intention by Mr. Crosbie, of Ardfert Abbey, High Sheriff, which being read was adopted unanimously; and the clerk received directions to transmit copies of the same to the county members, and to Lord Kenmare. This is a matter on which the Commissioners have given their decision, and I know not whether it be within the functions of the Board of Guardians to petition Parliament, as a body constituted only under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the Poor Laws.

Listowel Union..

I beg to add that I have this week gone through a great portion of the south and western parts of the Union. I was not satisfied with the work heretofore done by the able-bodied paupers receiving out-door relief, the principal employment having been in many parts only the repair of road fences, and not stone-breaking. The want of hammers and other implements has now been supplied, and has remedied this, and the latter work will now continue to be proceeded with where practicable; but there is a great want of stone, few quarries available, and the farmers will not permit stones to be taken off their lands; they are reserving them for drainage. I have especially examined the Kilmoily district; the paupers were employed, but principally in fencing for lack of stone at present. Here, and indeed in all the western portions of the Union, a great degree of the most abject wretchedness appears among the numerous cottiers, and no sort of employment is yet afforded by the landlords and farmers. The land is in too wet a state to be worked for cropping.

I met the relieving officer of this district, Cooke, who has since been ordered by the Commissioners to resign (against whom a complaint was preferred, which he acknowledged to be just, that he had in some cases placed persons on his books upon the recommendation of individual rate-payers), and many of this class stated to me that he was most actively and satisfactorily doing his duty; and indeed I found him so doing.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 22, 1848.

WITH regard to your statement that you will lay before the Guardians a plan in detail for the adoption of cooked food, founded on the measure set forth by the Vice-Guardians of Ballina Union, and which you observe is marked "Confidential," I am to state that you may make any use which you please of the Ballina letter, and the Commissioners will leave the matter in your hands.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 24, 1848.

AT the meeting of the Guardians this day I brought forward the plan for labour connected with out-door relief to be given in cooked food, which I stated in my report of the 18th instant it was my intention to lay before the Board.

Mr. Lloyd, District Inspector, was present and ably aided me in urging the importance of the matter, and the advantages that would accrue to the Union by its adoption. A Committee of five members was appointed to join with me in considering the details, to report at the next meeting of the Board. I found it useless to expect the adoption of the plan instantly, seeing the impossibility of completing the arrangements within the period of time (the 7th March next) to which date the present order for out-door relief is limited. I readily acceded to the appointment of a Committee.

If it is not found necessary to continue the order because of the spring work that may offer, which, from present appearances and wet weather, I have some doubt about, it will be well to prepare against the distress of the population that is likely to follow for want of employment throughout the summer months, up to the gathering of the coming harvest.

The following resolution was made at my suggestion by Mr. Leonard, and agreed to:—

"That having heard the observations of Mr. Lloyd on the subject of cooked food, and Captain Spark's arguments in favour of the same, together with the plan which he has this day submitted for carrying out the Commissioners' views, it is resolved, that for the purpose of introducing cooked food generally into the several electoral divisions within the Union, the following Committee be appointed to inquire and report on the question, the Guardians being fully determined to carry out the law in the administration of out-door relief."

"Committee:—W. Sandes, Esq., Chairman; W. G. Sands, S. G. Collis, W. T. Crosbie, Esqrs.; Captain Home."

I also called the Board's attention to the necessity of a further increase of workhouse accommodation to meet the pressure that must take place when out-door relief ceases; and I proposed that a large mill standing vacant, and capable of containing about 600 paupers, should immediately be taken for the purpose. This mill has six floors besides the ground floor; and has for dormitories six rooms each of about 54 feet in length by about 20 feet wide, and six other such rooms of about 34 feet in length, and the large ground floor for day-rooms and dining-hall, together with other portions of the building suitable for kitchens and offices. It has been for many years the subject of a law-suit just terminated. A resolution was passed to carry out the proposition, and the Workhouse Extension Committee were requested to act in this matter without delay.

On the order for the dismissal of the medical officer being read, the Board, at the suggestion of many of the friends of Dr. Rice, resolved to solicit the Commissioners to rescind their order, and permit that gentleman to send in his resignation to save him from the great injury his public dismissal must do to his professional prospects; and I would recommend that this request may have the favourable attention of the Commissioners if it is not incompatible with their view of the case.

At the suggestion of Mr. Lloyd the sum of 50*l.* was voted to be expended in the purchase of spinning-wheels, reels, flax, and wool, to give employment to the females in the workhouse, under the direction of a Visiting Committee this day appointed.

For the further proceedings I beg leave to refer to the minutes, as I am desirous to transmit this report by the first post if possible.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your letter of the 24th instant, reporting on the meeting of the Board of Guardians of Listowel Union on the 23rd instant.

With reference to that part of your report which relates to the removal of the medical officer of the workhouse, I am to state that on a consideration of all the circumstances of the case, the Commissioners regret to state that they do not deem it consistent with their public duty to rescind their order of the 22nd instant, removing Dr. Rice from the situation of medical officer of Listowel workhouse.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, calling my attention to the fact that out-door relief to the able-bodied in this Union will expire on the 7th instant, and requesting me to report to the Commissioners as to the necessity for renewing the order, and if so, for what period, and whether I consider any modification of the order necessary; and I am informed that the Commissioners think that if any renewal be necessary it might be advisable to renew the order until the 18th instant.

I am of opinion that it would be advisable the order should be renewed until the 18th instant, as the long continued wet weather prevents agricultural labour being offered by the farmers, and at that period we may hope a change will have dried the land and have made it more fit to be worked; but I would at once exclude from relief all single able-bodied men above eighteen years of age, and all married men having only two children.

I would not extend the order to the able-bodied in the electoral divisions of Ardfert and Abbey Dorney, where labour for all is laudibly being provided by the proprietors and farmers.

With the exception of three or four of the electoral Guardians the members of the Board do not appear to consider that any renewal of the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied will be necessary for the present.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 6, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd instant reporting as to the expediency of renewing the out-door relief order in Listowel Union, and I am to inform you that the order modified at your suggestion by the exclusion of able-bodied single men above eighteen years of age, and married men having only two children, will be issued by to-morrow night's post.

The Commissioners cannot, however, limit its application to particular electoral divisions; but if the Guardians are satisfied that there are no able-bodied men in those divisions who are destitute, it is quite competent to them to abstain from acting on the order so far as those divisions are concerned.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—March 7, 1848.

The Commissioners have received a communication from their Inspector, Captain Spark, relative to the order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in Listowel Union, which will expire this day.

Captain Spark is of opinion that it would be advisable to renew the order until the 18th instant; but he recommends that it should not include single able-bodied men above eighteen years of age, and married men having only two children.

The Commissioners have accordingly issued an order authorizing the administration of out-door relief to destitute poor persons, not being persons of the classes described in the first section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and not being single able-bodied men above eighteen years of age, or able-bodied married men having only two children.

From the large number of persons at present on the out-door relief lists it appears to the Commissioners that this is the most advisable course that could be adopted; and they trust that by now striking off all able-bodied men above the age of eighteen years who are either single or who being married have only two children, and by gradually reducing the lists between this period and the 18th instant, and at the same time using every means to have the largest possible amount of workhouse accommodation available for the relief of the able-bodied by that day, the administration of out-door relief under the second section of the Irish Relief Extension Act may totally cease on the 18th instant without any material inconvenience.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 3, 1848.

IN making my weekly report I have the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that at the meeting of the Committee on the 29th ultimo, appointed to take into consideration and report upon the plan I laid before the Board of Guardians on the 24th, to establish the distribution of cooked food to the able-bodied receiving out-door relief, with a more effective system of labour, only three members assembled, who, after about an hour devoted to the matter, decided not to report upon it until it had received further consideration by a full meeting of the Committee, which is to take place on Monday next.

I have the honour to submit a copy of the labour plan, which differs from, but is modified after, that of the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union. The most important difference is in the supervision by head overseers, of which officers I recommend four instead of one to go the round of all the 21 electoral divisions, to examine and take account of the labour done by every working party in each. With this I also forward the most economical estimates of the cost attending the distribution of baked bread made from Indian corn meal, of stirabout, of wetted or steeped meal, and of raw meal.

I consider baked bread would be preferable to stirabout on account of its being so readily distributed, and the small staff it would require if done by contract; but the great expense of baking is a serious objection. The estimate is calculated at the lowest rate it can be done for here (35s. per ton, or 1s. 9d. per cwt.), which is the price I am paying to bakers for the schools that receive relief from the funds of the British Association. There is another objection, however, which is that bread could be as easily and readily sold by the pauper labourers as raw meal. The most serious objections to the issue of raw meal are, that it is coveted by persons not destitute, who, if it were cooked, would not be on the relief lists, and that it is often sold by those who are really destitute, to the great injury of their distressed families; but the people have by practice now learned to cook it well. Bad cooking of the Indian meal heretofore induced disease, and on that account its distribution in an uncooked state was above all things to be avoided.

On Wednesday last also I attended a meeting of the Workhouse Extension Committee, at which I placed before the members of it estimates of the cost of fitting up and making ready the large mill I mentioned in my report of the 24th ultimo, which I am desirous to induce the Guardians to rent, with the Commissioners' approval, in order to extend the workhouse test, and to be prepared for the pressure that must occur when the out-door relief ceases. There appear, however, legal difficulties in the way of obtaining at present this desirable building, and no other can be had suitable to the purpose.

At the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday the former excellent candidate, Mr. Daniel Bamfield, was unanimously voted to fill the situation of James Gallivan, the young man whose appointment as assistant master the Commissioners disapproved of. This was done upon the understanding that Mr. Bamfield fell into the position of elected candidate in consequence of the ineligibility of Mr. Gallivan, there having been only these two candidates for the office, after due advertisement. The case of Mr. Carter, relieving officer, who thus took the place of Mr. Fleming, whose appointment in November last was not approved of by the Commissioners, is precisely similar. It was done under the sanction of Mr. Hancock.

Mr. John Roche, a gentleman reputed to be very able and fit for the office, and bringing high testimonials from other Boards, was elected as valuator and revisor at a remuneration of 100*l*. Mr. Roche, however, states that the new valuation and revision of the Union will not be finished until October next. Now from the state of the funds of the Union and the liabilities, the return of which goes to the Commissioners by this post, I consider that another rate must be struck and be in the course of collection before that period, to meet the exigencies of the distressed population; and I shall bring the subject before the Guardians at their next meeting.

Mrs. Fitzelle, apparently a proper person, and well recommended, was voted to the office of assistant matron at a salary of 15*l*. per annum.

Mr. Cooke, relieving officer of the Kilmoily district, having given in his resignation in obedience to the Commissioners' directions, and the Board having again before it the deputation of ratepayers from that electoral division, inquired into the complaints made by them against the manner in which that officer had done his duty; and the deputation certainly failed to prove that they had grounds for any charge against him beyond that which he before admitted, that in a few instances he had placed persons on his list on the statements of ratepayers as to their destitution, without going as he ought to have done to their residences himself. The Board have recommended the re-instatement of this officer.

The recommendation of the Commissioners in their circular of the 25th February, to print and post the names of all recipients of relief, with the townlands to which they respectively belong, was opposed by the body of elected Guardians, on the ostensible ground that the expense would more than counterbalance the advantage likely to result from the publication, and no arguments founded on the obvious benefit of the measure, urged by some able ex officio Guardians and myself, were sufficient to prevail. I shall again insist on this point at the next meeting.

I called the Guardians' attention to the fact that out-door relief to the able-bodied would cease to be legal after the 7th instant, and stated my impression that in consequence of the wet state of the land but little employment could as yet be given by the farmers; but there appeared no disposition, except on the part of two or three of the elected Guardians, to request a prolongation of the order, lest it should prevent the farmers from obtaining that assistance in their labours, when the weather may change, which the backwardness of the season for sowing and planting must occasion them to require.

The people generally will not work so long as they can obtain food without it; this opinion is borne out by the fact that 300 names of able-bodied paupers, who had been offered work at drainage now commencing in the Ballylongford electoral division (a most pauperised district), were brought before the Board, and justly struck off from relief for refusing it. However, I am of the opinion I had the honour to state in my letter of yesterday, that it would be advisable to continue out-door relief to such of the able-bodied as can obtain no employment for some short time longer. Single men, and such as are married but have no more than two children, might, after the 7th instant, find employment, and it would be well to reduce the heavy list by degrees rather than stop relief in food from so many thousands at once, amongst whom there will be a great mass of suffering throughout the year.

ENCLOSURES.

PLAN FOR OUT-DOOR RELIEF, WITH LABOUR AS TASK-WORK, SUBMITTED BY CAPTAIN SPARK.

Instructions to Relieving Officers, and Form A, to be issued by him to the Overseer in charge of working party; directing him to set the applicant to work.

Instructions to Relieving Officers.

The relieving officers on having their application books revised by the Guardians, and the amount of provisions sanctioned for each impotent pauper, shall issue to each a week's allowance by an order on the storekeeper; but when an able-bodied pauper, whose claim has been admitted by the Guardians, makes application, he is to be furnished with an order to the Overseer in charge of working party according to the subjoined Form A.

In case of extreme and urgent necessity the relieving officer may issue an order for temporary relief on the storekeeper, marking all such orders "Special." In issuing this and all other orders on the storekeeper, care is to be taken to write the amount in full as well as in figures.

On the next Board-day the books will again be revised and the expenditure book examined, and any improvident or unauthorized distribution will be charged to the relieving officer.

INSTRUCTIONS to OVERSEERS in charge of Working Parties, with Form B, to be issued by them upon the Storekeeper.

THE overseer will be directed by the head overseer to the station where it is intended that the working party of which he is to take charge shall be employed. The relieving officer when applied to by any of the able-bodied whose names have been approved by the Guardians, send each to such station with the order, Form A. On the receipt of this order the overseer is to set the applicant to work, and on the completion of the task apportioned to him, which should be such as to require eight hours of his time, he is to give him an order on the storekeeper of the electoral division in which the work has been performed, for the amount of provision to which he is entitled by the order of the Board of Guardians; the amount to be ascertained by reference to Form A. Each order delivered to the overseer should be filed, and also registered in a book to serve as a list of his working parties. The orders are to be laid before the Guardians at their next meeting, as an authority for the amount of food ordered by him; and in any case where it appears to the Guardians that the overseer had issued an order for an amount of provisions to a pauper whose task has not been completed, the value will be deducted from such overseer's salary.

INSTRUCTIONS TO HEAD OVERSEER.

THE head overseer of the district is to point out to the overseer in charge, the station at which the working parties are severally to be employed; he is also to point out the nature of the work to be done, the manner in which it is to be performed, and the daily task to be required from each labourer; which should not be less than what could be performed by eight hours' fair labour from the individual, according to his age and strength. He is to visit each station once a week for the purpose of ascertaining the total amount of work done, and its value, and certify the same to the Guardians at their next meeting; he is also to pay particular attention to the conduct of the persons employed, and to report any irregularity.

It is supposed that stone-breaking by task-work will be the best mode of employing the able-bodied: a portion in quarrying, some in breaking, and others in spreading. It will be necessary that the stones broken, and those quarried but not broken, should not be removed that week, in order that the head overseer may ascertain, by actual measurement, the precise amount of work done during the week. One-third of the number employed in breaking stones will be the number employed in quarrying; the stones quarried, but not broken, must be measured and taken into account—and thus may be ascertained the numbers employed in breaking and quarrying respectively.

The head overseer will, in this way, be a check on the overseer's issue of orders on the storekeeper.

INSTRUCTIONS TO STOREKEEPERS.

EACH storekeeper will be supplied with a certain amount of provisions, to be placed in the dépôt under his charge. The relieving officer will issue orders upon him for the amount of food to be issued to each impotent person for a week's allowance; such orders are to be filed and produced as vouchers for the amount issued on the orders of the relieving officers, to account for the items returned in the Expenditure Book to be kept by him.

The storekeepers are to receive and file separately all orders from the overseers for provisions to be issued to able-bodied, and to produce them as vouchers for the amount entered in the Expenditure Book.

The Expenditure Book and orders from the relieving officers for the supply of the impotent to be kept separately from the Expenditure Book and orders from the overseers for the supply of the able-bodied.

At the end of the week both books and sets of vouchers will be produced and balanced by the clerk of the Union, and submitted to the Guardians; and any deficiency appearing in either, or any amount distributed and not substantiated by vouchers, will be deducted from their salary.

If any orders for food are issued by the relieving officers marked "Special," such are to be separately arranged and entered.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 7, 1848.

THE Commissioners await your further report after the meeting on Thursday next, when they presume the report of the Committee on the adoption of the cooked food system will be read. The Commissioners also wait the result of your proposed communication with the Guardians as to the necessity for making a new rate before the period at which it is expected that the revision of the valuation can be completed.

The Commissioners have received the resolution of the Guardians requesting that Mr. Cooke may be allowed to continue in the office of relieving officer. The Commissioners have stated to the Guardians that they will give the subject consideration, and they request to be furnished with your observations on the subject, so that they may communicate their decision to the Guardians at their meeting next week.

The Commissioners have resolved to renew the out-door relief order, which expires this day, to the 18th instant; the order will however be modified in accordance with the suggestion contained in your report of the 2nd instant, and they will address the Board of Guardians by this night's post on the subject.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report to you, for the information of the Commissioners, that on Monday, and again yesterday, before the hour of meeting of the Board, the Committee assembled to consider further the plan and estimates I had laid before the Guardians for the distribution of cooked food, conjointly with an improved system of labour. The report, a very good one, was agreed to, which the Board yesterday adopted; and a copy will be transmitted with the minutes, to which I beg leave to call the Commissioners' attention. The Committee, after much consideration, and with a sincere desire to adopt what would be practically the most advisable under the straitened financial circumstances of the Union, came to a determination to recommend that steeped meal should henceforward be distributed to the able-bodied receiving out-door relief; and that the improved labour system should be carried out fully, agreeably to the plan in all its parts.

At the meeting of the Board yesterday, the Commissioners' order for renewal of out-door relief up to the 18th instant, was agreed to be carried out; and funds and orders for meal were given to the several relieving officers accordingly. There was much desultory debating upon the matter, and a disinclination to renew the order, even for a week, on the part of some of the Guardians; but a great majority of them were convinced of its necessity upon the grounds urged by me, that distress still existed in the Union generally to nearly as great an extent as heretofore, in consequence of lack of employment for the people, as well as on account of the backwardness of the season for all agricultural labour, as the unfortunate failure of the landed proprietors to obtain grants of money in aid of projected improvements; and unless a favourable change of weather should take place, I am of opinion that out-door relief must be continued still longer than the 18th instant to the class to which it is now restricted.

I brought before the Board a statement of their finances, and showed them that after payment of all their debts they had only a balance of about 1860*l.* to look to, which could under no circumstances, with the most rigid economy, serve to meet the necessities of the Union more than for one month from this time. I deprecated the apparent apathy of the Board upon this subject; and that the Guardians had not acted earlier upon the matter, after the report made by the Finance Committee on the 9th ultimo, which I had before urged upon their attention.

But there is a great desire to avoid striking a further rate previous to a revision of the Union, which, however, must not be waited for under present exigencies; and there is a feeling that any collection of a rate during the summer months must fail generally, as the rate-payers are in too reduced a state to answer the demand, having, in fact, (except of course some of the most wealthy), no means wherewith to pay. The Finance Committee were directed to meet, to inquire further into the financial state of the Union, and into its accounts up to the 25th instant; and to report at the meeting of the Board, on or before the 23rd instant, the amount of rate to be struck on the several electoral divisions.

A medical officer, Dr. Thorpe, of great respectability, was elected at a salary of 70*l.* per annum; and a dispenser or apothecary was ordered to be advertised for, at a salary of 25*l.* per annum.

A motion to have lists printed and posted of all persons receiving relief in the several townlands, was carried unanimously at this meeting, notwithstanding a motion to this effect was rejected before on the 2nd instant.

The master of the workhouse having reason to suspect that articles, the property of the Union, were secreted in a house belonging to the porter, but not occupied by him, proceeded to search for the same, and found therein two pair of blankets, some bed-ticks, and other articles. He reported the same to me, and yesterday I brought the circumstance before the Board. On inquiry, it appeared to the Board that the porter was not a party to the theft, but that his wife was culpable. The Board insisted, however, on the porter's resignation of his office, as they felt he could not be entirely free from blame. He stated, that he had sent the blankets to cover his wife when ill in that house.

I beg to remark on this transaction, that it appears to me a bad practice to allow the porter to have his wife resident in the house, as this woman has been of late; and I would suggest that no future porter should do so.

I beg to report that this morning I attended a meeting of the Finance Committee, at which preliminary steps were taken to fulfil the Board's instructions of yesterday relative to making a new rate; and that another meeting will take place on the 15th instant for that object.

The replevin case of a horse seized for poor-rate between J. Brown and the collector, Mr. Sandes, which has been removed from the sheriff's to the superior Courts in Dublin, was proposed to be abandoned on the plea of the poverty of the party, and the motion was carried at a late hour, when a large number of the Guardians had left the meeting, on Thursday last. It was resisted upon the ground that it would be an injurious precedent, unless the amount of rate due and costs were first paid, or the horse given up. I entirely agree in this view; and I trust the Commissioners will not sanction an abandonment of the action, except on these conditions.

Report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the Plan of administering Out-door Relief to the Able-bodied Paupers, suggested by Captain Spark.

BEFORE advertng to Captain Spark's plan, it is necessary to notice the system, if system it can be called, at present in operation.

The Poor Law Commissioners, by their sealed order authorizing out-door relief, require that each pauper should give eight hours' work every day for the food which may be granted to him by the Board of Guardians for the support of himself and family. The whole of the able-bodied paupers of each electoral division getting out-door relief are placed by the Board of Guardians under the control of the Guardian or Guardians of the electoral division, whose duty it is to set them to work, and they have the services of one or more stewards, paid by the Board to assist them in this duty.

The Board on placing an able-bodied pauper on the out-door relief register allows him a certain quantity of food weekly, depending upon the number and ages of the members of his family; and it is the duty of the relieving officer to give him this quantity weekly. In most of the electoral divisions he does this without a reference to the amount of labour given by the pauper, and without knowing whether he has given any at all or not. This mode of relief, which affords no test whatever of destitution, is open to the greatest abuse; and the Committee cannot too strongly recommend the Board to adopt another of a more stringent nature. The only thing to recommend it is its economy as regards the pay of the officers required to administer it; but this economy is more apparent than real.

Its weekly cost for the whole Union is—

Twenty-eight overseers or stewards, at 9s.	12	12	0
Carriage of meal	10	15	0
Total	£23	7	0

Captain Spark includes as part of the weekly expense of this system 1*l.* 15*s.*, which arises from the Board having a general store and storekeeper at Tarbert, where the relieving officers are supplied with meal; but this does not appear to the Committee to be any part of the cost of the system, for it will be necessary to keep up the store at Tarbert so long as the Board shall obtain meal from Limerick, and it might be got rid of altogether if the Board were to enter into a contract for the supply of meal with any person within the limits of the Union.

Captain Spark's plan of administering out-door relief to the able-bodied consists of two parts:—1st. As regards labour. 2nd. As regards food.

The adoption of it would render it necessary to take out of the hands of individual Guardians the whole of the control which the elected Guardians have at present over the labour department, and this the Committee consider to be an advantage.

He suggests that the Board should keep the same number of electoral division overseers or stewards as at present, and instead of the control of the Guardian of the electoral division, that the Board should divide the Union into four districts, and appoint a head overseer to each, whose duty it should be to see that the electoral division overseers acted strictly up to the orders of the Board, and discharged their duties faithfully—the head or district overseer to report all irregularities and neglects of duty to the Board. The duty of the electoral division or under overseer he suggests should be to set all the able-bodied paupers admitted to relief to work, appoint them a task under the control of the head overseer, superintend the paupers in the execution of their allotted tasks, and give them tickets according to a particular form which he has given authorizing the issue of the whole or a part of the food allowed to each pauper by the Board, taking care that the quantity of the food so authorized to be issued should be in exact proportion to the amount of the allotted task which the pauper may have executed.

The head overseer is to take care that the under overseer does not give tickets for more food than the total quantity of work executed would justify; and in the event of his doing so, Captain Spark suggests that the excess, as stated by the head overseer to the Board, should be charged against the under overseer's salary.

There is an appearance of hardship as regards the paupers in this system of relief. It has been alleged that in the event of an able-bodied pauper not executing the whole of the task given to him, he would be deprived of a portion of the food intended for his family as well as for himself, and that the family would thereby be punished or starved because the head of it was idle. This hardship appears to the Committee to be far more apparent than true.

The system puts it within the power of the pauper to get a certain quantity of food for himself and family, and it justly throws upon him the responsibility of the evil consequences which may result from his getting only a part instead of the whole of that quantity.

The weekly cost of administering the labour part of Captain Spark's plan is as follows:—

Four head overseers, at 20 s.	4	0	0
Twenty-eight under overseers, at 9 s.	12	12	0

This only exceeds by 4*l.* the week the cost of the present system, and the Committee are of opinion that even if the same number of persons as are relieved now, applied for relief subject to the labour test which Captain Spark's system affords, the additional expense of 4*l.* a-week would soon be covered by the value of the additional quantity of work which would be executed. But this appears to be the least of the advantages of this system. The Committee consider that if fairly and strictly carried out, it would limit the applications for relief from the able-bodied poor to those who were really destitute and could not obtain employment in any other way, and would to a certain extent keep alive in the minds of the poor a spirit of self-reliance. The Committee strongly recommend the Board to adopt this part of Captain Spark's plan, provided they will do so with the determination of carrying it strictly into effect.

With regard to the second part of Captain Spark's plan, which relates to the kind of food to be issued to the paupers on the tickets which they may obtain from the sub-overseers, the Committee beg to observe that the Poor Law Commissioners have directed that meal in a raw or unsteeped state shall not be issued to the able-bodied paupers, and accordingly Captain Spark has considered three modes of supplying cooked food or steeped meal.

The first is baked bread, his estimate of the weekly cost of which is 75*l.* 5*s.* for the carriage, baking, and distribution in the shape of bread, 43 tons of Indian corn, or other meal. This is the greatest weekly cost of the three modes, but it has the advantage of requiring no preparatory or immediate outlay.

Listowel Union.

The second the stirabout mode. The preparatory and immediate outlay for this mode would require 352*l.*, as detailed in Captain Spark's estimate, and the weekly outlay would be as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
Rent of 21 depôts, at 3 s.	3	3	0
Salary of 21 storekeepers or distributors, at 10 s.	10	10	0
Forty-two women to cook, attend the fires, and draw water, at 4 s.	8	8	0
One load of turf for each depôt per diem, being 192 loads, at 1 s.	9	12	0
Carriage of 43 tons of meal, at 5 s.	10	15	0
Total weekly	£42	8	0

The third mode is by wetted or steeped meal, the weekly cost of which is:—

	£.	s.	d.
Rent of 21 depôts, at 3 s.	3	3	0
Salaries of 21 storekeepers or distributors	10	10	0
Forty-two assistants to wet meal and draw water, at 4 s.	8	8	0
Carriage of 43 tons of meal, at 5 s.	10	15	0

The wetted meal system would require a preparatory outlay of 32*l.* for tubs and measures.

It is said that as the people now understand the proper mode of cooking Indian corn meal, one of the reasons for issuing cooked food no longer exists, and that the principal things to be guarded against as regards food is the desire of persons who are not really objects of relief to get for nothing a saleable article in order that they may dispose of it, as also the inclination of a few reckless or selfish heads of families who are really destitute to sell their children's food for the purpose of obtaining spirits, tobacco, or any other articles of luxury for themselves.

The Committee concur in this opinion, admitting at the same time that the issue of cooked food or steeped meal may very properly be applied in aid of a strict labour test to discourage improper applications for relief.

The Committee are of opinion that baked bread is a very saleable article, and as the weekly cost of issuing it is very great, they cannot recommend it.

The Committee would have preferred stirabout to steeped meal, had the preparatory cost of issuing it not been excessive, and the weekly cost greater than that of steeped meal. Steeped meal, then, is the only kind of food sanctioned by the Commissioners which the Committee can recommend the Board to adopt; and before directing it to be issued they would recommend the Board to give such precise and clear instructions about the mode of steeping the meal as the distributors could easily understand and would not be disposed to evade, for the Committee feel convinced that if the Board give the electoral division distributors meal to issue to the able-bodied on the tickets of the under overseers, only telling them to issue it steeped, there will be as many modes of steeping it as there are electoral divisions, and the tendency of all those modes will be to evade the spirit and to defeat the proper object of the order for steeping it.

The cost of the labour part of Captain Spark's plan is the same, whatever kind of food may be issued, and the weekly cost of issuing steeped food conjointly with his labour test is:—

Cost of issuing steeped food	32	16	0
Labour.	16	12	0

If it were considered that the labour test was of itself sufficiently stringent to prevent improper applications for relief, unsteeped meal might be issued, the cost of which conjointly with that test would be 8*l.* 8*s.* less than the foregoing sum, and the preparatory cost of 32*l.* would be got rid of altogether.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—March 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration the minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of Listowel Union on the 9th March, containing the report of the Committee appointed to inquire into Captain Spark's plan for distributing out-door relief to the able-bodied in Listowel Union.

The Commissioners have attentively considered this report, which is marked by great intelligence. The greater part of the report is so entirely in accordance with the Commissioners' views, that it does not appear to call for any remark on the part of the Commissioners. In reference, however, to that part of it which involves the expediency or in expediency of steeping or cooking the food which is given as out-door relief to able-bodied men, the Commissioners desire to state that they do not wish to exaggerate the advantages of cooked food, but that the experience of the Relief Committees of last year was so decidedly in its favour, that the Commissioners have introduced it as a part of their general system in the arrangements for out-door relief; and this being the case, the Commissioners trust that the Listowel Board of Guardians will give it a fair trial, and will carry the system out even although it may not be altogether the system which they themselves would prefer.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 16, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, that at the meeting of the Guardians this day, I again called their attention to the state of their funds and the necessity for exertion being made by the clerk to get new rate books ready, that no delay should occur in striking another rate to meet the wants of the Union; in doing this I took occasion to point out to the Board the general distress and destitution that must prevail amongst the large body of the poor recipients of out-door relief for want of employment, when that relief would cease at the end of the week, and I urged upon the Guardians the necessity that every effort should be made by the proprietors and farmers to give all the employment in their power.

It appeared to be the opinion of many members of the Board that there is no hope of any sufficient employment for the people except in a few localities, that the farmers would do nearly all their own work within their families, being too poor to pay labourers; that the landed proprietors having failed to obtain from the Board of Works the advances they had looked for under the Land Improvement Bill, the out-door relief would, in consequence, have to be continued throughout the spring and summer, and up to the gathering of the next harvest; and I am sorry to have to concur in this opinion, which I am obliged to do after much attentive observation and inquiry through every district of the Union.

For the present, however, it was urged that the Commissioners should be immediately requested by me to be pleased to grant an order for the continuance of out-door relief to the able-bodied of the classes now receiving it, for another week from the 18th instant, as the unfortunate continuance of extreme wet weather up to this day, which had flooded all the lands, would totally prevent agricultural labour of any kind being commenced for that period at least.

A resolution to this effect was thereupon unanimously passed, and I beg leave earnestly to recommend that the request be complied with, and that an order be granted and sent down to that effect by return of post if possible.

At this meeting the motion being brought forward to rescind the contract with Messrs. Russell for having supplied some Indian meal of bad quality, and short of weight, those gentlemen attended with their solicitor, and on examination by the Board and myself of the storekeeper and the relieving officers, the charge against that firm was not sustained, and a resolution to that effect was agreed to.

Mr. Matthew Grace, a practical agriculturist, was introduced to the Board, having been sent down by the Royal Agricultural Association to afford advice and instruction to the farming classes in this and the Tralee Union, and that gentleman's services were accepted with thanks. The relieving officers were directed to introduce Mr. Grace to the farmers in their several districts, and to give him every assistance in their power to enable him to convey useful instruction to the peasantry.

WITH reference to your recommendation for the extension of the out-door relief order for another week, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have directed the order, which expires to-day, to be renewed for another week as you request.

The Commissioners will be glad to receive from you a report stating fully your views as to the state and prospects of the Union, especially with reference to the supposed necessity for administering out-door relief to the able-bodied until next harvest.

Listowel Union.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 18, 1848.

I BEG to report that the relieving officer of the Kiltomy district in this Union, reported to me this day that his store at Lixnan had been broken into during last night, and robbed of 10 sacks of Indian meal,—this being the second robbery of the kind within a fortnight; and feeling the necessity for immediate vigorous steps being taken, I called a meeting of the Guardians on the emergency, on the authority of the 10th article of the Commissioners' Regulations for the meeting of Guardians, and at the workhouse. I met, accordingly, Maurice Leonard, Esq., D.L., chairman, Captain Home, J.P., and W. G. Sandes, Esq., J.P., ex-officio Guardians. After an examination of Mr. Bugeley, the Board obtained the assistance of the police at Listowel to proceed at once to Lixnan, to search suspected houses, with that officer, who received instructions to issue no more rations to the able-bodied of that (the Kiltomy) electoral division, and to remove his meal store to Kilflyn. The police arrested one man, now in prison, in whose house a quantity of meal he could not account for was found.

The Board were informed that some of the magistrates of the neighbourhood had some time since applied that a party of the constabulary should be established in Lixnan, and they very strongly recommend and earnestly request that the Commissioners will be so good as to urge upon the Government the necessity for an immediate compliance with the application, as nothing can be worse than the character of the people of that village and district, who are, it appears, noted nightly robbers and marauders.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 23, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your report to the Under Secretary, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, in which I am informed the Commissioners would be glad to receive from me a report stating fully my views as to the state and prospects of the Union, and especially with reference to the supposed necessity for the administration of out-door relief to the able-bodied until next harvest.

In my report, dated the 11th instant, I have stated the views of a majority of the Guardians on this subject, and those views concur with my own—that distress will be found to exist throughout the Union, with the exception of very few localities, to nearly as great an extent as when the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied was first granted in December last. I have been led to this opinion by what I can see and learn of the farmers generally throughout the Union, whose poverty is such as to render them unable to give employment at all commensurate with the prevailing destitution; and all the energies of the landed proprietors seem as if paralyzed by the disappointments they have met in their several applications to the Board of Works under the Landed Improvement Act, as well as for the great arterial drainage of the rivers Feale, Gale, and Brick, although all the required preliminary conditions have, I understand, been fulfilled. These desirable works would have afforded employment to thousands of paupers who have been, and in the absence of such employment must continue, with their families to be a burden on the rates of the Union.

I have to state also, that, unfortunately, the small holdings and gardens of the poor are likely to remain uncultivated, and add to the prevailing destitution, for want of seed to put into the ground.

Notwithstanding what I have above stated, I do not wish to recommend an immediate renewal of the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied. Many gentlemen of intelligence among the Guardians appear to consider there is no necessity for it, who should possess from long experience a more intimate knowledge of the state of the Union and the real exigencies of the population than I can pretend to, although I have devoted myself earnestly to the inquiry. I am desirous that their opinion on this point should have a trial during the next month to come, the best period for employment throughout the spring.

As regards the financial state of the Union, the periodical returns and my report of the 11th instant will have informed the Commissioners. The present rate now in collection will scarcely cover the liabilities of the Union up to the middle of next month; and I apprehend trouble will be experienced by the collectors in getting in much of what is still due. As to the new rates about to be made, it will be difficult to collect them during the summer; the smaller rate-payers will scarcely be able to meet the demand, for they have parted with the stock and produce of last year to pay the rents and last rates, and in having provided the means of support for themselves and families during the winter now ended.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 25, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 22nd instant, reporting on the state and prospects of Listowel Union; and under the circumstances stated by you, the Commissioners had intended to have allowed the order authorizing out-door relief in Listowel Union to expire. Your further report, however, which has been this day received, has led the Commissioners to alter their intention in this respect, and they have accordingly renewed the order for another week.

They request, however, that you will give your special attention to the condition of the peasantry, and report specially to the Commissioners next week as to the necessity of any further renewal of the order.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, that at the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, the appointment of a resident apothecary was reconsidered agreeably to the Commissioners' recommendation, and advertisements for the same office, without residence, at 30*l.* per annum salary, were ordered.

The salary of the clerk, Mr. Phillips, was voted to be increased from 60*l.* to 80*l.* per annum, and I beg to recommend that this increase may have the sanction of the Commissioners, as that officer is in every way deserving of it, and is fully entitled to it in consequence of the great increase of his duties.

The new assistant-master has been obliged to resign the situation from ill-health, and another was ordered to be advertised for. Mr. Gallivan withdrew his notice of a motion upon the subject of his appointment.

Mr. Sullivan, a very fit person, bearing an excellent character, was elected to the office of porter, in place of Nolan, resigned.

The Board took into consideration the lamentable continuance of wet weather, preventing all agricultural employment whatever, and the distress that must fall upon the population if out-door relief to the able-bodied were to cease on the 25th instant; they thereupon resolved to solicit from the Commissioners a renewal of their order for another week in the hope that the weather will change, and the clerk was directed to make application accordingly.

I entirely agree with the Guardians who desired a renewal of the order, as my report of yesterday on this subject will have shown; and I believe from the representations that came before the Board to-day, that not even the class excluded under the last two orders, to meet the expected demand at this season for labour, can find any employment, and that they are in great want and destitution.

I regret to state that I could get no meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday, and that I shall not be able to do so until after the assizes, as most of its members will be on the grand jury, or in attendance at Tralee; and the consideration of what rate must be made on the several electoral divisions must, therefore, be deferred until that period, as well as the establishment of the system of cooked food.

P.S. I ought to state that I have received to-day directions from Count Strzelecki to reduce the number of children receiving relief at this moment from the British Association through the schools, to the amount of about 5600 down to 4000. To strike off from this source of food as many as 1500 children will be felt in the Union as a great calamity at this period; and if it could be delayed through any representation from the Commissioners for even a short time, I shall feel deeply grateful.

Listowel Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 28, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have renewed the order authorizing the continuance of out-door relief to the able-bodied poor for another week, as requested by the Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners have sent to Count Strzelecki an extract from your report, relating to the reduction of the number of children receiving relief from the British Association.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 30, 1848.

IN your letter dated the 25th instant, my attention is called especially to the condition of the peasantry of this Union, and I am desired to report also especially to the Commissioners this week as to the necessity of any further renewal of the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied; and in your letter of the 28th instant, I am informed that the Commissioners rely upon my reporting in sufficient time to enable them to renew the order on the 1st of April, if I deem a renewal necessary: and in reference thereto I beg to state, that I have already given my earnest attention to the condition of the peasantry, and that I can add nothing to the representations made in my preceding reports of the state of this class, namely, that much distress exists amongst them, and will continue to exist in many localities throughout the Union to a very great degree for want of sufficient employment, which employment the farmers cannot afford to give, nor the landholders furnish, for want of means.

In my report of the 22nd, I stated that many of the Guardians, men of intelligence, are of opinion that no necessity exists for a renewal of the order, and I was desirous that their opinion should have a trial during this the best season for employment throughout the spring. These gentlemen, however, from continued living among a population, in which, unfortunately, abject wretchedness abounds, are perhaps less sensitive on that account to its positive claims to their consideration than a person like myself, who has not been so long used to witness such a state of miserable existence as prevails among the peasantry of this country; and upon reflection and further inquiry, I do not hesitate now to recommend that the order should be renewed, restricted to the same class as at present, for although there is certainly a promise of a continuance of the present fair weather, and that agricultural operations may be carried on in all parts of the Union to a considerable extent, yet the degree of employment given, will not, in my opinion, be at all equal to the wants of the numerous distressed population.

I would recommend that the order be accompanied by a strong representation to the Guardians that they should be vigilant to strike off the lists all cases coming from localities where it can be fully understood that employment may be found for the parties claiming relief. I shall not fail myself to urge this upon the Board's attention.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 31, 1848.

I AM directed to state that the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order for a period of one month, and the Commissioners will address the Guardians at their next meeting as you recommend.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 31, 1848.

I BEG to report to you for the information of the Commissioners, that on Wednesday last there was a meeting of the Board held for the admission of paupers, and to examine and pass the relieving officers' books and accounts; the Guardians having, at my instance, determined to meet twice each week to forward the business of the Union. About 40 paupers were admitted into the house with their families. There were no less than 246 vacancies—that number, including infants and children, having quitted during the past week, some of whom, tempted by the present fine weather to seek employment outside, but the majority of the men quit in distaste of the confinement and the daily labour exacted in breaking stones or in draining and working on the land belonging to the establishment. The relieving officers received directions to withhold rations from all able-bodied people whilst vacancies remain in the workhouse, but to give to such paupers provisional admission tickets until the house is again filled.

At the meeting yesterday, which consisted of but few members, many of the Board being absent at the assizes, the late chairman, vice-chairman, and deputy vice-chairman were unanimously re-elected.

After the ordinary business had been gone through, a letter was read, received from the Rev. Eugene M'Carthy, P.P., representing very strongly the distress existing in the western districts of Rattoo, Drumkeen, and Ballyheigue, among persons not entitled to relief. The relieving officers were all examined in order to ascertain from their evidence the degree of employment now offering in their several districts, and all testified that there was as yet, except in Ballylongford and Abberdorney, little or no employment afforded by landlords or farmers, and that it would be unsafe and cause great distress and starvation to withhold relief to the classes now receiving it. The Board thereupon came to a resolution to request from the Commissioners a renewal of the order for another week; but the majority of the members present were of opinion, that at this season, and considering the very low state of their finances, out-door relief to the able-bodied, ought, at the end of the ensuing week to be withheld; and if, after a time, it should become absolutely necessary to recommence them, it was suggested, the case of every applicant should undergo a rigid scrutiny by the Board with a view to reduce the numbers to the lowest possible scale.

This suggestion I quite approved of, and I will endeavour to have it fully carried out, as well as the improved labour system with cooked food; but I regret to have to state, that it is too much the custom of this Board to hold much serious and earnest debate upon the merits of a good suggestion to give even an unanimous consent to it, yet afterwards drop the matter altogether. The Guardians adopt able reports made by Committees, but it requires great stimulus to bring them to carry resolutions founded upon such reports into good effect, more especially if they at all conflict with the wishes of the classes to be affected by them. At this moment there appears a serious apprehension of coming troubles which goes far to paralyze all active efforts.

I beg to state that the rate-books will be quite ready for the Finance Committee appointed to meet on the 4th proximo, and I shall have everything prepared to enable the Board to strike new rates for the several electoral divisions at its meeting on Thursday next.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 6, 1848.

THE Commissioners had, previously to the receipt of your report above referred to, issued an order authorizing out-door relief in Listowel Union under that section to the 1st May next, and they enclose, for your information, a copy of a letter which they yesterday addressed to the Board of Guardians on the subject.

The Commissioners rely upon your exertions in stimulating the Guardians to energetic action in carrying out the views expressed in that letter.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—April 4, 1848.

THE Commissioners having issued an order authorizing the continuance of out-door relief to certain classes of destitute poor persons in Listowel Union till the 1st May next, deem it right to call the serious attention of the Guardians to the great importance of rigidly scrutinizing the relief lists, and reducing the relief under the 2nd section to the narrowest possible limits compatible with a due regard to the wants of the really destitute.

With this view the Commissioners would again call the attention of the Guardians to the paramount importance of keeping the workhouse as extensively available as possible for the relief of the able-bodied, by relieving out of the workhouse all such of the destitute poor in the

Listowel Union.

Union as may legally be relieved under the provisions of the 1st section. A task of work should be rigidly enforced from every able-bodied recipient of relief, and the relief should be limited strictly to cooked food or wetted meal, in accordance with the arrangements already resolved on by the Guardians.

The Commissioners do not doubt that the attention of the Guardians has already been directed to these points, and that they will take care not to give relief to any able-bodied man who could obtain independent employment; but the subject is one of such urgent importance as regards the future welfare of Listowel Union, and the Commissioners are so anxious to break through the habit of dependence on the poor-rate at a time when the labour of able-bodied men is required for the cultivation of the land, that the Commissioners have deemed it right to draw the attention of the Guardians specially to the subject.

KELLS UNION.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 8, 1848.

REFERRING to your letter of the 4th instant, on the necessity for renewing the order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in this Union, after the 14th instant, I beg to forward a resolution of the Guardians, passed at their late meeting, and to state, that having scrutinized most of the relief list, I considered it essentially necessary that the out-door relief should be continued for a further period, until labour can be provided, of which there is little or none at present.

ENCLOSURE.

KELLS UNION

Board Room, February 5, 1848.

THE Board of Guardians, considering the alarming state of destitution of the unemployed able-bodied,—

Resolved unanimously,—That the Poor Law Commissioners be requested to renew the order for the distribution of out-door relief to the able-bodied for one month next ensuing after the 14th instant, in the Kells Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order accordingly for one month. The order will be issued on the 14th instant.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain DENT:—February 9, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith an extract from a Constabulary Report which they have received from the Chief Secretary's department, relating to the death of a man, name unknown, on the 27th ultimo, in Kells Union, and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians, the workhouse master, or any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

Constabulary Report referred to in foregoing.

*County of Meath, Knuck, Castletown,
February 3, 1848.*

SUB-INSPECTOR EAMERS reports that a poor man, who obtained leave to sleep in an outhouse, was found dead on the 28th ultimo. The coroner's inquest was, "We find that deceased came to his death on the lands of Whitehood, on the 27th January, 1848, from extreme cold and destitution."

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—February 26, 1848.

WITH reference to a Constabulary Report, dated 3rd instant, relating to the death of a man on the 27th ultimo at Whitewood, in Kells Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to transmit herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of a report which the Commissioners have received from their Inspector, Captain Dent, of an inquiry which he was directed by them to make on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

Report above referred to.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

IN compliance with the directions contained in your letter of the 9th instant, with extract from Constabulary Report on death in Whitewood, I have to inform you that I was at Nobber yesterday, where I saw the relieving officer of that and the Kilmainham division, who had been unable to learn anything further than that the man (deceased) was totally unknown; that he was supposed to have come out of the county Louth, and said to be going to Athboy. He passed through Rathgillen, and at Whitewood he was given some meal, and the offer of a fire to cook it by, which he declined, putting the meal in his pocket. He was then put into a barn belonging to a person named Roger M'Guire, with some straw, and a sheet to wrap himself in. On going to him in the morning he was found quite dead.

No person answering the description applied either to the Board of Guardians of this Union, nor the relieving officer at Nobber.

The constabulary could give me no further information on the subject, nor any of the inhabitants, some of whom had seen him, and one old man told me he appeared a very sickly man.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 13, 1848.

I BEG to forward the usual return of my proceedings during the week now past.

It being necessary to assemble the relieving officers for the purpose of furnishing the clerk of the Union with the necessary data to enable him to make the returns called for by you, I have taken advantage of and devoted part of my time to the strict scrutiny of their books and mode of keeping their accounts, which was so far completed as to enable them to be laid before the Board at their meeting yesterday, and the requisite signatures to be attached,—a very desirable attainment, and which had heretofore been much neglected. The Board of Guardians have also entered into my views, and acceded to my request of entering upon this essential part of their duty the first thing after the opening routine of duty, by which much valuable time will be saved to those officers, and they enabled to return early to their respective districts.

My attention has been directed to the sanitary state of the branch house, occupied by female children in the town, in which much sickness has prevailed (the governess being at this moment seriously ill), arising, I believe, from the accumulation of filth round the premises, lodgment of stagnant water (occasioning great dampness in the house), caused by the drains being stopped, creating thereby intolerable smells. I have, by the assistance of the able-bodied out-door paupers, been enabled to remedy this, and hope to do it effectually, now that the premises have passed into the hands of the Guardians from their chairman, the Marquis of Headford, at an easy rate. I anticipate much benefit to arise from this arrangement when the contemplated alterations shall have been effected, before carrying out which they await the advice of the architect, and have requested I would call the attention of the Commissioners to the Board of Guardians' minute of the 5th instant, requesting the architect's presence as soon as possibly convenient.

Having been unable to arrange for the Guardians to meet two days in the week, I have in lieu thereof their promise that the several Guardians will meet me on appointed days in their respective electoral divisions, for the purpose of strictly scrutinizing their lists and inquiring into the state and circumstances of the applicants, by which, and an early regular attendance, I anticipate the duties of the Board day may easily be got through.

It is evident that from the non-attendance of the Finance Committee, the mode of conducting their cash payments has been very loose and irregular, which, as far as I can yet see, has not been attended with serious results; I propose to have stated meetings of the Finance Committee, and going through their accounts regularly with them.

I am happy to state that fever, as well as sickness generally, is on the decrease. The administering bread and milk rations to the convalescent out-door paupers was becoming a crying evil; but arrangements have been made by which the abuse will, I trust, be remedied.

The returns of the collections of the poor-rates are improving, particularly in those districts most behind. The lodgments this week, ending yesterday, amount to near 400 $\frac{1}{2}$. As far as in my power the utmost vigilance shall be exerted on this essential point.

A death having occurred in this town on the 10th instant, and on which a coroner's jury was summoned, and the usual reports circulated that it was caused by starvation, and being refused the relief, I append a copy of the coroner's verdict supplied me by the constabulary,—having myself privately seen the body, which bore no signs of starvation; on the contrary, the limbs were round and fleshy, and the evidence of the medical man who was called in to report on her case, stated that she died from effusion on the chest, and that the intestines contained much food. It appears she was frequently offered the workhouse, and was a confirmed vagrant.

It is gratifying to state that I have met with a cordial reception from every member of the Board of Guardians, who express themselves willing to assist in every way to carry out the views of the Government.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. GRAHAM, Constable, to Captain DENT :—February 11, 1848.

I HAVE to inform you that an inquest was held in the town of Kells on this day, when the following verdict was given :—

“We find the deceased, Margaret Byrne, came to her death in the town of Kells, in said county, on Thursday, the 10th February, 1848, by the visitation of God.”

IN reference to the building taken as an additional workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners have already referred the request of the Guardians in their minute of the 5th instant to the architect, Mr. Wilkinson, who, however, is on service at present in another part of Ireland.

With regard to that part of your report which relates to the proposed meeting of the Guardians in their several electoral divisions, I am to state that the functions of the Guardians on such occasions must be confined to the purposes referred to in your report, with the view of assisting the Board of Guardians, to whom they should report, it being the province of the Board of Guardians to determine in each case as to the affording of any, and what relief, and no Guardian being empowered to act as such (under section 29 of 1 and 2 Vic., c. 56), except at a meeting of the Board of Guardians.

In respect to the irregularity pointed out in the mode of making payments, the Commissioners request that you will give your continued attention to the accounts and financial affairs of the Union, as well as to the checking of any abuses which may exist in the administration of out-door rations to the convalescent.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 22, 1848.

I BEG to transmit a statement of my proceedings during the week ending the 19th instant.

My time has been principally occupied in examining into the internal economy of the workhouse, which will require my constant attention to see that the regulations under which the officers act are carried out to the letter, much neglected, I fear, heretofore. I have strictly examined into the state of the glass in the windows, which are in a fearful state of dilapidation, hundreds of panes being broken or cracked; this I have brought before the Board of Guardians, and trust soon to have remedied.

The relieving officers' books and accounts are now nearly all completed, and I am continuing my visits through the electoral divisions on inspection; it was perfectly understood that going through the lists by electoral divisions was merely to assist the Board on their general meetings, and not to supersede their functions, or be an authority to act upon.

I have been able to make very little progress in the financial reforms this week, from two causes: the clerk of the Union has been in constant attendance on his sick daughter, the governess of the branch house containing female children, and who it was thought would not survive, and has also been confined to his bed himself; and secondly, from this being the assize week at Trim, most of the influential or working members have been kept from attending on Saturday. I have, however, arranged that a meeting of finance, which has been very much neglected, shall take place as soon as the gentlemen return from the assizes. I have also been enabled to arrange a more regular system in the presenting and paying of tradesmen's and other bills.

I find the greatest reluctance among the able-bodied paupers to come into the house, but very anxious to force themselves on the out relief; this, I have no doubt, I am well able to remedy, by adopting the system of causing all large families, whose receipt of meal in value exceeds or comes near to that he would receive for a fair day's work, putting single men, or those with small families, on the work, by which, in most cases, they work out the value of their rations. In the case of the Kells out-door paupers, they have been most beneficially and profitably employed in opening the drains, &c., round the branch house, thereby removing all unwholesome smells, and in a great degree rendering the house dry. It would be, perhaps, too much to say it was attended with so favourable a result as to stop the sickness prevalent in that house; but it is certain that since the drains have been open, and the unwholesome soil removed, the daily report has been that no cases of sickness have arisen.

Fever is still on the decrease, at least outside, though dysentery is prevalent, generally following fever.

I hope to return to the Union to-morrow, when my best attentions and undivided time shall be given to carrying out your views, and bringing the Union into a creditable, wholesome position.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 27, 1848.

IN forwarding the usual return for the week ended the 26th instant, I have to report that the out-door able-bodied relief is beginning to work more favourably. The supply of tools furnished by the Board of Works has enabled me to put the test of stone-breaking in full operation, and by adopting the system of keeping those on the lists, who by giving the labour of one or two of a family, make a good return of part of the expense incurred in their support, and ensures their obtaining employment immediately it offers; while the house is the test to those whose large families would obtain a greater supply of meal, than the value of a fair day's labour (reference being made to character as to industry,) to those of idle habits, or who are suspected of having means or holding land.

I find a beneficial result by causing able-bodied widows, many of them with grown up daughters, to have their rations daily, instead of heretofore as weekly, meant only for the infirm and impotent, and who I suspect in many instances had the whole week to find employment in washing, &c.; by this, and a small demand for labour, the lists are being reduced.

The arrangements for having the branch house in Kells as a permanency for the female children is, I fear, at an end; the landlord, Lord Headfort, not feeling himself in a position to grant a lease of the premises; and any outlay on such a holding as they now have would be highly injudicious; the Board of Guardians are therefore turning their thoughts to enlarging the work-house.

I yesterday brought before a full Board of Guardians the subject of your letter of the 18th instant, relating to the contribution due to the audit fund, and pressed on them the necessity of its being immediately paid, which they assented to without a dissentient voice, and a cheque for the amount duly signed.

The master of the house, who appears a well-meaning man, does not, I fear, possess energy sufficient for so responsible a situation, as the state of the house shows. I told him before the Board what was expected of him, and he was cautioned by the chairman, and urged to a more active fulfilment of his duty. The grown boys were getting into a state of great insubordination, but have, I trust, received a salutary check, four of them having been yesterday sent to the bridewell to be handed over to the petty sessions, for constantly leaving the house, and when confined destroying whatever they could. I continue to meet with in this, and on every other occasion, the cordial support of the Guardians. The Visiting Committee which had almost ceased its functions, will in future have regular days, and on Monday we commence. I have strong grounds for suspecting that the internal discipline of the house, particularly after hours, is not attended to as it ought; and that power is delegated to those to whom it ought not to be: my most watchful attention is directed to this; should my surmises prove correct, I shall not fail to bring the subject immediately before you.

I have succeeded in having the stoves placed in the sheds and a light; the much wanted glass has arrived, and I trust shortly to have that long neglected portion of the buildings in creditable repair.

I hope to have a full extra meeting of the Board of Guardians on Thursday next, for the purposes of going through the rate collectors' books, and enforcing the collections where necessary; this is what I have long desired; it is also to be purely a financial meeting for looking into the accounts generally, and more fully than they have well time on their regular days for.

I am arranging a system of employment of the in-door able-bodied paupers, and hope to have them beneficially and usefully employed, as well as bringing more boys under the tailor and shoemaker to be instructed.

Fever and sickness generally are on the decrease.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

WITH reference to your observations respecting the master of the workhouse of Kells Union, I am to state that the Commissioners will be glad to receive in due course a further report from you as to his competency.

WITH reference to your letter of the 2nd instant, on the subject of determining or suspending on the 18th March instant all orders authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men, and calling for my report on the subject, I beg to state that my mind has been much occupied with the subject since my arrival here, and my feeling is that as soon as it can be done the better, not only for the country but for the people themselves. It will be seen in the report of the proceedings of the Board of Guardians that the subject was brought before them by me, and a unanimous resolution passed to the effect that it would be most desirable to adopt your suggestions, and at the same time two or more eligible houses should be sought for immediately to be ready to meet the exigencies of the Act.

My reasons for this recommendation are, that while the able-bodied can receive out-door relief the pressure on the lists will continue; and the labour on the land, particularly with the small farmers, will be performed by the able female members and the children just under the prescribed age—15 years—of those heads of families who will, for the consideration of three or four rations, continue breaking stones, trusting to the gains of the above.

There is also a feeling highly detrimental among this class of men, even when employed, that upon any temporary cessation of the work they may be on, and in many instances I believe on the days they may feel a disinclination to work, that they have a right to be put upon the stones. There are upwards of 700 heads of families, able-bodied men, now on the out-door relief in this Union; but I feel perfectly satisfied not one-sixth of that number would go into the workhouse, and that when they find they have no remedy but the house they will manage to subsist themselves.

I shall lose no time in getting houses prepared to meet the exigencies of the case; but feel assured that the workhouse will be enabled with such help to receive all who apply for relief.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 8, 1848.

THE Commissioners, under the circumstances stated, do not intend to renew the order of 14th February last, so far as regards able-bodied men. That order expires on 14th instant; and the Commissioners propose before that date to issue in lieu of the former a new order to authorize out-door relief to other classes

Kells Union.

(except able-bodied men) not included in section 1 of 10 Vic., c. 31, such as widows with one child, orphans, and women whose husbands are in gaol or absent from Ireland, at present relievable under the order of 14th February till 14th March.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 6, 1848.

I BEG to forward the usual weekly report for the week ending 4th instant, and I have the satisfaction in reporting a progressive improvement in the state of the Union generally.

I have succeeded in assembling the Visiting Committee, going through the house with them, and making such arrangements for the internal discipline and economy as will, I trust, be highly beneficial.

On Thursday last we had an extra meeting of the Guardians. The collectors' books, with the exception of one ill, were gone through, names of the four largest defaulters selected from each list, and directions issued to proceed against them in Petty Sessions if the rates were not instantly paid. I have every hope that the amount of arrears paid into the treasurer's hands this week will prove the efficacy of this movement.

Several cases of gross negligence on the part of the authorities in the house, of permitting a constant communication, not only with the town but the different sides of the house, money being sent out, and provisions of various descriptions brought and cooked by the paupers. This bears upon my last report on the subject of the master (the matron being also equally faulty), and bears me out in my surmises. Arrangements are being made to correct these abuses entirely, and I trust very shortly to be able to report a better state of things; my utmost vigilance will be used. It is highly satisfactory to state that I am borne ably out by the Board of Guardians, who meet my views and wishes on every point, and are willing to wait my further report on the subject of their servants to proceed against them.

Having on Friday last seen the collector of the Dulane and Moynalty divisions, who has been sick since September last, and been necessitated to have his duty performed by a deputy, whereby his books and accounts are in a very incomplete state; and a fraud having been committed, or attempted to be committed, I have brought it also before the Board of Guardians, with a view of making arrangements for the appointment of another rate collector, on insuring the duties being efficiently performed. Mr. Riley, the present collector, is, I understand, in the last stage of a decline.

At the Thursday meeting of the Guardians the preliminary steps were taken for striking fresh rates on the electoral divisions requiring them.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

REFERRING to my last weekly report on the subject of houses being taken in this town for additional accommodation to meet the cessation of out-door relief to the able-bodied, I have been in constant communication with the chairman, vice-chairman, and influential persons, and regret to state that in the whole town there is nothing at all vacant that could be made available; the only thing, indeed, offering being two houses adjoining, but in so dilapidated a state, and so low and small, that I could not recommend them: even were it not for the large outlay they would require to make them at all suitable for our purpose, independent of which the locality is bad, and it would be next to impossible to maintain anything like order in them.

The state of the weather is such as to preclude putting the labour on the land, independent of there being no great inclination shown to give employment. I have made it my duty to ride round the neighbourhood, and inspect the state of the land; but all appears dead, and where working, chiefly with their own family.

I shall hope with your intended arrangements, and turning the branch house to a little more account, to be enabled yet to meet any pressure that may arise.

When in the vicinity of Nobber, a few days since, I heard with regret of the intention of reducing very materially the numbers that are now occupied on the extensive draining going forward.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

Kells Union.

REFERRING to your letter of the 8th instant, on the subject of discontinuing relief to the able-bodied paupers out door, after the 14th instant, I feel it my duty to draw your attention, most respectfully, to what has occupied my mind for some days. Rumour is very strong here of some grand demonstration, or meeting, to be held throughout the country on the 17th instant, when, should we, through failing to obtain additional accommodation in the town, not be able to receive all who chance to apply; and the holding back of numbers who would sooner do anything than go into the workhouse, coupled with, if the weather should not break up, the almost impossibility of obtaining labour to any great extent, throw such numbers out of their present occupation and relief; it would only tend to swell the numbers, and give what many would be too glad to consider a feasible pretext to the discontented of complaint.

This may not be, but I should consider myself culpable were I to withhold my sentiments. Under any circumstances you may rest assured that everything possible to be, shall be done, to meet and carry out your views whatever they may be.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 13, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your two reports, dated respectively the 10th instant, relating to the Kells Union, and I am to state that the Commissioners purpose, on the expiration of the order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in that Union, to issue the order already referred to, authorizing out-door relief to other classes (except able-bodied men) not included in the 1st section of the Act 10 Vic., cap. 31.

The Commissioners trust at the same time that every endeavour will be made to procure such additional workhouse accommodation as may be required, either in or near the town of Kells, or in any other part of the Union where there may be any suitable building.

By these means the Commissioners trust that the Board of Guardians will be enabled not only to relieve all really destitute applicants, but at the same time to test the ability of the able-bodied to procure work and support themselves by offering them only in-door relief.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

I BEG to forward a report of my proceedings for the week ending the 11th instant.

I am happy to state a progressive improvement in the management and regulation of the workhouse. My views are being carried out, and the master and matron are showing much more activity in the execution of their respective duties.

I have devoted much time in the attempt to provide suitable houses for giving more accommodation in the workhouse, but with no success, as reported in my letter of the 10th instant, No. 14; but succeeded on Saturday with the Board in getting a Committee named, with authority to have certain improvements in the out-houses of the branch house in this town pointed out by me carried at once into execution, by which I hope in three or four days to have additional accommodation for from 50 to 60 female children.

The collections of the rates are progressing, though I shall be under the necessity of proceeding against some of the collectors for great remissness in attending as directed at the poor-house, and inattention to the orders given them of summoning defaulters. This I can manage, I hope, during the week.

I regret to find from the statement of some of the relieving officers that applications for relief had been made by many able-bodied thrown out of employ by Mr. Cruise, a large occupier, and who has hitherto given employment to large numbers. They, the relieving officers, state as the reason that this gentleman is determined on this course from the burthen of the rate for out-door relief pressing more heavily on those who give employ than on those who do not. The termination of this species of relief will remedy it.

Kells Union.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

I BEG to forward the accompanying letter received since I had closed my post for this night.

As far as my knowledge of the gentlemen who sign, goes, they are of the class of landlords who are doing the utmost to employ labour, and keep things around them in order.

I do not myself anticipate a realization of their fears, though from the state of the weather until this period it has been next to impossible to put the labour on the land; but the very circumstances of the probability of fine weather now setting in ought to cause a reaction and an increased immediate demand for labour to bring the land into cultivation and putting in the spring crops. I feel assured that the great difficulty will be to get the able-bodied to accept in-door relief, but that a trial will be made to obtain a continuance of the out-door. The principal objection I find to going into the house is the holding, and the fear of being deprived of their cabins.

ENCLOSURE.

Court-house, Moynalty, March 13, 1848.

WE feel ourselves imperatively called upon as magistrates, for as such we are responsible for the peace of the country, to exclaim against the late arrangement of suspending out-door relief to the able-bodied labourers in the Union of Kells, since we are convinced that the farmers are not able presently to give employment to that class; and we know that the resident country gentlemen are even now straining a point to continue in employment their former and latterly increased staff of labourers and farm-boys. Besides from our own knowledge we are perfectly aware that these poor people cannot for some time to come get any kind of employment.

Do not suppose that we are by any means alarmists, when we take leave to state that the carrying out of this sweeping measure comes into operation at a very unfortunate conjuncture; and that no parties are more anxious than we are to relieve ourselves and the community of a portion of the heavy poor-rates, which so much cripple industry, paralyze individual energy, and peril property.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have given their best consideration to the letter which accompanied your report, but on the whole they deem it their duty to proceed as already announced.

Captain HUBAND to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

HAVING read the reports of the inspector of the Kells Union, and fearing from the tenor of his communication that he was apprehensive that in consequence of the discontinuance of out-door relief to able-bodied persons an attempt would be made upon St. Patrick's day to swamp the workhouse, I considered it advisable to ascertain the state of that part of my district in the vicinity of the Kells Union, judging that if applications for relief from able-bodied persons had decreased materially in the neighbouring Unions, there would not be much grounds for apprehending an unusual increase of applications for relief by a like class of persons in that of Kells, unless produced by an organized combination to swamp the house. I determined that if I found that there was any great reason to think that the accommodation in the Kells workhouse was not adequate to the applications likely to be made by able-bodied applicants, to go to Kells in person and attend at the workhouse to receive the applicants on the 17th instant, and to resist any combination for swamping the house, trusting that I should defeat such an attempt, as I have invariably done under similar circumstances in other places.

I visited the Drogheda workhouse, and found that there were vacancies in that establishment for 83 persons in the house and 24 in the fever hospital, and that the number of inmates were daily decreasing.

I next visited the Ardee workhouse, and found the number of vacancies in that establishment yet greater; there were 144 vacancies reported to me by the master. And here also the inmates are daily decreasing.

You will remember that the Guardians of both of these last named Unions applied lately to you for an order authorizing relief to the able-bodied out of the workhouse, stating their belief that their workhouse accommodation was not sufficiently extensive to test the able-bodied claimants of relief; you are also aware that the result has proved that you properly refused to issue the orders sought for until you were further assured that the workhouse accommodation was insufficient.

Comparing the late and present state of these Unions and that of Kells now, I came to the conclusion, upon inquiring into the state of Kells workhouse, that there is little reason to apprehend, that if the inspectors of the Union and the Board of Guardians be firm, and admit into the workhouse any able-bodied persons applying for relief, that there is any likelihood of the house being swamped, as I considered the room in the workhouse and the house in Kells fully adequate to test the applicants. The master informed me that none of the wards at the male side of the house have more persons in them than the ordinary number they were originally intended to accommodate. There is likewise a shed altogether unoccupied which will accommodate between 40 and 50. The Union inspector informed me that room can be made in the house in Kells to take out of the workhouse about 100 children, leaving yet further vacancies in the workhouse to be filled by adult applicants; and he appeared to coincide with me in opinion that the workhouse accommodation is sufficient to check any attempt likely to be made to fill it by any combination for that purpose.

In the other workhouses adjacent to Kells which are in my district, namely, those of Navan and Trim, there is ample accommodation for the reception of applicants; therefore, unless there be something very peculiar in the case of Kells Union, I do not see that there is any cause for alarm in discontinuing out-door relief to the able-bodied as resolved upon by you; nor do I see any necessity for me to attend at the workhouse of the Union as I contemplated doing, had I found that the state of destitution of the neighbourhood generally was such as to render it likely that the applications for relief from able-bodied persons would be unusually great in Kells Union.

I BEG to state for your information that the out-door relief to the able-bodied in this district ceased yesterday; the state of uncertainty I was in until the receipt of your warrant, received yesterday morning, leaving a doubt on my mind as to whether it was to be continued until the 18th instant.

I have devoted yesterday and to-day to visiting five or six of the most distressed electoral divisions, and in some cases seen the able-bodied men, and explained to them the necessity of subsisting themselves and applying for work to the surrounding gentry and farmers. On the whole it was quietly received, and I hope that a great number will obtain employment should the weather remain open.

I have visited the chairman, vice-chairman, and some of the influential members of the Board of Guardians, who have kindly promised me every assistance in their power, and have approved of my arrangements, placing all at my disposal.

I have called in all the working implements from the several electoral divisions, and stored them in the workhouse, giving it to be understood that I have provided accommodation and plenty of work in the quarries on the workhouse grounds for all who apply.

No applications will be made until after to-morrow, when I hope to be able to offer accommodation to full 300 should they appear, but very many told me it would go very hard with them ere they would come into the house.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 21, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 16th instant, relative to the cessation of out-door relief in Kells

Kells Union.

Union, and I am to express the Commissioners' approval of the steps you have taken in reference thereto.

The Commissioners will be glad to receive an early report from you regarding the further applications for relief.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

IN continuation of my report of the 16th instant, on my proceedings of the week past, I have to state that my time has been principally occupied in trying to provide accommodation to meet any pressure consequent on the stoppage of the out-door relief. I have, where practicable, rode through some divisions, and seen the able-bodied, exhorting them to do their utmost to obtain employment, pointing out the only thing that awaited them, coming into the workhouse. All appear anxious for the former, could they get it; but invariably expressed a determination not to come into the house even in extremities.

The weather has been much against them, and there is, I fear, a great deal of suffering among them; each of the relieving officers had written instructions to explain that they could henceforth receive no out-door relief, but that they must bring their families into the house if they could not obtain employment; notwithstanding this, scarce one but the heads of families (male), appeared before the Guardians yesterday, and that without a view of coming in, but to get relief at home. The impossibility of this mode was pointed out, and when directed to go for their wives and children, the general cry was, they were so reduced by hunger that they could not come in. Carriage was ordered for them, but as many had come distances of six and seven miles it was managed by private donation, to give each applicant a supply of bread sufficient to subsist their whole families until Monday, when they are to bring them in.

I regret to state that our meeting was not of that peaceful description it ordinarily is; a strong feeling among the members of the Board of dissatisfaction prevailed on the subject of stopping the out-door relief, kept only in subjection by the more discreet part of the community; which however was finished in a resolution almost unanimously carried, that a deputation should be intrusted to lay their views on the subject before you on to-morrow. Of this I have treated in a separate letter.

In making arrangements for meeting the expected application of persons to be admitted into the house, I have been much disappointed at the result of the room given us. By carrying out your warrant of the 14th instant, by the first return of the master, and which from the urgency of the case I have employed this day in scrutinizing, I had hoped to have obtained 60 to 70 vacancies; but when entered into, and each applicant separately questioned, only 12 in the whole came under the meaning of the Act; still I have hope that if the people out doors are left to themselves, I shall be enabled to meet the demand for admittance. I hope by arrangement with the medical officers of the house, and of the fever hospital—who have also the control of the county hospital—to clear the newly-erected sheds, and apply them to the reception of able-bodied claimants. Nothing shall be left undone by me to meet the urgency of the case. The people, if left to themselves, will not press us; but should they be misguided by others, of course we could not meet the press.

In going through the country I am credibly informed that potato planting will be carried out to a very large extent, and that great quantities of that root are secreted, and the planting done by stealth; wherever I have seen manure being removed out of the houses, I have questioned as to its application, and invariably the reply has been, for the purpose of planting potatoes; and have been assured that the result of last year leads to a hope of a plentiful crop this.

My strong conviction is, that labour will be in abundance shortly; and in every instance the reply to my question, of whether, if those who are in a position to give employ (not taking into consideration their holding land without possessing the means), would do so—the demand for labour would be absorbed—has invariably been certainly; but employment will not be given.

The last week's collection of rates has been very satisfactory; and by continuing to coerce the collectors, I hope shortly to reduce the amount of uncollected rate.

In conclusion I am happy to state that the in-door authorities of the house have manifested every anxiety to assist me in carrying out your views on the present emergency, and have in no instance thrown any impediment in the way.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 21, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your two reports of the 19th instant, relating to the discontinuance of out-door relief to able-bodied men in Kells Union; and I am directed to inform you that the Commissioners have seen a deputation from the Board of Guardians on the subject, and have communicated to them the intention of the Commissioners not to alter the existing order until on a further representation, it should appear to be absolutely necessary.

The Commissioners further informed the deputation that they deemed it desirable that all the aged and infirm inmates of the workhouse should receive out-door allowances sufficient to enable them to find lodging for themselves, as well as food, if they have no relations or friends willing to receive them.

When this class of inmates has been placed on the out-door relief list, and has left the workhouse, the Commissioners trust that there will be sufficient accommodation in the workhouse for the relief of destitute able-bodied men.

The Commissioners understand from the deputation that there will be 69 vacancies in the workhouse this day; so, under any circumstances, the Commissioners would deem it premature to have issued yesterday an order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men.

The Commissioners will feel obliged by a further report from you regarding the accommodation in the workhouse.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 20, 1848.

I BEG to forward the enclosed from Captain Robinson, one of the Poor Law Guardians of this Union, addressed to me on the subject of the wish of some to restore out-door relief to the able-bodied. This gentleman was opposed to the resolution passed and to the deputation being appointed.

I expressly pointed out to the Board of Guardians that under any circumstance out-door relief could not be granted with so much room in their house; and I have been with the Vice-Chairman to-day, and other members, making arrangements. I have a house in view which I hope will answer for the purpose of removing all the small children of both sexes into, with their keepers, steady old people who, have no wish to leave the house. This will give me two wards at present occupied by them, and will sleep about 40 persons. I have arranged with the medical officers of the house and fever hospital—the latter having the county hospital (nearly empty) under his control—to remove the patients out of the new sheds entirely, by which, after they are cleansed and disinfected under the medical officers, I shall have full room for 80 on each side. I have sent 20 children this day to the female school (branch house), and shall in two or three days have full sleeping room for upwards of 100 more: this, with the few vacancies now in the main building, will enable me to give admission to a large amount, say 300 to 330, without crowding. I have seen many men in my ride to-day; but in no instance have I been able to prevail on one to come into the house. To talk of out-door relief with this state of things would be folly; if the poor are left to themselves we shall not have much trouble.

ENCLOSURE.

Captain ROBINSON to Captain DENT.

I AM very anxious to see you on the subject of the attempt which is now being made to defeat the workhouse test, and I am persuaded that if now successful we shall have out-door relief for ever. I write to-day (and somewhat hastily), as the deputation will go to Dublin to-morrow; and I wish very much you would, without delay, find out privately the feeling of the Commissioners on the subject. They are about being urged to do an act not only (I think) highly imprudent, but manifestly illegal. The Act gives them authority to carry out the provisions of the law, and the law provides in the amendment that out-door relief shall not be given whilst there is room in the house. Now if they be prevailed upon to give the order, with room for 200 in the house, would it not be competent for me or any other rate-payer to put a 14 days' notice on the books, to appeal against the rate as levied for, and applied to, an illegal purpose. I should be exceedingly sorry to incumber the proceedings of the Commissioners, or plague them (dear knows they are harassed enough, and are doing their very best); but I feel so strongly on this point that I cannot make up my mind to submit to this measure, if the Commissioners should be once persuaded to accede to it. They ought to know, moreover, that the feeling in its favour is not unanimous.

Kells Union.

The BOARD of GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS.

THE Board of Guardians of the Kells Union take leave most respectfully to bring the following facts under the immediate notice of the Poor Law Commissioners:—

An order for out-door relief to the able-bodied was, on the urgent and repeated application of the Board, granted to us, to continue in force till the 14th of March. It has now expired, and the Board most earnestly press upon the Commissioners the necessity for its immediate renewal.

Destitution to a large extent is still fearfully apparent to every member of the Board connected with those electoral divisions, in which it has been found necessary to have recourse to out-door relief for the labourer; and even since the stoppage of the order, and during the day or two which have just elapsed, enough has appeared to lead us to the conclusion that it will not be safe or prudent not at once to resume it. We are perfectly convinced that it will be utterly impracticable for those dismissed labourers to find employment in any legitimate way, and that beggary, accompanied by threats, thefts, or starvation, must be the results of their dismissal.

We have come to this conclusion after a very long and careful examination of our relieving officers; having looked into the condition, separately, of every electoral division in which such relief was granted.

We are happy to state that in most of them we find the number of persons engaged in stone-breaking gradually diminishing, and the labourers partially finding employment for themselves of a profitable character. Our relieving officers state to us, unanimously, that no person now engaged on their works would willingly remain on them another day, receiving as they do a scanty provision, in place of wages from ordinary employers. Even sixpence a day has been named to us as a sufficient inducement to withdraw them from seeking public support, and we are likewise fully under the impression that they will remain for the present totally unemployed should their actual allowance be withdrawn.

We beg to refer the Commissioners to statements to this effect from each of our relieving officers, which we trust will convince the Commissioners, as they have us, of the full sufficiency of the double test which accompanies out-door relief to the able-bodied—inadequate wages and disagreeable employment.

It appears that in the electoral division of Kilskeer, 48 persons only are now receiving employment at stone-breaking, 80 having been engaged at it on the commencement of the works. We have this day received a deputation from that electoral division, stating the absolute necessity of those 48 being continued for the moment, as they can find no other work, however willing they may be and are to accept any that would be proposed to them.

In the electoral division of Burry 19 persons only are now at work, 31 having been on the work when it commenced; the others have been gradually absorbed in the labour-market—and the others would willingly leave their present occupation if they could do so.

In the electoral division of Dulane, 26 were at work on the stoppage of the works; at one time it was found necessary to find employment for 51. These 26 would willingly get other work, but many of them are old and infirm labourers, and cannot get employment.

In Kells, 75 persons were in employment at the termination of the order; at one time 130 persons were on public work. The difference between the two numbers has evidently been absorbed; there is no work at present for the 75, who are, many of them, only nominally able-bodied men, and who look at stone-breaking for rations, as the most miserable employment for the most miserable recompense.

The same observations apply to the electoral divisions of Nobber and Mullagh; and we receive from both the same statement of the dangerous and deplorable consequences which will result from this sudden and unexpected abandonment of public work.

In one electoral division alone, i.e. that of Kilbeg, has the number of those employed by us continued to increase to the last moment. In it the excessive and increasing poverty of a district containing several very small farms, attached to a very poor and neglected town, will account for the increase. No employment is afforded by the chief landowners, and the destitution, if not relieved by public works, will leave 70 fearfully impoverished labourers in a state of starvation.

We conclude by again urgently requesting the renewal of the order, empowering us to continue for the present out-door relief.

Kells Union.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM on the foregoing Paper:—March 21, 1848.

THIS paper was left by the deputation, consisting of the Marquess of Headfort, Sir M. Chapman, and an elected Guardian.

Mr. Twistleton informed the deputation that he deemed it desirable that all the aged and infirm inmates of the workhouse should receive out-door allowances sufficient to enable them to find lodging for themselves as well as food, if they have no relations or friends willing to receive them; in order to make room for able-bodied and their families to the utmost practicable extent.

He declined until this was done, and shown to be unavailing for relief of the able-bodied, to alter the present order.

March 23, 1848.

I HAVE read the paper handed to Mr. Twistleton. My opinion has not been altered by reading it. I should not recommend any proceeding until the workhouse be filled. Statements as strong as those in the paper have been made before by Baltinglass, Naas, Trim, Drogheda, Navan, &c. They did not get any order for out-door relief, with the exception of Naas, and that was not acted upon. What became of those persons who were represented to be so destitute?

There are but two Unions in my district where out-door relief to the able-bodied has been given. It always was and is my opinion that the delay of the Guardians of these Unions to provide workhouse accommodation was the cause why such orders became necessary.

The labouring people must seek for employment upon the farms. The workhouse accommodation of Kells Union will be, in my opinion, adequate for the reception of those persons who cannot get employment.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

IN compliance with the directions contained in your letter 21st, desiring me to report further on the accommodation in this workhouse, I beg to state, that in consequence of having finished the alterations in the branch house, cleared the new sheds at the workhouse, and appropriated the two wards used heretofore for small children as a day-room, together with the number which the master and matron have reported vacant in the body of the house, there will be vacancies for upwards of 300 on Saturday morning. My firm conviction is, that scarcely any of the able-bodied will apply with the intention of coming into the house, but may, as last Saturday, appear the head of the family only for the purpose of obtaining a temporary supply to take home with them. To obviate this as much as possible, I have issued a memorandum to the respective relieving officers, a copy of which is appended to this; if they still persist in coming singly they must stand the consequence.

I have accompanied the Marquess of Headfort through the two houses to-day, who is pleased to approve of the arrangements.

The weather has been greatly against employment, but I am credibly informed that not above 12 of the number who at times of the day infest Kells-street are really unemployed, but that the plan is, at meal hours, &c., to make a show, and carry the appearance of destitution; some there are, no doubt, unable, but it is an extraordinary fact, that not one able-bodied person came into the house last week, though those said to be starvingly destitute, and were relieved temporarily, promised.

I shall report further as necessary.

ENCLOSURE.

SIR,

As there is room in the workhouse for some hundred persons, I request you will make it known among the able-bodied poor seeking relief in your district, and that it is quite impossible to give them relief out of it.

Kells Union.

You will also impress on them that it will be useless their appearing at the workhouse without their families, as they will get no assistance afforded them; if they persist in doing this, they will have themselves alone to blame.

There may be instances where, from illness, weakness, or other cause, the poor may be unable to walk so far; in such cases you are authorized by the Board of Guardians (on Saturday last) to hire conveyance to bring them in; but you will be held strictly responsible for incurring any unnecessary expense, which will only add to the burthens of the rate-payers.

Dated at Kells, March 23, 1848.

C. C. DENT, Government Inspector.

The Relieving Officer,

District.

You will please acknowledge the receipt of this by bearer.

Captain DENT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 26, 1848.

IN continuation of the report of my proceedings contained in my letter of the 23rd instant, I have to state that all my arrangements were completed on Friday, when, with the medical officers of the workhouse and fever hospital, I inspected the additional accommodation provided in the branch house, and received their unqualified approval of all that had been done; and I was enabled on the opening of the Board of Guardians to show to them that they then had vacancies for at least 320 persons without any crowding. As I anticipated, not an able-bodied person with his family presented themselves—those who appeared before the Board being of the usual description—until the close of the day, when a large number of able-bodied men came in a body and claimed relief, not one having wife or family with them, on their plea of being in a starving state. The Board resolved to admit provisionally until Monday, when they were to be permitted to go for their families. As they were getting noisy some unauthorized person sent for the police, who were speedily on the spot; but as there were none of the magistrates, or indeed any of the Guardians remaining, and not anticipating any disturbance, I requested their officer to withdraw them, remaining myself until the whole (about 100 men and a few women) were admitted and lodged in the probationary wards, when having visited and spoken to them in person, given the necessary directions for the distribution of food to them, I about six o'clock returned to my own house. About seven or after, as I anticipated, they left the house in a body, complaining that beds were not provided for them—a mere excuse—and came in great force, joined by many who were attending the market, in front of my residence, causing much alarm to the inmates. I went out, got the assistance of the police to clear the front of the house to relieve the anxiety of my family, and went among them. No attempts at violence were made, though they had misled one of their priests present with the idea that they had had no food; when every one had, under my directions, received full day's rations. I then returned to the workhouse, they not following, but I believe quietly dispersing; as an hour after, on my return, I saw nothing of them. I hope to report further steps being taken to prevent a recurrence of this. There is a determination against coming into the house, though the Guardians caused a resolution to be entered on their books, and gave directions to have it extensively circulated by the relieving officers, that if they will lock up their cabins and come into the house they, the Board, will prosecute any illegal interference during their absence. The reports of those officers were that some were getting employment, but that many are unemployed. They appear determined to try and force the out-door relief; and I feel myself fully justified in stating my suspicions that there are those behind the scenes who from interested motives—disgraceful to themselves—are encouraging these ideas. On my way to the workhouse in the evening, when near the gate, I heard a great shouting and noise, and found it arose from some persons on their return from market had overtaken the party who conveyed the milk for the use of the house, and commenced an assault on them; kicking the milk over, breaking the tins it was in, and assaulting the carriers, who manfully resisted, and succeeded in capturing the principal aggressor, who was locked up until the police took charge of him, and he is now in their custody to be brought before the magistrates tomorrow. I find he is a member of a family, the father holding some 30 acres of land, who are noted in the neighbourhood of Moynalty for their bad habits; more than one, I believe, having been sent out of the country. I have written to some of the magistrates of that division to beg their attendance, in order that he may not escape for want of persons being on the bench. I shall watch the proceedings, and report further on it. This town is in a sad state from want of some magistrate or responsible person residing in it. The Vagrant Act is scarce ever put in force, because they have no magistrate nearer than a mile from the town, and he at present absent. I have myself been obliged to send for my car, leave the workhouse, and go out to this magistrate in order that a known character should not escape.

I have visited through the country to inquire into the state of it, calling on the gentry to know from them. While many are doing their duty by the poor labourer, there are very many who, if not shirking it altogether, give employ in such a way as scarce to relieve the individual distress. I questioned two or three of the farmer Guardians, and simply asked that if those who were living on the land who were able and ought to give work (I excluded landholders who were known to be in destitute circumstances, though perhaps holding good farms) were to do so—if that would absorb the able-bodied now seeking employment—the invariable answer was, “certainly it would.”

I hope the weather will do much for us during the next week.

March 27, 1848.

I have been unable to close my report until now. This day has been passed by me at the workhouse and attending the petty sessions to watch the proceedings against defaulters of rates, &c.; and also with a view of proceeding against the collector of the Dulane division, in accordance with a resolution of the Board of Guardians, that he should be summoned and fined for neglect. This summons I find was not issued, and I have to inquire into the cause. With respect to the assault committed on Saturday night, I have had the greatest difficulty in bringing it home. The principal persons who had declared to me that they could swear to the man, when brought before the magistrates declined swearing to it; and once the case was dismissed, with a severe admonition to these parties, that had evidently been tampered with: feeling the importance of substantiating a charge, having once made it, and also in the present state of things in this neighbourhood, seeing what a sort of license such failure would give, I, on further inquiry, found a boy who had been severely bruised and ill-used by the man charged, and had his depositions taken, and a warrant issued for his being again apprehended, he having been released yesterday by a magistrate on the boy's refusing to take the oath as to person.

Fever and sickness generally are, I am happy to say, on the decrease.

The town has not been so much infested to-day, and I am in hopes that employment is being given on a more extended scale. Saturday's market was the largest known for a very long time. Potatoes (seed) were in abundance, and quantities are being brought out that were not known or believed to be in the country. It is said that the planting of this root will be on a large scale in this neighbourhood.

I cannot conclude without referring to a former report on the master and matron's efficiency, and have much pleasure in stating that during this trying emergency they have exerted themselves very much, and to my entire satisfaction, meeting my views and wishes on all points; and I do trust that ere long the state of the house will be such as it ought to be.

RESOLUTION referred to in foregoing.

Extract from Guardians' Minutes, March 25, 1848.

Resolved—That the relieving officers be instructed to acquaint persons having cottages and claiming in-door relief that, in the event of any illegal interference with the possession of the premises, by forcible entry, &c., steps will be taken by informations before the next bench of justices to protect the rights of the person so interfered with.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 30, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 26th inst., and I am to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners with the successful result of your exertions to have accommodation provided to meet the pressure of able-bodied applicants for relief.

Kells Union.

It appears to the Commissioners that the steps which you have taken for this purpose were most judicious. and they much approve your perseverance in endeavouring to have the parties who have resorted to violence brought to punishment.

In reference to the resolution passed by the Guardians in reference to illegal interference with the possession of cottages in the event of their occupiers coming into the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners entirely approve the disposition exhibited by the Guardians to protect poor persons receiving relief from outrages of the nature described; and the Commissioners request that any such occurrences may be specially and immediately reported.

CLIFDEN UNION.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848.

I THINK the time has arrived when relief should be given to this Union in aid of rates.

I have been satisfied, from what I witnessed myself this day in the electoral division of Ballindoon, and from reports of cases of starvation made to me from various quarters, that the extent of the distress is too great to be met without assistance.

The responsibility rests in a great measure on me, and I cannot withhold my certificate that relief should be given at once from the funds of the British Relief Association. The relieving officers have informed me that they are unable to discharge their duties without assistance.

I shall make more accurate inquiries in reference thereto, and report thereon.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 12, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 9th instant, relating to the state of the finances of the Clifden Union; and, in reply, I am to refer you to the Commissioners' letter of the 10th instant. I am at the same time to request that you will be so good as to place on record a specific report on the following points, viz.:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor-rates paid in Clifden Union since you were appointed Inspector of the Union, and to how many shillings in the pound on the net annual value does it amount?

2nd. What is the obstacle to the rates being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted; and, if so, how is this proved?

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. DEANE:—February 17, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to draw your attention to the circumstance that the books of the relieving officers of the Clifden Union were not made up and submitted to the Board of Guardians at their recent meetings.

I am at the same time to state, that it appears to the Commissioners that the relieving officers' districts are too extensive to admit of their efficiently discharging their duties.

The Commissioners consider that each relieving officer should have a district of such extent as will enable him to discharge all the duties of the office efficiently, and not so large that the Guardians cannot reasonably hold him responsible for the due discharge of his duties.

The Commissioners are desirous that you should bring this subject under the early attention of the Vice-Guardians, with a view to the relief districts of the Clifden Union being remodelled.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

IN accordance with your instructions I have been acting as one of the Vice-Guardians of this Union, and transacted, in conjunction with Mr. M'Kinstrey, the routine business at the Board on Monday.

The collection for the week amounted to 209*l*.

We are directing our best attention to the reform of the many abuses which have been so long allowed to exist in the workhouse, and feel that, without a change of officers, it will be idle to affect it.

I would suggest the necessity and importance of a master and matron being sent here, who have had some previous experience in the management of a workhouse, and, if possible, a married couple.

Clifden Union.

A contractor has been declared for executing the necessary repairs of the house, and keeping it so for 12 months.

I have had the benefit of Mr. Wilkinson's assistance in his inspection of the workhouse to-day, and shall, in another report, lay before you some suggestions for the improvement of its internal arrangements, which occur to me to be desirable.

I am requested by Mr. M'Kinstrey to express his opinion as to the importance of taking some land adjoining and immediately fronting the workhouse, with the view of employing the able-bodied in the workhouse in tilling and sowing it. There are eight acres which I understand can be easily and cheaply obtained; and I consider it would be highly desirable and advantageous to the interests of the Union to have the land in the possession of the Vice-Guardians, from which a crop may be raised for the use of the paupers.

I shall feel obliged for your instructions on this point.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners will make inquiries with a view to ascertaining whether there are any competent persons whom they could recommend to be appointed master and matron of the workhouse, but the Vice-Guardians must not rely upon the Commissioners for obtaining the services of qualified persons for those offices, and they should lose no time in advertising for candidates in the usual manner.

With regard to the plot of ground in front of the workhouse to which you refer, I am to state that the Commissioners do not object to the Vice-Guardians occupying the quantity of ground which they are authorized to take by the 35th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, and the 20th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act. You will be good enough to report the terms upon which the land referred to may be obtained.

MR. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 12th instant, requesting me to place on record a specific report in relation to the state of the finances of the Clifden Union, and directing my attention to the supplying information upon the following points:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor-rates paid in the Clifden Union since I was appointed Inspector, and to how many shillings in the pound it amounts to on the net annual value? The amount collected in the several electoral divisions is as follows:—

Clifden.				Ballindoon.
Rate current . . .	674	6	6	Rate current . . .	490	8	3

making a total collected in the four electoral divisions since my arrival in Clifden of 1600*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* The warrant for the collector of the Clifden electoral division had been signed previous to my taking charge of the Union, and 172*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* had been collected. This sum added to the sum of 1600*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* will show the total amount collected, viz.:—

The amount 1600*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* being collected since my arrival in Clifden will amount on the net annual value (22,426*l.* 13*s.*) to 1*s.* 5½*d.* in the pound.

Proceedings have been taken against several defaulting rate-payers in the several electoral divisions, and the Vice-Guardians are led to believe that the parties proceeded against will come in and settle their rates.

2ndly. What is the obstacle to the rates being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in the collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted? and if so, how is this proved?

I conceive, that taking into consideration the circumstances of the landed proprietors of this Union, that the collection has not been at all deficient. Several of the rate-payers who have contributed to the rate are themselves fit objects for out-door relief, and will shortly have to be relieved. The greater part of the property in this district is mortgaged, in many instances to its full value; and the impossibility of obtaining rents causes the collection of the rates from the gentry to be a matter of considerable difficulty. I cannot, upon the whole, attribute negligence to the collectors; the default is with the rate-payers, and not with them. I have constantly had brought before me the names of parties whom the collectors have not succeeded in obtaining the rates from, and in all cases I have recommended and directed them to exercise their undoubted powers for the recovery of the same; and I have not failed to urge the late Board of Guardians to insist on the payment of the amounts due. You will perceive, on reference to the last minutes, that the Vice-Guardians at my recommendation have applied to you for permission to proceed against some of those owing large sums in the superior courts. You may depend on my most anxious and zealous attention being directed to the vigorous and determined collection of the rates in the Union, and I feel satisfied that I shall receive from the gentlemen selected to fill the office of Vice-Guardians every assistance in this important service.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 18, 1848.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of two letters; the first, accompanied with copies of letters to the master and matron of this Union, requiring them to resign their offices, and authorizing us to proceed at once to the appointment of their successors; the second impressing the necessity of furnishing a special weekly report on the subject of the collection of the poor-rates, on the general state of the affairs of the Union, and of the condition of the workhouse when we first entered on the discharge of our duties.

In reference to the first, we beg to state the course we thought it our duty to pursue. We called on the master of the Union to furnish us with written inventories of the several stores and apparel in his charge, in order that no loss should be sustained by the abstraction or injury of the property of the Union, which angry feeling may suggest to any party. With this request he has complied; and we now await his reply to the order of your Board, which we presume we shall be apprised of to-morrow.

In reference to the appointment of the successors to the present master and matron, we would wish to impress most respectfully on your Board our conviction that it would not be advantageous to the public interests (even were it probable that the locality could supply them, which we doubt) to elect residents of the Union to these important offices. From our own observations, and from the reports of those better acquainted with the habits of the recipients of relief, we would respectfully suggest the expediency of confiding the trusts to capable persons not connected in any way with the district; and we should further urge the utility of giving the preference to a married couple, by which arrangement obvious advantages would be achieved for the workhouse. We shall await the order of your Board on this subject; and should you coincide with our opinions, we would beg leave to propose that an advertisement in some newspaper of large circulation would be a means of procuring tenders from qualified persons.

Referring to your wishes as to the collection of the rates, we assure you that all our energies and authority shall be exerted to their efficient collection; we are fully aware of the vital importance of attending to our financial duties, and we have already taken measures to stimulate the collectors in lessening the arrears. In our next report we shall have to offer some remarks on the system of out-door relief in this Union, as well as on the manner in which labour in lieu of relief is conducted and performed. The principle of affording relief to the able-bodied in the workhouse shall be adhered to in accordance with the rules of the Board, and every effort shall be made to guard against imposition, to which both the modes of relief (in-door and extern) are liable.

It now remains for us to apprise your Board of the present state of the workhouse. We went this morning when breakfast was being served to the women; we found the approaches to the house miry, and not in accordance with the cleanliness and propriety which should be characteristic of public institutions, and which, with plenty of labourers at hand, could so easily be promoted. The windows are in several places broken; and we would here remark that several minor matters are out of order, to repair or perfect which, a trifling outlay in time would suffice—such as injured locks, latches, &c. The master's room is not what we conceive it is designed to be; it serves as his office, sleeping-room, dining-room, and is also used by others visiting the house. The kitchen was in order, and the food for the women's breakfast was good and abundant. The yards are pretty well kept in order, but require attention; and we would suggest the necessity of raising the enclosure wall, which is often scaled; even this day a young pauper was detected in the act of escaping and carrying off his clothes. We would direct special notice to the force-pump, which must have cost a large sum, but which is now useless from some injury to the pipes or machinery. We regard the supply of water as so essential, that we are most anxious to have this repaired. The dormitories were not as well cleaned nor as effectually ventilated as they should be; but we shall take care to have these essentials henceforth rigidly carried into effect. We found some of the paupers at work on the grounds, under superintendence; we examined the mode of inspection, and we found that vigilance and energy will be wanted to enforce the orders of the Board for pauper labourers. We visited the convalescent wards and the male and female schools; the only remark we have to offer on those is, that the same master attends both schools at different periods of the day, and that although at present the numbers attending (24 boys and 20 girls) being limited, his instruction may suffice, we think it would be expedient to secure a female teacher's services who could not only teach the usual course, but also instruct them in needlework, spinning, knitting, &c.

This our first report has been necessarily longer than we could wish; but anxious to allude to the several topics of the two letters of your Board we deemed it our duty to risk the charge of excess rather than of omission.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 21, 1848.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 18th instant, relating to the Clifden Union. In reference to the appointment of a master and matron of the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners have no objection to your appointing two persons who are married, to the office of master and matron of the workhouse respectively; and you should advertise at once in the county papers as well as in the Dublin newspapers for candidates for those offices; and then make the best selection in your power from the candidates who offer.

An extract from your report with regard to the boundary walls to the workhouse and the state of the pump will be forwarded to the Commissioners' architect.

The Commissioners think it will be desirable that you should appoint a schoolmistress to the workhouse.

MR. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that I attended the meeting of the Vice-Guardians to-day, and am glad to be enabled to state that the gentlemen selected to discharge the important duties entrusted to them are in every respect well qualified for the execution of the same.

The collection of the rates for the current week amounted to 154*l.* 10*s.*

The Vice-Guardians proceeded to the election of five additional relieving officers, at a salary of 20*l.* per annum; and after a careful examination of the qualifications of each candidate, selected five individuals, whose names appear on the minutes of the day. Awaiting your sanction to the appointment of these officers, and before they proceed to the performance of their duties, they have been directed to assist the present relieving officers in their respective districts.

The great increase of distress in the Union has thrown an amount of duty on the four officers originally appointed, which has prevented the possibility of their having been enabled to make up their books for presentation to the Board at their weekly meetings; the increase in the number of assistant relieving officers is therefore absolutely essential to the due performance of the duties, and to the relief of the destitute applicants.

At the expiration of next week I hope to be in a condition to report that the system prescribed for the duties of relieving officers by the general orders shall be strictly and accurately complied with.

In compliance with your instructions, I beg leave to enclose three separate estimates of the amount which will be "required to preserve from starvation" the destitute of this Union, under the classes specified in your communication of the 10th February. The Vice-Guardians have determined, subject to your sanction, to establish depôts for cooked food, at the several stations in the electoral divisions where relief was dispensed during the operations of the 10th Vict., c. 7, last year; and as the boilers at the greater number of the places still remain set, little difficulty will be experienced in commencing operations. I have suggested to the Guardians the advantage of having the able-bodied employed near each station, so that they shall not suffer inconvenience in coming for their rations.

The system adopted by the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union has been adopted here for some time; but in consequence of a supply of the forms not having been forwarded by the printers from Westport, the arrangements have been much interrupted. I fully concur in the value of the system; and though I feel that the expense of printing will amount to a considerable sum, yet upon the whole I am persuaded that the administration of a formal test to the able-bodied, will eventuate in economy to the Union funds. I find that in the week ending 4th July, 1847, 29,300 persons received gratuitous rations, from which I deduct 13,861 impotent and able-bodied who hold or held more than a quarter of an acre of land, which will leave 15,439. The present number receiving relief in the Union, including those in the workhouse, is 10,760; and assuming that the distress is likely to increase to the extent of last year, there would remain 4679 more to be supported. The cost, as you will perceive, of relieving 10,760, at 1½*d.* a ration (which includes staff), would be 485*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* weekly, and the increase of 4679 would be, at the same rate, 204*l.* 14*s.* 1½*d.*, making a total, on the calculation of the data of last year's expense, of 690*l.* 6*s.* 7½*d.*; from this estimate must necessarily be deducted a large amount for the mortality of the last and this season.

The Vice-Guardians and I are directing our best attention to the remodelling of the relief districts; and I propose during the next week to visit the electoral divisions, and form my judgment as to the best means of allocating the duties to the respective relieving officers in the division of the districts.

The Vice-Guardians propose to report to you in the course of the week on the efficiency of the medical attendant of the workhouse.

I regret to be obliged to state that, in consequence of certain charges having been preferred by a pauper against the Roman Catholic curate, Mr. King (who attended to perform duty at the workhouse), for using abusive language to him, that it will be necessary for me to investigate this charge on oath, which I propose to do on Saturday next. I shall defer making any observations in reference thereto until the investigation shall have closed. I am anxious to obtain the Commissioners' opinion as to whether the Vice-Guardians can permit the duties of the Roman Catholic chaplain being performed by his curates. It appears to me most desirable to impose the responsibility on the chaplain appointed by the Board; and if from circumstances, the duties shall be delegated to curates, that it may be done formally.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 23, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners approve of the appointment of additional relieving officers in the Union, and will be prepared to confirm the appointment of the persons selected, if the answers to the usual queries respecting them are satisfactory. When the relief districts have been remodelled, the district of each relieving officer should be distinctly pointed out to him; and he should be informed that he will be held individually responsible for that locality.

The Commissioners approve of the proposed arrangements of the Vice-Guardians for the establishment of depôts of cooked food, to be issued in daily rations, to the able-bodied poor receiving out-door relief.

As regards the latter part of your report, I am to state that the curates of Roman Catholic chaplains of workhouses have been usually permitted to discharge the chaplain's duties, if he desired that they should do so; but this permission by no means precludes a Board of Guardians from requiring the Roman Catholic chaplain to perform his duties in person, if any peculiar circumstances should render the adoption of that course necessary.

The Commissioners have made application for an advance of 205*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.*, the estimated cost of supporting the poor in the Union during the ensuing week, who may be relieved under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 22, 1848.

Clifden Union.

IN fulfilment of the assurance given in our first report of the 13th instant, that our best efforts should be devoted to the collection of the poor-rates of this Union, we beg to place the following observations before you. On yesterday (Monday in each week being the day appointed for investigating the rate collectors' books), we closely examined the accounts of the district collectors, and we feel it our duty to express our conviction that these officers are desirous of performing their duties as efficiently as possible.

Having ascertained from them that several parties had closed their houses in order to evade the levying of the rate or the serving of the notice, we directed that the usual notices should be posted on the doors.

We beg to subjoin a table of the present position and probable availability of the rates in this Union.

Your Board will be pleased to remark, that the assumption as to the amounts possibly payable in the last column, is the mere opinion of the collector in each district. This opinion, as far as lies in us, we have resolved to test by our personal inspection.

We are happy to be enabled to report that there is a manifest improvement in the state of the workhouse, both as to the general cleanliness of the several departments, as well as in the health and appearance of the inmates. Fever and dysentery still prevail, but we entertain a hope, that by the observance of a rational simple dietary, the latter disease would be easily obviated. It has been stated to us, that the paupers dreading being sent to hospital, conceal the disease (of dysentery) until it assumes a bad type; when the bad stage of the disease obtains, they are then necessarily sent to hospital, and with their ruined constitutions it is not difficult to account for the mortality.

We have had our views sustained by medical advice, that a rice diet would be a preventative of this malady, and being assured that in this locality it would be an economy to use a mixture of rice occasionally with the food of the inmates of the workhouse, we would wish to have the direction of your Board on the subject. This matter is suggested to us by the serious difference between the average cost of the hospital inmates, and that of the healthy paupers; the latter being 1s. 5d. weekly, and the sick 2s. 5d. weekly.

We beg to report, that the present number in hospital is (including fever and dysentery) 90, and that the deaths for the past four weeks, ending on the 19th, were:—

Deaths for week ending 29th January . . .	21
Ditto ditto 5th February . . .	20
Ditto ditto 12th February . . .	10
Ditto ditto 19th February . . .	4

In our last report we had occasion to refer to the necessity of several repairs in the workhouse; we were not then aware that a contract for these and several other works was under consideration, but now that we are aware of this, we shall use all diligence in having the essentials executed forthwith.

We deem it our duty to observe, that in several departments the mode of transacting the business, and the method of furnishing the accounts, were most objectionable.

The accounts and registries of the relieving officers have been allowed to go into arrear, and in more than one instance have been indescribably confused, whilst a very lax and perplexing system prevailed, in incurring responsibilities, in checking expenditure and in the general routine of the business connected with the interests of the Union. We shall feel it incumbent on us to order a reform of the manner in which the officers of the Union kept their books, and we shall use all our efforts to enforce a system by which the requisite regularity may be observed. It is due to them to observe, that the relieving officers to whose default we particularly refer, have been hitherto overburdened, and as assistants have been appointed subject to the approval of your Board, we expect that in future their accounts will be more regularly kept.

It would be most desirable that we should be conversant with the several divisional sections of this Union; and for the purpose of obtaining this information, we would respectfully ask your Board to supply us with maps on the larger scale. By their aid we could better understand the duties and spheres of the officers (relieving), as well as the means by which relief may be most speedily and economically forwarded in any emergency; such as a contractor's failing to perform his obligations.

We feel bound to report that we received from credible sources, accounts of persons dying in the rural divisions, of want, owing to the impossibility of the relieving officer's attending each case; and although assistant officers have been chosen subject to your sanction, we still apprehend that many poor creatures unable to come and apply for food, and out of the way of the officer in his visits, which must necessarily be rapid, must perish if some mode of meeting the evil peculiar to this Union be not devised.

We have directed that the amount due of this Union to the audit fund (6*l.* 15*s.*) should be placed to the credit of that fund as ordered.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

WITH regard to the proposed alteration of the dietary of the inmates of the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners have no objection to such alteration of the dietary as you and the medical officer may propose in accordance with the general workhouse regulations.

With regard to your request to be supplied with maps of the Union, I am to state that the maps which are requisite should be purchased by you and paid for out of the Union funds.

With reference to the distress which you report exists in the Union, the Commissioners desire to observe that it is your duty to devise the means which local circumstances may enable you to adopt, for placing out-door relief within reach of destitute persons in the Union, who are unable to go to any of the places at which the relieving officers now attend. The Commissioners rely on you for having relief administered fully according to law; and where difficulty may arise from local obstacles, these must be overcome by such means as you and the Temporary Poor Law Inspectors shall, on conference see best to be adopted.

The Commissioners will readily sanction the appointment of additional Relieving officers if they are necessary, and the establishment of additional depôts, so as to bring relief within the range of every destitute person in the Union.

The system under which you are acting is capable of indefinite expense; and the Commissioners cannot admit the existence of difficulty on this head, which may not be overcome by energy and discrimination.

MR. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 28, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day.

The principal business transacted was the remodelling of the relief districts. I paid a good deal of attention to this matter, and availed myself of all the local information I could obtain. The division of the districts is in my opinion the best that could be made.

The electoral division of Roundstone has been divided into three, which three divisions are named, North, East, and South Roundstone.

Ballindoon, into North and South Ballindoon.

Renvyle, into North and South Renvyle.

Clifden, into North and South Clifden.

The boundaries have been pointed out on the map to the relieving officers.

The clerk of the Union reports that the forms of queries to be answered by the relieving officers have not been sent to him. With the view of enabling these officers to proceed forthwith to the execution of their duties, one form has been filled up, with answers from the five individuals appointed.

Boilers are in course of being placed in localities where they have been deemed necessary, for the cooking of food for the able-bodied.

The Vice-Guardians propose to give cooked food not only to the able-bodied, but also to the widows with two or more children. The permanently disabled must in some instances be served with dry meal.

There is some difficulty in knowing how to deal with cooked food where a weekly allowance has been ordered; and I shall feel obliged for any suggestion you can give the Vice-Guardians on this subject. I feel, from the experience I have gathered during the operations of the Relief Commission last year, the great advantage and economy of using cooked food, and I am most anxious to see it in general use here.

The Vice-Guardians have appointed competent persons to distribute and make the food.

With the view of making the workhouse as available as possible for the able-bodied, the Vice-Guardians have discharged, on a weekly money allowance, some of the infirm paupers; the allowance is 1s. 2d. a-week.

The temporary fever hospital (Clifden) will be ready for occupation next week.

The hospital of Ballinahinch (near the town of Roundstone) is not yet completed.

A house for the hospital at Ballinakill has not yet been obtained. Dr. Suffield is making every exertion to secure one for the Vice-Guardians.

The medical officer of the Union workhouse is in fever, and Dr. Suffield is performing his duties.

I rejoice to state that there are but eight cases of fever in the hospital. The mortality has greatly decreased.

The collection of the rate has been satisfactory this week, 103*l*. 5*s*. having been collected.

The balance uncollected on the whole current rate is now 1410*l*.

I am directing my best attention to the general improvement of the workhouse. A contractor has been declared for putting the house in repair, painting, &c., &c., and he has proceeded to the performance of the work.

Should the Vice-Guardians be enabled to economize the expenditure of the temporary fever hospital, it might be well to apply any balance remaining after the completion of the hospital, to making some alterations in the house, the particulars of which I shall lay before you in another communication; but I should be glad to know, in the first instance, whether you would sanction the expenditure, supposing a balance was available.

The Vice-Guardians have requested me to call your attention to the difficulties they have to contend with in getting a supply of clothing, blankets, &c.; and they wish to know whether it would be possible to obtain from the Government a supply of cast-off clothing, bedding, &c. The latter would be most valuable at the present moment, for the use of three temporary fever hospitals which are about to be established.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' approval of the re-arrangement of the relief districts of the Union. The usual queries to be answered by the new relieving officers were forwarded to the clerk of the Union on the 23rd ultimo.

With regard to the issue of rations once only in each week, I am to state that the Commissioners are of opinion that great efforts should be made to introduce the system of giving rations in cooked food daily.

Clifden Union.

The Commissioners have reason to believe that where rations of meal have been issued weekly, they have sometimes been entirely consumed during three or four days of the week, to the great detriment of the paupers during the remaining days.

The great point to be borne in mind is the due relief of destitution in the manner which is at the same time the most effectual and the most economical. The Commissioners think that in reference to the improvidence which has been found to exist, this end can be best secured by daily rations of cooked food.

The Commissioners desire me to request that you will have the goodness to supply some further information with respect to the expenditure for providing temporary accommodation for fever patients, as regards the fund to be economized, and the improvements to be made in the workhouse.

The Commissioners have addressed the Vice-Guardians with respect to the supply of bedding and clothing for the temporary fever hospitals. It will be necessary that those hospitals should be furnished with the articles which are requisite, in the usual manner.

AT our Board meeting to-day the weekly accounts of the rate collectors were submitted, by which it appears that a sum of 103*l.* 5*s.* was lodged to our credit with the treasurer, viz.:—

Clifden Division	9	0	0	} for week ending 26th of February.
Ballindoon Division	5	0	0
Renvyle Division	34	13	0

to which a sum exceeding 84*l.* from one rate-payer will be added by to-morrow, and which will appear in this week's credit. We deem it our duty to observe that we find a discrepancy between the amount of out-standing arrears in the collectors' and our clerk's books. This we shall closely investigate; at present we understand it was owing to a practice allowed by the former Guardians of permitting the collectors to pay their own salaries, in part—a practice which we shall of course put an end to. Of the large arrears uncollected it appears that large proprietors are principally defaulters. In cases where it may be incumbent on us to institute legal proceedings, we shall wherever it can be rendered available, with the sanction of your Board, bring the parties before the assistant-barrister; but we fear that in most instances it will be necessary to have recourse to the higher courts. We have the pleasure of stating, that in the workhouse the health of the inmates is much improved, a result which we attribute to cleanliness, now enforced, and to an improved dietary. Fever in the house has decreased, and dysentery is now the prevailing sickness. We are using every effort to have the local fever hospital, as well as those at Roundstone and Ballinakill, available as soon as possible. It would be most desirable to obtain for those hospitals supplies of bedding, clothing, &c., from other sources than our rates, and if the Government had any such matters to spare, it would be most useful to send a supply to this Union. We have strongly urged the relieving officers to carry out the great object for which they are designed, namely, to provide that no one wanted relief who was a fit object to receive it. We have also impressed upon them the second duty, to be diligent in detecting imposition. Our present impression is, that in addition to the late extra relieving officers it will be necessary to appoint others to aid in the efficient working of the system.

The districts were at this day's meeting sub-divided at the suggestion of gentlemen knowing the localities, and with the Temporary Inspector's co-operation. This arrangement may enable the relieving officers to execute their duties with more effect; but taking into account the distances they have to go, and the admitted fact that they are not cognizant of one out of twenty of the cases on the application books, we beg to express our opinion that additional assistance will, for a time, be necessary. We shall report as soon as possible from personal observation in the several districts, on this important subject.

The machinery for distributing cooked food is extensively organized, and will, we trust, work well and economically.

We acted to day on our resolve of rendering the workhouse more available, as a test; we discharged, with their own consent, several inmates of the infirm ward, allowing a weekly cash relief of 1s. 2d. for adults, and 7d. for children.

We have chequed on our treasurer for 6l. 15s. to credit of the audit fund.

Mr. Darcy attended the Board to day, and offered the land in front of the workhouse, at 2l. per acre; we think the price high, but we regard the possession of the ground as of essential value to the Union, and we would further beg to submit to your Board the expediency and utility of adding to the workhouse the land at the rear; both lots are surrounded by roads, and all form one compact section. We are assured that great benefits and ultimate profits would ensue. Crops of oats and potatoes would be produced, turf fuel cut, a suitable cemetery obtained, remote from the house, the swamps drained from around it, and healthful useful employment at hand for the able-bodied, whilst the execution of such improvements would also prove ornamental, and tend to secure the health of the inmates.

We have the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 26th instant, and beg to state that we shall pay due attention to its contents.

We impressed in the strongest manner on the relieving officers the necessity of preparing the returns required by your Board, and we have allowed them to have for a limited time the assistance of clerks to enable them to have the needful done without prejudice to the poor in their several districts.

One matter demands our special notice. It is not unusual for the local contractors to run out of supplies, and they then desire to know if other food, such as rye or barleymeal, may be substituted. Our efforts shall be directed in all cases to compel responsible parties to fulfil their engagements; but we wish to guard against failures which would be fatal, and which no after penalties would atone for, if food were wanted, and not in the district. How this may be best obviated in such a locality, we desire the opinion of your Board.

WITH reference to arrears of rate due by the large landed proprietors in the Union, I am to recommend for your consideration the expediency of directing the collectors to obtain payment by the service of a 15 days' notice, and subsequent complaint and summons before a justice of the peace in the ordinary manner. This course will be more advantageous where it can be adopted, both for the rate-payer and the Union, inasmuch as the rate will be more speedily paid, and it will save the rate-payer from the very heavy expenses of proceedings in the superior Courts of Record. When, however, it is found necessary to resort to the latter proceedings or to Civil Bill, the Commissioners rely upon the Vice-Guardians to see that the proceedings are carried on with vigour and despatch.

The Commissioners are desirous of being furnished with a list of the several immediate lessors in the Union who are still defaulters, with the amount due by each, and a brief note of the proceedings which have been adopted to obtain payment in each case.

The Commissioners are not aware that there is any supply of bedding or clothing at the disposal of the Government which could be appropriated for the temporary fever hospitals. An extract from your report on the subject will be forwarded to the Board of Health.

The Commissioners will sanction any re-arrangement of the relief districts which you may suggest, and the Inspector of the Union shall recommend for approval.

The Commissioners await the report of their architect on your communication with respect to the occupation of some additional land adjoining the workhouse. You will have the goodness to state in the meantime the number of acres of ground which you would propose to occupy in addition to the present workhouse site.

With regard to your apprehension of contractors being unable to continue supplying the description of provisions specified in the contracts for the relief of the poor in the Union, I am to state that the meal which contractors may propose to substitute, should be such as can be used for food with convenience and advantage, having regard to the health of the paupers, the means of preparing the food for use, and the cost of the substitute. You will also be so good as in every case to be governed by proved inability to procure the meal specified in the contract;—so that any change to be considered shall appear to be rendered indispensable by general deficiency of local supplies; and not be adopted to suit the contractors' interests.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 2, 1848.

ON Tuesday we proceeded to Ballinakill to make arrangements for securing suitable premises for a fever hospital in that district. There is a difficulty in obtaining a proper house, but we have reason to expect this difficulty may be overcome.

On Wednesday we went to Roundstone, for the double purpose of securing accommodation there for the treatment of fever in hospital, as well as for observing the system at present in operation for the relief of the poor through our relieving officers.

We have done all that was possible as relates to the hospital. We have got a tender to make accommodation for about 50 patients, available in a month at an outlay for buildings of 12*l.* 10*s.*, and a weekly charge for rent of 5*s.* This hospital will require all the necessaries of bedding, &c.; but we deem it prudent in the state of that district to use every effort to check the spread of contagion, and to remove into one place the disease which is now we are assured raging in the district, and which, if unchecked, will become malignant.

In Roundstone we felt convinced that the labour of the recipients of relief could be most profitably employed in sweeping and cleansing the streets, which are, beyond all description, filthy and disgusting. We regard it almost an impossibility that the health of such a place, in times like the present, can be expected to improve so long as the filth and heaps of offensive matter are allowed to stagnate in the public thoroughfares.

Another matter of importance suggests itself—it appears that in summer it is necessary to go one mile out of town to procure fresh water for Roundstone. May not the labour now available be converted to this most essential want? If your Board consent, we should wish to apply the test-labour, in towns and villages in this Union, to the sweeping of the streets, cleaning sewers, &c. &c.

The principal object in our reporting to-night is to express our conviction that, in the present system of out-door relief, a gigantic imposition is universally practised. We have satisfied ourselves, by personal examination, that the present mode is all-objectionable; that no check exists; that the great object, the feeding of the destitute, is not provided for as fully as it may be, and that thousands are receiving rations who are not entitled to them. Thus the poor famish, and the rate-payers are plundered. To meet this tremendous evil, which every one admits, we beg to suggest the best substitute which our present means of information supply. We think it is a good simple organization, and that it will, by affording a certain means of inquiry and detection, in a short time suppress all imposition, so far as getting extra rations or supplies from two districts, or rations for two parties, as is quite usual both being for one (the applicant giving married name and name before marriage, &c.) It will also simplify the mode of checking all the accounts, and remove most of the perplexities of the present mode.

We propose that every applicant on the relieving officers' books, under the two classes, should receive a ticket numbered (say from 1000 to 2000 in each division), that the numbers include all parties entitled to relief, able-bodied, widows, infirm, &c. That in each division there should be a distinct number for each and every applicant. We propose that these tickets should, in the forms we subjoin, be printed on parchment slips, of the shapes noted, and that each recipient should hold his or her ticket continually. These tickets vary in form, and in name of district, so that the holder of such ticket in any one district cannot get relief under its permit in any other; each number of every ticket represents the head of a family, or of a person entitled to, receive relief in his own behalf. This number is independent of the number on the Application Book; but when issued in either of the lists, as subjoined, the number on the Application Book is easily referred to. We propose that the relieving officer shall, on the application of an able-bodied person, insert his name on the list (form A, No. 1); and satisfied of the state of his family and other essentials

(these data at present to be taken from the Application Book), that he shall then give applicant a parchment ticket numbered (suppose No. 1). We then propose that all the persons thus situated be put on the last-named list (form A, No. 1), supplied with ticket numbered, and that the list be sent to the overseer. The latter holds the list (form B), and in the proper columns he inserts the number, names, rations, &c., of the persons sent to him, marking each day's work with a (1), and each day's absence with a ×—each evening he takes his list to the distributor. The numbers are called, not the names, and each number receives the quantum of food due to him according to the rations stated in the relieving officer's list (form A, No. 1).

The mode of supplying the widows and infirm, or aged, is equally plain: a ticket numbered represents each; and on presentation, whether weekly in case of dry meal issue, or daily if cooked food be substituted, that ticket is an order for the rations stated in the list (form A, No. 2).

It is difficult to convey concisely the object of this system. Its leading merits are, that there can be no duplicate applications for, or rather obtainment of, rations. The number is the record; that record is (by the shape and printing of the ticket) confined to a district, and it is impossible that any person holding a ticket of one district can get food in another; at present the reverse is the fact. Besides this, when once the numeration order is followed in each district, we have a simple check—we can go over the whole district with the lists, we can call for the tickets, compare the numbers (of the ticket and the lists), and in every instance it is possible to ascertain if all the members of a family represented by the ticket exist and require aid.

We beg to enclose, for the consideration of your Board, forms of the headings of the fortnightly sheets (forms A and B), and also the forms of tickets, which we are of opinion ought to be on parchment or some durable material; parchment would best bear friction and exposure to weather, and would in the end be the cheapest. We suggest that the variety of shape is necessary, and that in the printing space should be left for the numbering, which is to be filled in by the relieving officer.

Should your Board be pleased to consider this system, and to confide its working to us, we have not a doubt but that at least a ton of meal per diem will be saved in the Union. We should also respectfully beg of you, if you are satisfied with the mode we propose, that you would order from the printer a supply of sheets in the forms enclosed on paper of a suitable size, and also parchment tickets according to the enclosed patterns (omitting the numbers), printed in the most durable ink. We ask this immediate supply because we feel its necessity, and it is not possible to procure the requisites here.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have given Mr. Thom directions to supply the forms required for putting the system for giving out-door relief, which you are desirous of adopting in the Union, into practice.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners will raise no objection to the employment of some of the able-bodied paupers in sweeping the streets of Roundstone.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 7, 1848.

IN reply to your circular letter in respect to the determination or suspension, on the 18th March, of out-door relief at present afforded to able-bodied poor persons in Unions in Ireland, I have the honour to report that it would not be desirable to adopt such a course in this Union. My reasons for arriving at this conclusion are shortly these:—

1st. The amount of distress is so considerable that relief will be absolutely essential to prevent the population from starvation.

2nd. There is little if any employment provided under the Land Improvement Act in this Union.

3rd. From the circumstances of the majority of the landed proprietors, they are unable to employ the labouring population on their respective properties.

For the above reasons I would recommend the continuance of relief under the 2nd section, to the able-bodied paupers of the Clifden Union.

Clifden Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 9, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to state whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed that under that order single men, and men with only two children, will be thrown on their own resources.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 7, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that I attended the weekly meeting of the Vice-Guardians yesterday; the amount of business to be disposed of obliged the Board to adjourn the proceedings to this day.

Arrangements are in active progress for the distribution of rations to all classes in cooked food. I hope in my next report to be enabled to state that the issue of dry meal has altogether ceased.

Upon reference to the accounts of the contractor who supplies meal for the Clifden electoral division, I find that the number of rations issued to those ordered relief under the 1st and 2nd sections of the Act of Parliament, for the week ending the 4th March, was 24,538½. The population of the electoral division is 7500.

It occurs to me that this issue is excessive, and that it will be necessary for the Vice-Guardians to institute a very careful revision of the relieving officers' lists, and to endeavour to check imposition, which I am satisfied prevails to a very great extent. In consequence of the books of the several relieving officers not being as yet complete, the Guardians are not in a position to proceed to a revision, and though assistance has been given to the officers, yet the out-door relief register has not been filled; and the lists of those receiving relief have consequently not been made out, printed, and posted, according to your directions.

The Vice-Guardians have informed me that with the view of preventing imposition, they have proposed a plan for checking the issues which has been already submitted to you.

The first distribution in cooked food in Clifden electoral division will take place to-day, and the economy in the expenditure will necessarily show itself. I have proposed to the Guardians that those receiving relief under the 1st section shall have the rations at a morning issue, 11 o'clock, and that the able-bodied shall be served on the completion of their task, say 4 o'clock, P.M. The overseer in charge will be held responsible for bringing the men under his charge to the kitchen, where they will be served in the order their names appear on his list. I think this arrangement will ensure order and regularity.

The balance in the hands of the treasurer is about 150*l.*

The collectors have received directions to furnish returns of the immediate lessors and occupiers in arrear, which shall be forwarded to you with the least possible delay.

The Guardians have directed proceedings to be taken against all defaulting rate-payers. The fifteen-day notice has been served where practicable on immediate lessors, and proceedings by civil bill shall be used in such cases as may be deemed advisable.

The amount of rate uncollected in the Union is 1279*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

The Guardians yesterday elected Patrick Joyce, master of the workhouse. I have every reason to believe that Joyce will make an efficient master. He is at present one of the relieving officers, and has given much satisfaction in the execution of his duties.

Since the date of my last report, Dr. Bodkin, the medical attendant of the workhouse, died of fever, contracted in the discharge of his duties.

The Guardians have appointed Dr. Suffield to act pro tempore.

I am glad to be enabled to state that disease has decreased very considerably in the workhouse. I beg leave to enclose a report from Dr. Suffield, in reference to the sanitary condition of the house. During a tour which I made last week of the northern part of the Union, I learned that fever prevails to a very great extent.

The Guardians have not been enabled as yet to procure a suitable building for the fever hospital at Ballinakill. I have not failed to call their attention to the importance of providing accommodation for fever patients in that district with the least possible delay.

A supply of bedding has been ordered for Clifden temporary fever hospital, which will be open for the reception of patients in a few days.

The Guardians have secured a building in Roundstone for another hospital. It is fast advancing to completion.

The relieving officer of South Roundstone has reported to the Vice-Guardians that fever prevails to a very alarming extent in his district, and that the mortality is very great. The inhabitants are 20 miles distant by land from any medical relief; and from a knowledge which I possess of that locality, I would strongly recommend the establishment of a fever hospital at Carna, which is nearly the centre of the district.

Dr. Gannon, who has been appointed medical attendant of the Roundstone hospital, could in fine weather cross the bay to Carna. By land the distance from Roundstone to Carna is about 20 Irish miles.

The attention of the Board of Health will no doubt be directed by you to this important matter.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. SUFFIELD to the VICE-GUARDIANS of the CLIFDEN UNION:—March 4, 1848.

It is gratifying to me to be able to inform you, that the sanitary condition of the workhouse has much improved since my last report; disease has much decreased, and at present there are but 65 cases in hospital; of this number dysentery forms by far the greatest number, and children are the principal sufferers. Of fever there are but a few cases; and those are of a mild nature. To a proper arrangement of the dietary I consider we must look to check the progress of dysentery and bowel complaints now so prevalent, and to this point I would in particular direct your attention. Much has been gained by the change already made in the dietary; but I would again suggest that all children in the house at and under six years of age should receive bread and milk diet, without Indian meal stirabout, together with rice and soup occasionally; and if possible, that warm clothing and shoes should be procured for the children—the cold in the feet having a great effect in producing dysentery. The children also complain of insufficient bed-clothes; steps should be taken to remedy this. A great evil which now exists, and which must lead to bad results, is allowing the paupers to sleep two and three in a bed; this is highly injurious, and should be remedied without delay. It is caused not from want of room, but for want of bed and bedding. The changes lately made in the hospital have proved of infinite service; but I have to complain of the want of a proper supply of clean sheets, quilts, and bed-ticks; without these the hospital cannot be kept clean, nor disease be checked. Clean clothes should also be provided for the hospital ward-maids. Having applied to the matron, she was unable to give them a supply.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

IN pursuance of your directions expressed in your letter of the 2nd March, that I should supply you information with respect to the expenditure for providing temporary accommodation for fever patients in Clifden electoral division, the funds to be economized, and the improvements to be made in the workhouse; I have the honour to report, that the sum which has been borrowed by the late Board of Guardians for the alteration, &c., of the hospital was 200*l.*, of which about 120*l.* will be expended, according to the estimates submitted to your architect. With the balance remaining I would suggest first, that the present Board-room of the workhouse should be divided, so as to provide a relieving officer's room, which could also be used as a clerk's office, and that the present clothes store, at the north end of the Board-room, should be increased in size.

The Vice-Guardians have suggested, with the view of affording additional dormitory accommodation, that their present Board-room should be used for that purpose, and that a Board-room should be provided in one of the buildings at present occupied as a schoolroom. I beg leave to forward a plan for carrying this suggestion into effect, which has been prepared for the Vice-Guardians.

I am fully sensible of the importance of providing additional accommodation in the workhouse, but at the same time I am not prepared to recommend any alteration which would effect the external appearance of the building. It would be, no doubt, desirable to have a Board-room detached from the house, but I fear the arrangement proposed could not be carried out without producing incongruity of style. Windows should be broken out from the roof of the building in which the attic Board-room is proposed, and the opposite school-house should be decorated similarly.

Clifden Union.

The present ventilating turrets of the main building are very much out of repair, and it occurs to me that they may be dispensed with in this exposed climate where there is such constant rain; it is very difficult to keep them staunch, and as the stair-cases over which they are placed are lighted by small windows their removal would be the less objectionable. I would suggest (supposing that you consented to their removal) that one of them should be placed on the centre line of the roof between the two chimneys, as a belfry turret. This, in my opinion, would break the line of the roof, and in no way affect the architectural appearance of the building. A bell is much required in the house.

The Vice-Guardians having determined to take the quantity of land which they are empowered to do, under the 1 and 2 Vict. cap. 56, and the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, I beg leave to state, that the land which they have negotiated for with Mr. D'Arcy is peculiarly eligible for the purposes required. There are about five acres immediately fronting the house, at each side of which are the two roads leading into the town of Clifden. A boundary wall, at some future time, could enclose all. Immediately behind the workhouse site is the land proposed to be taken for a permanent fever hospital, which is also eligibly situated. The enclosed sketch will point out the position of the land, &c. In a few days I shall forward an accurate survey of it. I trust that the arrangements for getting possession may soon be perfected, as I am most anxious to see it cropped.

WE were unable from the pressure of yesterday's business at our Board to make our report last evening.

We beg to submit the weekly collection of the rates in the several divisions, viz. :—

Clifden	2	12	0
Roundstone	91	3	0

In compliance with the order of your Board we required the several collectors to fill up the printed forms of the lessors who are defaulters of the rates. These lists we expect will be complete by Friday next.

In reference to the elections for master and matron we have to state, that of five applicants of the former office we have selected Mr. Patrick Joyce, one of our present relieving officers, a selection which the Inspector, Mr. Deane, approves, and which, we trust, will prove a judicious one. No person possessing the requisite qualifications for matron having presented herself we have ordered new advertisements in the papers.

The appointment of a medical attendant to our workhouse, in place of the late Doctor Bodkin, engages our most serious attention, and on that subject we shall have the honour of submitting our views in a special report.

The sanitary state of the workhouse is satisfactory. Fever is decreasing, and although the mortality for the past week was 10, some of those were in a dying state when admitted.

We regret to state that in the rural divisions fever is reported to be on the increase. We have taken active measures for the provision of an hospital at Roundstone; it will contain about 40 patients, and will be ready very shortly.

In Ballinakill we have authorized Doctor Suffield to select the most available house.

The relieving officer of South Roundstone came this day before us and gave a most appalling account of his district. Fever is rife in every house; there is no medical man in the whole division. The population is in utter want, without any resource, and unless some remedial steps are promptly taken, a plague will carry them off in hundreds. We would ask the instructions of your Board on this matter. We have no possibility of providing in this district medical aid; and if it were not out of course we would ask, if permissible, that your Board should appoint a physician to inspect the locality and its condition, with a view of applying the most available means of checking the spread of contagion and loss of life.

On this day the distribution of cooked food commenced here. We hope to find it both efficacious and economical, and that in a few days all the kitchens in the Union will be at full operation.

As soon as we shall have received the decision of your Board on our proposed system for checking distribution, as submitted in our report of the 2nd instant, we shall be enabled to state our views as to the present mode of allowing contractors to be distributors.

We have taken measures to have the quantity of land proposed to be taken for the use of the workhouse ascertained, and shall duly state the result to your Board.

We are most urgent with the relieving officers to complete their returns; but the utter confusion of the system hitherto pursued precludes the possibility of any immediate check on them, or on their orders to the distributors. We, as public officers, the rate-payers, and the destitute, are totally at their discretion.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 10, 1848.

I AM to inform you that Mr. Phelan, Poor Law Inspector, has been requested to proceed to Roundstone without delay, with a view to the adoption of the best means which may be practicable for checking the disease which you report to exist there.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

IN reply to your communication of the 9th instant, requesting that I would inform you whether the state of the Clifden Union was such that the provisions of the order issued to the Listowel Union could be carried into effect therein, I have to state that I do not think it would be safe to reduce the number of those receiving relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in the manner proposed. I have taken great trouble to ascertain whether the distress is of that extent to justify me in coming to that conclusion, and I regret to inform you, that owing to the great prevalence of disease, that I cannot recommend you to alter the order under the 2nd section, in the particulars suggested.

I have every hope that the rigorous imposition of the workhouse test, the use of cooked food, and the exacting of labour in return for rations, will soon materially decrease the numbers on the lists.

At present I cannot conscientiously advise a reduction in the numbers receiving relief under the able-bodied order.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report my attendance at the weekly meeting of the Vice-Guardians held this day, the proceedings of which have been adjourned until to-morrow. The collection of the rate during the past week amounted to 72*l.* 4*s.*, 5*d.* having been handed in by the collector of the Ballindoon district after the accounts had been closed.

I beg leave to call your attention to the fact that the books of the relieving officers have not as yet been completed with the view either to the filling up of the out-door relief register, or the preparation of the lists for posting in conspicuous places through the Union.

I have used my best exertions to have these important services completed, but regret to say that I have not been enabled to obtain the returns from the relieving officers. I have called on the Vice-Guardians to put the 100th section of the Act of Parliament into force should any further delay take place.

I regret to state that there are good grounds for coming to the conclusion that one of the relieving officers has grossly neglected his duty. The accompanying letter from the Bridewell-keeper of Clifden details a statement in reference to the death of an individual, which will oblige me to hold an investigation on oath in respect to the same.

It is my intention to proceed to Kilkerrin to-morrow in order to inquire into the circumstances, and shall report to you accordingly.

I have the pleasure of informing you that I have been enabled to establish the use of cooked food at the greater number of the depots in the Union. The economy in the expenditure by this arrangement has been very considerable.

Clifden Union.

I regret to state that fever prevails to a great extent in the Union. I am informed by the Vice-Guardians that Dr. Phelan has been instructed to visit Clifden with the view of reporting to you on the same. It will be most desirable that you should be put into possession, from his medical experience, of the true state of the district in respect to the progress of disease.

Dr. Suffield has been elected medical attendant to the Union workhouse and temporary hospital attached thereto. It is satisfactory that the Guardians have made so excellent a selection, which will fully appear from his testimonials, which (collected in a printed form) I have the pleasure to forward you.

It is very pleasing to be enabled to state that there is a visible improvement in the state of the workhouse. From the constant visits I pay to that establishment, I am enabled personally to superintend the best measures for ensuring discipline, order, and regularity, and it is a matter of much gratification to be enabled to see the results of my labour.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. KERRIGAN, Keeper of Clifden Bridewell, to Mr. O'LEARY:—March 12, 1848.

I BEG leave to call your attention to one of the most revolting cases that ever came under my notice these 15 years past. At 11 o'clock last night a knocking came to the Bridewell gate, upon which I got up and opened it, when James Cook, the brother of the relief officer of Carna district, appeared outside with two persons, the husband and wife, and the barrack orderly in Clifden; the wife appeared to me to be quite dead, upon which they dragged her out of the car like a dead sheep, and pulled her into the door and left her and the husband, Daniel Flaherty, in my custody. I drew her into the men's day-room, it being out of my power to put her up stairs, the place appropriated for females, but to my astonishment she never moved hand or foot since that moment, and never uttered a word. Such cruel treatment of human beings is revolting to human nature. Her husband says that they were so treated that all their family died of starvation: and shocking to relate that the unfortunate victim, the deceased, cut off the feet from the ankles of one of the children and eat of them.

I solemnly declare that I think I am in duty bound to report this and other similar acts of cruelty which have come to my knowledge from that district where Thomas Cook officiates, before a jury of my countrymen, which I hope will take place at the investigation of the deceased.

P.S.—I hope your honour will cause an investigation.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received your report of the 13th instant, and have read with deep concern the dreadful circumstances relating to the destitution of a family named Flaherty, referred to in your report. The Commissioners await your further report of the inquiry which you state it to be your intention to make into this case.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

THE rate collectors handed in to-day, the treasurer's receipts for last week's collection, as follows:—

Clifden	£3 10 0
Ballindoon	7 7 0
Renvyle	53 14 0

They also produced the required return of the defaulters (with the exception of the Roundstone collector, who was unable on account of illness), and will send them up forthwith. We consider, all facts taken into account, that the collection of the rates in this Union is creditable, but we feel bound to add that it would be hopeless to rely on any supplies from a new rate, which it would be impossible to avail of before October.

We beg to remark that in the whole interior management of the house a signal improvement is observable; the cleanliness, ventilation, and good order, of every department is a pleasing contrast with its aspect a few weeks since, whilst the decrease of mortality and improved appearance of the inmates warrant us in hoping that the course now adopted, and which shall be enforced, will ensure a continuous progress to perfect order.

Our most strenuous efforts have been devoted to generalize through the Union the distribution of cooked food, our anxiety is that the kitchens should be so located that the poor, especially the infirm and widows, should not have too far to walk for their daily supplies; and our present impression is, that two miles (two going and two returning) is the maximum which such parties should be required to travel. This arrangement would place the boilers four miles apart, and from our observation of the state of the people and of the country we are satisfied that a greater distance would not be expedient. When the maps reach us we shall be better enabled to satisfy our minds on this very important consideration.

It is our duty to advert to an occurrence of a very revolting nature which occurred in the Bridewell of this town on Sunday morning. We do not believe that either the event itself, or its cause or consequences, can by possibility be proved to have any relation to the out-door relief system; but as the matter was brought under our notice, and as it could not fail to attract our instant attention, we think it necessary to place the details, as far as they have been ascertained, before your Board.

On Sunday morning the Bridewell keeper of Clifden addressed a note to one of the Guardians, stating that a woman who had been brought in with her husband on a charge of stealing a calf, by a police constable and a man named James Cook (an overseer under our Board), from whom the calf had been stolen, died immediately on her removal from the cart; due notice had been given to the police, and an investigation instituted by the magistracy. We at once conferred with Mr. Deane. A confidential officer was forthwith despatched to Kilkerrin, in the Roundstone division, to ascertain facts, he has discharged his task most efficiently; and this morning Mr. Deane, Temporary Inspector, proceeded with Dr. Suffield to hold a sworn investigation as to the truth of statements made by the husband, of his having devoured the feet of one of his children, two of whom he alleges to be interred in or near his cabin. The particulars shall be all duly furnished to your Board by Mr. Deane; we only desire to state the event, and to add that our conviction is, that want of food was not the immediate cause of the poor woman's death, as they had received their due supply of meal, some meal being in the house when the husband was made prisoner, and the meat of the calf alleged to be stolen found with them. From the inhumanity of James Cook, exhibited by having brought the poor creature on a most inclement day in an open cart, without even straw to protect her from the injuries of a long journey, we felt coerced to dismiss him at once from any service under our Board.

We went this day, after discharging our duties at the Board, (which had to adjourn yesterday) to Cleggan; the misery and destitution there exceed any other district we have as yet visited, and our conviction of the necessity of increasing the kitchens for distributing cooked food is strengthened. Disease in that locality is very prevalent, measles, dysentery, and fever, abound. We have resolved to use rice in proportion of one-fifth with Indian meal, and we are sanguine that this diet properly cooked and regularly supplied will before long check disease.

We are desirous of having your Board's instructions as to the use to which the new fever hospital of Clifden is to be applied. Is it merely to be confined to the paupers who may be stricken with contagious disease in the workhouse? or is it available for the general sick poor of the division who may be so afflicted? If there be no order to the contrary we would respectfully urge the stern necessity of admitting to the benefit of that hospital, in time, the fever patients of the town and its vicinity. Now that the workhouse is comparatively healthy, we are of opinion that the ample accommodation of the new temporary hospital would be more than sufficient for the cases which may arise in the house; we also have been convinced that removing in time the first member of a family afflicted with fever, will prove economical as well as remedial.

We have already expressed our hope that the cooked food issued instead of meal will prove a vast saving, and more efficient as a means of relief to the really destitute. We again have cause to believe that when it shall be brought into general operation under the plan we propose to adopt, an immense saving of the public funds will be obtained.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

THE Commissioners approve of the removal of James Cook, one of the overseers of work, under the circumstances stated in your report; and with a view to disqualify him from again holding any office under a Board of Guardians in any Union in Ireland, the Commissioners will issue an order under seal for his dismissal.

The Commissioners are prepared to sanction any further arrangements which may appear calculated effectually to meet the distress in the district of Cleggan.

The Commissioners consider that the temporary fever hospital at Clifden may be used for all fever cases in Clifden division, the other divisions being furnished with hospitals for patients belonging to those districts.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that I proceeded to Kilcorran on Tuesday last to hold an investigation on oath in reference to the horrible circumstances detailed in the letter of the bridewell keeper of Clifden, which accompanied my report of the 14th instant. It is with much pleasure that I am enabled to state that so far as the administration of the Poor Law is concerned, no blame can be attached to any official connected therewith. Upon reference to the Application and Report Book for the electoral division of Roundstone, I found that Bart Flaherty, his wife, and four children, have been recipients of relief since their discharge from the workhouse on the 9th of last December. The number in the Application Book is 21, and opposite thereto are the initials of the chairman, Mr. D'Arcy. The relieving officer, whose testimony was corroborated by several witnesses, proved that that relief was duly and properly given to the family.

The hut of Bart Flaherty is situated about half a-quarter of a mile from the residence of the relieving officer, and I had abundant evidence adduced to me to satisfy me that he (Flaherty) and his family had attended daily for their rations.

The whole family, six in number, have been attacked with fever; and previous to the circumstances I am about to detail three of the children, viz., Martin, Mary, and Pat, died of it.

On the morning of the 10th instant, at 6 A.M., a man, named James Corke, accompanied by Mark Conneely, proceeded to Flaherty's house to search for a calf which was stolen from Corke's land. Conneely and Corke looked through an opening in the wall of the hut, and saw Bart Flaherty, his wife Honor, a woman named Bridget Marmion, and Margaret Flaherty, daughter of Bart Flaherty, lying on the floor, and the hide of the calf placed over them. Corke and Conneely went to the police station, and one of the constables came to the house and arrested Flaherty. It is important to observe that this man, alleged to be in such a state of destitution, took with him from his house to the police barracks a bag of meal! This was fully proved by the witnesses I examined. On the following day James Corke called on the police to have Flaherty's wife arrested also, and she was accordingly brought to the station in custody. On her arrival there, she told the constabulary that before she was taken to Clifden, she wished to get some meal that was in her hut. The witness Conneely distinctly swore that he saw a stone of meal in the house independent of the bag which the husband took away. On Saturday morning, about 11 o'clock, the police took the prisoners to Clifden. For about 16 or 17 miles of the road they travelled on an outside jaunting-car, and for the remainder of the distance on a common car.

It appears from the testimony of constable Archy that the woman Honor Flaherty was in a very sickly condition when she was put on the car, and the day was extremely cold and severe. The constable stated to me that he did not hear the woman complain during the journey: she was offered bread by her husband but refused to eat it. Shortly after her arrival at the bridewell she died, and there can be no doubt whatever that her death was caused by exposure to cold and wet during a journey of 40 miles. These are strictly the facts connected with that part of the bridewell-keeper's letter which relates to the death of the woman.

In reference to the disgusting statement made by Bart Flaherty of his having been obliged to eat a portion of his child's feet, I have to assert that it is utterly devoid of truth. I examined several witnesses who resided near his hut, and one and all testified to the fact of his being a recipient of relief, and of their disbelief of his statement.

Dr. Suffield, who accompanied me to Kilcorran, went to the hut, a short distance outside of which, covered merely with a sod and a few stones, lying on the surface of the ground, were the bodies of two of the children. They had been dead, according to his evidence, about two months. It was impossible, as he stated, for any medical man to come to a conclusion as to whether the flesh of the legs had been torn or cut, the bodies being far advanced in decomposition.

One witness, Biddy O'Driscoll, swore that she "blamed" Flaherty very much for not burying his children, and that her son had offered him assistance to do so, but that he refused.

As regards the death of Honor Flaherty, it occurs to me that she ought not to have been removed in the condition she was in, and on so inclement a day. As this matter involves the duties of the constabulary, it is not necessary for me to offer any further observations.

During my journey to Kilcorran I made inquiries as to the health of the district, and I regret to state that fever rages in almost every village—indeed, I may say, in almost every house. I have already in a former report called your attention to the absence of medical relief in South Roundstone district, and I would respectfully urge on you the necessity of communicating with the Board of Health in relation thereto.

I am fully aware of the serious expense which the temporary fever hospitals will entail on this Union; but I look upon the health of the inhabitants to be almost paramount to every other consideration.

I hope to have the pleasure of a conference with Dr. Phelan on this subject, to whom I shall more particularly point out the necessity of providing medical attendance to the suffering sick of the locality I have alluded to.

The Clifden temporary fever hospital was opened this day for the reception of patients.

I visited it this morning, and have to report that its internal arrangements are most satisfactory, every comfort and requisite having been provided for the sick.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 23, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Central Board of Health has been drawn to the prevalence of fever in certain districts of the Union.

Mr. O'LEARY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 18, 1848.

I AM anxious to express my opinions to your Board as to the delay of the relieving officers in this Union in furnishing the required returns.

It is evident, that from the commencement, the system they adopted was confused and without method. The thousands crowding upon them with applications for relief—the necessity of investigating as far as they could these cases—as well as the urgency of giving provisional aid in emergencies—all seem to have entangled their accounts, and to have produced the difficulty which now still exists. The Vice-Guardians, with the concurrence of the Inspector, offered every assistance; but such has been the complication, that as yet the returns cannot be made out.

In order to meet this, I would respectfully suggest that a person competent for the duty should be engaged for a short time to arrange the relieving officers' books; and once the lamentable effects of a lax method were removed, it would be easy to keep them in order. I am assured that a person qualified for the duty can be had here at a very reasonable recompense for his temporary services.

From my own observation I am satisfied that the relieving officers' powers, as at present constituted, afford unlimited scope and great temptations for abuse. In dispensing provisional relief they are now authorized to give money as well as rice, sugar, cocoa, &c., &c.

I am aware that it is essentially necessary to repose confidence in these officers; but I would most respectfully express my conviction that it is dangerous to intrust them with a discretion in giving money in any case, and that it would be more safe to confine their orders, in cases of necessity, for rice, bread, &c., &c., to the depôt-keeper of the district. To render this effective, I would suggest that in the charge of each depôt-keeper, small continuous supplies of the above articles be kept, and that they be charged to his account, as the Indian meal now is, to be accounted for in a similar way. We have ordered that each depôt-keeper should keep a pass-book, debiting himself with the meal received from the contractor, and crediting himself with the rations daily distributed. This pass-book is to be sent weekly to the Board-room, compared with the contractor's book, and duly noted in a book kept in the Board-room for the purpose. I suggest that in this way a check can be kept, and the supplies given on the relieving officers' orders more effectively than at present; besides, the prices charged for small quantities of such articles as rice, cocoa, &c., are 75 per cent. more than we could procure them from the depôts.

I am desirous to receive the instructions of your Board as to the mode in which the travelling expenses of the Vice-Guardians on duty shall be defrayed.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

I AM to state, that the Commissioners have no objection to your employing some competent person to arrange the books of the relieving officers. It will remain for your consideration, whether any and what portion of the expense so to be incurred should be deducted from the relieving officers' salaries.

The Commissioners will make no objection to the adoption of such plans as you may propose for checking abuses in affording out-door relief in the Union.

The Commissioners will issue an order for payment of such charges for travelling in the Union as it may be necessary for you to incur, when they are enabled to form an estimate of the sum to which such expenses may amount.

If you will have the goodness to transmit a statement of a week's expenses, the Commissioners will take the subject into consideration.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

As the amount of the current collection of rate will from this date be totally inadequate to meet the necessary expenditure for the relief of the destitute poor of this Union, I beg leave to request your attention to the same, with the view of assistance being afforded to the Vice-Guardians from the funds of the Committee of the British Association.

There remains about 40% in the hands of the treasurer.

The greater part of the uncollected balance of the rate is chiefly to be realized by legal proceedings, and in many instances by process in the superior courts of law.

Under the circumstances I think it right to solicit your interference for the assistance so much required.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 21, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 300% worth of provisions to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

The Commissioners request that you will supply them on Saturday in each week with an estimate of the weekly sum which in your opinion will be required in order to preserve from starvation the destitute poor who are entitled to relief in the Clifden Union, forming a separate estimate for each of the three following heads:—

- 1st. Relief in the workhouse.
- 2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.
- 3rd. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to such relief under the 2nd section of that Act.

The Commissioners are also desirous of receiving a report from you as to the making of a new rate, which appears to be required in the Union.

Mr. O'LEARY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 20, 1848.

I HAVE the honour of submitting the returns of the rate collectors for the week ending the 18th instant. The amounts received and lodged to our credit are as follow:—

Division of Clifden			Nil.
Division of Ballindoon	13	0	0
Division of Renvyle	3	19	0
Division of Roundstone	16	12	0

There is reason to hope that some of the large defaulters will soon pay up their arrears, and some will be coerced to pay; but a considerable uncollectable balance will still remain which it will be hopeless to expect for some time.

The contractors who have supplied meal for out-door relief, expressed this day considerable annoyance at not receiving payments on account. They have given their property on the assurance of receiving fortnightly payments, and I would most respectfully urge that no time should be lost in supplying funds to meet the claims, as if they should withhold even two days' supply, a most disastrous state of things would be the result.

In reference to this matter, I am desirous of receiving your Board's instructions and views. At present the Vice-Guardians enter into contracts with parties for this out-door relief supply; they also sign cheques on the Treasurer for payment, but the sums sent for the credit of that account do not pass through our books, consequently the balance on our minutes cannot be the same as that in the Treasurer's account.

I allude to this for my own guidance, as it occurs to me that there should be either separate accounts for the relief inside and outside the workhouse, or the treasurer's debits ought to be debits also on our books.

Your Board will permit me to state, that hitherto from the extent of the evil—and in the word evil I include abuse of every kind, as well as the dreadful destitution—it was not possible to arrive at data for ascertaining what positive amount of distress existed. The relieving officers had to afford relief in a thousand cases that they did not and could not investigate. Poverty in its worst degree was so mingled with imposition, that they could not wait to separate them without risking human life, and a confusion has been the consequence, which we are now doing our utmost to bring into order. But now we hope this evil is at an end, and I trust that the weekly expenditure which has hitherto been advancing, will, after this week, decrease under the operation of the cooked food system, and of the plan for checking that system. Thus the great objects of your Board and of all interests will be effected, the destitute will be relieved, and the tax-payers protected.

Mr. Phelan this day minutely inspected the workhouse, and offered some valuable advice as to dietary, &c. It shall be our duty to bring under his notice every matter affecting the sanitary condition of the Union, and I feel confident that great and enduring benefits will result from his practical observations in the rural districts on the prevailing diseases and their causes, and from the remedial measures which he shall recommend for adoption.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners had previous to your report made application to the British Association for an advance of 300*l.* to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

I am at the same time to state that the sums advanced by the British Association should, when paid into the treasurer's hands, be debited to him in the Union accounts, otherwise it will appear that you overdraw against the amount in his hands to your credit.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, and in reply I beg to state that I promptly availed myself of your permission to engage a competent person in the duty of arranging and bringing into the required order the books of the relieving officers. I shall take measures to have this essential object effected with all possible expedition.

Yesterday I accompanied Dr. Phelan, Poor Law Inspector, to Roundstone (returning by Ballindoon). I am anxious to express to your Board my delight that your prompt compliance with our request has conferred on this district the benefit of Mr. Phelan's inspection. I feel that his mission will save many lives; and my conviction of the necessity of such an investigation as he has, with admirable tact, instituted in this district, was painfully corroborated yesterday in Roundstone, and this day in Clifden. As he will place before you his views, any further notice of this subject on my part would be superfluous.

I wish respectfully to have your Board's instructions as to the quantity of cooked food which a ration for an adult should contain. At present an imperial quart of Indian-meal stirabout is the amount given; of this allowance all complain as insufficient, and my own opinion is, that it is not enough to sustain an able-bodied person for 24 hours. I consider that the ration should consist of the produce of one pound of meal; in other words, that 112 lbs. of meal cooked, no matter how its bulk may expand, should be distributed in 112 rations. At present the food is given by a measure, which does not contain more than three-fourths of a pound of dry meal. I am also daily impressed with the necessity of having rice in sufficient quantity here. The price here is 75 per cent. over its value, and if we had a supply to enable us to use it in proportion of one-fourth in the cooked food, the prevailing and fatal epidemic, dysentery, would be soon checked.

Our inspector, Mr. Deane, being obliged to obey a Crown summons to the Galway Assizes, justifies my again alluding to the expediency of having funds as soon as possible, to appease the demands of the contractors who have supplied meal for the out-door relief.

I feel coerced to express my opinion to your Board that should any one of them refuse a supply, and should a rumour be spread that the several claims of our creditors would not be promptly paid, all would refuse, and the whole population dependent on relief would be famished before aid from other sources could be procured.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 25, 1848.

WITH reference to your observations respecting the quantity of cooked food that should constitute a ration for an adult, I am to state that the Commissioners concur in the opinion expressed by you as to rations of cooked food, which should contain (for all persons above nine years of age) the produce of one pound of meal.

The attention of Sir R. I. Routh has been drawn to your suggestion with reference to procuring a supply of rice.

Mr. PHELAN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour of informing you that I carefully inspected the Clifden workhouse on the 20th instant, and that I visited the chief parts of the Union during the succeeding week. I shall endeavour in the following report to lay before you such circumstances as appear to me to require remark or observation in respect to the state of the house and to that of the Union.

The house then contained 289 paupers, 48 of whom were in the infirmary; some of these were affected with fever in the acute, others in the convalescent stage. These fever cases were in the same wards with chronic patients. This perhaps was unavoidable until recently, when a house was fitted up in the town for the reception of extern fever patients, into which I advised that those also who become affected with fever in the workhouse should be sent during illness and convalescence: this suggestion will be acted on. The house fitted up for the fever cases is in a good locality, and for Clifden is well arranged and will accommodate about 50 patients.

The workhouse, yards, and outer ground, were in process of improvement; but as the new master was only a few days in office, and there was no matron except a very inadequate and unfit one on trial, the state of the entire was far from satisfactory, although under the circumstances much better than could perhaps have been fairly expected, and even in their present state vastly better than when I before visited. I could perceive that the inspector and Vice Guardians have been carrying out much judicious improvements, and I have no doubt they will soon have the entire in good order.

The medical officer lately appointed, is an active, and I have reason to expect will be an efficient officer.

I visited several houses in Clifden, in which I was informed that some poor persons were ill. Dr. Suffield had been summoned to attend at the Galway Assizes, so that I had not the benefit of his assistance, but I found a considerable number chiefly in fever, dysentery, and diarrhoea; several were in a hopeless state. The fever cases I sent to the fever hospital, and a few of the dysentery patients; others who were obtaining out-door relief, I left for the disposal of the workhouse medical officer, who is also the medical attendant of the dispensary.

I am unable to describe the extreme wretchedness of several families whom I visited on this occasion. They were literally without bed-clothes, except a ragged rug or old blanket, and without straw to lie on. Filth and every circumstance that tend to create or to extend disease existed in the highest degree, and the crowding in some places was awful. In one house, designated the "hulk," there were 58 persons; in another, called the "rookery," there were 42; not one of them, except one family, was in good health; not one but was half naked. The apartments of some were so foul that I could not remain in them for many minutes. Added to all this, moral depravity had evidently chosen its abode in these wretched places; the exception as to bad health, was a woman who had seven bastard children, all in good health; she, like the others, was getting out-door relief.

I visited Roundstone, accompanied by Mr. O'Leary, the Vice-Guardian. The medical officer of the dispensary was at the assizes; but the relieving officer and one of the police pointed out some houses in which fever was said to prevail, and I found their account but too true. In some houses I found persons affected with fever, others with dysentery and diarrhoea, and some who had been long dropsical and who were evidently in a hopeless state. The misery and the extent of disease here were as great, perhaps more so, than at Clifden. At the latter some medical attendance is given to the sick; at the former I should say scarcely any. In each house where I found sick persons, I inquired if the resident dispensary medical officer, Dr. Gannon, had been in attendance on them; in a few instances he had, in all the attendance was nominal, and only one visit was paid.

I beg to give an instance or two: one of a family named Keough became ill of fever on the 1st of January last; successively the several members, eight in number, and the father and mother, got ill of it. Dr. Gannon was applied to on a dispensary recommendation to attend them; he paid one visit. I found six of the family in bed, four in the only bed they had, two lying on the floor. The father had been buried that morning: the mother and two children were barely convalescent. Until attacked by this illness, although in humble circumstances, they were decent, and comparatively respectable; even in the abject state of misery in which I saw them, they commanded more respect and excited more commiseration than any I had seen. The father relapsed twice; had been seen once by the medical officer in the first relapse; during the three weeks succeeding the second of which he died, he did not visit him, although within a few perches of his (Dr. Gannon's) residence. Fever has existed in this family since about the 1st of January, and has completely pauperized them.

I was requested to see a person named Barry, who had been a check clerk last summer; from want of food he had been gradually getting into bad health for some weeks. He applied to Dr. Gannon for relief and for medical advice; the latter gave a certificate on which some meal was obtained, but he gave no medical relief. General dropsy was the disease, and of this the man was dying when I saw him. He was of an age, and of such appearance as would afford a fair expectation that by appropriate and not expensive treatment, he might recover, at least have life considerably prolonged. I met Dr. Gannon two days afterwards, and adverted to this case, expressing my surprise that he did not adopt some treatment in it, but he applied that it was food the man wanted, not medicine; both were absolutely required. He died next day after I saw him.

This man was surrounded by two or three respectable intelligent looking daughters, and some grand-children, from whom it was impossible, even surrounded as they were with persons in the same condition, not to feel the deepest commiseration, and the more so as the father's life might have been prolonged.

It is in fact these domiciliary visits that bring us to have a perfect view of the wretchedness, and of the extremely depressed physical and mental state of the people; hospitals or workhouses afford nothing like it.

The hotel keeper, a guinea subscriber to the dispensary, corroborated the want of attention to the sick by Dr. Gannon; so did the Rev. Mr. Crotty, a Protestant or Sectarian clergyman; and in fact there was no instance of any person that gave a favourable account of him. Medical attendance in this dispensary, is in my opinion merely nominal.

I examined a house which is being fitted up at Roundstone for fever patients, and which will soon be ready for use. It only consists of two rooms, one 18×12, the other 12×11, and will only accommodate nine or ten patients. Another is in progress, the walls are built with stones only, no mortar being used, but I suppose some plastering will be put inside. It is not yet roofed. It is

48 × 15, and will accommodate about 20 patients. Both are rude contrivances, but in such a district, perhaps, better cannot well be expected.

The Roundstone dispensary is intended for the parish of Moyrus, which contains a population of 11,969; but as Roundstone is nearly at the extreme end of it, and as a large bay intervenes between Roundstone and the southern and western portions, distant 20 miles from that town, it is obvious that even a well managed dispensary there could afford little or no medical relief to those who are so remote.

To satisfy myself as to the probable extent of disease in this remote portion of the parish, I went to the different food depôts at the fisheries, Carna, and Kilkieran, a journey of 30 Irish miles from Clifden. I should say that for 25 miles there is no medical attendance whatever on the sick poor; and although a few in the district subscribe to the Roundstone dispensary, on the understanding that Dr. Gannon would occasionally, once in a fortnight or three weeks, visit their district, they expressed themselves to be quite dissatisfied with him, such visits being very rarely paid. An instance of this may not be amiss. The son-in-law of one of Mr. Bell Martin's drivers got fever about a month ago, when his wife went to Mrs. Bell Martin, to Ballynahinch, about five miles distant, and got a recommendation to Dr. Gannon to attend Peter Joyce, the sick man. His daughter brought the paper to Dr. Gannon, who told her it was a forgery, and that he would not visit him. The mother went again after some days, and got another from Mrs. B. Martin, which she took to Dr. Gannon, who told her that if she should bring him a horse, or get a car for him, he would go. She did bring him a horse, which she obtained from her father, but Dr. Gannon said it was then too late, and he would not go that day, but if the horse were sent next day he would. On her return home, one of her children was dead, and finding so much difficulty in inducing Dr. Gannon to visit her family, she took no further step in the matter. I interrogated the mother and daughter, and William King, the driver, father to Mrs. Joyce, and found them quite consistent in their narrative. Peter Joyce and three children were still ill of fever, but convalescent. Some medical attention might have been useful; but although written to by the proprietor of this immense but very wretched estate, the medical officer withheld that attention, and it may well be imagined that when so inattentive to Mrs. Martin's request, or order, he is not likely to be otherwise, in respect to those who are recommended by less influential persons, or to those contiguous to him, who although not recommended it would be his duty to attend when time would permit.

Along this Carna and Kilkieran district, fever and dysentery prevail to a very considerable extent. I visited several houses along the line on being informed that there were sick persons in them. Most of them had dysentery and dropsy, evidently caused by want of food; some had typhus fever in the acute, others in the convalescent stage. No description could give an idea of the extreme wretchedness of these people. I also went into houses which were not mentioned to contain any sick persons, and in almost every one I found persons in dysentery, diarrhoea, and dropsy, some in fever. In some houses every member of the family was ill.

The same state of wretchedness and of disease is said to prevail in the islands and in the coast part of the district, which for want of roads I did not visit.

The same extreme destitution which prevails through the Ballynahinch property does not appear on that of the Waste Land Society, but even there destitution and disease prevail to a very great extent, and without any medical relief.

I visited the Ballindoon district and the fever hospital got up there. This hospital appears to be fairly managed; but as the medical officer was at the assizes I could only ascertain that from the 21st of August last to the 15th instant, 192 patients had been admitted, and that only four died, being only 2 per cent. Some of the cases were marked fever, but mild. I may here observe, that in this as in many of these hospitals, fever patients are brought in here convalescing and convalescent, and that were domiciliary attendance given to these, there would be no necessity for sending them to an hospital at that stage.

This Ballindoon division or district naturally forms a portion of the western Roundstone district, and should be attended by the same medical officer.

I visited the Renvyle division, in which the Cleggan and Ballinakill districts are comprised. At the Cleggan depôt, about 500 or 600 persons were assembled, waiting for the day's rations; many of them appeared to be literally starving—some to be nearly moribund from starvation and disease. It is a frightfully poor district, far more so than any I visited. Here, as on such occasions, the people congregate and surround me, and although they were in the open air, the foetor from them was intolerable, and would, I have no doubt, produce fever in most persons that had not been seasoned to it. Even I, myself, who can bear any amount of stench in an hospital, was soon nauseated by it, and was compelled several times to retire from amongst them—certainly not from any disgust of their persons, which only excite my commiseration, but from the unbearable foetor emanating not only from their clothes, but perceptibly from their persons; but as many of the applicants for relief were sick, some very feeble, I returned again and again amongst them, and had again and again to retire.

This was the most appalling sight I have yet beheld. There is no medical relief through any part of this division. I went into several houses in which I found whole families in fever, dysentery, diarrhoea, and in that state of marasmus or wasting, which is caused by gradual inanition, and by living on food of a very inferior description.

As I perceived that, from the increase of applicants for relief, the boilers in use cannot supply those who come for food without keeping them to a very late hour, and as many have some miles to travel home, I advised Mr. O'Leary, the Vice-Guardian who accompanied me, and afterwards Mr. Deane, the Inspector, to give dry meal to such as they cannot supply with cooked food at a reasonable hour, selecting the most infirm; and I also advised that some rice, oatmeal, sugar, and cocoa be given to such as the relieving officer knows to be sick, or to those stated to be so by a clergyman or other respectable party; and I informed Mr. Deane and Mr. O'Leary, that should these arrangements be a departure from your instructions, I had reason to expect that, under existing circumstances, you would not object to them. In fact, many of those I saw, both in their houses and outside, are unable to use Indian meal; the other articles, even in smaller proportion, are fitter for the sick.

I beg to observe, that I saw great exertions made everywhere to distribute the food.

I next visited Ballinakill, where food was being distributed. This district did not appear to be so very bad as Cleggan, but still an extremely destitute one. I visited a house, which is being fitted up for a fever hospital, and which is capable of containing from 16 to 18 patients. This house is a considerable distance off the road, from which for about a third or half of a mile, the approach is on a bye-road so rocky and stony, and so difficult to be traversed, that I do not see how any car or wheeled vehicle, with or without springs, can bring sick persons along it. From its termination the passage is over three or four fields to the house. Were the latter on the road side, or convenient to it, so far as its small accommodation is concerned, it would do well enough; but it is my opinion that, situated as it is, this place is quite unfit for the purpose. I think the sick would be more injured by bringing them to it than served by being in it; besides, its accommodation is totally inadequate to the number of sick in the district, comprising Cleggan, Ballinakill, and Renvyle.

I beg to submit the following as the means which I think are best adapted under existing circumstances to afford medical relief in this Union:—

Feeling assured that no extent of hospital accommodation which can be provided in the South Roundstone district (viz., that of which Mr. Deane proposes to make Carna the centre as a fever district), will afford medical relief to one in twenty of those who are in need of it, I would suggest that a medical man be appointed to it temporarily under the 5th section of the Extension Act, or by the Board of Health, and that he visit the sick in the district, give medicines to those that require it, and suggest such appropriate diet as they may require—to be provided by the relieving officers. This I would make the preliminary step. If thought right, a fever hospital may afterwards be superadded; but when the extent of district and its nature are considered, I do not see how fever or dysentery patients can be brought to it, the distances are so remote from Carna which is the most central, or from any other point at which such hospital might be established.

I am of opinion, that vastly more good can be done by such domiciliary attendance than by an hospital. The medical attendant here must assist the relieving officers, or they cannot do their duty to the sick. The former should direct them in respect to the food to be given them. Without him the others are often imposed on—frequently giving food which cannot be used by the sick.

Clifden Union.

The same observation applies to the Cleggan, Ballinakill, and Renvyle district. Another medical man should be located there for a few months, and should perform similar duties. If it be thought right to put patients into the present hospital some good will be done; but hundreds will die in the district who cannot be sent to it, or if sent, cannot be admitted into it for want of room. Many of these can be relieved by domiciliary attendance.

I beg to be understood as meaning that the medical officer should reside in each district, not in Clifden, which is too remote.

It is my opinion that a similar appointment is required in Roundstone, for that part of Moyrus west of the Roundstone bay, and for Ballindoon. Whether Dr. Gannon should be entrusted with this and with the fever hospital there, will be for your consideration.

I beg to suggest, that a letter be written to Dr. Suffield, the medical officer of the workhouse and local fever hospital, or that Mr. Deane be instructed to write to him, requesting his attendance on such poor persons as the relieving officer may be informed are ill, and giving the latter suggestions as to diet, &c., for such as are on out-door relief; but also taking care to assist in sending proper objects to the fever hospital or workhouse. As the medical officer of the dispensary, and holding two other appointments, he is fairly called upon in an emergency like this to give every aid in his power, and probably will do so on such letter being written to him.

The want of medical attendance in this Union will be perceived on learning, that for some days last week there was not even one medical man in the Union, all being at Galway. Perhaps I should have observed that there are only three in the Union, Dr. Suffield and Dr. ——— in Clifden, and Dr. Gannon in Roundstone.

IN consequence of my unavoidable absence in Galway, I was unable to forward you the weekly estimate under the respective heads required. By next Saturday's post I hope to be enabled to send a satisfactory document for your information in respect to the probable amount which will be necessary to keep the destitute poor from starvation. The incomplete state of the relieving officer's books is a great obstacle to my supplying correct information; but the assistance which the Vice-Guardians have given is likely, in the course of the week, to get the books in a proper state.

The amount of the rate uncollected in the Union up to this date is 1168*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; and I regret to state that this week's collection amounts to but 4*l.* 19*s.*! I examined the collectors in reference to this apparent neglect on their part, and received the following information, which now I classify according to their respective districts:—

Clifden Electoral Division.

Francis Mullen, Collector.

He states that there is due in this electoral division the sum of 93*l.* 9*s.* 10*d.*, of which sum 10*l.* 18*s.* is due by immediate lessors.

Mr. Bell Martin, Ballinahinch	5	8	0
Mr. J. Corbett, late Guardian	4	0	0

The balance, 82*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*, is due by persons holding wretched tenements in Clifden town, who, as the collector informs me, are totally unable to pay. Mr. Bell Martin has been served with the 15 days' notice. Mr. Corbett, one of the late Guardians, has been duly summoned, and a warrant has been issued; but the collector states that the only effects he could see in Corbett's house were a bed and a few miserable articles of furniture. This information has been confirmed to me by other parties. Mr. James D'Arcy has been summoned for the amount due by him.

I have directed the collector to have all the parties owing the balance, viz., 82*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*, summoned; and every exertion shall be made to make it available.

Ballindoon Electoral Division.

Clifden Union.

Francis Mullen, Collector.

The sum uncollected in this electoral division amounts to 311*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* Of this there is due by immediate lessors 247*l.* 2*s.* 5½*d.* The names of the immediate lessors in arrear are—

John Augustus O'Neill, Bunowen Castle	194	3	2
John Lambert, Esq.—Burroughs v. Lambert	14	0	0

Mr. O'Neill is a defaulter of the last as well as of the present rate. Proceedings were taken against him by the solicitor to the Board for the last rate, and a plea of confession, with stay of execution until the 15th of April next, was given accordingly. The Vice-Guardians have instructed their solicitor to send down the execution as soon after the stay expires as possible. There is a large quantity of kelp in one of Mr. O'Neill's stores, which may be made available as soon as the Guardians are in a position to sell. The store is at present under seizure by the collector for the amount of the current rent due for the land upon which it stands. The receiver in Burroughs v. Lambert, Mr. Martin Hart, has had his attention called by the collector to the general order of the Courts of Chancery and Exchequer, with respect to the payment of rates by receivers. He has not complied with the order. I have been informed that he has been removed from the receivership, and that Mr. James D'Arcy has been appointed in his place.

Mr. Brown, who resides near Galway, owes 14*l.* The solicitor has been directed to proceed by civil bill against this gentleman.

The 15 days' notice has been served on Mr. Martin for the amount due by him, viz., 8*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.* The balance, 64*l.* 16*s.* 3½*d.*, is due by rate-payers, the greater number of whom are of necessity on the relief lists.

Renvyle Electoral Division.

Joseph M'Donnell, Collector.

There is due in this electoral division :—

By immediate lessors	86	2	0
By occupiers	146	10	7
	£232	12	7

The names of the immediate lessors in arrear are as follow :—

Hon. Martin French	14	6	5
Lady French	15	13	6
Sir George Beresford, Bart.	6	12	11
John D'Arcy, Esq.	6	8	1½
Robert Graham, Esq.	13	19	5
Major-General Thomson	14	12	3½
Thomas Coneys	3	10	6
A. B. Martin, Esq.	9	14	1
	£86	2	9

I have given the most peremptory instructions to the collector to serve the 15 days' notices on such of the above lessors as are within reach; and the solicitor of the Board has been directed to institute proceedings by civil bill against the rest. The balance, 146*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.*, is due by small occupiers, who shall all be summoned. I have informed the collector that I propose to examine him on oath on next Monday, as to whether he has summoned them or not. It is right to state that there has been no petty sessions at Tully for the last six weeks, which the collector alleges has prevented him from making a better collection.

Roundstone Electoral Division.

The collector of this electoral division has not attended the Board to-day.

Clifden Union.

There remains 548*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* to be collected. On receiving information from him of the same kind as that which I have supplied from the other collectors, it shall be duly forwarded to you.

With the facts in reference to the financial condition of the Union, which I have above detailed, and bearing in mind the almost bankrupt condition of the principal landed proprietors, I cannot hold out much hope that the Vice-Guardians will be enabled to collect any portion of a new rate until harvest. It will be most desirable, however, that all the preliminary steps shall be taken, and the appointment of a revisor of the rate-books made without delay. The most active measures for recovering the arrears of the present rate shall be ordered, and put into force, and every legal means to compel payment shall be used.

It is a lamentable fact that while destitution prevails to a very great extent, that imposition, fraud, and trickery should also exist. The artful means resorted to by the applicants for and those receiving relief are almost beyond our reach. The widow, with two or more children, in some instances has got her rations in one electoral division, and then attempted to obtain them in another. In other instances the maiden name is used for one depot, and the husband's name for another. In fact every conceivable trick is practised to obtain an increase of food. I have every hope that the system of using a different shaped or coloured ticket for the electoral divisions will prove effectual in checking fraud. By constant visits to the relief depôts I also trust to be enabled to detect fraud.

I beg to call your attention to the very large outlay which the Vice-Guardians are obliged to incur in the payment of overseers or stewards, who are engaged in the superintendence of the able-bodied employed in breaking stones, the return for which expenditure is not at all satisfactory. I hope, however, that the employment in tillage, which is now beginning in a small degree, will enable the Guardians to reduce the lists considerably, and thus dispense with the necessity of some of these stewards.

WITH reference to the statements relating to the collection of the rate, I am to state that it should be ascertained that proceedings either at quarter sessions or in the superior courts, have been taken against the immediate lessors in the Renvyle electoral division who cannot be reached by the 15 days' notice.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS.—March 27, 1848.

WE beg to submit the weekly return of the rate collectors' receipts, which, we lament to say, is very unsatisfactory:—

Francis Mullins, Ballindoon	1	5	0
Clifden		Nil.
Joseph M'Donnell, Renvyle	3	14	0

The Inspector, Mr. Deane, having fully reported on this important subject, it is not necessary to recapitulate; we need only say that every possible effort shall be made to enforce a collection of the outstanding rate and arrears. We shall lose no time in taking the preliminary steps for making a new rate, and we shall provide for a revisal of the rate books and valuation by securing the services of a qualified revisor.

Our most sedulous efforts are devoted to bringing the distribution of cooked food into general operation; we anticipate the most satisfactory results as soon as a perfect organization shall be obtained. We feel assured that the imposition which now prevails to a vast amount will be put an end to, and at the same time the really destitute will be more easily provided with suitable relief.

We have resolved to erect additional boilers in districts requiring them, so that the aged, the infirm, and the widows may receive their supplies with the least inconvenience.

We also propose to supply the several depôts with rice, sugar, cocoa, &c., at wholesale prices, to be distributed to the order of the relieving officers and to be duly accounted for; by this means we expect to provide more effective relief for the sick and to effect a considerable saving, as the prices now charged are exorbitant.

We shall have the land in front of the workhouse as defined by your Board surveyed, and shall apprise you of the quantity.

Mr. D. O'LEARY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

THE permission of your Board to distribute rations of a pound's produce to all over nine years will be a signal benefit.

As I presume Dr. Phelan has placed before your Board the ample information he personally obtained as to the state of the immense district of South Roundstone, I feel it unnecessary for me to allude to that unfortunate locality, and shall merely add that, from the reports since received from the relieving officers, a supply of rice there is every day becoming more essential.

The sooner measures are taken to provide medical aid there the better; every day the comparatively strong are placed from the labour lists on the infirm; and in this progressing advance of the whole population to disease, the food, which is sound and suitable for those who can use it, is useless. If we can supply the depôts with rice, sugar, cocoa, &c., in reasonable quantities, and this may be done if we had means, at low prices, I am confident an immense amount of human misery would be alleviated.

On yesterday I visited three of our depôts. The boilers were in full operation; the food excellent, and the mode of distribution satisfactory. The widows, infirm, &c., receive their portions early in the day, the able-bodied in the afternoon.

We shall want several boilers to meet the demand in some districts; they are obliged to cook food at night, and on Sundays; and even by so doing they are still obliged to make up the deficiency by giving dry meal.

We have applied to the Vice-Guardians of the Galway Union for the use of some boilers which they have to spare. From my own observation it occurs to me that the mode of making several boilings in the day is objectionable. The food is sometimes not sufficiently cooked; and as it is not possible to get boilers here as they may be required, I have been considering whether it may not be practicable to apply steam. I beg to enclose a sketch of an apparatus that appears to me simple and effective. The saving of fuel, and the facility with which any requisite quantity of food may be prepared at one boiling, would in my opinion be equivalent to the outlay, which cannot be much. There may be objections to its operation which I do not see; but I deem it my duty to place it under the notice of your Board.

I went this day to Claggan, and witnessed an appalling mass of human misery. It is beyond doubt the very worst district in the Union. In every house sickness of some kind exists; and in one, a body of a young man who died of fever two days ago, remained; the door was closed, and even his own relations refused to aid in the interment. I took means to have the needful done. Amongst the hundreds assembled there for their daily food, I could not observe one countenance that did not indicate disease, whilst some poor creatures presented spectacles which no man could behold without shuddering. They have passed the stage when such food as Indian meal stirabout can avail; and to save them, if saved they can be, lighter food is indispensable. If we had rice in sufficient quantities I should hope it would check the terrible ravages of dysentery.

As I anticipated, the orders of the relieving officers for small quantities of rice, cocoa, &c., on a trader in this town, have been refused. There is an account due to him; and although he got part in payment last Monday, he has declined to advance more.

I would again most respectfully urge on your Board the vital necessity of this Union being supplied with means to carry out the object of saving the peoples' lives. We have obtained from our contractors full supplies; they relied on our good faith; they have honoured every order; and they now look to us for payments.

There cannot be less than 1,000*l.* due; and to depend on the rates outstanding to meet this sum would be hopeless. The Local Inspector, Mr. Deane, has, I believe, already addressed your Board on this matter. He is now inspecting the northern parts of the Union, otherwise he would, I am sure, concur with me in entreating your Board to guard us, by every possible means, from the consequences which the sudden suspension of supplies on part of our contractors would certainly entail. I beg to impress my opinion most respectfully on your Board, that if the contractors of the Union do not receive instalments on next Monday, our orders for meal will not be met; and as a consequence the several districts will be left without food. I have been just apprised that two cargoes of corn, rice, &c., have arrived, consigned to the Commissariat here. May I ask if these are to be available for the Union; and if so, what steps we should take in case supplies from that department were indispensable? I feel that I have more than once been probably too importunate on this topic; but knowing that the grand object of your Board is to save the people, and feeling that my duty is to carry your views into effect as far as I can, I have felt it incumbent on me to put your Board in possession of the peculiar state of this afflicted Union.

It will justify my anxiety when I repeat to your Board that if the contingency I apprehend should occur, and I do fear it is not improbable, should our contractors dishonour our orders before we could communicate with your Board, multitudes may perish.

I AM to state for your information that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 300*l.* in money and 200*l.* in provisions, to assist you in providing for the wants of the destitute poor of the Union. The Commissioners have not, however, received the usual estimate from Mr. Deane. The Commissariat supplies to which you refer will, no doubt, be accessible to you.

The Commissioners are in communication with the Board of Health and Mr. Deane on the subject of Mr. Phelan's report. The supply of rice required for Roundstone division or other parts of the Union may be obtained from the Commissariat stores. If the supply of any description of grain is deficient, you should at once communicate on the subject with the Commissariat department.

The Commissioners will not make any objection to the mode of cooking food for distribution to the recipients of out-door relief which you propose, if you find it upon the whole advantageous to resort to it.

The Commissioners confidently trust that every means in your power will be adopted for the effectual relief of the destitute poor in the Clifden Union.

Mr. DEANE to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 4, 1848.

PURSUING the information which I had the honour to convey to you in my last report, in reference to the progress of the collection of rate in the several electoral divisions of this Union, I have to submit the state of Roundstone district. There remains uncollected for that division 539*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, of which 238*l.* 6*s.* 10*d.* is due by the following immediate lessors:—

A. G. Bell Martin, Esq.	70	0	0	Robert Barry	5	14	7
John Aug. O'Neill, Esq.	9	16	4	Thomas Barry	10	3	7
Hyacinth D'Arcy, Esq., (in Chancery)	23	8	11	Antony Barry	6	0	4
John D'Arcy, Esq. . . .	1	13	4	Bidelia M'Donagh . . .	24	8	4
Pat Blake, Esq.	38	0	10	Matthew Duane	9	14	0
Edward Lynch	6	16	9	John King Stephen . . .	3	16	10
David Lucas, Esq. . . .	10	19	0	James Ogle	8	15	10
Michael Brown, Esq. . .	3	5	2

Leaving a balance of 300*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.* to be collected from the very poorest classes of occupiers, the greater part of which have availed themselves, from actual necessity, of the relief at present administering in the Union. You will perceive that the list of immediate lessors contains the names of many persons of station, against these proceedings have been taken for the recovery of the rate. The solicitor to the Board attended yesterday with the view of receiving instructions; and I have no doubt when the Vice-Guardians shall have obtained your permission to proceed in the superior Courts against some individuals (the names of whom are forwarded by the clerk), they will be enabled to make the outstanding uncollected balance of the rate available. It will be necessary in some cases to have application made to the courts of law to substitute service, as in the instance of Mr. O'Neill, who is a defaulter for the last rate, and owes the whole of the current rate. I have already informed you of the course which the Guardians intend to pursue in reference to issuing the execution against the property of that gentleman in the electoral division of Ballindoon. There are four persons in the list of defaulting immediate lessors of the Roundstone district, named Barry, who owe collectively 28*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.* The collector has informed me that they have surrendered their land to Mr. Martin, the leases having expired; that there are no occupying tenants there, and that the Barrys are living in miserable hovels by the side of the road. This state of things imposes much difficulty on the collector of the rate; and if it is to be found existing among a class ostensibly (at least in the rate-book) able to pay the rate, it will be readily seen how much trouble there is likely to be experienced in collecting from the small occupiers.

The collection of the rate for the past week amounted to 26*l.* 6*s.*, a sum in itself inadequate to support the paupers in the house. The Guardians are in debt very nearly 2000*l.* to the contractors who have supplied the various depôts with meal. They waited on the Vice-Guardians yesterday and informed them that it would be utterly impossible to continue the supplies unless they were paid a fair proportion of their claims; and subsequently a written communication to that effect was sent by the same parties to the Board. You will at once perceive the position in which the Union is placed, and how necessary it will be to provide the Guardians with assistance to enable them to meet the destitution which prevails. I have to acknowledge the receipt from the agent of the British Association of an order on the Commissariat for 200*l.* worth of provisions, which is in course of distribution.

I beg leave to enclose an estimate of the amount which will be required for the support of the destitute in the Union for the next week. Owing to the state of confusion of the relieving officers' books, I have been unable to obtain anything like correct information until to day. In fact, it will be absolutely necessary to prepare new books and lists, which, according to Mr. R. Bourke's suggestion (who attended the Board yesterday) should commence with entries from the 25th of March, and that the Guardians should employ competent persons to examine and check the past accounts. It is no easy matter to obtain officers in this Union fully competent to discharge the duties which are required in keeping and rendering accounts; and I shall feel it to be very necessary to recommend the Guardians to send to Dublin for individuals capable of performing the duties of relieving officer, should any mistakes arise in future among the present staff.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 4th instant, relating to the Clifden Union; and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a farther advance of 500*l.*, (in money 300*l.*, in provisions 200*l.*.) to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—April 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received from their inspector, Mr. Bourke, a report by which it appears that as yet you have been unable to carry the out-door relief arrangements in Clifden Union, into a good working state, in consequence of which the food now distributed is for the most part dispensed on the sole authority of the relieving officers.

The Commissioners request you therefore, in conjunction with Mr. Deane, the Temporary Poor Law Inspector in the Union, to adopt such steps as will enable you effectually to control the administration of out-door relief, by assuring yourselves, as far as practicable, that it is given only to persons who are actually destitute, and that all of this class receive relief either in or out of the workhouse.

The Commissioners desire to state, that with a view of enabling you to visit the relief stations, for the purpose of inspecting the classes relieved, as well as of acting as a Board in other localities than Clifden, they are prepared to allow you to charge on the Union the expenses you may incur for the conveyances which you shall require to use in travelling to and from such places; and they request that when you shall have had sufficient experience of those expenses to make an accurate average of their weekly amount, you will be so good as to report it, taking care to confine it to the outlay for the hire of conveyances.

The Commissioners have under consideration Mr. Bourke's statement of the funds which you will require for payment of debts incurred and for current expenditure in addition to the rate in progress of collection; and they will communicate to you shortly the extent to which such assistance can be given; meanwhile they rely on your not permitting any relaxation of the exertions necessary for collecting the outstanding portion of the rate, as well as for completing the revision of the books preparatory to striking a new rate, such rate being indispensable even though not at once put in collection.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Vice-Guardians to-day. Mr. Jackson, Vice-Guardian, has arrived and took his seat at the Board. The collection of the rate for the current week amounted to 36*l.* 5*s.* Payments were made to the contractors for supplying the several relief depôts in the Union with bread.

During the past week I have been actively engaged in visiting the working parties in the northern and a portion of the southern districts of the Union. In various instances I discovered that the stewards had neglected their instructions, and that the able-bodied labourers were not performing the amount of task which should be reasonably expected from them; I have brought the names of the stewards, whose neglect I witnessed, before the Vice-Guardians. I held an investigation on oath at Letterpark depôt, on charges preferred by J. F. Graham, Esq., against the overseer, Terence Corbett. It was distinctly proved that Corbett was drunk and incapable of performing his duty on a particular day, and it was also proved that the same individual had procured meal to be taken from the depôt every evening for his own use. I have received information since which will require me to hear additional evidence as to the fraud and imposition which has been carried on in that place. Corbett has been suspended by the Guardians, and I beg leave to suggest, by way of example, that he should be dismissed under your seal. I am still unable to report any progress having been made in the relieving officer's lists.

I am glad to be enabled to state that there is a very large breadth of potatoes planted in the Union; indeed, in some districts, as I am credibly informed, to as great an extent as any former year. I have called the attention of the Vice-Guardians to this fact, with the view of instituting a careful revision of the lists, having a special regard to the provisions of the 10th clause of the Act (the quarter-acre clause); it is quite clear that there are individuals at present receiving relief who having more than a quarter of an acre of land in their possession, and having offered to give up the land to the landlord not having been refused, have since been enabled to obtain some potato seed and have planted their holdings. They are, therefore, now in that occupation contemplated by the statute, and it appears to me that it is illegal for the Guardians to continue to relieve them. I am fully aware that many of them, notwithstanding this occupation, are in great destitution, but I cannot see in what way the statute is to be got over. I am desirous of calling your attention to the lamentable neglect of the fisheries on the coast. I had in the early part of the season been somewhat cheered at the prospect of industry amongst the fishermen in the northern part of the Union, but since out-door relief has been in course of administration it has had an injurious effect. I would take leave to suggest that it might be advisable to place at my disposal, from the funds of the British Association, some assistance which I might offer to the fishermen with the view of stimulating their industry; a sufficient supply of biscuit might be given to each boat's crew, on the condition of their going out to fish. With this done, the Vice-Guardians would be enabled, with my assistance, to strike off the lists the names of those fishermen at present breaking stones by the road side, and who, regardless of their own interests, allow their boats to rot on the shore. It is melancholy to witness this apathy and indolence, and it is equally humbling to be thus obliged to devise plans to induce these people to avail themselves of the bountiful provision of food with which the bays and creeks of this coast abound. I have written to the Count Strzelecki on this subject, and shall feel obliged by your assistance in carrying out my views, which, I trust, may meet with your approval. I feel that anything is better than out-door relief for the fishermen, and if assistance is to be given I think it will be more effectual through the medium I have suggested; at all events, if I can induce the fishermen to fish it will increase the food in the country, which for the next two or three trying months would be most desirable. I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of 200*l.* in provisions and 300*l.* in money, which I have placed at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians. I would hope that, to enable the Board to reduce the amount of the debts to the contractors, you will be good enough to recommend that any future advances to the Union shall be made in money.

WITH reference to the fraud committed by Terence Corbett, overseer of works, I am to state that the Commissioners will issue an order for his dismissal from office, and they recommend that the Vice-Guardians should proceed against him criminally for the abstraction of the meal, on whatever charge the evidence will justify. Copies of the depositions taken by you in the case should be forwarded to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners trust that by a careful revision of the relief lists, and frequent inspection of the relief depôts and working parties, cases of simulated distress may be detected.

With reference to your suggestions for the employment of the fishermen who are now on the relief lists, I am to state that all that the Commissioners can do in the matter is to send an extract from your report to the British Association, which they have done.

With regard to your observations as to the reduction of the debts of the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners cannot advance money for the specific purpose of paying the debts of the Union, but they will make application to the British Association for weekly assistance, to enable the Vice-Guardians to provide for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union; with each week's estimate it should be stated the sum required in money and the amount in provisions.

KENMARE UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 4, 1848.

HAVING arrived here on Friday the 28th ultimo, under the scaled orders of the Commissioners for the Laws of Relief to the Poor in Ireland, to take charge of the Kenmare Union as Vice-Guardians, and having up to the present period made inquiries into the state and management thereof, we beg to submit the following report:—

On our arrival, our first inquiry was as to the state of the funds of the Union, which we lament to say appeared to us in a very inauspicious point of view. It appeared that the last rate (a universal one of 3s. 6d. in the pound) had been struck on the 25th of September last on the net annual value of the Union, 24,492l. 15s., producing the sum of 4603l. 14s. 0½d., which amount includes the sum of 317l. 9s. 4½d. of the former rate; and up to the period of the 22nd of January ultimo, it appeared that the sum of 2385l. 0s. 10d. had been collected, leaving the amount to be collected 2218l. 13s. 2½d., with only the sum of 32l. 5s. 8d. in the treasurer's hands to the credit of the Union, the liabilities due, amounting to 1559l. 4s. It appears from the foregoing, that were the total outstanding rate collected, it would merely meet the liabilities, and leave scarcely any amount in hand to meet the unparalleled appearance of destitution that has come under our notice. It cannot be expected that we can explain the decisive causes which have led to such a state of affairs: there is, however, one fact which we deem it necessary to state, that, on the dissolution of the late Board, we found that 14 of the Guardians had not paid their poor-rate. Such are the lamentable prospects we are bequeathed, to meet the pressing necessity of unparalleled destitution.

On inspecting the workhouse buildings we found them in a most deplorable neglected state: the main beams of the roof which rest on the wall-plates actually crumbling away from the continued damp pouring in on the south-west side; the ventilators useless; all the walls in the dormitories in a filthy state, from the want of common care. The matron stated, that on her side of the house she had not a brush, and was compelled, from the want thereof, to sweep out her own room with rags. In many instances we perceived the walls blackened from the filthy habit of sticking candles against them. The mortar floors throughout the house are certainly very much neglected, particularly in the infirm wards and day-rooms, where the holes in the floors vary from six to seven inches deep and two feet in length.

The workhouse it appears, has been built for the accommodation of 500 paupers. We found, on inspection, the number therein to amount to by day 845, being many more than the day-rooms could accommodate, out of which number 300 are sleeping out in eight houses, which we found were provided in the town by the Inspector, Captain Ommanney, five of which are agreed on at the rate of 10s. a-month, one at the rate of 5l. a-year, one at the rate of 16l. a-year, and one to be paid for at the same rate as the five first, in proportion to the accommodation it contains, making nearly a total rent of 60l. a-year, which extra accommodation being so circumstanced, we deem it very inconvenient and unsatisfactory; and as it appears such houses are only to be paid for while occupied, we are preparing to give them up, and provide one place of sleeping at the rate of 40l. a-year, which will accommodate nearly 300.

We found in the hospital and workhouse infirmary, 65 cases of fever, in the probationary wards, 20 cases of dysentery, and 21 cases in the men and women's wards, making a total of fever and dysentery 126 cases. The number of deaths from the 25th of March last to the present time amounting to 328, of which 92 were adults, and the remainder, 236, children under 15 years of age. It appears they were buried without coffins (excepting about 36), carried to the graves in what is termed a slip-coffin, so contrived that the bottom was made to slide out, and then the body covered with the clay; no contract for coffins existing. We are of opinion that the great appearance of sickness, to be produced from an inadequate dietary and very wretched clothing; in fact, there is not what could be termed clothing in the workhouse, it being so very tattered that we could scarcely discern it from the filthy rags which remain on the principal portion of the paupers who have been admitted into the body of the house; in fact, there are no contracts existing, scarcely a day's provision in the house, no fuel but as it is purchased on its arrival in the market; there is a difficulty of even then obtaining a day's supply, in consequence of which the children are suffering severely from the cold; they painfully exhibit their feet swoln, in a neglected state, and emaciated in their appearance. It appeared the infant children received no food until nearly one o'clock, P.M.; the cause was attributed to the want of milk in proper time, receiving it only as it should be irregularly brought to the workhouse, sometimes scarcely a sufficiency for hospital purposes, and the breakfast for the other inmates consequently postponed further in the day. Nothing appearing in existence with the orders of the Commissioners, which are carried out in a well-managed workhouse. We found it loathsome to pass through doors from the children's school-room into the yards, in consequence of an effluvia arising therefrom, as it appears to us caused by the children being allowed to commit nuisances there.

The Visiting Book appears to have been a dead letter till the arrival of Captain Ommanney.

There appears to have been no contracts for vaccination throughout the Union, and it is represented to us that small-pock is very prevalent.

We find out-door relief of the three classes to be in operation throughout the entire Union, and regret to say we are not in a position at present to report thereon; it being a matter of the greatest importance, we purpose giving it due consideration, in order to carry it into effect compatibly with the orders of the Commissioners, and will, at an early period, make it the subject of a special report.

We regret to state that Doctor Taylor is in typhus fever; he is the medical officer of this Union; he is represented to us as being a very competent person, and has his hospital in very good order. His nephew is acting in his stead; he reports that the fever hospital at present is not sufficient for the cases of typhus fever.

The clerk has the character of being strictly honest, but holds another office as pay-clerk under the Board of Works, which occupies four days of his time every third week in the execution of that office; for instance, he intends leaving here on next Monday, and will not return until next Thursday night. He has under him an assistant, to whom he pays 20*l.* a-year; the assistant also is relieving officer for the Kenmare district of this Union: it appears to us not advisable he should hold both those offices.

We are of opinion that the present master is not capable of exercising the functions of his office; he has been originally the porter. His books are in a dreadful state with erasures, principally the Provision Check Account Book. He has never kept the Hospital Daily Distribution of Dietary, or Maintenance Book; tickets of admission or discharge were unknown to him; and we find, on investigation, he has not weighed the bread on coming into his store; nor are there in the provision store scales for doing so; the pair provided by the Guardians is gone to ruin. He also acknowledges, on inquiry, he has not weighed the meal, excepting, perhaps, one or two bags of an entire load; in fact, he appears at variance with the other officers of the workhouse, caused by the porter bringing charges against him in September last for peculation; and the matron was then examined by the Board, since which period the master has restrained her in interfering with either the provisions or necessaries, or, as she states, the key of any store.

As to the other officers, we have not had time to form any opinion as to their capabilities.

Owing to the exertions of Captain Ommanney, we find that on last week a sum of 300*l.* has been granted from the funds of the British Association, and lodged to the credit of the Union, which we hope will, for the present, assist us in relieving the most destitute.

We now propose to detail, as briefly as possible, the steps we are about to pursue with reference to the remedying the evils complained of, and at the same time to intimate that summary steps have been taken for the collection of the outstanding rate. Mr. Drummond, R. M., with the police force, are assisting in the collection thereof.

We have given directions to our clerk to prepare immediately a new set of rate books, in order that, if it should appear to the Commissioners practicable to carry into effect the collecting a new rate, to have the books ready.

We propose immediately to carry out the intentions of the Government with regard to vaccination.

We intend, with the consent of the Commissioners, employing a master tailor and shoemaker to instruct the orphan children in those useful trades, and thereby keep the clothes of the establishment in proper repair.

We submit, for the approval of the Commissioners, a general dietary, which has been approved of in some of the best-regulated workhouses in Ireland, viz. :—

HALL DIETARY.

Breakfast.	Dinner.	Supper.
7 oz. of oatmeal or Indian meal. $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of new milk or 1 pint of cocoa.	1 lb. of whole-meal bread, and 1 pint of rice gruel.		Adults.
4 oz. of oatmeal or Indian meal, and $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of new milk or 1 pint of cocoa.	12 oz. of white bread, and 1 pint of rice gruel.		Over Nine.
3oz. of rice, and $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of new milk.	8 oz. of bread, white, and 1 pint of rice gruel.	4 oz. of white bread.	Under Nine.

HOSPITAL DIETARY.

Breakfast.	Dinner.	Supper.
4 oz. of rice. 1 pint of new milk.	12 oz. of white bread. $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of sweet milk or broth.	1 pint of rice gruel or 1 quart of tea.	Adults.
3 oz. of rice, and $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of new milk.	4 oz. of white bread. $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of sweet milk or 1 pint of broth.	4 oz. of white bread. $\frac{1}{2}$ a pint of rice gruel, or 1 pint of tea.	Children.

We propose having a kiln erected on the workhouse land, so as to procure lime at first cost, and keep up a continual cleansing of the house by white-washing.

We particularly refer the Commissioners to the comments we have made, with respect to the state of the building, requiring the immediate attention of their architect.

We hope the Commissioners will change the present master, as we deem him not suited for that office.

The ground about the workhouse, which we find has been totally neglected until the arrival of Captain Ommanney here, is in process of drainage for cultivation.

We cannot close this our report without expressing our thanks to Captain Ommanney for the valuable assistance he has rendered us by his advice and assisting us in our inquiries.

Hoping that our suggestions may meet with your approval.

P.S.—Since concluding the foregoing report, we regret to state the death of Doctor Taylor, the medical officer of the workhouse, has been notified to us.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

Kenmare Union.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report of the 4th instant, relative to the state of affairs of the Kenmare Union, in which you advert to the rate of 3s. 6d. in the pound, made on the 25th September last, on the net annual value of the Union; and in reference thereto the Commissioners desire to draw your attention to the amount of the valuation (24,689l. 5s.), as compared with the number of acres on which rate is charged (115,015), and which, with the house property in the Union, would appear to possess an annual value much greater than the amount on which rates are now levied; so that in this view of the case, the rate of 3s. 6d. levied in September, 1847, when regarded with reference to the actual value of property in the Union, should probably be considered as one of moderate amount.

The Commissioners request a consideration of this question now, as the state of the Union finances appears to require that preparations should be made for the early declaration of a further rate; and the Commissioners fully approve of the steps proposed to be taken for this object.

The Commissioners desire to express their approval of the arrangements for providing additional workhouse accommodation, in lieu of the several buildings now occupied.

They concur in the opinion that the clerk of the Union should not also hold the office of pay-clerk under the Board of Works, which requires that he should be absent on four successive days in every third week; and the Commissioners recommend that he be required to resign one of the employments.

The Commissioners observe that the workhouse master has been attacked with typhus fever; and they cannot therefore take any step at present.

The Commissioners approve of the employment of a master tailor, to instruct the children and assist in preparing the clothing for the workhouse inmates; and should you, on further consideration, continue to be of opinion that it would be advisable to employ a shoemaker, for the purpose of giving instructions in his trade as now proposed, the Commissioners will not object.

The Commissioners request that you will be so good as to make trial of the dietaries proposed; and the Commissioners have directed me to state that they approve of the arrangements contemplated for providing lime on the workhouse site, and for cultivation of the ground.

They will draw the attention of the architect to the state of the workhouse buildings, as now reported; and they rely on the experience and zeal of the Vice-Guardians for the adoption of such measures as are best calculated to secure a due administration of the Poor Relief Acts in the Kenmare Union.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 6, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit my report for the past week.

My time has been principally occupied in giving the Vice-Guardians every information in my power relative to the state of the Union, and assisting them in their investigation into the management and internal economy of the present state of the workhouse.

The system hitherto has not been of that character which could ensure a proper state of discipline and order necessary to be observed in such an establishment; much of the bad management is to be attributed to the want of an efficient master. There has not been for a considerable period, adequate funds disposable for furnishing the house with the materials required for maintaining the establishment upon a proper footing—no regular contracts could be entered into; the want of clothing has been another cause of disorder; also the additional increase to the establishment caused by the extra accommodation, has been detrimental to the preservation of order; but this expedient has been indispensable for working out the Poor Law, and to provide for the enormous amount of destitution.

To place the workhouse establishment on a proper footing cannot now be effected without considerable outlay; and to put the buildings into a proper state of repair must involve a great expense.

Mr. Drummond, R.M., proceeded with a police force on Tuesday last to the division of Bourdoneen, to give protection to the collector getting in the poor rate. He proceeded in the first instance to the residence of James Butler, Esq. of Waterville, J.P., and D.L., who, although the collector had asked for payment on the previous evening, it was not obtained from this gentleman until his cattle were distrained. How could others in more humble circumstances be expected to pay, whilst a person in his station continued a defaulter? Previous to this alternative I had addressed him twice on the subject of payment, to which no answer has been received. The presence of the police has had the effect of bringing in a considerable amount of the rate, and I am waiting the report of the collector to know the result.

Some resistance was offered in the Tuosist division—the collector obtained some payments there; from the extreme poverty of many of the rate-payers in this division, it will be impossible to collect the whole. The unfavourable state of the weather this week has been unpropitious for the operations of the police. It is desirable that the magistrates should not leave the Union until coercive measures have been completed against all opponents to the poor-rate.

I am happy to state that works under the Landed Property Improvement Act are being commenced on Lord Lansdowne's estate, upon which I am informed the sum of 8000*l.* will be expended in drainage works, which I trust will render unnecessary the extension of relief to the able-bodied in that district, comprising the divisions of Tuosist and Bunawn.

I regret to report the demise of Dr. Taylor, medical officer of the Union, after a short illness. His loss is much to be lamented, for he was assiduous in the discharge of his duty, and a person of considerable talent, as also an experienced physician.

I have received the sum of 200*l.* value in provisions from the British Relief Association, which has been placed at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians, and appropriated to the service of the out-door relief.

The greatest misery prevails in Ballybog. At Sneem I was informed of an instance where the carcase of a dead horse was cut up for food; and many holders of land are striving to subsist on seaweed, before they surrender their holding.

It will be necessary for the Commissioners to grant a renewal of their sealed order of 15th December, 1847, directing an extension of out-door relief to certain destitute classes.

I trust that the stipendiary magistrate will not leave the Union until an effectual check has been given to all resistance against the authority of the rate collector; his services will be required the whole of this week.

The Vice-Guardians will now devote their attention to the collection of the rate, and investigate into the administration of out-door relief.

In consequence of the extent of the division of Tuosist, it being upwards of 20 miles in length, it is requisite to divide it into two relief districts—another relieving officer will be appointed.

Agreeably with a requisition from M. O'Connell, Esq., I have caused the meeting of the Vice-Guardians to be postponed until the 15th instant.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have perceived on the minutes of proceedings of the Vice-Guardians of the Kenmare Union, on the 5th instant, that the workhouse master has been attacked with typhus fever, and the Guardians cannot therefore take any step at present, for his removal from the office of master of the workhouse.

With reference to the proceedings adopted for enforcing the payment of the poor-rate in the Bourdoneen electoral division, I am to state that the Commissioners trust the collection of the rate in the whole of the Union will be prosecuted with vigour.

I am at the same time to state as regards the proposed renewal of the Commissioners' order of 15th December last, authorizing an extension of out-door relief to certain classes, that all the classes named in that order are comprised within the terms of the Commissioners' order of the 21st ult., and it is not necessary therefore that the order of the 15th December should be renewed.

Kenmare Union.

The Commissioners have directed me to express their approval of the separation of Tuosist electoral division into two relief districts.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

I HAVE to acquaint the Commissioners that subsequent to the departure of the stipendiary magistrate from Bourdoneen, on the 3rd instant, when he left the collector in the collection of the rate under the impression his services were no longer required, the collector has again made application for his assistance and the protection of a police force. He states that he has met great resistance, and was unable to obtain the rates after Mr. Drummond, resident magistrate, left the division of Bourdoneen on the 3rd instant.

The collector reports that he has obtained about 300% of the rates. From what he states, and from the report of the officer of police, it appears that the rates would not have been paid, but for the demonstration of a police force.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of Government has been drawn to your communication.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 13, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour of submitting my report for the past week. The internal state of the workhouse continues unchanged at present, as the Vice-Guardians are unable to enter upon their arrangements for putting the establishment into a correct system of management, before the decision of the Commissioners is communicated with respect to the continuation of the master in his situation, and proper contracts made for supplying the house with clothing, provisions, and necessaries.

The number of inmates is now 728; during the week 82 have quitted the house at their own request; it appears almost unaccountable to see those creatures leaving shelter in a few days, after having been admitted in the most abject state of misery, and probably having undertaken a journey of 20 miles in the severest weather, to obtain relief; their great aim is to be entered on the out-door relief list, and they seem to think they can make a choice of either in or out-door relief. There was by far a much smaller number of applicants for admission this week than on any former occasion since my arrival. The number of vacancies now disposable enables the workhouse test being again applied.

The medical officer has reported that the master is now quite recovered from fever, therefore I trust the Commissioners will enable the Guardians to select a more competent person for the situation, as I am of opinion that he is incapable of managing the establishment.

The number of sick in the house now amounts to 146, of these there are 80 fever cases and 66 of dysentery, the latter is very prevalent; it is stated that the nature of the diet is conducive to the complaint; I have therefore to move the Commissioners to allow the Vice-Guardians to adopt a more salutary dietary for the inmates.

The medical officer reports the want of sufficient accommodation for the sick; the fever hospital and infirmary are both full, in consequence of which he is compelled to reject the admission of 12 fever patients.

Owing to the extension of the workhouse system, it is necessary to provide some additional building for the reception of infectious cases; I am not aware that there is any building in or about the town available for the purpose of an hospital; after giving the subject due consideration with the Vice-Guardians yesterday, we considered that the rear of the idiot yards, inside the boundary wall, would be the most advantageous site for the construction of hospital sheds, as they would be ready of access from the infirmary, and removed clear from the main body of the building; these yards are about 40 feet square; should this plan meet the approbation of the Commissioners, I have to request they will instruct their architect to furnish specifications for erecting these sheds without delay; it would be advisable to roof them with slates, and construct them substantially; the rear of the infirmary yards can also be appropriated to a similar purpose, if requisite.

Upon visiting the house on Monday last at noon, the inmates were only then at breakfast. The master was sick, and a relieving officer engaged in the discharge of the clerk's duties, who was absent from the Union. The officers should be directed each to attend to his respective duty, and particularly the relieving officer, whose whole time is necessary, should be devoted in looking after his district.

The advances for provisions received from the British Relief Association for the relief of the destitute, to the value of 400*l.*, have been allocated to each electoral division in proportion to the net annual value; it is issued to the relieving officers in Indian meal for the out-door relief, the price of which has just been reduced from 11*l.* to 9*l.* per ton at the Commissariat store.

The number of destitute children now in attendance at the schools throughout the Union will amount to 4000, each receiving one pound of rye bread daily. This relief, if properly applied to the class for which it is intended, provides food for all the destitute children of the stipulated age in the Union; this relief is of the greatest service and benefit to the country, many hundreds of them would be without means of subsistence. I am obliged to exercise the greatest vigilance to see that the bounty is properly appropriated.

Mr. Drummond, R.M., has been engaged in giving protection to the collectors with a police force; in the early part of the week he was over Kilgarvan, where the rates were enforced from parties in remote localities, who have hitherto held the efforts of the collectors at defiance. On Thursday he returned to Bourdoneen to follow up the collection there, as the collector had met with great resistance; up to this day I have heard that they have had great trouble to collect it, and made many seizures of cattle. The rate is now collected between Waterville and West Cove. To-morrow they continue to enforce the rate in the eastern portion of the division; violence has been used against the collector, and on one occasion he received a severe contusion on the head from a stone thrown at him. The stipendiary magistrate has been delayed in Bourdoneen in consequence of the opposition on the part of the ratepayers, as without a force the rate could not be obtained.

The sum of 176*l.* has been lodged with the treasurer this week, and a sum of about 300*l.* more remains in the collector's hands. In consequence of the unavoidable absence of the collector for Bourdoneen, the fortnightly examination of the collector's accounts could not be completed.

The lists of immediate lessors still defaulters were examined at the Board yesterday, and the names forwarded to the Commissioners, against whom it is necessary to take proceedings in a superior court.

I intend proceeding to-morrow with the Vice-Guardians to Bourdoneen, to hold a meeting there. The relieving officer of that division I consider is disqualified for his office, on account of his inactivity and the occupation of a large farm.

The collectors have repeatedly been urged to follow up the collection with vigour; in the course of a few weeks I anticipate that all the recoverable portion of the rate will be brought in.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 15, 1848.

I AM to state, that the Vice-Guardians should proceed without any delay to appoint a competent person to discharge the duties of the office of master of the workhouse, and they should call upon the present master at once to resign his office. If his resignation is not immediately sent in, the Commissioners are prepared to issue an order under seal for his dismissal.

With regard to the change which is deemed requisite in the workhouse dietary, I am to draw your attention to the 18th article of the workhouse rules, and to observe, that in the management of the workhouse it is quite competent for the Vice-Guardians temporarily to alter the dietary in accordance with the medical officers' suggestions. Kenmare Union.

The Commissioners will not object to the construction of temporary sheds for the accommodation of fever patients in the position referred to in your report, and they will communicate accordingly with their architect; but they would much prefer that a building should be hired or rented by the Vice-Guardians, in pursuance of the 16th section of the Irish Poor Relief Amendment Act, to be used for the reception of fever patients.

The Commissioners fully concur with you in the propriety of requiring each officer of the Union to perform his duties in person. The 26th article of the general regulations, and the proviso to the 42nd article, are specially framed with this view. It will be the duty of the Vice-Guardians to see that the regulations in this respect are duly complied with.

The Commissioners apprehend from your statement, that in appropriating the 400*l.* advanced by the British Relief Association, according to the annual value of rateable property in the several electoral divisions, the highest amount was allocated to the division of greatest valuation, and so on proportionably. But the Commissioners desire to state that you should have put the money at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians, and the ultimate allocation of it would have been a subject for the consideration of the Commissioners.

The Vice-Guardians should require the relieving officer for the Bourdoneen division to resign immediately, on the grounds stated in your report.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report upon the result of my inspection, in company with the Vice-Guardians, into the out-door relief list in the Bourdoneen division.

I proceeded to Bourdoneen on the 14th instant, and on the 15th a public meeting was held at Derrynane. There was a large attendance of rate-payers, the clergy, and Maurice O'Connell, Esq. The relieving officer attended with his books, when the circumstances of each individual upon the list were thoroughly scrutinized.

Altogether the list was not so incorrect as I was led to expect. There were some parties holding land removed; amongst them the parish clerk, with some relatives, as reported by Mr. O'Connell, were found on the list. Altogether about 30 names were struck off, out of more than 400 heads of families.

The relieving officer could give but little information respecting the parties on his list. He certainly had not fulfilled his instructions with regard to visiting the residences of the applicants, and inquired into their circumstances, nor had he made himself thoroughly acquainted with his instructions. The man is beyond the age which I consider indispensable for the active exertions required to discharge his duties efficiently; he is also in the occupation of a farm of at least 50 acres of land; he is a highly respectable man, and bears a good character.

The meeting gave satisfaction, and was conducted by Mr. O'Connell with every impartiality.

With reference to the subject of the payment of Mr. O'Connell's rates, it appears that he returned to Derrynane from England on the 24th December. The collector had previously applied to his steward for the rates, who deferred him until Mr. O'Connell's arrival, who, when he saw the collector, desired him to call on the 7th ultimo; but on the day appointed the collector had to attend the Board at Kenmare, and did not wait upon Mr. O'Connell again until the 27th January, when he received payment.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 19, 1848.

I AM to inquire whether the relieving officer whom you represent as both negligent and inefficient in the discharge of his duties has been called upon to resign.

It is manifest that the affairs of the Union cannot be managed satisfactorily unless the several Union officers discharge their respective duties zealously and efficiently; and the Commissioners are prepared at once to remove any negligent or inefficient officer on receiving a report from you or the Vice-Guardians recommending that course to be adopted.

Kenmare Union.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 17, 1848.

UPON the occasion of visiting the division of Ballybog it was represented to me by James Bland, Esq., of Derroquin Castle, that he had applied for a grant under "the Landed Property Improvement Act," but as yet no steps are taken for commencing works on his estate.

In consequence of the very destitute condition of the population in Ballybog it would be of the greatest advantage to the district to procure employment for them; and in consequence, I have to request that the Commissioners would use their influence at the Board of Works to expedite the commencement of the intended works on Mr. Bland's estate.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 19, 1848.

THE attention of the Board of Works has been drawn to your report.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 20, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit my weekly report.

I have already communicated the particulars of my visit to the division of Bourdoneen, which occupied the 14th, 15th, and 16th instant.

There is nothing new to report on the state of the workhouse, the Vice-Guardians having deferred taking any active measures until a new master is appointed, and the necessary supplies are contracted for. The number of inmates is now but 700. As there are vacancies in the hired extra buildings, the advantage of the workhouse test is still applicable.

There is no serious contagion existing in the workhouse. 56 deaths have occurred since the 1st instant. With the exception of three cases, they were all under 15 years of age, and chiefly infants, some of whom died on being admitted into the house before the medical officer had seen them; many came into the house in that state of sickness that they were beyond the means of recovery.

As to the general condition of the people, I am happy to state that their appearance during the last month has greatly improved; most of the distressing objects which infested the town when I first arrived have disappeared. When I contrast the wretched and horrible scenes which daily presented themselves during the month of December, and the dreadful prospects consequent thereon, the improvement, by means of the operation of the Poor Law, cannot be otherwise than most gratifying. I could not help remarking this day that the town was free from beggars and destitute creatures.

The British Association school relief has effected the most satisfactory result. Most of the children are dependent upon the daily ration of bread which I supply. They have assumed a much more healthy appearance. The benefit of keeping them from straggling about the country is certainly an object of the greatest advantage.

I am unable to report the exact sum of the uncollected rate until next week, as some of the collectors are at a distance, and have sums not yet lodged; but I calculate there is not more than 1200*l.* uncollected.

I presume that the Commissioners desire that another rate must soon be struck, which should be considerable, to clear off the debts, and place the finances of the Union in a healthy state.

With our present expenditure of 300*l.* weekly, I have again to express my opinion that it is impracticable to meet it. I have, therefore, to request the Commissioners will be further pleased to consider the propriety of rendering the Union assistance from the funds of the British Association during the heavy pressure of out-door relief.

At the ordinary meeting of the Vice-Guardians yesterday, the day was occupied in making contracts for supplies of provisions, clothing, and necessaries, so that the Guardians adjourned the meeting for Monday next. There were numerous tenders, and parties from Cork were generally successful in obtaining the contracts; a proof of the new management of the Union.

Several candidates presented themselves for the appointment of relieving officer for the eastern district of Tuosist, but none were considered competent. The master has resigned his appointment.

A total revision of the out-door relief lists is advisable, and I trust the Vice-Guardians will follow up my suggestions in carrying out this important duty without loss of time; and, now that the contracts are obtained, that they will devote their attention to place the establishment of the workhouse and Union in that order and efficiency required of them by the Commissioners.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 23, 1848.

WITH reference to the new rate required in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners will readily sanction any expense which the Vice-Guardians may deem it necessary to incur, in having the books prepared for a new rate in the Union with as little delay as possible.

As the collection of the rate is brought nearly to a close in any division, the collector's books should be called in, so that the arrears may be included in the new rate, and the new warrant be issued at once to the collector without waiting for the close of the collection in other divisions.

For the future, the course which the Commissioners are prepared for awhile to adopt is, to undertake to make weekly advances for the relief of the able-bodied men out of the workhouse, provided that the Vice-Guardians will relieve from the poor rates able-bodied men and their families in the workhouse, and destitute persons entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act out of the workhouse.

The Commissioners request you to supply them on Saturday in each week, with an estimate of the weekly sum which, in your opinion, will be required in order to preserve from starvation the destitute poor who are entitled to relief in your district, forming a separate estimate for each of the three following heads:—

- 1st. Relief in the workhouse.
- 2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.
- 3rd. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to relief under the 2nd section of that Act.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

I REQUEST you will be pleased to inform me whether it is requisite that the Vice-Guardians should meet daily at the Board-room for the despatch of business and to manage the affairs of the Union; such has been my opinion, but as the Vice-Guardians have differed with me on this point, I am anxious to receive the opinion of the Commissioners to know if my view is correct, particularly as the state of the Union requires their unremitting attention.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

IN reply to your report of the 23rd instant, received to day, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to state that the meetings of Vice-Guardians in other Unions are adjourned from day to day, or are held on more days than one in each week, according to the business required to be transacted, and as any case of emergency may arise.

The Commissioners are convinced that the affairs of the Kenmare Union require the unremitting attention of the Vice-Guardians; and paid officers have been appointed, with the expectation that they will devote to the discharge of their duties whatever portion of their time may be necessary to enable them to bring the affairs of the Union into a satisfactory condition.

Kenmare Union.

The Vice-Guardians should, under existing circumstances, devote every day to Union affairs, and being responsible for the state of the workhouse and accounts, should frequently inspect both.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report for the past week :

Nothing of any importance has occurred in the state of the Union during the past week. The numbers in the workhouse on the 25th instant were 696; the sick have increased to 178 cases; fever has declined, but dysentery has become very prevalent; supplies are ordered for the house on the receipt of which a new dietary will be established. I have daily inspected the workhouse, and in consequence of the filthy habits of the people I found it necessary to give two written orders to the master in order to stop the disgusting practice,—they had the desired effect; the Vice-Guardians considered it was an infringement of the workhouse regulations,—copies of these orders I have already transmitted to the Commissioners. On Saturday next it is intended to elect a new master with an assistant.

The out-door relief lists increase, but the destitution has considerably diminished; in this respect a vast improvement in the country is manifest. The cost for the out-door relief is upwards of 200*l.* weekly, although a reduction of more than 30*l.* has been made by the attendance of destitute children at schools.

The amount of rate collected since my arrival in the Union is 2,301*l.* leaving about 1,200*l.* uncollected.

Drainage works are in operation on the Marquess of Lansdowne's property; and I trust they will soon be commenced on Mr. Bland's estate. The school relief being also of such valuable assistance it has carried the Union through the worst crisis without relieving the able-bodied.

A relieving officer has been elected for the eastern district of the division of Tuosist at a salary of 30*l.* per annum, making the western and more populous one 40*l.*

The Vice-Guardians have not called for the resignation of the relieving officer of Bourdoneen, as they wish to give him a further trial, from his respectability and good character.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 27, 1848.

I HAVE to report that the estimates for the support of the destitute poor under the three following heads are, viz.:—

First.—For relief in the workhouse, 60*l.*

Third.—Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to relief under the 2nd section of that Act, 30*l.*

Those relieved under the 2nd section of the Act are so few compared to the number under the 1st section, that I recommend that the Commissioners will be pleased to take into their consideration the circumstances of this Union, and afford some assistance to the support of the destitute under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

The Commissioners have made application for an advance of 200*l.* to assist in defraying the expenses of the Union.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

Kenmare Union.

IN compliance with your directions contained in letter of the 23rd ultimo, I have to report that the estimates for the relief of the destitute poor in this Union are as follow:—

First.—Relief in the workhouse, weekly sum	£60
Second.—Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, weekly sum	150
Third.—Relief under the 2nd section of that Act, weekly sum	30

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 7, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 200*l.*, to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

ON the 1st instant I proceeded to Kilgarvan with Mr. Barnwall, when a public meeting of rate-payers was held to scrutinize the out-door relief lists. A numerous assemblage of rate-payers were present, every name was investigated; the rate-payers were greatly satisfied at the opportunity afforded of scrutinizing their own lists, and it gives them an insight into the operation of the Poor Law. On these occasions I always avail myself of the power conferred upon me by the 19th sec. of the 90 cap., Acts 10 and 11 Vict., to obtain evidence on oath when requisite; it is of great service.

I have frequently inspected the workhouse; taking into consideration the constant change of inmates, and the deficiency of clothing, it is in as good order as circumstances will admit of, considering the filthy habits of persons newly admitted.

In consequence of the frequent discharges from the house we have been enabled to continue the application of the workhouse test (the most effectual proof of destitution). Hardly more than one-half accept the offer of the workhouse, who probably quit it again in a few days; they resort to all sorts of schemes to be put on the out-door relief lists.

Works under the Landed Improvement Act are in operation on Lord Lansdowne's estate, which give employment in the divisions of Tuosist, Bunawn, and Kenmare. Mr. John Hickson has a grant also, which will give employment in Templenoe.

The amount of rate uncollected is now about 1000*l.*, and the liabilities are about 1800*l.* It is now therefore necessary that the Commissioners should express their views relative to striking a new rate.

The numbers of workhouse inmates do not alter; yesterday was the day appointed to elect a new master, but no eligible candidate presented himself. Dr. Maybury, the new medical officer, has entered upon his duties.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit the following estimates required for the weekly maintenance of the destitute poor in this Union:—

First.—Relief in the workhouse	65	10	0
Third.—Relief to persons entitled to relief under the 2nd section of that Act	45	0	0

Kenmare Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 150*l.* worth of provisions for the purpose proposed.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit my report for the past week.

Mr. S. Barry, the new Vice-Guardian appointed in the place of Mr. Robinson, arrived on the 7th instant. He has entered upon his duties with assiduity, and from his experience and ability I anticipate that the Union will derive great benefit: he has entered into a thorough investigation of the books and accounts of the Union, so as to make a thorough inquiry into the affairs of the Union.

On the 7th instant I accompanied Mr. Barnewall to the western district of Tuosist, and held a public meeting of the ratepayers, when a thorough scrutiny was entered into of every person on the relieving officers' out-door relief list; and I am glad to report that the list was in every way satisfactory, though in a very distressed and wild district. The ratepayers appear to be keenly alive to the operation of the Poor Law, and manifested the greatest interest in everything relative to its administration; in many cases it has been necessary to check them in exercising undue severity on the applicants for relief.

This week I have devoted much time with the Vice-Guardians at the workhouse, with a view to adopting a better system in the management of every department connected with the establishment. A new master, with an assistant, have been appointed, who promise to do well; and as soon as the clothing and supplies arrive, I hope for a great improvement.

Owing to the number of sick in the house, more accommodation for the convalescent patients is required so as to keep the fever hospital available for the worst fever cases. The only part of the premises which can be immediately appropriated for this purpose, and at a moderate cost, is by enclosing the vacant space under the shed in the rear of the men's yard, which can be made to receive about 30 patients.

At the Board meeting on Friday the collectors attended, when a minute examination of their books was made, and instructions given to obtain the rate due from defaulters; about 1000*l.* now remains uncollected, out of which, probably, 300*l.* or 400*l.* will have to be carried on as arrears to the next rate. Directions are given to the collectors to use all diligence in collecting the remainder of the outstanding rate, so as to close their books about the end of the month.

The subject of striking a new rate now requires immediate attention. It becomes necessary to take into calculation the circumstances of the district, as to the present chances of collecting a rate, and the period when the distressed ratepayers will be in a position to contribute their portion, which will, of course, be at harvest time. A great proportion of the rate is paid by small farmers and occupiers, owing to the extensive sub-division of land. Grazing has always been the principal source of profit to the farmers in this Union by the produce of butter; the general feeling is that a pressure on this class just now would lead to their entire ruin. The proportion of a heavy rate from the immediate lessors would probably maintain the workhouse up to harvest time, when the small occupiers could be pressed for their payment of the rate.

The Commissioners' sealed order, authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, ceases on the 21st instant; it has not been acted on, in consequence of the workhouse test having been available. It will be necessary for the Commissioners to renew their sealed order of the 15th December last, authorizing relief to certain destitute classes under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

There are now 4500 destitute children fed at the schools from the funds of the British Association. The advances received from that society to the Union have been appropriated to the out-door relief.

Mr. Barry is preparing a report of the state of the Union. I feel confident that the Vice-Guardians will now afford me every co-operation in carrying out the views of the Commissioners in the administration of the Poor Law.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 15, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' sanction of the vacant space under the shed in the men's yard being enclosed, and appropriated to the use of the convalescents from fever.

With reference to your observations on the striking of a new rate, I am directed to state that the Commissioners presume that the books for a new rate are in progress of completion.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 17, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians have this day made a report, wherein they represent the necessity of continuing relief to certain destitute classes under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in which opinion I concur, in consequence of the numerous applicants for relief this day.

In consequence of the extent of sickness throughout this Union, the probability of a further increase, and the want of provision for affording any hospital accommodation, it is indispensable that immediate steps should be taken for providing temporary local fever hospitals in several parts of the Union.

There is scarcely a family which applies to the workhouse for admission without some of its members being in a state of fever. From the evidence of the relieving officers, and the opportunities I possess in knowing the circumstances of the people in my frequent visits to the schools, it is necessary to provide fever sheds, the only provision in the Union being the workhouse hospital, which is always full.

I recommend that an hospital be established at Sneem, one in Kenmare, one in the centre of Tuosist, and one at Kilgarvan; it would be of the greatest benefit to the population, and a relief on the pressure to the workhouse. I beg to be favoured with instructions for my guidance on this subject.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 22, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Board of Health has been drawn to the subject.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 18, 1848.

HEREWITH I beg to submit the estimates for the weekly sums which are required for the support of the destitute poor in this Union as follows :—

	£.	s.	d.
First. Relief in the workhouse	69	9	7
Second. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act	100	0	0
Thirdly. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to relief under the 2nd section of that Act	53	17	6

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 22, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application for 150% worth of provisions to be placed at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians of the Kenmare Union, to assist them in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor depending on them.

Kenmare Union.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit my weekly report.

I have been daily engaged with the Vice-Guardians upon business relating to the affairs of the Union. The very able report which has been prepared by Mr. Barry, and submitted to the Commissioners, will, I am satisfied, give such a clear insight to the position of the Union, that I feel it unnecessary on my part to state anything further connected with the subjects in that report.

Mr. Crawford arrived here on Friday; the following day he inspected the workhouse with me, and is of my opinion in stating that the house is as clean as circumstances will admit of, considering the want of clothing and the succession of inmates who are daily going in and out of the house.

We are still inconvenienced for the want of a master; the one recommended by the Guardians having been disapproved of, immediate steps will be taken to elect another.

I regret to report the death of Mr. Kelly, rate-collector for Bourdoneen and Ballybog, as he had the greatest portion of the uncollected rate to obtain. We shall suffer delay in closing his books previous to striking a new rate.

The number of inmates in the workhouse has increased to 842. On Friday I was sorry to see a greater number of applicants for admission than have attended for several weeks; they were of the most miserable class, upwards of 200 in number.

I have already reported on the necessity of providing temporary district hospital accommodation in some of the electoral divisions: it would be a great relief on the pressure into the workhouse, and save a great journey to many poor creatures, for scarcely a family appears for admission to the workhouse without some members of it being in sickness, who bring in contagion. There is not accommodation in the infirmary and hospital for all the fever cases, and as a permanent improvement I suggest the enlarging the infirmary.

I accompanied Mr. Barry to Sneem on Thursday last. We fixed upon a building which can be made available for a temporary hospital. In that village there should be a permanent establishment, in which opinion all the local authorities agree with me.

Drainage works are in operation on the Marquess of Lausdowne's estate. The people show great reluctance to work, although a sufficient price is given for labour. The continuance of wet weather has retarded agricultural labour, though it is surprising the large quantity of potatoes already sown, and the exertions making to plant them.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Commissioners' architect has been drawn to the proposed enlargement of the workhouse infirmary.

The Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Health as regards the provision of hospital accommodation at Sneem.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

HEREWITH I have the honour to submit an estimate of the weekly sum for the maintenance of the destitute poor in this Union under the following heads:—

1st. Relief in the workhouse	68	10	9
2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act	111	6	3
3rd. Relief to certain destitute classes under the 2nd section of that Act	40	0	0

As there is a balance remaining in hand from former advances received from the British Association, a further advance for the ensuing week will not be required.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 26, 1848.

At the meeting of the Vice-Guardians, held on Friday, out of 134 persons who received permission to be received into the workhouse, before dark no less than 68 of them went off without availing themselves of the privilege, most of them in miserable circumstances, who had perhaps come a distance of 15 or 20 miles. This is generally the case on days of application. Out-door relief is what they all strive to obtain, and most of those who come in set out again in a few days. Such a system entails great trouble on the officers of the establishment. There were yesterday 907 receiving in-door relief.

I have every reason to be satisfied with the conduct of the relief officers, who are all conversant with the circumstances of the poor. The number receiving out-door relief is 5126.

This week most of the able-bodied inmates employed at work received clothing; and having obtained a supply of implements from the officer of the Board of Works, they have been kept up to their work under the vigilance of a new assistant master, and the close supervision of Mr. Barry, in subsoiling the ground attached to the house, preparatory to planting vegetables. The ground being of a very strong nature, the labour is heavy.

Clothes are being made; supplies of provisions for the house have been received from the contractors; the women will soon be set to work, spinning wool; the Vice-Guardians intend to carry out the principle of reproductive labour, with a view to render the establishment dependent on its own resources, as far as practicable.

Mr. Barry has a plan in contemplation to manage a model farm, for which he has applied to Lord Lansdowne to obtain a desirable piece of land in front of the workhouse, containing about six acres. By an improved system of agriculture he proposes to maintain the house with vegetables, milk, &c. If he succeeds, the example will prove a public benefit to this Union, where there is so extensive a field open for developing the produce of the soil.

From the assistance of the British Association, I am administering relief to 4800 children. The numbers in the respective electoral divisions are as follows :—

Kenmare	740
Tuosist	1480
Templenoë	700
Bunawn	390
Kilgarvan	340
Bourdoneen	600

This number is to be reduced to 4200, at the desire of Count Strzelecki, which was the number returned for the week ending 4th March.

I have received from Count Strzelecki a supply of clothing for 1200 boys. On Friday a considerable portion of the most destitute were selected from the schools and put into their new clothes. On being removed from their tatters they looked healthy and strong, and in such high spirits on the occasion, they kept parading the town in great exultation. I have not witnessed a more gratifying sight than this demonstration of the success of this charitable mode of relief.

The balance shown yesterday in the treasurer's book was 316*l*; there remains yet uncollected of the rate 855*l*. I apprehend serious embarrassment for want of funds before another rate can be put in course of collection.

Nothing is yet doing to the rate-books. The Vice-Guardians are awaiting the opinion of the Commissioners in reply to their report relative to the amount of rate to be struck, and on the propriety of holding public meetings of the rate-payers for revising any changes required in the rate-books.

The Marquess of Lansdowne's agent has given directions to suspend all the works on his estate now in operation under the Landed Improvement Act, as he is apprehensive of withdrawing the labour from tilling the land.

In this town a serious inconvenience is felt from the want of magistrates to prosecute the authority of the law; Lord Lansdowne's agent is the only one on the spot: of course he has a large amount of business, and is frequently called away. This week a pauper was detected in selling some of the workhouse property; no magistrate on the spot, and the Guardians have no power to inflict the penalty of the law: an example in all such cases has a salutary effect. I believe that no petty sessions have been held here for two months.

The presence of the clerk and two of the collectors, at the Tralee assizes, held this week, having to attend some cases of appeal, will, I fear, prove another source of delay in closing the present rate-books.

A cargo of Indian meal arrived this week to replenish the Commissariat store; also some charitable contributions from the Society of Friends, for different localities in the Union.

At present the schoolmaster is discharging the duties of the master. We are in great need of the services of an able master.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848

WITH reference to the proposal of Mr. Barry to obtain six acres of ground in front of the workhouse for a model farm, I am to state that the responsibility of taking ground for workhouses has by law been placed on the Commissioners, and they do not think it expedient to hold more in any case than can be cultivated by the boys, with occasional aid from able-bodied classes who may be from time to time in the workhouse.

As regards the apprehended embarrassment from want of funds until another rate can be put in course of collection, I am to state that the Commissioners are very desirous that no time should be lost in putting a new rate in course of collection. The communications of the Vice-Guardians on the subject of the amount of the rate and the revision of the valuation, have been answered.

The Commissioners have communicated with the Government as regards the want of magistrates at Kenmare.

Captain OMMANNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 1, 1848.

THE total number of inmates receiving workhouse accommodation this day was 900. Out of 153 applicants for admission yesterday 67 were admitted; 62 declined the offer of the workhouse.

Sickness has decreased considerably, having but 99 cases. This week there were but six deaths.

The balance remaining in the hands of the treasurer this day was only 100*l*. As there remains a sufficient amount for the maintenance of out-door relief for next week out of the advances received from the British Relief Association I have not forwarded the usual estimates this week.

Nothing has been done this week towards the collection of rate, in consequence of the collectors being in attendance at the Tralee Assizes. A collector was appointed this day to obtain the portion of rate uncollected in Ballybog and Bourdoneen in place of the late Mr. Kelly. The selection fell on Mr. Bland, the barony cess collector for Glenerough, brother of James Bland, Esq., of Derroquin Castle.

The Vice-Guardians intend proceeding immediately to revise the rate-books; they will strike a rate on each division as the rate-books are closed and revision completed. I do not anticipate that another rate will be in course of collection in less than six weeks.

Four candidates presented themselves to-day for the situation of master. They were all inexperienced and incompetent for the situation. The schoolmaster has been directed to act as master pro tem.

My attention has been much taken up with the schools, and in the direction of the issue of a large grant of clothing received from the British Relief Association, which has been a great boon to the poor children.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 6, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 1st instant relating to the Kenmare Union, in which you state that another rate will not be in course of collection in less than six weeks; and I am to inquire whether in that calculation you include all the electoral divisions.

It appears to the Commissioners that the rate might be put in course of collection at an earlier period in some of the electoral divisions.

The rate and collecting-books may be prepared simultaneously, and the rate be at once put in course of collection when the revision of the valuation in any electoral division is completed.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 4, 1848.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th March, 1848, stating, with reference to our request for permission to apply to the Marquess of Lansdowne for a grant of 20 acres of land, that the responsibility of taking ground for workhouse purposes rested on the Commissioners, who do not think it expedient to hold more land than can be cultivated by the boys with occasional aid from able-bodied classes.

In reply we beg leave to explain our request, and briefly to explain the reasons which induce us to prefer it again in a modified shape.

We requested permission to apply for a free grant of 20 acres.

We now pray the Commissioners to sanction our applying for a grant of 11 or 12 acres.

The land originally obtained for this workhouse contains 6 acres; of this space the original buildings, yards, and inner passages, as will appear by the ground plan, occupy 2 acres, 1 rood, and 13 perches.

The fever hospital, with passage and yard, and the passage to the road, with the unenclosed front yard, cover 2 roods and 17 perches, making a total of 2 acres 3 roods and 30 perches; deducting this from the 6 acre area, leaves us but 3 acres and 10 perches to work, say 9 acres for round numbers, short of the 12 acre limit, as defined by Mr. Henn.

In addition to this limit 3 acres may be taken for a cemetery, and one is much wanted here, and a portion of the plot we conceive obtainable would suit such a purpose admirably.

In addition to our anxiety to make the labour of the inmates to some extent available for their own maintenance, the peculiarly unfortunate position of this Union impels us to make an extraordinary effort to render the future managers of the workhouse less dependent on extraneous aid than we are.

The resources of this place are so limited that the contractors for all supplies at present, except bread (for which we are paying nearly 20 per cent. over the value), reside in Cork, Killarney, and Macroom.

Fuel we have been buying by retail, and paying for by petty disbursements.

Milk we are still obliged to purchase daily in the market, and though it may be called the staple produce of the Union, its average cost for the last 12 months was 8½d. per gallon.

Vegetables cannot be had here at any price.

We now want lime for whitewashing, and though there are limestone quarries within 200 yards of the workhouse we have had to wait a month for it, and then send a distance of over seven miles.

So little grain is grown in the district there is but one mill, and that has only one pair of stones, in the Union, though water-power may be had to an incalculable amount.

Hitherto potato cultivation was the only agricultural employment, and each householder grew his own.

A vast number of the small occupiers gave up possession of their holdings on receiving relief, and as no owner of land is giving out score ground (the term for con-acre here) this year, no one dependent on this system can grow his own supply for the ensuing season.

The certain consequence must be a continued pressure for the admission of able-bodied men for at least two years more.

In half that time all the heavy work of drainage and sub-soiling will have been completed, after which the boys and a few men, and it is to be feared that the Kenmare Union. house will never be without some such inmates, would work the limited extent we now ask for.

The fact of the Union being the poorest in Munster, tested by the proportion of net annual value to population, Kilrush only excepted, weighed materially with us.

In our next communication on rating, we intend to submit a few proofs of the valuation of this Union being higher than that of many others.

We now respectfully pray the Commissioners will, under the peculiar circumstances of this Union, permit us to apply for some additional land, say 12 acres, imperial measure, which will barely suffice for the proper industrial training of the boys.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 7, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 4th instant, containing an explanation of your views with regard to a grant of land for the employment of the boys in the workhouse of the Kenmare Union, and in reference thereto I am to state that the Commissioners concur in your opinion, that the ground occupied by the workhouse buildings may be deducted from the extent of the present site in computing the total quantity which may be held; and there is no objection to the proposed application to the Marquess of Lansdowne for a grant of the additional quantity which the law empowers the Commissioners to hold.

I REGRET to state that the number of inmates in the workhouse continues to increase; there are now upwards of 900 recipients of in-door relief; there is also an augmentation on the out-door relief lists; the condition of the inmates is much improved by the change of diet and supply of clothing. The Vice-Guardians have been devoting their attention towards rectifying the existing evils, and placing the establishment on a right footing; but unfortunately this Union labours under greater disadvantages, or as great as any in Ireland, in consequence of the absence of local resources; even in one instance, for want of the essential article of linen the house cannot be thoroughly purified; it is only very recently that a supply has been procured at seven miles' distance. Any articles procured here are of an indifferent quality and at high prices.

There is nothing so much required in the establishment as an oven, by which means great economy would be effected. If there are any means by which a grant could be obtained for constructing one, I beg the Commissioners would give the case of this Union a strong recommendation, as the impoverished state of the Union puts it out of our power to do more than support the destitute.

As yet there is no decrease in the number of applicants for relief; on the days of admission there are generally more than 200 in attendance; owing to the demoralized state of the people the strictest scrutiny into each case is requisite to guard against imposition.

The sub-soiling and drainage of the land about the house afford a good labour test to the able-bodied, though it is no easy matter to obtain a day's work from them; they have frequently combined against work; yesterday an example was made of four of the ringleaders by sending them off to Tralee gaol.

A revision of the house is required; the Vice-Guardians intend having it carried into effect without delay.

The Vice-Guardians have almost completed their arrangements for revising the rate-books previous to striking a new rate, and they have assured me they will put the rate in course of collection in each electoral division as it is revised; they will commence in Kilgarvan on the 17th instant, for which purpose notice has been given to the rate-payers. In my report of the 1st instant, I calculated that in all the electoral divisions a new rate would be in course of collection in six weeks, but I fear now the period will be extended.

In the management of the school-relief I have endeavoured to carry out the system as a source of relief to the burden of the out-door relief, but there have been many difficulties in the way of carrying this out effectively; from the precarious way in which the teachers are supported it could not be expected that a class of people would be employed in whom confidence could be placed. In one instance the remuneration of a teacher for 200 children was to be placed on the out-door relief list. With the exception of the clergy, the rate-payers have shown the greatest indifference to the system, without whose co-operation it could not be efficiently worked out, consequently I have been at a loss for responsible persons to see that the children taken off the out-door relief are constantly supplied with rations; they generally prefer getting out-door relief to attendance at school.

My time has been greatly occupied in the appropriation of the clothing, which has required me to visit the schools in the remote parts of the Union.

The new rate collector for the divisions of Ballybog and Bourdoneen has received his warrants for levying the arrears left by the late collector. There still remains about 300*l.* uncollected in these two divisions.

The balance in hands of the treasurer yesterday was only 140*l.* The pressing demands of creditors and current expenses will, I fear, embarrass our position before any sum will be available from a new rate.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 13, 1848.

WITH reference to the proposed erection of an oven I am to state that the Commissioners do not apprehend that an application for a loan or grant for this purpose would be successful.

It will be desirable that the Vice-Guardians should contract for the erection of the oven required, and pay for it out of the rates to be collected.

As regards the state of the Union finances the Commissioners do not doubt that the Vice-Guardians will do everything in their power to have the new rate put in course of collection in each of the electoral divisions with the least possible delay, and they trust that active steps in this respect will place in the hands of the Vice-Guardians the requisite funds for providing effectually for the relief of the poor in the Union.

GLENTIES UNION.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 8, 1848.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd instant, calling my attention to the fact that the Commissioners' order of the 15th ultimo, authorizing the administration of out-door relief to certain classes of paupers in the Glenties Union will expire on the 15th instant.

I beg leave to recommend to the Commissioners to extend the above order for one month longer, to enable the Guardians to provide a house for the accommodation of the male children, so as to make sufficient room in the workhouse for the able-bodied, the house having already 48 over and above what it was originally built for; and the pressure for out-door relief still continues to a considerable extent.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have directed the order to be renewed as you suggest; I am however to state that, should it become necessary to extend the authority given by the order for a further period after the expiration of the period named in the order now directed to be issued, the Commissioners propose to exclude from it the class described as "able-bodied men, one or more of whose families dependent on them for support are affected by severe sickness or serious accident."

The Commissioners request therefore that if you contemplate the necessity of any further renewal of the order, you will prepare the Guardians to receive it in the limited form above mentioned, so that they may take measures to prevent any inconvenience resulting from the withdrawal of relief to this class.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

AT a meeting of the Board of Guardians held yesterday, six resolutions were passed, a copy of which is herewith transmitted, marked No. 1.

The Mullaghderg Relief Committee having met on Thursday the 10th instant, when the subject of the temporary fever hospital at Dungloe was brought forward, and rejected by them.

The resolution of the Mullaghderg Relief Committee was yesterday submitted to the Board of Guardians, when out of 13 members who were present, nine voted against having anything to do with the Dungloe temporary fever hospital.

The number of inmates at present in the workhouse amounts to 600, and those receiving out-door relief are 3220; I hope in the course of next week to be able to relieve the house of about 70 male children, when a house can be procured to put them in; but there is great difficulty in obtaining a vacant building in such a miserable village as this, and even should we succeed in getting one, they are generally so small that they will not contain more than from 30 to 40. The number of children receiving gratuitous relief from the British Association for the week ending this day are about 3186, which, with those on the rates of the Union, will make a grand total of 7006.

I beg here to report the conduct of Jack Boyle, relieving officer for the two electoral divisions of Rutland and Mullaghderg, and I have to request the Commissioners will be pleased to have this man dismissed, as this is the third complaint made against him for drunkenness; the Rev. Mr. O'Donnell, P.P., having complained to the Board of Guardians on Friday the 4th instant, when no steps were taken by the Board.

The accompanying note from Francis Forster, Esq., J.P., and marked No. 2, I received yesterday, which I beg to enclose for the information of the Commissioners.—I brought this officer's conduct before the Board of Guardians yesterday, but they only cautioned him to be more careful in future. I beg here to observe, that I do not think this man at all qualified to fill the situation of relieving officer, or to have charge of the provisions committed to his care.

and Kilcar, is another officer whom I conceive is not qualified for the situation; he is exceedingly stupid, and there has been several complaints made against him by the rate-payers, and two have lately been sent up to the Commissioners by the Rev. Henry Carr of Malinbeg, for placing able-bodied men on the outdoor relief; and also not having a supply of meal at his store on the days for delivery, which has caused great inconvenience to the paupers.

The total amount that the collectors have as yet brought in is 846*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*, out of which sum Mr. Charles Gallagher collected 581*l.* 18*s.* 3*d.*, and Mr. Quigley has only collected 264*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*; both collectors are, however, at present out, and I am in hopes that they will be able to get in a good deal of the rates by the beginning or latter end of next week; as soon as they make any lodgment in the treasurer's hands, I shall make a special report of the same to the Commissioners.

I got the Board of Guardians to pass a resolution on Friday the 21st of January last, appointing the last Friday in each month for issuing cheques to the different contractors and tradespeople; but on Friday the 4th instant, when I was on leave of absence from the Commissioners, and in direct opposition to their own resolution of the 21st of January last, they issued a check for 200*l.* to Mr. M'Davitt, one of the contractors for meal, and uncle to the chairman of the Board of Guardians, and father to the clerk of the Union, although others have been repeatedly refused.

This practice is most injurious to the Union, as it drives those who would compete for contracts from doing so, when they see such favouritism practised towards those who are connected with the Board; hence it is that the credit of the Union is run down, by driving those respectable tradespeople away, who would always come forward to contract on fair and reasonable terms.

Since I have arrived in this Union, I have constantly insisted on public advertisements for everything that has been required for the use of the house being held up to public competition, which has the very best effect, and has completely broken down that system of monopoly which had previously existed to a great extent.

Yesterday being the day for receiving tenders for supplying the out-door relief with meal, Mr. William M'Neely, of Duncaneely's, proposal for supplying the electoral divisions of Malinbeg, Kilcar, and Killybegs, at 11*l.* 10*s.* per ton, was accepted until the 29th of September next; and Daniel M'Davitt's tenders to supply the electoral divisions of Meenavally and Ardara, at 11*l.* 9*s.* per ton, was accepted until the 29th of September next; also Daniel M'Davitt's tender to supply the electoral divisions of Lettermacaward, Dungloe, Mullagher, and Rutland, at 11*l.* 15*s.* per ton, was accepted until the 29th of September next.

These I conceive to be advantageous contracts, when it is considered the distance the contractors have to cart the meal, over very bad roads; and I have no doubt that this contract has been obtained, owing to my impressing on the Board of Guardians the necessity of upholding the credit of the Union, by paying up all their outstanding debts; so that the merchants are now beginning to have more confidence, and to see that they have a fair chance of receiving their money when there is any cash in the treasurer's hands.

I AM to state that the Commissioners fear the number stated by you to be in the workhouse at present (being 600) is greater than is consistent with a due regard to health; and they request you will endeavour to prevent further admissions, and to have steps taken for removing from the workhouse any of the present inmates who may be legally relievable outside.

The Commissioners are about to issue an order limiting the number to be received and maintained in the workhouse to 500.

As regards the relieving officers Boyle and Hegarty, whom you recommend for dismissal, I am to state that a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Guardians on the subject will be transmitted to you tomorrow.

With reference to the conduct of the Guardians in drawing a cheque in favour of Mr. M'Davitt, in direct opposition to their resolution of the 21st ultimo, I am to state that the Commissioners very much regret that the Board of Guardians should have violated their own bye-law in favour of any particular individual in the manner stated by you in your report; still as the Guardians had the legal right to act as they did, and as the Commissioners do not deem themselves at liberty to impute to them improper motives, the Commissioners do not propose to notice the subject in a communication to the Guardians.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—February 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a report from Captain O'Neill, forwarding a complaint which had been made to him that, on application being made to Jack Boyle, the relieving officer at Dungloe, the relieving officer was found to be so drunk as to be incapable of doing anything; and it was stated that during the previous two days, while he was giving out meal, he was so very drunk that he could not know what he was doing.

Captain O'Neill states that this is the third complaint that has been made against the relieving officer for drunkenness, and that the Rev. Mr. O'Donnell, P.P., complained to the Board on the subject on the 4th instant.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners have felt it their duty to direct that an order for the dismissal of Mr. Boyle be issued, and they request that the Guardians will be so good as to take the necessary steps for the appointment of a successor.

The Commissioners take this opportunity of stating that they have received complaints against Mr. James Hegarty, another of the relieving officers, from which it appears that it has happened on more than one occasion that on the day for distributing meal he has, owing to his own neglect, been unprovided with meal to distribute.

Captain O'Neill, whose observations on these complaints were requested by the Commissioners, has expressed an opinion that Mr. Hegarty is unfit for his situation; and the Commissioners think that the neglect to obtain the requisite supply of meal at the proper time is so serious, and might have been productive of so much suffering to the applicants for relief; that in this case also they deem it right to remove the relieving officer, and to request the Guardians to be so good as to proceed to the appointment of a successor.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward a memorial from Mr. Peter Carr and John Deary, two of the rate-payers of the Killybegs electoral division, which they have requested of me to do, and I beg at the same time to observe that a contract has been entered into on Friday last, the 11th instant, to supply out-door relief to that division, at the rate of 11*l.* 10*s.* per ton for Indian meal, until the 29th of September next, which is considered reasonable.

ENCLOSURE.

To the POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS.

The Petition of PETER CARR and JOHN DEARY, Poor Law Guardians of the Electoral Division of Killybegs in the Glenties Union,

Humbly sheweth,

That a rate of 3*s.* per pound has been struck on said division, and that said rate is almost collected and forwarded to the Letterkenny bank, to the credit of said division, and that petitioners intend to expend said rate under the directions and by the advice of the Poor Law Commissioners, to their starving poor, and with as much advantage as possible to their poor but humble rate-payers.

That said rate amounts to 452*l.* 8*s.*, and that they have expended 71*l.* 8*s.* of said rate on out-door relief, and that they are not in much debt in the workhouse. Petitioners request that the Commissioners will allow them 250*l.* of said rate to buy meal at market price, as they have no contractor as yet, leaving a sum of 131*l.* in bank for the expenses of the workhouse. Petitioners say that it will be a saving of 52*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* to the rate-payers of said division, and they offer G. V. Wilson, Esq., agent on the Murray property, and the Rev. Wm. Drummond, P.P. Killybegs, as their guarantee that said sum will be judiciously managed.

Petitioners forward this through their Union Inspector, Captain O'Neill, and wait with patience for an answer from the Commissioners.

And petitioners will ever pray.

The COMMISSIONERS to Messrs. CARR and DEARY:—February 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received from their Temporary Inspector, Captain O'Neill, your communication, in which you request to be allowed a sum of 250*l.* out of the rate which has been collected in the electoral division:

which you represent, in order that you may purchase meal at the market price for the purpose of affording out-door relief to the destitute poor in your electoral division.

In reference thereto I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they have no power to comply with your request, inasmuch as the law does not authorize the expenditure of the Union funds by individual Guardians for particular electoral divisions. The whole Board of Guardians, as a body, is bound to provide for the due relief of the destitute poor in all the electoral divisions of the Union, and the Commissioners' regulations require that supplies, the cost price of which may reasonably be estimated to exceed 10% per month, shall be purchased by the Board of Guardians upon contract founded on public tender.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that at a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, five resolutions were passed, on various matters, herewith transmitted and marked No. 1.

The Board of Guardians have come to a resolution on the subject of a temporary fever hospital at Dungloe,—to summon a full meeting of the Board to attend on Friday, the 3rd of March, to take the subject into full consideration.

I have impressed on the Guardians the absolute necessity of hiring a house for the accommodation of the male children, and I am glad now to be able to report to the Commissioners that the Guardians have rented a tolerable sized building in this village, which will contain about 140, and is now being fitted up for the reception of the male children, at present in the workhouse. I expect that this house will be finished by Thursday next, when I shall cause the children to be at once removed into it. By this arrangement accommodation for about 200 additional able-bodied paupers will be made available in the workhouse, by making use of the school-room as dormitories to sleep in. Should the Commissioners object to this arrangement, may I beg of them to let me know before the next Board-day, Friday, the 25th instant.

The numbers in the workhouse up to this date are 591, and those receiving out-door relief amount to 3,321: total receiving relief from the rates of the Union 3912. There are also about 4000 receiving relief from the funds of the British Association, which will make a grand total of 7321 in this Union receiving gratuitous relief.

Yesterday being the day appointed to receive tenders for building a permanent fever hospital near the workhouse for this Union, only one tender was received, offering to erect the hospital for 710%; but the Guardians came to a resolution to advertise again for tenders on Friday, the 3rd of March. I should very much wish that this hospital could be got up with as little delay as possible, as it would give a great deal of accommodation, and the want of an hospital to the workhouse is severely felt in this Union.

Having some months ago reported to the Commissioners the great advantage that the poor in some parts of this Union would derive from the burning of kelp, and as the season is now fast approaching when such a measure could be carried out with the greatest advantage to the able-bodied poor and their families, I beg respectfully to draw the particular attention of the Commissioners to this branch of industry, which I think would be of the greatest advantage to the poor people in the electoral divisions of Mullaghderg, Dungloe, and Rutland, including the Island of Arranmore.

Most of the people in that part of the country have but small patches of land, and for want of employment they are every day giving their land up for the purpose of getting either out or in-door relief. Yesterday there were upwards of 70 from the Rosses, all pressing for food, and most of them appeared to be in the greatest poverty and wretchedness; they are all willing and anxious to work, but there is no one in that wild district to give them employment, or at least to employ the one-tenth of them. I would again respectfully urge on the Commissioners the great benefit that it would be to that locality, if a loan of 400% or 500% would be granted for the purpose of buying up all the kelp that these poor people would burn, and by sending it off to Glasgow, in small cargoes, where it would meet with a ready sale. This would be the means of employing all the men, women, and children along the whole of this coast, when they would be able to earn a fair remuneration for their labour, and be the means of taking some hundreds off the rates of the Union. There are at this moment 660 receiving out-door relief from those three electoral divisions, together with 254 in the workhouse; and every day is adding from 20 to 30 to the number of applicants. The month of March is considered a fine month for drying the weed. In short, when the weather is fine, they can dry the weed, and when it is stormy, so that they cannot venture out to cut and boat it to the shore, they burn it.

I beg to observe that when I was inspecting officer under the Temporary Relief Act in this Union, last summer, Mr. Forster, of Rosshine Lodge, Dungloe, supported upwards of 300 families from actual starvation, by employing them in this business; but his capital was limited, and he was, therefore, obliged to abandon it.

I would respectfully but earnestly urge on the Commissioners, that if a loan of 400*l.* or 500*l.* would be granted, I am sure that very little, if any, loss would be sustained. I beg here to submit Mr. Forster's letter to me, No. 2, with whom I have been in correspondence for some time on this subject. I have also consulted many respectable intelligent people from that part of the country, all of whom are of opinion that if this measure was properly carried out, it would be of the greatest benefit to those poor districts.

Mr. Charles Gallagher has collected since the 22nd January last 85*l.* 18*s.* 3*d.*, whereas Mr. James Quigley, who has been a collector now some years, has only collected 468*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.*, making a total collected since the 22nd of January last of 1320*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* I beg to observe that Mr. Charles Gallagher has exerted himself far beyond my expectation, while, on the other hand, Mr. James Quigley has done very little, and I fear does not press the collection with that firmness which his instruction warrants him in doing.

I have repeatedly urged him on this point, but he appears to disregard anything that is said to him.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. FORSTER to Captain O'NEILL:—February 15, 1848.

As I do not see how it is possible to save the people here, unless they get some employment, and as I believe it is not the intention of the Government to do so this year, I cannot resist writing to you on the subject, in hopes you may be able to do something for them. Of course, you are well aware that kelp can be made on this coast, in the greatest quantity, and from my knowledge of the country and people, I can safely assure you it is the only remunerative labour that they could be employed at. Last year I saw that numbers could be kept out of the workhouse if they could get a price for their kelp that would pay them moderate wages, and induce them to exert themselves. There were two or three petty dealers, who I evidently saw were taking advantage of the people, and who, if they were inclined to act honestly, had not the means to purchase a large quantity; the price they were giving was from 18*s.* to 20*s.* per ton, and even at that low price they generally paid them only a part, and in many instances did not pay them any money till they sent the kelp to Glasgow and sold it. As I plainly saw the very great advantage that might be derived by the people if the kelp manufacture was encouraged, I managed to get a capital of 200*l.*, and with that sum only commenced to purchase the kelp all along this coast, and gave 2*l.* 5*s.* a ton for it; and though, unfortunately for the people, it was late in the season before I thought of it, or commenced to purchase it, I paid nearly 1000*l.* for kelp, and would have paid more than double that sum if I had commenced to purchase as soon as the people could have made it. It is nothing more or less than merely paying them for their labour, as the sea-weed costs them nothing, and the quantity on this coast is endless. They have large boats, made for and only fit for the purpose of carrying sea-weed; the men cut and put it on shore, and the women and children spread, dry, and lock it, as you would hay,—so that it gives employment to every member of the family. The way I managed, was by sending the kelp off to Glasgow in small cargoes of about 50 tons, where it was immediately sold, and the money returned to me, by which means I was enabled to keep several hundred families employed, and saved them from destruction. No one could form any idea of the good that may be done this year in the same way; with a few hundred pounds you may pay the people some thousands, and that too, most likely, without the loss of one shilling. I am quite confident there is no other way possible to give them relief, except at a loss. If they are not employed they will be forced on the out-door relief,—as the Glenties workhouse, nor all the houses in the village of Glenties, would not hold them. If any arrangement could be made, the sooner the better, as they would commence to make kelp next month, if they could get any one to purchase it from them. As you are aware that, unfortunately, I have no property on the coast where I could employ my tenants to make kelp, I can have no interest in this business farther than for the welfare of the poor people.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report, dated the 19th instant, relative to Glenties Union, and with reference to that part of it in which you urge upon the Commissioners the advantages which you anticipate would result from a loan of 500*l.*, if it could be obtained for the purpose of buying up kelp made in the Island of Arranmore, and in other parts of the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners having on a former occasion given the subject the most careful consideration, they are not prepared to recommend a loan as you propose, inasmuch as (independently of other considerations) the funds at the disposal of the British Association are limited in amount, and must be strictly economized by the Commissioners, and it appears to the Commissioners essential for this purpose that they should as far as possible be expended in the direct relief of destitution rather than in the indirect relief of it, by providing wages for labour.

The Commissioners will address the collector Quigley on the subject of the slow progress made by him in the collection.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners that I laid their letter of the 21st instant, relative to raising the qualification of the Guardians in this Union, before the Board at their meeting yesterday, but they made no observation on it. I have been told that this measure has given great satisfaction throughout the whole of this Union, with the exception of a fraction of those whose qualifications were at 5*l.*, and I have not the least doubt but the raising of the qualification will work well, as it has already given a stimulus to all the gentlemen and respectable farmers throughout the whole Union, and will no doubt cause a highly respectable Board to be formed.

The Guardians have appointed two relieving officers for three weeks, as a temporary measure, for the divisions of Malinbeg, and Kilcar, Rutland, and Mullaghderg. The clerk has been directed to advertise for two relieving officers for the above electoral divisions, to be permanently appointed at their meeting on Friday, the 17th of March next, in place of Jack Boyle and James Hegarty, dismissed by order of the Commissioners.

The Guardians have also directed the clerk to advertise for a matron for the workhouse, on the 17th March, in place of Mrs. Gallagher, dismissed by order of the Commissioners.

Yesterday being the day appointed to receive tenders for stores for the outdoor relief, the following stores have been agreed upon, viz:—

			Per Annum.
			£.	s.	d.
Killybegs division, Stragar	James Cunnea's		6	0	0
Ardara division, Ardara town	John O'Donnell		6	0	0
Glenties division, Glenties town	Charles Molloy		3	6	0
Naran division, Clogher	John Boyle		3	7	6
Lettermacaward division, Clogher	James O'Donnell		4	0	0
Dungloe division, Clogher	Manus Ward		2	18	0
Rutland division, Acres	Edward O'Donnell		2	18	0
Kilcar division, town of Kilcar	G. V. Wilson, Esq., gratis
Malinbeg division, Cashel	Edward Gillespie		1	17	0

Thus it will be seen that a sufficient number of stores have been taken, at 30*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* instead of paying at the rate of 84*l.* a-year, which was the first arrangement made by the Guardians, and which I had frequently brought under the notice of the Commissioners, but I am glad now to say it has been finally settled, and has caused a saving of 53*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* to the Union.

I have much satisfaction to report for the information of the Commissioners, that the inmates in the workhouse, are all perfectly healthy, and the house itself in excellent order. I have most of the able-bodied men employed in the men's yard, levelling and improving it, and the remainder are working in the grounds belonging to the house.

I should feel obliged if the Commissioners would be so kind as to apply to the Board of Works for the following tools, which are in store in this town, for the use of the workhouse:—twelve clay picks, six crowbars, two dozen of planks, twelve wheelbarrows, and one dozen of napping hammers for breaking stones.

The numbers in the workhouse up to this date are 554, making a decrease of 37 since last week, and the numbers receiving out-door relief from the rates of the Union, are 3,570, with 320 applicants for the ensuing week, on the relieving officers' books; there are at present 5,000 children receiving relief from the funds of the British Association, which will make a total of 9,124 receiving gratuitous relief in this Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners will apply to the Board of Works for the implements you require.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

At the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, tenders were received for the building of a fever hospital, near the workhouse of this Union, when Mr. Thomas Diver, of Ardara, obtained the contract for 710*l.*, which was his tender, and accepted.

The Guardians are of opinion that two acres of land adjoining the house will be sufficient for the fever ward; and I shall write this day to Mr. Russell, agent to the Marquess of Conyngham, to communicate direct with the Commissioners, relative to the conveyance that Mr. Russell should make on behalf of the Marquess of Conyngham. A plan of the ground furnished by the contractor is herewith enclosed.

I beg to observe, that the terms proposed by Mr. Russell, as set forth in his letter of the 31st of January last, were 10*s.* per acre for 25 years' purchase of the ground.

A letter from the Commissioners, dated the 1st of March, addressed to the clerk of the Union, relative to the temporary fever hospital at Dungloe, was submitted to the Board of Guardians, when a paper was laid before them by Francis Foster, esq., from a report made by Dr. Brady to the Governors of the Dungloe and Gweedore dispensary, which I beg here to transmit, marked No. 1; and from the inquiry which I have made from several people from that locality, it does not appear that fever is more prevalent in that district at present, than what it has been in former years.

The anxiety and wish of the people to obtain out-door relief have caused reports to be circulated, that fever is prevalent in that district, but, I should say, in most cases without foundation; as a proof of this, yesterday, upwards of 300 presented themselves at the workhouse from the Rosses, claiming out-door relief, alleging that they had given up their land; but when they were told that they would be taken into the workhouse, as they were able-bodied men, the universal reply was, that some one, two, or three of their families were laid up in fever. This was contradicted by one of the Guardians who came from that part of the country, and who was personally acquainted with the parties, as also Mr. Foster, an ex-officio Guardian. Both these gentlemen stated that the people from that locality have recourse to this stratagem for the purpose of getting out-door relief, as also going about begging; and I should say that Dr. Brady's report bears them out in their statement, as Dr. Brady is intimately acquainted with every part of this parish of Templecrone, having been employed in it now upwards of 20 years. The Guardians have, therefore, come to a resolution, to submit the subject of Dr. Brady's letter to the favourable consideration of the Commissioners. The Guardians are at the same time most anxious to carry out all the instructions which they from time to time may receive from the Commissioners; but they feel under the present circumstances, when representations have been made from undoubted authority, that fever does not exist to the extent that has been reported to the Board of Health; I therefore think that the Guardians would not be justified in squandering the funds of the Union upon the establishment of a fever hospital, which, in their opinion, and from all the information they have received, is not necessary.

It gives me much satisfaction to report to the Commissioners the clean and orderly state of the workhouse, and also the healthy appearance of all the inmates. The number in the infirmary only amounts to 22, and no case of consequence amongst them, nothing but the ordinary complaints of colds, and other common diseases from old age and infirmity.

The number of inmates up to this day in the workhouse is 515, and the number receiving out-door relief amounts this week to 3840, making a total on the rates of the Union of 4355, together with about 6000 children receiving gratuitous relief from the funds of the British Association.

I have lately travelled through some parts of this Union; and it is lamentable to see the want of energy amongst the farmers—not a single human being is to be seen at work in the field; all are listlessly walking about, not appearing to care whether they cultivate their land or not. I have not seen Mr. Brady, the practical instructor, for this last six weeks, since he left this for Killybegs. As this is the season of the year for such men to be employed, might I request that the Commissioners would be pleased to recommend to the Royal Agricultural Improvement Society the absolute necessity of sending a person, such as Mr. Brady, into this Union, as there is no Union in Ireland where one is more wanted; and I have been informed that he imparted a vast deal of useful information to the people when he was here. But I understand he is not now in the Union; I hope he has not been withdrawn, as I think his presence, or some such instructor, is much required at this season of the year, in this remote part of the country.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. BRADY to the GOVERNORS of the DUNGLOE and GWEEDORE DISPENSARY:—
February 4, 1848.

My attention having been directed to the state of health of this district, compared with that of the same period last year, I have during the last few days visited every townland where fever was reported to exist, and am happy to be able to say that I have not found as much disease as I anticipated, with the exception of in the townland of Ranafasset; and I must confess that I do not think there are (now) many more cases of fever than there have been at the same period in ordinary years, and by no means as many, or of as bad a character, as they were this time last year. Influenza has been very prevalent, and in many cases mistaken for fever; and this, no doubt, has given rise to the report, that the latter disease prevailed to an alarming extent. The above does not refer to the islands, as the weather has been so stormy of late I could not visit them; but from inquiries I have learned that fever is not more prevalent than on the mainland. I fear, however, that scarcity will in a short time reduce many of the poor to so low a state that disease must set in; and the object of this letter is to call your attention to the fact, that fever does not prevail to the extent reported, and to suggest the propriety of those of influence among you, doing all in your power to obtain employment for the poor, thereby averting evils which must result from the present state of things. You are all well aware that disease is more easily prevented than cured.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 10, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded an extract from your report relative to the Dungloe temporary fever hospital, to the Central Board of Health; and that they have also forwarded an extract relative to the state of the Union, as regards agriculture and the importance of continuing Mr. Brady's instructions, to the Royal Agricultural Improvement Society.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain O'NEILL:—March 8, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to call your attention to the circumstance, that their order of the 15th ultimo, authorizing out-door relief to certain classes of paupers in Glenties Union, will expire on the 15th instant, and I am to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners as to the necessity of renewing it, and if so, for what period, or if you consider a modification of the present order necessary, especially as regards the third class named in the order.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—March 11, 1848.

IN reply to your communication, I would, under existing circumstances, recommend that the Commissioners will have the goodness to extend for another month, without any modification, their order of the 15th ultimo, authorizing out-door relief to certain classes of paupers in Glenties Union, inasmuch as the labour will not commence sooner in this backward district.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for your information, that I attended at intervals in the Board-room of the workhouse yesterday, from 12 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but could not form a Board from the non-attendance of a sufficient number of Guardians.

This neglect on their part I need scarcely make any observation on, as it is attended with great inconvenience, from the number of paupers applying both for admission to the house and out-door relief; Mr. O'Donnell, the chairman, and myself, provisionally admitted all those who were anxious to enter the house, amounting to 21. I must, however, say, that the day was very stormy and many of the Guardians have from 14 to 20 miles to come.

The pressure for out-door relief still continues, particularly from Rutland, Mullaghderg, and Dungloe, all the able-bodied men are now applying, and when they are offered accommodation in the workhouse, the universal answer is, "all my family are unwell, and cannot be removed," although in most cases this assertion has been proved to be false, many who have been receiving out-door relief from temporary illness, under the Commissioners' sealed orders of the 15th January last, have now recovered, are most clamorous to be continued on gratuitous relief.

On one or two occasions, when they saw the relieving officer approaching their cabins, they instantly ran in, and went to bed, alleging that they were very ill. The natural disposition of the lower orders all over this Union is idleness. They would prefer half the quantity of food without labour, to abundance, and be obliged to work. It frequently happens, that able-bodied men present themselves before the Board of Guardians, stating that they have given up their land to their sons, lads about 15 or 16 years of age, this is done for the purpose of getting out-door relief, but when they are told that they must come into the workhouse, they reject the offer with scorn.

This system of giving up land one to the other is one of the greatest difficulties to be overcome. The people appear to have lost all shame, and have recourse to every sort of artifice to obtain food sooner than work for it.

The numbers in the house up to this day are 498; the inmates are all healthy, only 21 in the infirmary; the numbers receiving out-door relief amount to 3700, making a total on the rates of the Union of 4198, with about 6400 children receiving relief from the funds of the British Association; this will make a grand total of 10,598 receiving gratuitous relief in the whole Union, or about one-fourth of the whole population.

I have urged on the collectors the absolute necessity of collecting the rates in as fast as possible. Mr. Quigley has promised to do so, as he is very much in arrear with his collection; I have given him another week, but should he not exert himself to make a fair collection before the expiration of that time, I shall feel it my duty to report him to the Commissioners. I do not think this man a good collector; he has had his books now in his possession since the 17th December last, and he has only got in a little more than 400*l.*, and all the small rate-payers have been paying up their rents.

I have got the whole of the able-bodied men daily employed in levelling the yards of the workhouse, which were in very bad order, and also improving the grounds belonging to the house which were a complete bog; the greater part of which I have now reclaimed, and in a fit state to be laid out in gardens. There is a great difficulty in getting employment for all the able-bodied women, they are so extremely ignorant, but few of them can sew, and the Union is so poor, that the Guardians say they cannot afford to buy wheels to employ them in spinning and knitting, which is the only sort of work they can do.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

I BEG to draw the particular attention of the Commissioners to the numbers that are now receiving out-door relief in this Union, which amounts to 4537, with 341 applicants on the relieving officers' books for the next week. I fear if this increasing pressure continues it will be impossible for some of the electoral divisions to be able to meet the destitution. I shall take two of the poorest divisions in this Union as an example: in the Mullaghderg division there are 627 receiving daily relief, at a cost of 17*l.* 2*s.* a-week, which will make at the rate of 889*l.* 4*s.* a-year, whereas the whole valuation of this division is only 331*l.* 10*s.* The Rutland division has 569 on their lists, and their weekly consumption amounts to 17*l.* 4*s.* 4½*d.*, which will produce 895*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* a-year, when the valuation of this division is only 830*l.* 15*s.* There is another great difficulty to be overcome in this Union, which will press most severely on the rates, that is, all those who have small farms of land, from two to eight acres, are selling them, the head of the family taking whatever money he can get for it, deserting his wife and children, and going off to America, leaving his family quite destitute, so that they are at once thrown on the rates of the Union.

I have proposed to the Guardians to form sub-committees of three or four Guardians in different parts of this Union, where the distances are so great that it is with difficulty correct information can be obtained at the Board-room, from the great distance the people have to come, 18 to 27 miles.

Those committees, I should propose, would scrutinize the relieving officers' books, and report to the Board of Guardians at their next meeting, after closely examining their lists, the class of paupers who are receiving out-door relief. By this means those Sub-Committees will have it in their power to obtain correct information from the ratepayers on the spot as to who are receiving gratuitous relief.

In many instances it is most difficult to get the desired information in a Board-room, from the fear of being set down as informers, and the great pressure of business that is generally brought before the Board; it frequently happens that they are obliged to sit until eight o'clock in the evening.

I have repeatedly brought before the Board of Guardians the benefit that would accrue to the Union by establishing ovens in some of the electoral divisions for the purpose of baking bread to supply the out-door relief, but I have always been met with the reply, that the Union was so poor that they could not afford to build them. I am quite satisfied that if cooked food was adopted instead of raw meal that it would be found to work well and reduce the list of applicants in one fortnight to half the numbers. As soon as I get the new Board I shall urge on them the necessity of establishing some system of this kind, and I shall not fail to report to the Commissioners their views on the subject.

It gives me great satisfaction to report that the inmates of the workhouse are all healthy, and the house itself is in good order; the able-bodied paupers are constantly kept employed on the grounds and yards of the establishment. The numbers in the house up to this date are 518, and those receiving out-door relief amount to 4537, making a total of 5055 on the rates of the Union, together with 6712 receiving gratuitous relief from the funds of the British Association; this will make a grand total of 11,767 receiving relief in the whole Union.

WITH reference to that part of your report in which you express your fear that, if the pressure for relief continues, it will be impossible for some of the electoral divisions to meet the destitution, and you advert specially to the Mullaghderg and Rutland divisions, I am to request that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners what sum each of these electoral divisions has to its credit, what is the amount of rate collected in each since last harvest, and what proportion in the pound does such sum bear to the Poor Law Valuation.

Glenties Union.

Your suggestion to the Board of Guardians to appoint Sub-Committees in different parts of the Union, to examine the relieving officers' books, and to report to the Board of Guardians thereon, appears to be fully in accordance with the 6th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act; and the Commissioners will be prepared, on receiving the application of the Board of Guardians, to form districts for such Committees in accordance with that section.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

At a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, I brought forward a complaint which I beg leave to enclose, marked No. 1, preferred by George Hamilton, Esq., ex-officio Guardian, against Mr. John O'Donnell, chairman of the Board, for having two able-bodied men on the out-door relief whom he has had working on his farm for the last two months. On my asking Mr. O'Donnell if such was the case he at once admitted the fact, but stated that they were not earning one penny per diem, as they were working at task-work. This admission of Mr. O'Donnell's at once proves that the provisions which they were receiving from the Union, must have been taken into account as part payment of wages, which he no doubt has taken advantage of, and got those men placed on the out-door relief as infirm, for the purpose of cultivating his land at the expense of the Union, when the Commissioners' sealed orders of the 15th December, 1847, only sanctioned a certain class of "poor persons, being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support are affected by severe sickness or serious accident."

I am glad to report that there is a visible change for the better in the healthy appearance of the inmates; the house is in a clean and orderly state; the numbers at present in it are 508, with 4649 receiving out-door relief, making an increase since last week of 102. The total receiving gratuitous relief from the rates of the Union up to this date are 5157, together with 7187 children, from the funds of the British Association, which will make a grand total receiving relief in the Union of 12,344.

No. 1.—ENCLOSURE.

Mr. HAMILTON to Captain O'NEILL:—March 22, 1848.

I BEG to call your attention to Patrick Tighe and Ned M'Loon, both of Letterilly, whom I have been told are getting out-door relief and labouring under Mr. O'Donnell, chairman of the Board of Guardians; they are both able-bodied: and also others in the same division who hold land are getting relief. Now I am obliged to lay this before you on account of Mrs. Orr, who pays enormous rates there.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report dated the 25th instant, relative to Glenties Union; and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded to the auditor a copy of that part of the report which relates to the illegal administration of relief to able-bodied men in the employment of the chairman of the Board of Guardians. It is desirable that you should furnish the Commissioners with the names of these men, and their numbers on the out-door relief register, so that the auditor when auditing the accounts may be readily able to identify the cases.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain O'NEILL:—March 24, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of an extract from a constabulary report which the Commissioners have received relative to an inquest held on the body of a man (name unknown) who was found dead on Croaghmaget mountain, and who is alleged to have died from the effects of cold and hunger, and I am to request that you will be so good as to make inquiry, and report to the Commissioners on this case.

ENCLOSURE.

Glenties Union.

County of Donegal.
Glenties, March 17, 1848.

A man (name unknown) was found dead on Croaghmaget mountain in the Donegal Union.

Copy of Verdict.

That deceased died in the parish of Killymard from cold and hunger.

Inspector-General,
&c. &c. &c.

JOHN RODDEN, Sub-Inspector.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 27, 1848.

In reply to your letter of the 24th instant, I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have made every inquiry in my power into the circumstances referred to, namely, "that a man (name unknown) was found dead on Croaghmaget mountain, and who is alleged to have died from the effects of cold and hunger."

I cannot find out in what way the man alluded to came by his death, as it does not appear that any evidence was produced at the coroner's inquest to prove that the man died from cold or hunger. The jury found their verdict on a mere supposition, from the remote situation he was found in.

Doctor M'Garvey, who was present at the inquest, examined the body, and states that he found a great deal of difficulty to find out whether the deceased was a male or female from the state of decomposition which the body was found in.

It appears that the head and one of the limbs were severed from the body when found; but the doctor states that there were no marks of violence perceptible. This, in all probability, occurred from the wild birds or animals preying on it, as it appears he must have been dead at least a couple of months before he was found.

It was also conjectured that he was a stranger, as none of the inhabitants of this part of the country have been missing from their homes or families. I beg to enclose Mr. Rodden's reply to my letter, who was present at the coroner's inquest.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. RODDEN to Captain O'NEILL:—March 26, 1848.

In reply to your letter of this date relative to an inquest held in this town on 17th instant on the body of a man found dead on Croaghmaget mountain in a far advanced state of decomposition on the 9th instant, I have to state that no proof positive appeared as to who the man was, or how he came by his death; and the jury returned their verdict upon supposition, in which supposition I agree. Were I one of that jury I would not have given a positive verdict upon evidence given upon mere supposition.

It is my opinion the man went a short cut across the mountain, intending to make for Donegal, or this—that he took shelter under a rock from storm—that he got weak from fatigue, cold, or hunger—that he lay down, and was not able to rise, and there died. All this might happen to any man without being in destitution, as in my opinion there is a great difference between hunger and starvation.

I HAVE the honour to report, for your information, that at a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday they issued cheques for 173*l.* 14*s.* to different tradespeople, although there was not more than 60*l.* in the treasurer's hands, and they also issued several blank cheques when no bills were sent in to show what was the amount claimed.

This irregularity on the part of the Guardians is attended with great inconvenience, and at the same time lowers the credit of the Union. I have therefore directed the clerk not to countersign any of them, except as far as what will exactly cover the amount of cash in the treasurer's hands, and to keep the others over until the collectors are able to place funds in the hands of the treasurer to meet the demand.

I requested of the Guardians not to break through this rule, which they laid down some time ago. But the moment that I left the Board-room last night, at nine o'clock, they filled up seven cheques, and directed the clerk to sign them, which he refused, as I was not present.

Glenties Union.

I have frequently been obliged to bring under the notice of the Board of Guardians the want of energy in Mr. Quigley, the collector. This man has not, in my opinion, exerted himself in his collection as he ought to have done, although I have frequently urged him in the strongest manner to do so. I have often complained to the Board of Guardians on the subject, but they never took any steps to stimulate him to get in the rates. Some short time ago Mr. Russell, agent to the Marquess of Conyngham, told me he had his rate ready to pay him, and that Mr. Quigley had promised to call at the hotel the following day for the money; but it appears that he neglected to do so. Mr. Russell therefore left the town; consequently the rate has not yet been paid. I have seen Mr. Russell since, and he told me he would pay up all the rates against him in the course of the ensuing week.

A man, of the name of Peter Mulloy, of Mully, threatened to shoot Connel Mullay, the relieving officer for the electoral divisions of Glenties and Navan, for removing him off the books for out-door relief, he being an able-bodied man. He is also charged with stealing a gun from Philip Mullay's house, father to the relieving officer. The police, under head constable M'Cue, got a search warrant, and, on the morning of the 29th March, they proceeded to the house of Peter Mulloy, when they succeeded in arresting him, and found a gun heavily loaded with buck-shot, which the prisoner stated to be his own property. The gun which was stolen from Philip Mullay's house has not yet been found, and Mr. James Hamilton, a magistrate for this county, has remanded him until Monday next, to be brought before the petty sessions.

I am sorry to say there has been very little done in this Union yet as regards the cropping of the land or preparing it for seed. I have been informed that there is a great anxiety to obtain seed potatoes, but, from the great scarcity of them in this Union, it is feared that the small farmers will not be able to procure a sufficiency to crop their land.

I have known some of them to send 20 and 30 miles for a few stone, and to pay at the rate of 10*d.* per stone for them.

There is also a great demand for turnip, parsnip, and mangold-wurzel seed, but in so remote a part of the country as this is it is quite impossible to procure seed of any kind, as there are no merchants or traders of any description who deal in those things.

I should say, if there was a small supply of the above at once sent to Killybegs and Burton Port it would be eagerly bought up; but, if sent, it would be requisite to do so immediately, particularly the potato seed, as the season is now far advanced.

IN reference to your statement that the Guardians have issued cheques for an amount exceeding the sum in the treasurer's hands, and have also issued blank cheques where no bills were sent in, and that you have directed the clerk not to countersign more than there is funds in the bank to meet, I am directed to state that the Commissioners think that the clerk ought under no circumstances to countersign a blank cheque, and they request you to acquaint the clerk with their opinion on this subject accordingly.

As regards the complaint of the want of energy evinced by collector Quigley in getting in the rates in his district, I am to state that the Commissioners have called upon this collector for an explanation of his neglect.

KILKENNY UNION.

Mr. PHELAN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour of informing you that I yesterday carefully inspected the premises designated the "Magdalene Asylum," lately rented by the Kilkenny Board of Guardians as a temporary convalescent hospital. It is capable of accommodating about 74 persons, and is pretty well adapted for the purpose were there only persons of one sex in it. But as there is only one plot of ground for exercise, and it is always an object in fine weather to induce the convalescents to be in the open air occasionally, the want of a second place for that purpose is a defect of some importance: beside the communication between the male and female portions is, I apprehend, not sufficiently cut off, but on this point I have directed the strictest vigilance on the part of the matron who superintends the place, which is dry and kept in a satisfactory state.

There are 62 convalescents in it; the locality is a good one, not subject, I think, to want of drainage, nor to any circumstances likely to affect the health of the inmates.

I also examined the old brewery premises, in which about 100 boys sleep. It consists of eight lofts, four of 57 by 18, and four of 54 by 23, the two upper are pretty elevated and are fairly calculated for dormitories, the under are very low, and not well adapted for the purpose. These premises, if put in proper order, could accommodate 300. The boys go to the workhouse to breakfast and return after dinner. It appears to me that more use might be made of the dormitory accommodation afforded by these premises than has hitherto been derived from them, but I feel it necessary to observe that as they are surrounded by high walls, appear very gloomy, and are in a close part of the city, they are not well adapted for having boys or girls in them constantly. If used as a more permanent residence, some of the other classes should be placed in them. Boys and girls require more open and more cheerful prospects; I should not however recommend them to be made use of, except temporarily, and until better can be provided by enlarging the workhouse or otherwise.

The sheds in the adult female yard afford considerable advantages as a nursery and as day-rooms for some classes. In one there were 54 nurses, each having one child. About a dozen infants were nursed by women not their mothers. Many of the infants look badly; I could not perceive much difference, if any, between those who have mothers and the others. It was stated by the matron that some of the nurses eat or give away the infants' food, and I directed her to see them fed three times a-day, or if herself much engaged, to have it done under the supervision of the schoolmistress or some other confidential person. I would, however, strongly advise that a proper nursery be erected, so that the infants and young children should sleep out of the house and have better opportunities to be taken into the open air. I learn the infants are rarely taken out of this shed.

The boys and girls appear to be pretty well looked after; the former, however, better than the latter. Although not my province particularly, I cannot avoid alluding to the total and most apparent inadequacy of the schoolmaster. A more ignorant and incompetent person to instruct or to form the habits of boys I have nowhere seen. Although some have been long in the house, no boy has got further in arithmetic than short division, as the master admits. The schoolmistress appears competent and efficient.

I found two of the dormitories in which galleries have been put up, much overcrowded, No. 3 at each side 96 by 16, contained 37 beds below, and 21 on the gallery, having two in each bed, in all 116 adults in a dormitory in which at most there should not be more than 80. Other dormitories were less crowded, and I advise the former to be thinned by transferring some from them to the latter.

I have before reported that the house is well ventilated, and I am now enabled to state that the state of the sick portions, including the county fever hospital wards at the disposal of the Guardians, is very satisfactory as to cleanliness, nurse-tending, &c.

There are no lunatics or idiots in the house; the cells and dormitories for this class being now portions of the infirmary.

Kilkenny Union.

There is no epidemic disease in the house except influenza, which has been fatal to the young and to old persons; 142 sick in the infirmary are chiefly chronic cases; and 141 that are in the county fever hospital are cases of mild fever, some of dysentery; there is scarcely a case of marked typhus fever amongst them. The average number of days, only 23, during which they remain in hospital is a proof of this.

P.S.—I have suggested that as there is room in the county fever hospital for the male convalescents, and whilst there is, the Magdalene Asylum be only occupied by females, or by young boys in addition to females.

I HAVE the honour of informing you that, being desirous of ascertaining the state of ventilation in the Kilkenny workhouse, after the paupers had been a few hours in bed, I went through the probationary wards and through the several dormitories, except those for the aged and infirm (which I had before examined), last night between 10 and half-past 11 o'clock, and was pleased to perceive that (with the exception of two that were over-crowded) the ventilation was pretty fair.

I had however another object in view in making this inspection. The master informed me, as the admission and discharge books showed, that the house contained 2048 paupers, and I knew that about 218 of these—the number somewhat fluctuates from day to day—are in the fever hospital and Magdalene Asylum, and about 140 in the infirmary, and that about 100 boys sleep in the brewery premises, making a total of 458. Having in the course of that day inspected the houses and looked carefully at the number of beds, and having taken a view of the paupers, it occurred to me that the number said to sleep in the body of the house could scarcely be correct. I therefore (whilst giving the master to understand that my object was to examine the ventilation and to see if there was overcrowding), reckoned the number of paupers that were in bed in each dormitory. In all there were 1182, including those of the aged and infirm. I found 123 in the two upper probationary wards, 57 in one, 66 in the other; both far too crowded. There may perhaps have been 15 or 20 more that were not then in bed, or of the class of nurses and ward-maids in the infirmary; altogether I could only with these allowances make out about 1325, which, with the before-mentioned 458, gives a total of 1783, or about 265 less than the number for which diets are charged.

I asked the master and matron if there were paupers in any other place except in those dormitories, &c., which I had examined, and they stated there were none.

I have given this statement to Mr. Burke, Poor Law Inspector, suggesting the necessity of perhaps a closer examination than my time permitted, and I afterwards went to the master and again interrogated him as to the possibility of other paupers having slept in places which I had not examined, when he stated that there were none.

This master appears to be very incompetent, he does not seem to be dishonest, but rather to be ignorant as to the state of the house.

There is no practical visiting Committee of the Guardians, but one, a Mr. Lanigan, is extremely useful in daily visiting the house, infirmary, and even the fever departments.

MR. BURKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

1. I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 5th ultimo, forwarding a copy of a letter addressed by you to the Board of Guardians of the Kilkenny Union, relative to the insubordination which exists in the workhouse, and directing me to proceed to Kilkenny and confer with the Guardians as to the proper steps to be taken for the better management of the workhouse, and the enforcement of order and obedience amongst the inmates; and with reference to it and to that part of your letter of the 27th ultimo, requesting me to report as to the general condition and prospects of the Kilkenny Union, under the management of the Board of Guardians, and to point out any course which I consider you may advantageously take in order to secure the effectual relief of the destitute poor in this Union, I have to inform you that having considered the best mode by which I could arrive at the information which you required, was by a full and complete inquiry into the affairs of the Union, I commenced such inquiry on Monday, the 31st ultimo, at the workhouse, and continued engaged at it for eight days; and the minutes of evidence, &c., taken by me on the occasion, comprising 496 pages, I have the honour to forward herewith.

2. The difficulties under which the Union labours, and the defects and abuses in the management of the workhouse are not of recent date, but have existed ever since the opening of the latter.

3. From the fourth series of papers relating to proceedings for the relief of the distress and state of the Unions and workhouses in Ireland, recently presented to Parliament, it appears that the net amount of debts, on the 30th November last, due by the Kilkenny Union, was the largest due by any Union in Ireland.

4. Kilkenny is the fifth Union in Ireland as regards valuation, and, compared with the four Unions which exceed it in value, it stood thus at the date referred to:—

Union.	Valuation.	In Credit.	In Debt.
	£.	£.	£.
Dublin, South	569,940	5,202	..
Dublin, North	369,745	..	2,490
Cork	365,623	3,274	..
Belfast	271,915	..	1,460
Kilkenny	241,775	..	9,630

5. As compared with the Unions of the capitals of the four surrounding counties, it stood thus:—

Union.	Valuation.	In Credit.	In Debt.
Clonmel	91,108	4,165	..
Waterford	193,771	325	..
Carlow	179,037	891	..
Wexford	113,714	64	..
Kilkenny	241,775	..	9,630

6. The embarrassments of the Kilkenny Union are clearly attributable to the Guardians not providing in time for its liabilities, and deferring the making of ample rates until debts accumulated to the extent stated.

7. As regards the rate now in progress of collection, a similar course was pursued, the making of the rate being delayed for two or three months after it had been first agreed on, by propositions made at the meetings of the Guardians to reduce it in amount.

8. The system of thus procrastinating the making of rates, and then making but inadequate ones, has proved a most ruinous one for the Union.

9. The balance of the treasurer's account being always against the Union, the checks issued by the Guardians are with difficulty discounted at a large per centage. In the case of John Dunne, a contractor, who was obliged to take legal proceedings against the Guardians, and had then to be paid with costs and interest, it was upwards of a year after the amount of Dunne's contract had become due that he received the amount of it.

10. It will be seen from the evidence given by Guardians and contractors that, owing to the cause just stated, the prices paid for the supplies of the workhouse are 15 to 20 per cent. beyond the usual prices, and the clerk of the Union states as his opinion that the Union has lost in this way, since December 12 months, about 3000%.

11. The checks given to the relieving officers, from there being no funds with the treasurer, are frequently unpaid, and have caused much inconvenience to the poor; a relieving officer, on one occasion, being obliged to borrow money on his own responsibility, and on another occasion to give orders on a retail shop to meet the pressing demands of the poor.

12. Of the rate made last November, not one-fourth has yet been collected; and when it is considered that of the part collected a great portion has been in large sums—the Marquess of Ormonde paid upwards of 100%, Viscount Clifden the same, and the Hon. Mr. Wandesford above 300%.—it can hardly be expected, from the progress made in the best part of the year for collecting rates, that as the less advantageous season for collecting it approaches, that the receipts will not be sufficient to meet the many and pressing demands on the Union.

13. The current expenses of the Union being large, the debt of the Union, since the collection of the present rate commenced, has been lessened not above one-third, and the debt remaining due by the Union on the 31st ultimo, amounted to 6584*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*

14. I caused lists to be made out by the rate-collectors of the 10 highest rate-payers in arrear in each electoral division; by these lists it appears that there are solvent and respectable parties from whom the rate is still uncollected.

15. I also procured from the collectors lists of the Guardians who have paid and of the Guardians who have not paid the current rate. It will be seen from these lists that 31 Guardians have paid and that 39 Guardians have not paid the current rate. It is but justice to some of the latter to say that they have told me they were not called on to pay. At the same time I must say that this is no excuse for Guardians, who, seeing the Union in such difficulties, should have been the first themselves to come forward, and, by paying the rates, set an example to the great body of the ratepayers.

16. Little or no attention is paid by the Guardians to the financial affairs of the Union; the collectors' books are seldom or ever examined by the Guardians, nor is there any Finance Committee who attend regularly: one or two Guardians sometimes examine the accounts submitted to the Guardians for payment.

17. If the financial affairs of the Union afford so little interest to the Guardians, it is not to be wondered at that looking after the management of the workhouse holds out less inducement to them. With the exception of two Guardians, Messrs. Kelly and Lanigan, who are entitled to much credit for their exertions to keep matters from being worse, for to this only could their efforts tend, no Guardian took the slightest trouble about the workhouse, and, according to the evidence of Mr. Lanigan, the Guardians "are in total ignorance of the internal management of the house, of the duties of the officers, the conduct of the inmates, the weighing or giving out of provisions, or, in fact, with any matters connected with the management of the workhouse, and thinks it cannot be otherwise when no member of the Board of Guardians, with the exception of Mr. Kelly and himself, ever crosses the threshold of the workhouse."

18. Little surprise can, therefore, be felt that the Kilkenny workhouse has long been a "bye-word," as I told the Guardians at the first meeting of the Board which I attended, amongst the workhouses of Ireland, as being one of the worst managed. Idleness amongst the inmates prevails to a greater extent in it than in any other workhouse I have visited; however, as regards the females, this has not latterly been so much the case.

19. There was not a meeting of the Guardians which I attended during the few months I have had charge of the Union that I have not, either in a written report or by my statement to them, brought before the Guardians my views with regard to the mismanagement of the workhouse, and the inefficiency of its officers; but I found no anxiety on the part of the Board generally to remedy matters.

20. The medical officers of the workhouse have been equally unsuccessful in having their reports attended to. Dr. Lalor states in his evidence that he and Dr. Cane, "after the workhouse had been open for a year, drew up a report, in which they pointed out many improvements which might be made in the management of the workhouse, so far as it came under their observation, and particularly with regard to the infant children. At the time, the Board of Guardians took no notice whatsoever of the report; and, if any, very few of the improvements suggested by Dr. Cane and him were carried out—that relative to the infant children was not carried out. Dr. Cane and himself, and sometimes himself, made various suggestions, including about the infant children; and the general practice was that their reports were not minded at all, but merely looked on as so much waste paper." Dr. Cane, after stating to the same effect as Dr. Lalor, says, he "despaired of anything being done or carried out by the Board of Guardians." And again, "in general terms he has no hope of the Board of Guardians being able to do anything effectually for the management of the workhouse, considering the difficulties with which they are surrounded; one of the difficulties is being encumbered by debt."

21. Feeling that no improvement could be made in the management of the workhouse, while inefficient officers were retained, I never omitted an opportunity of stating my opinion to the Guardians of the inefficiency of the master, matron, schoolmaster, assistant schoolmistress, and porter.

22. From the exertion I made towards effecting a reformation in the management of the workhouse, and the matron, as I was informed, not deeming herself equal to what I expected from her, resigned, and I attended the election of her successor. Several candidates offered, amongst others Mrs. M'Quaide, who had been assistant matron in the Carlow workhouse, and having most strongly impressed on the Guardians that she was far beyond in efficiency all the other candidates, I must do the Guardians the justice that on this occasion the majority of the Board (including, I think, all the ex-officio Guardians present) agreed with me, and Mrs. M'Quaide was elected; this being, as I am informed, the first time that an officer of the workhouse was elected solely from efficiency.

23. The new matron has done much in the way of reformation in the habits of the females; employment for them was set going; the bedding and clothing, which were in a most disgraceful condition, were properly cleansed and repaired. Messrs. Kelly and Lanigan, the only Guardians who visit the house, and the medical officers, bore ample testimony in their evidence to the marked improvement which had taken place since Mrs. M'Quaide entered upon her duties.

24. The matron, however, was not long in office before a current set in against her: all the other officers of the workhouse, with the exception of Miss Phelan, who is over the provision store, seemed intent on giving the matron a distaste for the situation, and in which they succeeded, Mrs. M'Quaide having resigned the office some weeks since, and only continues now at my request to perform the duties until the result of this inquiry shall be made known. Had but common forbearance been observed towards this respectable and efficient matron, she would eventually, at least so far as the female department of the workhouse is concerned, have brought it into a good state.

25. Encouraged by the good choice made by the Guardians in the selection of matron, I had hopes that I would by degrees replace all the inefficient officers by efficient ones; and with this view I insisted on the porter and assistant schoolmistress, both under 20 years of age, resigning, which they did accordingly, and of the persons elected to these offices, I can only speak of one, the porter, the assistant schoolmistress, poor girl, having shortly after her election caught fever and died.

26. While holding the inquiry, I was informed that the new porter had been seen drunk. I inquired into the matter; and on reference to page 369, and following pages of the minutes of the inquiry, it will be seen that the charge was well founded, he and some of the female inmates having been drinking together in a public-house in the town. This man's appointment had not been sanctioned, as you will perceive from the reason stated in the query sheet, namely, until I had an opportunity of judging of his competency. If, therefore, under the circumstance of his appointment not being sanctioned, an order can be issued for his dismissal, I think it should be done in preference to refusing sanction to his appointment.

27. The state of both schools is discreditable, so far as the industrial training of the children is concerned. In the girls' school, which is conducted pretty fairly, the schoolmistress being in my opinion efficient, she states, "There are 291 girls in the school, and but 20 to 30 employed."

28. The state of the boys' school is disgraceful to any public institution. The schoolmaster states about the boys, that "Some days they pick stones and weed; thinks that during the last three months he has brought sometimes 40 and sometimes 60 of the boys to pick stones on the workhouse grounds; for 12 times during the last three months, is sure that the boys stay two hours picking stones when they go out; has no spades nor shovels, nor any tools for them, and they do nothing but pick stones and draw sand from the pit occasionally; has now 183 boys in his school." The boys, it appears, are in the habit of carrying on a traffic with the bread given them: the schoolmaster "found out that the boys were selling their bread last summer; it does not go on now to his knowledge; heard that Michael Burke, a boy in the school, made 2s. 6d. selling his bread; the boys told him (the schoolmaster) that the 2s. 6d. was stole out of his box; knew of Tom Shearman making 7½d. by selling his bread; heard that there was 6d. due by Mrs. Cumming to Michael Lacy for bread." The schoolmaster is even incompetent as a teacher, and is quite unfit to be placed in charge of a workhouse school; he evidently possesses no control over the boys. The schoolmaster, although incompetent and unfit for the office, I could not hear of anything to his disadvantage as to character; and as the Guardians who elected such an officer are to be blamed, and not the poor man who was seeking a livelihood, I beg to recommend that in the first instance the schoolmaster be called on to resign, and that in the event of his not doing so, an order shall be issued for his dismissal.

29. As to the master's incompetency to manage such an establishment I never had any doubt, nor did I ever hesitate to state so at any meeting of the Guardians which I attended; but from the incompetency of the subordinate officers I considered that he might not have fair play, and that it was but right to allow him a trial when efficient subordinates were appointed; but I must confess I was not prepared for what came out respecting him on the inquiry.

1. The workhouse books kept by pauper boys.

2. Persons who for weeks had left the house, or who died, still kept on provision consumption account, and the rations charged against the Union.

3. Prayers never given out for the adults.

4. In fine, there was scarce a regulation for the management of the workhouse which was the master's duty to see carried out that was not either violated or omitted.

Independent of his incompetency, he is a man addicted to drink. His drunkenness was proved by Mrs. Hamilton, the fever-hospital nurse, a most respectable and efficient officer; and if the other witnesses did not go so far, there was scarce one, even those produced by the master himself, who did not testify to their having seen the "sign of liquor on him."

30. Your Inspector, Mr. Phelan, being at Kilkenny on an inspection of the workhouse as to its sanitary state, went through the house on the night of Wednesday, the 9th instant; and from a report dated 10th instant, which he was good enough to furnish me with, and which I forward herewith, he discovered that there was a discrepancy of near 300 between the number given in the Admission and Discharged Book and the number in the workhouse; in a report to you, dated also the 10th instant, and which I presume Mr. Phelan gives as a more accurate one than the report he furnished me with, he states the discrepancy as 265. On Thursday I attended the meeting of the Guardians, and brought this matter before them; and having suggested that Messrs. Lanigan and Kelly, together with the acting clerk of the Union (the clerk being confined by illness), and Mr. Phayer, the apothecary, should on that night, accompanied by the officers of the workhouse, make an accurate inspection of the numbers in the workhouse, my suggestion was agreed to and acted on, and I herewith forward the report made and signed by Messrs. Lanigan and Kelly, Guardians, Mr. Phayer, the apothecary, and Mr. Brennan, the acting clerk of the Union. By their return the discrepancy is stated to be 207, so that a difference of 58 appears between their report and Mr. Phelan's. There is, however, enough to show that a considerable number beyond those in the workhouse, fever hospital, house of recovery, and brewery is charged by the master as receiving rations. Whether this be an act of dishonesty or stupidity on his part it is difficult to say; but that a man of his slovenly habits of business might permit such a fraud on the Union without receiving any benefit from it, I can well conceive. I at once took the only measure which I could to correct the matter for the future, by instructing the acting clerk to see that the number receiving rations should be altered to the number reported on by the Visiting Committee; but I see no way of correcting the matter completely until a new registry is made out, and a re-examination is made of every person receiving in-door relief. I also directed the acting clerk not to countersign any check for the master's salary until his accounts were settled; and as the clerk's office was accessible to the master, I also directed the acting clerk to search for and to retain in his custody the bond entered into by the master and his sureties.

31. At the meeting of the Guardians on Thursday, the master tendered his resignation, which was accepted; but I consider the master's conduct on the whole to be so bad that he should not be permitted to evade in this way your marked opinion of his incompetency and misconduct. I therefore beg to recommend that an order be at once issued for his dismissal; whether proceeding should not be taken against him for the fraud in drawing rations for numbers of persons not in the workhouse is for your consideration.

32. The attendance of Guardians at the meetings of the Board is anything but constant or regular; if an election of an officer happens to take place, there will be a large attendance, and as soon as the election is over, scarce a quorum will remain to transact the ordinary business.

33. I forward herewith a return giving the number of attendances of each Guardian for six months ending 31st December last, during which time 39 meetings of the Board were held; by this it will be seen that the ex-officio Guardians attended but seldom, with the exception of the Marquess of Ormonde, who, when in the country, never omits an opportunity of being present; the Honourable Mr. Wandesford, and Messrs. Sullivan and Smithwick; the average attendance of the other ex-officio Guardians is but three meetings during the half-year. The elected Guardians, those returned for the electoral division of Kilkenny, have attended on an average 20 meetings, while those elected for the rural electoral divisions have attended on an average but 10 meetings.

34. Since the administration of out-door relief, and that the meetings of the Board are obliged to be held almost daily, it is frequently found a matter of difficulty to secure the attendance of three Guardians to form a Board, in consequence the applications for relief are often heard and decided on by two Guardians, and in some instances by but only one Guardian; for although the names of several Guardians may appear on the minutes as being present, it is by no means a proof of their assisting in the business going on; many remain but for a short time, and the important matter of hearing and deciding on applications for relief is generally left to be transacted by not more than two or three Guardians.

35. On the following days during the last year, on which officers were to be elected, the number of Guardians who attended on each occasion was as follows:—

February 4,	election of master . . .	24
April 22,	do. of clerk . . .	37
August 12,	do. of relieving officers .	61
„ 20,	do. do . . .	60
October 14,	do. of matron . . .	39
December 16,	do. of assistant schoolmistress	27
„ 23,	do. of porter . . .	25

These being the largest attendances during the year: the attendance of Guardians at meetings for receiving and deciding on applications for relief during the last month (January, 1848) was as follows, viz.:—

January 7,	. 8	January 21,	. 14
„ 8,	. 5	„ 22,	. 7
„ 14,	. 8	„ 24,	. 7
„ 15,	. 6	„ 26,	. 4
„ 17,	. 9	„ 28,	. 4
„ 18,	. 8	„ 29,	. 5
„ 19,	. 8	„ 31,	. 10

But even this does not show the number who remained to do the business, which was generally left to one, two, or three Guardians.

36. The facts given in evidence as to the intemperate habits of some of the workhouse officers is not surprising, when it is a fact that even Guardians, to their shame be it told, set the example, and made the porter's lodge the clerk's office, and the Board-room the scenes of their carousing. Pierse Byron, the late porter, states “there was drinking going on in deponent's lodge; the master once or twice took a tumbler of punch with deponent in the lodge.” “There was one or two occasions where the collectors and relieving officers and Guardians who were met, and deponent gave them a glass of grog, this applied to two relieving officers, one collector, and two or three Guardians. Recollects the 24th December last; recollects that there was some whiskey drank in the clerk's room on that occasion by one of the Relief Committee, one of the Guardians, and two or three relieving officers; there was another Guardian present who was a teetotaller, and deponent; there was a Board on that day for receiving applications; it was after the Board broke up that the drinking went on in the clerk's office; there was only one or two glasses of grog drank by each; deponent was the only officer of the workhouse present; there was a pint bottle of whiskey; does not know if there was a second bottle sent for.” “On the 24th December last, when the drinking was going on in the clerk's office, deponent was sent for the master to come up and join in it, and deponent pressed the master several times, and he told him that the Guardian who was above at the time sent deponent for him, but the master refused."

Lawrence J. Den, the clerk of the Union, "is perfectly aware of drinking going on in deponent's office, and on one occasion about six weeks ago, he was obliged to lock himself up in the Board-room, and to remain there a prisoner for a considerable time after his day's work was done, to avoid importunity and being solicited to join in a drinking bout which was going on in his office; does not wish to mention the names of the parties who were drinking in his office on that occasion, but there was one Guardian at all events, one relieving officer; believes the late porter was there; recollects on one occasion after the Board had adjourned, spirits and porter being sent for by some of the Guardians and drank in the Board-room; there were two or three Guardians joined in drinking the spirits and porter, and deponent took half-a-glass of the porter, but would much rather at the time have gone home after his day's labour to his dinner; considering that these Guardians would have thought it offensive his going away, he merely remained lest his going might be considered in that light." "Recollects the 23rd September last, it was the day that the tenders were taken for the current half-year, and amongst the samples were a considerable quantity of samples of wine and spirits; those samples were opened and partaken of by the Guardians and deponent; deponent was fasting all day, and took a tumbler of wine, which made him deadly sick, and he went down and threw himself on the porter's bed to sleep."

37. Considering the present position of the Union, and the manner in which its affairs have hitherto been mismanaged, I have no hesitation in giving it as my decided opinion that this Union will never be conducted as it should be by the Board of Guardians as at present constituted, the whole working of the Union being left to a comparatively small number of Guardians, representing neither the property nor the interests of the great body of the rate-payers of this the fifth Union in Ireland in point of extent and value, and all but the fifth in point of population.

ENCLOSURES.

I.

Mr. PHELAN to Mr. J. BURKE.

Kilkenny, February 10, 1848.

I WENT to the workhouse late last night, and after some examination of the Register and Admission and Discharge Book, I went through the several dormitories accompanied by the master and porter in going over the male side, and by the matron and schoolmistress in the female side.

I reckoned the paupers in each dormitory, including those in the probationary wards, and found them to amount to 1,207, viz., 1,084 in the upper dormitories, and 123 in the above wards. I had previously ascertained that about 84 sleep in the two aged and infirm dormitories. The infirmary and connecting portions formed out of the idiot cells, &c., contain 140; there are 100 boys sleeping in the brewery premises, and 218 in the fever hospital and Magdalene Asylum. All those make a total of 1,749. The Admission and Discharge Book gives the number in the house last night to be 2,048, there is here a discrepancy of about 300.

I asked the master if he brought me to all places where any paupers slept, and he answered in the affirmative, and I inquired if any slept except in the brewery, fever hospital, and asylum, his answer was, that none sleep elsewhere.

I think it likely that there were some paupers about the master's and matron's rooms, and some assistant nurses and ward-maids, which were not included in my enumeration; but even if there were 10 or 20 such, a large deficit still remains to be accounted for.

Some inquiry on this subject appears to be immediately necessary.

II.

In compliance with a resolution passed by the Board this day, we the undersigned in company with the master, matron, Mr. Phayer, and the acting clerk, counted the inmates and found the house to contain the following numbers—1,497.

February 10, 1848.

JAMES KELLY.

T. BRENNAN, Acting Clerk to the Union.

In addition, Mr. Lanigan visited the brewery, house of recovery, and fever hospital, and gives the following numbers in each :—

And we further find that it appears by the books of the house that there were 2,035 inmates on the night of Saturday the 5th instant, inclusive, and that from the morning of the 6th inclusive, up to ten o'clock, p.m., on the 10th instant, there were 203 discharges, 168 admissions, and 16 deaths.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—February 23, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received and had under consideration a report from their inspector, Mr. Burke, detailing the results of an investigation which he conducted during eight days, into the state of Kilkenny workhouse, and into the management of Kilkenny Union, by the Board of Guardians. The Commissioners have likewise received from Mr. Burke a copy of the evidence on which his report was founded.

As the investigation was public, and lasted during so long a period, the Guardians will probably be prepared for the impression which the report and the evidence have made upon the minds of the Commissioners. It appears to the Commissioners that notwithstanding the valuable services of individual Guardians, the management of the Guardians as a Board has been defective in every department of their duties; in the collection of the rates, in the superintendence of the workhouse, and in the distribution of relief, and on the whole, the Commissioners have deemed it advisable that an Order should be issued for the dissolution of the Kilkenny Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners transmit herewith to the Guardians a copy of Mr. Burke's report. But at the same time they deem it right to state that the main point which has influenced the Commissioners in deciding to dissolve the Board is the very unsatisfactory and embarrassed condition of the finances of Kilkenny Union.

It appears that on the 31st ultimo, the debts of the Union amounted to 6,584*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*; while on the 15th instant, the date of Mr. Burke's report, no less than 39 Guardians had not paid the current rate. Mr. Burke acquaints the Commissioners that some of these Guardians had told him that they had not been called upon to pay; but making every allowance for this fact the Commissioners must observe that it was a part of their functions as Guardians to see that the collectors did their duty in calling upon the rate-payers to pay the rates due from each respectively, and it could not be supposed that the great body of the rate-payers would promptly discharge their legal liabilities, while rates remained unpaid by as many as 39 Guardians.

The Commissioners request the Board of Guardians to transact business as usual at their meeting to-morrow, and to give all necessary orders for the due relief of destitution during the next week. The order for the dissolution of the Board of Guardians will be issued by to-morrow evening's post; and the Commissioners will proceed with the least possible delay to appoint paid officers to manage the affairs of the Union.

Kilkenny Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

IN reference to your letter of the 3rd instant, and the Circular of the 26th October, 1847, enclosed therein, with which we have been honoured, we beg to submit to the Commissioners the following report, detailing such state as we found the affairs of Kilkenny Union in; the steps we have as yet taken; and our views as to the future management of the workhouse and of the affairs of the Union.

Upon our first examination of the workhouse and adjoining grounds, we were struck by the unmistakeable evidence which was everywhere presented of loosened discipline. The neglected and much-trampled garden plots, the walks ill-cared for, full of water-pools, the land (capable of being made a nice kitchen-garden) lying idle, the yards badly kept, and in many places filthy; and especially the number of men, of all ages, lounging lazily about, told of habitual absence of supervision; nor do these remarks upon the general condition of the yards, &c., apply to those near the house only, but also to those attached to other houses held by the Guardians, and to the fever hospital, to a degree especially disgraceful. So systematic was this neglect, that we have been informed by one of the medical officers (Dr. Lawlor) that after frequent remark, without receiving any attention, "they grew tired of speaking of what they despaired of getting remedied."

We at once gave directions about altering this state of things, putting certain portions of the premises under the care of certain paupers, and giving them a power to select as many as they required to have everything neat and orderly, made each responsible to the master for the charge thus entrusted to him.

For the first few days it was plainly difficult to move the mass of laziness and inactivity, and, we may add, insubordination; but by determinedly persevering to have done certain work pointed out, a better spirit is showing itself.

It shall receive our immediate and constant attention to have a neat appearance in the workhouse grounds, and cleanliness and order exist on the premises.

A variety of matters came under our notice, the results of supervision referred to; thus, the houses attached to the probationary wards were crammed full of clothes which had been taken from those who had died in the workhouse or were still therein. Not only was robbery, as we were informed, frequent here, but the state of these houses, from the quantities of badly-cleansed clothing, was such as to make entrance absolutely impossible to us.

Bundles of such clothing we found also in the matron's store, these were clean and awaited condemnation, being charged against the master in the clothing books.

Again, all through the house we found quantities of glass broken in the windows, the lanterns in the dormitories mere skeletons, injuries to the roof not repaired, and a variety of other matters, of more or less importance, which never should have been allowed to remain so a second week.

Upon such as appeared to be of an urgent nature, we issued immediate orders, but do not expect a general change for the better until an efficient master be got.

In continuation of this line of observation we may here remark on the contrast presented by the inmates on the male and female sides of the house.

The day-room of the former is a disgusting sight, the paupers noisy and turbulent, crowded, young and old, about the fire-place, their clothing, in many instances, torn and ragged, their linen dirty, even filthy, as may be conceived when we learned many had not changed for two weeks and longer.

To enumerate the employment and training at the male side: a tailor is receiving 12s. a-week salary, and with him about a dozen boys are occupied; a shoemaker receives a like sum, one man (a pauper) and about eight boys are at work; about half a dozen are engaged pounding the limestone of the neighbourhood for scouring in the house; one man, a journeyman and two boys (all paupers) are engaged at the carpenter's workshop; and a weaver, receiving a certain sum per yard for the produce of his loom, which is used in the house. This completes an account of the occupation at the male side.

With much satisfaction we found a wide difference among the females: 21 spinning wheels are at work; knitting is busily carried on, and those not thus engaged among the able-bodied women, are making up clothing; in fact, except the nurses, the convalescents, who very judiciously have a portion of the room appropriated to themselves, and do not mix among the employed, and the very aged, of whom there are but few, no female pauper is unoccupied. In the employments above mentioned, the laundry, kitchen, and care of the dormitories, all are engaged. We feel bound to express our conviction that a state of things so satisfactory is apparently attributable to the care and attention of the matron, Mrs. M'Quade, for whom, too, the paupers evidently entertain a feeling of respect.

We feel that while immediate steps must be taken to put an end to the disgraceful sloth which has been permitted to grow upon the men and boys in the house, that little interference is requisite with the females.

The next point to which we would advert as claiming attention, is the condition of the schools and the children therein; and here it may be well to notice a circumstance in connexion with them, which belongs to a class of evils in the arrangements of the house, that it will be our duty to deal with as soon as sufficient funds come into our hands.

Along the front wall of the main building, and immediately over the line of windows of both school-rooms, are sheds, of little advantage, that we can see, but of positive injury to the children, excluding the entrance of the cheerful sunlight into the rooms, darkening them considerably, and so preventing the enjoyment of light so necessary to the proper growth of the young, and causing, we are sure, these apartments to be of a much lower temperature than they would otherwise be.

Between the male and female schools, too, a marked difference exists.

In the latter, the children who are of a sufficient age are engaged at neat work, stockings, collars, and such articles of ladies' dress; others at making up clothing, and some knitting.

The children generally present a cheerful, contented appearance, the apparent result of occupation judiciously diversified so as to make it pleasant to them.

On the other hand, the boys cannot but appear unhappy; a large number have sore feet or itch, and the medical officers state that their orders in reference to the treatment thereof have not been attended to. We think it needless to speak at any length of the boys' school, as the present schoolmaster is obviously an incompetent officer, and he having resigned, an opportunity offers of arranging a different system and carrying it out under his successor.

We find the provision stores of the house under the superintendence of Alicia Phelan, who appears among the list of officers designated "Nurse."

The whole system in connexion with the stores appears to be a lax one, as may be conceived when we state the following facts, having reference to the entering up of the important accounts:—Forms 11 and 12, the Provision Check and Provision Receipt and Consumption Accounts, and to the number of paupers charged as consuming food in the former account.

We have learned that this book (Forms 11 and 12) is kept by a young man who appears to be assistant both to the clerk and to the master, as in entering up this book he is doing the duty of the latter, although the clerk, having him as an assistant, relies upon his entries in this same book as correct.

As it is well known that the several numbers entered as those of the classes in the house are not the real numbers therein, the mode adopted to make the amount at foot of Form 11 and carried on to Form 12, appear as the quantity of food really consumed by the numbers in the house, is by deducting from the foot of Form 11 the quantities of provisions found to remain after all in the house are fed. We purpose remodelling the entire present arrangements as to the stores. We believe Miss Phelan, an intelligent and respectable officer, could be very usefully employed as assistant to the matron, and that the care of the stores and books connected therewith could be otherwise and more judiciously conducted.

But this is a matter for future consideration and decision.

In the house arrangements of the hospital, which is under the care of nurse Haw, we found much untidiness.

The arrangements in connexion with requisitions have been also unsatisfactory, but having represented to the medical officers that we looked to them for the exercise of their attention, by the performance of the duties prescribed to them as officers, to prevent injury to the interests of the Union, and having met from these gentlemen in this, as in all other matters in which we consulted them, the utmost readiness to carry out our views, we trust that matters will be better arranged for the future.

With reference to the fever hospital, of which the Union occupies but a part, and to the several fever hospitals established in various divisions of the Union, we have not as yet obtained such information as would call for a report.

An useful arrangement has been made by the occupancy of a house (formerly a Magdalene Asylum), as a convalescent ward for fever patients; it contains at present about 35 patients.

A large concern (formerly a brewery) has been used as an auxiliary workhouse, and is now used as a dormitory for boys; it is but indifferently suited for any purpose we could make of it, but it may serve as a dormitory for about 300 persons, and so relieve the pressure, should the workhouse be generally accepted by the able-bodied previously on the out-door relief lists. At present, with the intention of pushing this test as far as we can, we have put 150 children to sleep there, and so relieved the workhouse.

In concluding our remarks upon the house, we have to remark that many matters in connexion with the sanitary arrangements will, from time to time, call for alteration. The sewerage is palpably faulty; we have taken steps to have an arrangement, previously entered into with the Waterford and Kilkenny Railway Company, having reference to this important matter, carried into immediate effect. Sleeping galleries, of which we highly disapprove, have been erected in two of the principal dormitories. The ventilation, too, may evidently be improved; indeed, if funds were in our hands to effect some desirable changes, much could be done to increase the healthiness and convenience of the workhouse.

We have to reiterate our previously-expressed opinion, that the very unsatisfactory condition in which we found matters is, to a great extent, traceable to a want of active and energetic superintendence. We have strong hopes that a new and effective staff of officers, viz., master, porter, schoolmaster, and assistant schoolmistress (with such additions as we may hereafter see prudent to make), will exercise, under our care, an active proper conduct of the establishment.

We cannot use language sufficiently strong to express our conviction of the wanton lavish expenditure under the out-door relief system in this Union. The evidence recently taken before Mr. Inspector Burke prepared us for the manner in which the funds of the Union have been spent. As we shall make a detailed report hereafter of our progress in putting this system upon a legal footing, we shall content ourselves now by mentioning to the Commissioners some facts which have been brought under our notice by the relieving officers among the applications for relief.

1. Of an able-bodied labourer, having work, came to the relieving officer to seek relief, and grounded his application upon the fact of his wages being insufficient to support those dependent on him. This statement was not to be doubted when it was ascertained that the remuneration he received for a day's work was his food and one penny!

2. Of an able-bodied labourer in the employment of a member of the late Board; the relieving officer's statement was that this Guardian forced the man's name upon the books for out-door relief, saying to the Board, that he being a heavy ratepayer the favour was due to him.

The effect of applying the workhouse test to the able-bodied applying for relief appears in the following:—

3. Being engaged on Monday, the 6th instant, until a late hour in the evening adjudicating upon applications from the Kilkenny division alone, we admitted to the house

87 women, and
170 children.

Upon making inquiry the following morning how many had availed themselves of this relief, we found that

7 men,
5 women, and
3 children,

only had entered the house.

We are deeply sensible of the importance of freeing the Union from its present position of embarrassment and difficulty, and with this feeling are determined to use every power we possess to procure the immediate collection of the rate outstanding.

With this object, and to encourage the friendly disposition existing among the rate-payers towards the management of a paid Board of the Union, we have acted upon a valuable suggestion of Mr. Burke, and having first submitted the draft to him, and received his approval of it, have published an address, in which we appeal to the common sense of the rate-payers to pay up their rates, and so enable us to act freely, not hampered by the present position of the Union.

We have also called the attention of the collectors to the state of their collections; and finding that three, who should have attended on Monday for the examination of their accounts, did not do so, and that this negligence was frequent, we took the opportunity of impressing by circular upon all the necessity of the punctual discharge of this important duty, and our determination to deal summarily with any officer trifling with the orders of the Commissioners and of the Board.

In this department, as in most elsewhere in this Union, indifference to duty had grown into a habit.

If proper diligence were used in bringing in the rate, the whole outstanding debt could speedily be liquidated, and sufficient would still remain of the present rate to give time for consideration before another should be made. The present amount of old cheques outstanding is 1453*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; upon the 1st of March the other liabilities of the Union amounted to 1890*l.*; these sums being met, a balance would remain of the present rate of, say 11,000*l.*, of which, we fear, a considerable portion will not be available.

We purpose watching for a week or two the progress of collection, urged on as it has been, and in the meantime taking steps to prevent irregularities now in this department.

An arrangement had been made with the Treasurer, by which the cheques to the clerks and relieving officers are first met. As certain persons, such as milk-venders, workmen, &c., must be paid in cash, it has been the habit to grant a cheque for 30*l.* and upward to the clerk, to pay "sundry small bills." We need not say how much we disapprove of this irregularity, which the state of the finances has produced.

It was the just intention of the late Board, that when the cheques above named were met, that the balance in the treasurer's hands should be expended in paying off the old cheques, the oldest being first met.

It has been said, however, that in the payment of these old cheques a preference has sometimes been given to particular persons, holders of cheques of a date later than others unpaid.

To end a system which has been of great loss to the Union, shall receive our anxious efforts.

The present condition of the rate books calls for revision.

We do not think it prudent to contemplate a re-valuation of the whole Union at present, on account of the expense of such a step, the want of time, and prudential reasons, but we do think some arrangement is necessary, not only to put a stop to the present system of appeals before the assistant-barrister at sessions, and law costs of defending such suits, but more particularly to have books so important, not the grossly incorrect documents they now are.

The difficulty of closing collectors' warrants correctly is obvious, as long as these books are so incorrect, and the loss yearly to the Union must be very great when it is considered that many years have elapsed since these books were made out, that few alterations have been made in them since, but that many changes have taken place in the division and value of tenements.

We have sought the advice of Mr. Burke on this subject, previous to taking any decided step, yet feel an early step is necessary.

We have now adverted to each department of the Union, and as far as present observation has permitted, given our views for the consideration of the Commissioners.

In obedience to their directions we shall, from week to week, forward an account of our progress, and shall look with anxiety for the Commissioners' opinion upon our acts in discharge of the duties imposed upon us.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 8th instant, on the state in which on your appointment you found the workhouse of

Kilkenny Union.

Kilkenny Union and its auxiliary buildings, the administration of out-door relief, the collection of the rate, the debts of the Union, and the rate-books.

The Commissioners desire to express their thanks for this report, which so amply supplies information on all objects of importance to be considered in providing for a better administration of the Poor Relief Acts in the Union.

They request you to proceed as proposed to provide proper persons for the duties of master, porter, schoolmaster, and assistant schoolmistress; and that in making arrangements for the maintenance of discipline, order, and cleanliness in the workhouse, you will make such changes in the assistants as may appear necessary for securing a due observance of the regulations.

The Commissioners recommend a close examination into the relieving officers' books, and the fitness of each of these officers; they also recommend that as soon as your attention can be given to the relief districts, you should visit the relief stations, that you may have an opportunity of seeing the recipients of relief already on the books. For this object the Commissioners will be prepared to make an allowance sufficient to defray the weekly expense that may be incurred for conveyances, as soon as the amount can be averaged.

Your particular attention should also be given to the state of the collectors' books, and the fitness of each of the persons employed in this important branch of the Union business; also the arrears due, and the proceedings to be taken for recovery of them, in respect to which the Commissioners desire to refer to their circular which was issued with their order of the 25th October last, to point out the several means for recovery of rates due by occupiers; also to their circular of the 14th January last, stating the modes of proceeding against immediate lessors.

The Commissioners observe that a person is employed to keep the accounts of both the clerk and master. They approve of your terminating so injudicious an arrangement; and request you to provide for the efficient performance of the several executive duties committed to your management.

With respect to the rate-books, they recommend you to make the collectors available as far as possible for obtaining information as to existing occupiers, tenements, and immediate lessors; much will also depend in the efficiency of the clerk, whose duty it is to record all information necessary for the new rate; and you will necessarily require a person of experience, integrity, and intelligence to revise the valuation where changes affecting the value of particular holdings have occurred.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 14th instant, and rejoice to learn our views in reference to the management of such departments of this Union as we have expressed an opinion upon have met the approval of the Commissioners.

We think it needless upon the present occasion to do more than advert to such particular subjects as we feel call for special remark upon our parts; and in reference to minutes of proceeding of the 9th instant, to state that we thought it desirable to interest fully and sincerely in the business of the house that intelligent officer, the present matron, and accordingly have recommended the addition of 10% to her yearly salary.

As in an establishment so extensive as this the duties of matron must, to a great extent, consist in supervision and direction, we have considered it desirable that Miss Alicia Phelan should be transferred to the assistance of the matron; and while we believe a means will thus be given to the latter officer of giving a more extended care to the condition of the charge intrusted to her, we feel little doubt that the duties imposed upon the new assistant will be carefully performed.

The care of the stores has been given to a man lately a pauper in the house, and reduced to that condition through ill health. Bearing a very good character in the house, and producing satisfactory testimonials as to his previous life, he seemed to us from his long presence as assistant in the care of the stores to be worthy to be put upon a small salary, and thus given an interest in the careful discharge of his duty.

We trust these steps in carrying out our views, as stated in our report of the 8th instant, will be conducive to the efficient working of the house management.

We also hope that a satisfactory result will follow our application to the National Board of Education for a schoolmaster, and will be very careful in the selection of a man of good character and apparent competency for the office of porter.

We have every reason to hope that our selection as master and assistant schoolmistress will be for the advantage of the house.

The change we have made in the rations for officers seemed called for; the previous arrangement was obviously an absurd one, as the greater part of the provisions was not used by some officers to whom they were dispensed.

In reference to Patrick O'Gorman (master), with regard to whom you express, in your communication of the 14th instant, the Commissioners' intention to issue an order for his dismissal, we think it an act of justice to state, he has furnished a return of the quantity of provisions deducted by him from the foot of the Provision Check Account as not having been consumed by the numbers alleged to be in the house. The value of the provisions thus deducted amounts by this return, which is made up to the 23rd week of the present half-year (the week ending 4th March instant), to 331*l.* 15*s.* 1½*d.* He has given this with the object of showing that if a large number of persons were stated to be in the house who were not so, that he did not charge as consumed provisions for the entire number entered.

Thomas Ryan, who has been appointed master, has been engaged with the present master since Monday morning taking stock. It will be for the Commissioners to say when that person will commence pay as master, as O'Gorman is manifestly the officer to be recognized until his dismissal.

In reference to the collection of rates, we have thought it necessary to recommend the dismissal of the collector in whose district the collection has been apparently the most neglected in the Union, and who seemed to us to have taken no trouble to carry out the directions we had specially and strenuously imposed upon him. Thus, upon the 2nd March, the progress made by the several collectors was in the following per centage, viz., 84, 71½, 52, 51½, 40½, 38½, 37, and (Grace) 28½. His attention was immediately and forcibly called to the state of his collection, and in a few days the circular, a copy of which was inserted in the minutes of the 6th instant, was addressed to him in common with the other collectors.

Upon his attendance for examination of his books upon the following day (the 7th instant), at our desire he made out a list of the 10 highest rate-payers in each of his divisions whose rates were still unpaid, and received our particular directions that these sums should be paid, proceedings taken, or some reason given for his not having done so.

Upon his next attendance, the balances remaining unpaid, amount of the rates of these 10 persons, and the amount collected out of that amount, were as follows:—

Freshford	£1257 12 8½	£262 16 3	£0 0 0
Tullaroan	502 13 7½	110 2 0	20 1 5½
Clomanta	454 10 7½	139 16 7	6 2 11½
Total	2214 16 11½	512 14 10	26 4 5

For having done so little to get in this large sum, 512*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.*, he gave us no satisfactory reason.

The total amount of his collection for the week ending 14th March, notwithstanding our urgent directions, was 115*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, less than his previous week's collection by 60*l.*

We have advertized for a successor, as 2099*l.* 4*s.* 8½*d.* remains uncollected of the 3358*l.* 13*s.* 6½*d.*, upon the electoral divisions in his districts.

A disposition to urge on the collection appears more or less strong in the other collectors, and we hope that this example of our determination to deal promptly with such as neglect their duty, will act both upon the collectors and on those rate-payers who have long expected and received indulgence in the payment of their rates. The information we continue to receive of the state of the present rate books has fully impressed us with the necessity of allowing no further delay to take place in commencing an attempt to revise them, and we feel great pleasure in learning that the Commissioners think that a person will be required to take the care of the valuation of the Union.

Kilkenny Union.

We feel we would be concurrent parties to a great injustice by perpetuating an arrangement acting so unfairly.

The wrong to individuals is manifold, to the Union considerable: thus, cases exist where persons are rated for greater quantities of land than they hold, and also of valuable premises having been raised upon the sites of poor tenements for the ratings of which only they are liable.

We would respectfully ask of the Commissioners, upon a perusal of the above statement, to take into consideration the propriety of sending down two or more competent persons who would at once commence a revision of different portions of the Union.

We think it well to suggest such a step as the evil is very great, and as so extensive an Union, in which there is so much to have examined and corrected, could not be revised by one person in a sufficiently short time.

The necessity of retaining, as relieving officers especially, only persons who possess a blameless character for morality and propriety, is evident. We were anxious, therefore, to obtain some information in reference to rumours which had reached us as to the unfitness for the office of one relieving officer, and sought to ascertain if cause existed for believing this person unfit to hold such office. We have learned sufficient, we think, to warrant us in suggesting to him the propriety of sending in his resignation if he be conscious his conduct could not bear investigation.

We would wish to call the attention of the Commissioners to the unsatisfactory arrangements in reference to the fever hospital situated in the neighbourhood of the workhouse.

It is now partly occupied by the Union and its officers, and partly by the Governors of the County and City Fever Hospital, and a staff supported by them. This arrangement has produced an unsatisfactory community to some extent of property, but a division of blame. The yards and out premises we found much neglected and even filthy, and excuses were ready attributing the blame in most cases to the governor's servants.

The building was originally the County and City Fever Hospital, and in consequence of want of funds on the part of the governors, a portion was given up to the Board of Guardians at a yearly rent of 5*l.*, which is paid to the governors.

It was used subsequently, not only by the governors and by the Guardians, but also by the Relief Committee—(see statement in Guardians' minutes of 28th October, 1847).

It appears that after much discussion between the Board of Guardians, the Relief Committee, and the Board of Health, it was finally decided by the letter of the Poor Law Commissioners, 21st December, 1847, that the Fever Hospital was to be under the management of the Board of Guardians.

We recur to this matter as stock is now being taken and a disposition has been evinced on the part of "the Relief Committee," who profess to be in existence under the denomination of the "Kilkenny Hospital Committee," to claim a right of ownership in the sheeting, bedding, &c., placed in the Fever Hospital by the Relief Committee.

We would wish to receive the directions of the Commissioners in this matter, more particularly as regards coffins, of which there are many on the premises, and which are now delivered by the (Union) matron of the hospital, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, upon the orders of some members of the Hospital Committee and its clerk.

In reference to this matter we have just received a letter, of which a copy is appended. We have stated in reply that we have referred the matter to the Commissioners for instructions.

We would wish you would be so good as to state if the Relief Committee still really exists in the Union, or if the one previously in existence has been dissolved, and if we are justified in handing over to them the property they claim.

A question has arisen as to the right of members of the late Board of Guardians to continue members of Relief Committees, they having become such as Poor Law Commissioners.

As our opinion has been questioned, we seek the decision of the Commissioners.

ENCLOSURE.

Kilkenny Union.

Mr. BRENNAN to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 16, 1848.

Mr. William Lanigan has handed me a copy of a resolution which purports to have formed a part of your proceedings on yesterday the 15th instant, ordering Mrs. Hamilton, chief nurse of fever hospital, not to give coffins or any other property now under her charge to any person except upon the order of Mr. Thomas Ryan, master of the workhouse.

In reply to this I am instructed by the Relief Committee to inform you that there are many articles at the fever hospital which are still their property, amongst the rest all the coffins in the dead and clothes house.

This information you will find correct, as no coffins were ever sent over from the workhouse until a death or deaths took place. You will please cause the key of the dead-house to be handed over by Mrs. Hamilton to Mrs. Harvey, the person selected by us to take charge of our property.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report of the 16th instant, received on Saturday last, relating to the Kilkenny Union, and they desire me to state that they approve the proposed increase in the salary of the matron of the workhouse, and the employment of Alicia Phelan as her assistant.

The Commissioners generally object to the appointment of persons who have been paupers in a workhouse as paid officers of the house, but under the circumstances you mention, and having regard to the nature of the duty to be performed, the Commissioners will not decline to sanction the employment of the person to whom you refer as storekeeper at the salary proposed. The Commissioners have at the same time to observe, that every pauper inmate of a workhouse should be employed in such work as he may be best capable of performing, and that he is bound to give the Union the full benefit of his services without any extra remuneration.

The Commissioners have read your observations with respect to Mr. O'Gorman, the late master of the workhouse, but they do not deem the circumstances set forth to be sufficient to warrant them in withholding the order which has been prepared for his dismissal. His pay must cease from the date of the order, and that of his successor may then commence.

The Commissioners fully approve of your causing the most vigorous steps to be adopted for the collection of the poor-rates in the Union. They trust that the example afforded by the dismissal of Mr. Grace will have a beneficial effect upon the rest of the collectors in stimulating them to a zealous and energetic discharge of their duties.

The Commissioners will not object to the appointment of two persons to revise the valuation of the Union, but they would prefer that the duty should be discharged by one person with a view to the preservation of greater uniformity in the valuation. The Commissioners are not at present able to comply with your request to appoint two persons to act as revisors, and they must rely upon your endeavours to obtain the services of a competent person or persons by advertisement in the usual manner.

The Commissioners are prepared at once to dismiss any relieving officer who may be shown to be unfit for the office, or negligent in the discharge of his duties.

As regards the claims for the Relief Committee for Kilkenny, constituted under the Temporary Relief Act, I am to state that this Committee having received an order to provide temporary hospital accommodation, is still legally in existence; but as the management of the hospital has been transferred to the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners consider that any hospital requisites provided by the Committee with funds advanced by the Relief Commissioners, should be handed over to the Vice-Guardians for the use of the Union.

The Commissioners request to be informed how far the exercise of the powers of the Relief Committee under the Fever Acts may be necessary for Kilkenny electoral division; also, how many acting members of it have not been elected Guardians.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

No necessity exists for lengthened remarks in the present communication. In the house the keys have been handed to the new master, as stock has been taken. The Commissioners' order dismissing the previous master having arrived Thomas Ryan is now, therefore, in charge of the establishment.

The rates are not returning quite as large an amount of money as we would desire, but considering that the collection of the present rate is approaching the close, and that old habits have formed a large class unwilling to pay until compelled, against whom proceedings have been in many cases taken by summons, and otherwise, we conceive an exertion is being made pretty generally by the collectors.

We continue to urge upon them the most active and diligent exertion.

In obedience to the desire of the Commissioners we have advertised for persons qualified to undertake forthwith a revision of the present valuation of the Union; and in order to have preparation made for the commencement of this task, have called by public notice upon all having cause of complaint by reason of excessive or incorrect valuation to send in statements thereof without delay.

Our time continues to be much engaged with the out-door relief lists; the occupation in this respect is however lessening, as the previously numerous claims from classes not legally entitled to relief are diminishing from the stringent application of the workhouse test.

IN our communication of the 8th instant, we made mention of the absence of anything like employment among the great body of the male inmates of the workhouse of this Union.

Anxious as we were to alter a state of things so disgraceful and injurious, the occupation consequent upon the recent changes of the officers of the house diverted their attention from the matter, and with us the ordinary routine of business has nearly usurped our entire time. Upon the new master assuming the direction of the establishment we gave him orders to take early steps to procure for the whole of the able-bodied men some description of occupation.

A difficulty at once presented itself in the want of tools and implements. To avoid the delay of waiting to have such articles as were required made, as they should be here, we caused inquiries to be made as to the property of the Board of Works. In reference to this matter, we would call your attention to our minute of the 27th instant; the subject is important, the more so now as great insubordination has within the last few days manifested itself among the inmates, indeed to so great an extent as to call for the intervention of the civil power.

The necessity of giving to the paupers constant occupation, and thus preventing the mischievous results of idleness, has induced us to believe that the best use to which the land attached to the workhouse could be put, would be cultivation as a kitchen garden; this description of cultivation would require continual attention, and thus always afford employment to the inmates. To conduct this work would, however, require the close superintendence of a competent gardener, whose services could be put to other use on the premises at the close of the day. If this suggestion be approved of by the Commissioners, we would seek the engagement of some competent person.

We would despair of having the directions of this or indeed of any officer carried out unless supported by sufficient authority, for a depraved, vicious indolence has seized upon the male inmates. With the evidence of this daily presented to us, we were struck with the value of a suggestion of Captain Henry Evans (Inspector), to adopt a plan tried by him with good effect at the Roscommon Union, of having always a few persons to act as house police, whose duty it would be to enforce the orders of the house officers, and who could also be used as a night-watch, a proper arrangement for which is much needed here. Army pensioners could with advantage be employed in this capacity, and for such a small sum, as a salary, would suffice.

We have to express our acknowledgments of the valuable advice and co-operation of Captain Evans, and his anxiety to afford us the aid of his experience and intelligence.

Referring to your communication, dated March 20th instant, we have to state we have had under consideration your inquiry, "How far the exercise of the powers of the Relief Committee, under the Fever Acts, may be necessary for Kilkenny electoral division." We have already stated in our communication of the 16th instant, that the fever hospital for the district for which the committee is constituted, is under the management of the Guardians. Kilkenny Union.

There is no necessity manifestly for the existence of the committee for any purpose connected with this hospital; we believe the hospital can, with full effect and more economy, be managed as a portion of the workhouse, and under the same superintendence. At the present time, moreover, the great majority of cases in the hospital come direct from the workhouse.

But Relief Committees possess (under 10th Viet., c. 22,) powers of a very valuable kind. The provisions of the 8th, 9th, and 10th sections of the above Act, if actively exercised, would undoubtedly be productive of much advantage. We would call particular attention to the excellence of the working of the 16th section, which provides for the decent and proper interment of persons who have died of epidemic disease, and while receiving relief; and would respectfully express our regret that the existing state of the law does not permit the extension of this description of relief to other classes than the destitute poor mentioned above.

It is our belief that if this Relief Committee be permitted to remain in existence, it should be to act under the provisions above stated only.

We have much satisfaction in recording a large balance in the treasurer's hands to the credit of the Union, and in further stating, that an advantage to the Union has arisen by the terms on which we have taken contracts from the 25th instant, as tenders were in most cases offered at favourable terms from the appearance of prosperity in the financial affairs of the Union.

The present financial position of the Union, in comparison with periods in the two preceding months, is as follows:—

31st January.—Amount of checks outstanding unpaid	4323	16	1
„ Balance against the Union on treasurer's accounts	540	10	1
Total balance against the Union	4864	6	2
29th February.—Amount of checks outstanding unpaid	1903	11	7
„ Balance in favour of the Union on treasurer's accounts	801	2	3
Total balance against the Union	1102	9	4
25th March.—Balance in favour of the Union on treasurer's accounts	2710	9	4
„ Amount of checks outstanding unpaid	444	4	10
Total balance in favour of the Union	2266	4	6

I beg your immediate attention to the enclosed communication of one of the collectors to us.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. DEMPSEY to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 22, 1848.

I ENCLOSE you two copies of two summonses for rescue under the warrant of the Union, which came before the magistrates at petty sessions, Gowran, on yesterday, the 21st. The bench constituted the following magistrates:—Mr. Cooke, David Burtchell, William Flood, and J. K. Aylward. Mr. Cooke, acting as chairman, gave it as his opinion, that there should be a six days' notice served on the parties previous to distraining them under such warrants, and dismissed the cases, his brother magistrates agreeing with him of course. Gentlemen, you will be good enough to let me know how I am to act in future, and what course I must pursue for the speedy collection of the rate.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

I AM to state that, on the receipt of minutes of your proceedings on the 27th instant, the Commissioners directed application to be made to the Board of Works for the implements which you require. The Commissioners do not object to your appointing a person to instruct the boys in the workhouse in the cultivation of the ground attached to the workhouse. They rely upon your taking the necessary steps for maintaining order and discipline in the workhouse, and for employing the workhouse inmates in accordance with the 16th article of the Regulations.

The Commissioners wish to know how many persons you would propose to appoint as wardsmen, and what salaries you consider sufficient to secure the services of competent persons for the office.

The Commissioners will address you in a few days on the subject of the Kilkenny fever hospital.

I am to request that the Commissioners may be more fully informed of the proceedings which had been taken to obtain payment of the rates in the two cases referred to in Collector Dempsey's communication.

The Commissioners are of opinion, as at present informed, that it was not necessary for the collector to serve a six days' notice before he proceeded to distrain.

FURTHER LETTER from the COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—
April 10, 1848.

WITH reference to your report of the 29th ultimo, the Commissioners desire to observe that the Relief Committee for Kilkenny electoral division, being one of those continued by the 14th section of the Act 10 Vict., c. 22, it may notwithstanding the transfer of the temporary fever hospital, exercise the powers given by sections 8, 9, 10, and 16, of the Act 10 Vict., c. 22.

With regard to the decision of the magistrates in a case of rescue, where they dismissed the complaint, as the distress was made without giving six days' notice, the Commissioners have only referred to the first portion of section 152, in the 6 and 7 Wm. IV., c. 116, which expressly authorizes distress without such notice; and they also refer to the 78th section of the 1 and 2 Vict., c. 56, which empowers distress without notice, if the rate be two months due.

REFERRING to your communication, dated March 30, 1848, in which you express the decided opinion of the Commissioners of the necessity of placing upon out-door relief all the infirm in the workhouse—a class of whose destitution there is no doubt—we wish to say, that impressed with this opinion of the Commissioners, and feeling ourselves that the workhouse is, in reality, the test of destitution, which feeling experience has served to prove well founded, we have not lost sight since our arrival here of the Commissioners' views upon the subject, but have, from time to time, removed from the workhouse persons belonging to that class. The return at the head of the minutes sent from this Union of "Aged and infirm" includes all the adults (save nurses and other officers) in the chronic hospital, fever hospital, and convalescent house, as well as in the infirm wards; it will thus be seen that an idea not strictly correct is conveyed by the return. There is room for over 200 in the workhouse, and we are of opinion that this amount of further accommodation will not be decreased. To provide, however, against an emergency we have inspected some premises, and directed the agent to ascertain on what terms they could be obtained.

In reference to the communication of Sir R. I. Routh, March 24, 1848, respecting unserviceable bedding in the barrack stores at Castlecomer, which has been referred to us, we have directed applications to be made to the several fever hospitals to ascertain the state of their stock of bedding.

We are of opinion, that if these stores were put into our possession, that good use could be made of them in many cases of aged and destitute persons leaving the workhouse on out-door-relief, but having no bedding for themselves. This view is of course irrespective of the necessity (if such exists) of supplying the fever hospitals.

We have been very much occupied during the past week in closing the half-yearly accounts of contractors. This has been a task of time and labour, for no system existed in the ordering or procuring requisites. It is stated by respectable contractors, and the statement is verified by the clerk, that goods were constantly ordered by the master or some other officer, and frequently by members of the Board going individually to the establishments; that they supplied frequently without any contract, and that they found no difficulty in obtaining payments for goods thus supplied. Kilkenny Union.

We had therefore to make many references to the workhouse books, to the private account books of the traders, and, in some cases, to require declarations before magistrates, before the payment of accounts.

We could not of course visit upon those persons the errors which had their necessary origin in the system of business pursued; but no such excuse for the non-production of all vouchers can be produced under our management.

Referring to your question (in your letter, March 31, 1848) concerning the proceedings taken by collector Dempsey, we beg to call your attention to his letter appended to our communication of the 29th instant.

The number of persons we would seek to appoint as house police (or wardsmen) would be four; and as efficient persons were had in Roscommon Union at 1s. per day each, we would propose to pay a similar sum.

The pressure of business during the past week prevents us from entering more fully into the state of the Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 10, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have made application to the Commissary-General to have the supply of cast military bedding in the barrack stores at Castlecomer placed at your disposal.

I am at the same time to express the Commissioners' sanction of the proposed appointment of four wardsmen for the workhouse for as long a period as the employment of such persons may be deemed to be necessary.

The Commissioners are desirous of being informed whether it is proposed to allow rations to those persons in addition to the allowance of 1s. per day.

MILFORD UNION.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 31, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Milford Board of Guardians this day, and have the honour to submit the following report on their proceedings:—

Notwithstanding a severe fall of snow, and the inclement state of the weather, there was a tolerably full attendance of Guardians.

The relieving officers' books were examined, and the applications appearing on them were adjudicated upon according to their merits.

The relieving officers have not kept their books so accurately as might be desired; but the great pressure on the workhouse, on the days of the meetings of the Board of Guardians, prevented the Board from going into the cases on the books so methodically as they would otherwise have done. The arrears of cases have however been now disposed of; and, in future, none will, I trust, be allowed to accrue. In consequence of the arrear of business above mentioned, the clerk has hitherto been unable to furnish your Board with the statistics of the out-door relief afforded in this Union; but he applied to-day to the Board for some assistance in writing up the Out-door Relief Register, &c., and hopes to be able next week to supply all the information which should be given in the weekly minutes.

In my weekly report for the week ended January 29th, I mentioned that I attended an inquest held on that day at the Milford Union workhouse, on the body of a woman named Susan M'Clafferty, who had been admitted on the previous Wednesday, and died on the following morning at 4 o'clock.

You will, of course, be furnished with a copy of the evidence taken at the inquest in this case; and I will now state, as briefly as possible, the circumstances attending it, to show how far it bears upon the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor.

The deceased was a common vagrant, and was given shelter for a night in the house of a man named Charles M'Gettigan, living in the electoral division of Oughterlin. Deceased during the course of the night for which she had received shelter became unwell, and being unable to resume her mendicant walk on the following morning remained for eight days in M'Gettigan's house, and was supposed to have fever. He sent for the priest, who said it was a case for the workhouse; and M'Gettigan, without applying to the relieving officer of the district, put the poor woman on a car, and took her a distance of six miles in a bitter cold day to the workhouse. The master of the workhouse, in accordance with instructions given him, refused to admit the woman into the house until the medical officer had seen her, and pronounced whether she laboured under fever or other infectious disease. In consequence of the overcrowded state of the hospital and fever sheds at the workhouse, the relieving officers had been instructed by the Board of Guardians to send no person in fever or other infectious sickness to the workhouse until the Board of Guardians should communicate to them that there was vacant room in the hospital and fever sheds, and to provide provisionally lodging, medical assistance, &c., for urgent cases of fever, &c., brought under their notice in their respective districts.

In the case of Susan M'Clafferty, no application was made to the relieving officer; neither had any Guardian given an order for her admission to the workhouse.

There is considerable ignorance, or at least affected ignorance, amongst the harbourers of vagrants, relative to the proper course to be pursued, before they can get rid of their guests; and they are daily thrusting out people to die, or are bringing them in a moribund state to the poorhouse.

I, therefore, thought it right to bring Susan M'Clafferty's case under the attention of the Board to-day, and to suggest to them the propriety of having hand-bills thrown off, and posted in conspicuous places throughout the Union, setting forth the proper and the humane course to be adopted by parties who might be similarly situated with Charles M'Gettigan, in having casual visitors of the same description as Susan M'Clafferty.

The Board of Guardians requested me to draw out a hand-bill of the kind I proposed, and (with your sanction) I will do so. The hand-bill should, of course, be signed by the clerk of the Union, "By order of the Board of Guardians;" and thus no plea of ignorance on the part of persons guilty of inhumane conduct could be sustained; and the Board of Guardians could not be subjected to unjust aspersions too readily adopted by that portion of the public who do not understand the difficulties which at present beset the local administrators of the laws for the relief of the poor.

The rate collectors got in during the last week a sum of 230*l.*; and they are taking vigorous measures (assisted by the Guardians and myself) to enforce payment by all defaulters.

I went over the workhouse ground to-day, and saw the site of the new fever hospital staked out. In order to avoid disturbing the bodies of paupers buried on the workhouse grounds, an alteration in the site of the fever hospital has been made, bringing it a few feet further from the outer fence than was at first determined upon; and the contractor and his sureties have agreed to write a letter to the Board of Guardians, covenanting that the alteration of the site shall in no way vitiate their bonds.

The change of site is rather an advantage than otherwise to the contractor.

I also saw the sheds to be erected in the girls' yard staked out, in accordance with the plan approved of; and the foundations will be dug to-morrow, weather permitting.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 3, 1848.

WITH reference to your remarks respecting the death of Susan M'Clafferty, I am to state, the Commissioners have received no information respecting her case, except that which is contained in your report.

The Commissioners are desirous of knowing whether the verdict of the jury attributed blame to any party; they also wish to be informed at what time the woman was admitted into the workhouse, and how long she was kept waiting to be inspected by the medical officer, and where she was kept waiting. The Commissioners request that you will supply this information, and that you will also be so good as to obtain and forward a copy of the verdict, and of the evidence given before the jury.

The Commissioners see no objection to your preparing a hand-bill as you suggest, but as you wish the previous sanction of the Commissioners, they request you will forward the draft to them in the first instance.

MR. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

IN compliance with your request I now transmit a copy of the evidence, and of the verdict given at the inquest on the body of Susan M'Clafferty.

You will observe the jury did not attach blame in their verdict to any party, but one of the jurymen, who bore the same name as the man who brought the poor woman to the workhouse, said to his brother jurymen in my hearing, that if blame was attachable to any one it was attachable to the master for not instantly taking the woman into the house.

About three quarters of an hour elapsed between the time of the woman's arrival and her admission into the house. M'Gettigan sat her down at the door of the workhouse, and there she remained, among some straw, until the arrival of the medical officer. The master detained M'Gettigan until the poor woman was received into the house.

ENCLOSURE.

County of Donegal, division of Kilmacrenan, to wit. I behalf of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, touching the death of Susan M'Clafferty at the Milford Union workhouse, known as the workhouse in the townland of Glenkeen, parish of Tullyaughnish, barony of Kilmacrenan, and county of Donegal, on Saturday the twenty-ninth day of January, in the eleventh year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Victoria, before Charles H. Swiney, gentleman, one of the coroners for said county, on an inquisition then and there taken on view of the body of the said Susan M'Clafferty, then and there lying dead.

Milford Union.

Samuel Watters, carpenter, sworn.—I was at Milford workhouse on Wednesday last; a young man, called M'Gettigan, came to the workhouse and stated to me that he had a woman, called M'Clafferty, on his car, and wanted to get her admitted into the poorhouse; M'Gettigan said the woman was sick, and had been sick in his house for eight days; I did not see the woman on the car, but heard her moan; Mr. Colhoun, the clerk to the Guardians, told M'Gettigan in my presence that if he left the woman on the workhouse ground the police would arrest him; Mr. Colhoun warned M'Gettigan that by leaving the woman there her life would be endangered; M'Gettigan said he did not care, that his native place was Conlin, and again said that he did not care.

(Signed) SAMUEL WATTERS.

Thomas Allcorn, master of Union workhouse, sworn.—On Wednesday evening last a man, called Charles M'Gettigan, brought a woman in a creel, on a slip car, to the workhouse door, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon; said that he wanted to get her into the house; did not tell me her name; I said I could not possibly admit her, as I had positive instructions from Mr. Otway not to admit people or persons having fever, lest they should bring infection into the house; I thought the woman had fever, I asked M'Gettigan and he thought so also; I then sent to Dr. Molloy, who came up to the workhouse immediately, and desired me to put the woman into the probationary ward; the doctor said he thought it was not fever; this was about 4 o'clock, and she was immediately admitted, and died about 4 o'clock the following morning; the body of which the jury have had a view, and which at present lies in the dead-house, is the body of the woman who I admitted on Wednesday, and who was brought here in a creel by Charles M'Gettigan; M'Gettigan told me that the deceased had been ill in his house for eight days, that he sent for the priest, and the priest said the poorhouse was the proper place for her; the deceased had straw round her in the creel; I saw no blankets, and she was poorly clothed; I understood Mr. Otway to mean that I should not admit any one in fever while the fever hospital and sheds were full.

(Signed) THOMAS ALLCORN.

Benjamin Johnston, surgeon, sworn.—I have examined the body of a female at present lying dead in the dead-house of this workhouse; after a careful examination I have no hesitation in stating that the immediate cause of that woman's death was exposure to the combined effects of both cold and hunger; I should suppose the deceased might be something more than 70 years of age, and I have seldom found the body of any old person so free from all traces of organic disease; I found preternatural congestion of the liver and lungs, and the larger vessels, from which I think that cold and hunger must have been the cause of death, the stomach and the large and small intestines being perfectly empty. In answer to the question of a juror, Dr. Johnston said,—I could not from the examination I made take upon me to say whether or not the deceased at the time of her death had been suffering from fever.

BENJAMIN JOHNSTON, M.B., F.R.C.S.I., &c.

William H. Molloy, M.D., sworn.—I am medical officer of Milford Union workhouse; I recollect being sent for about half-past 4 o'clock on the evening of the 26th of January by the master of the workhouse, who stated in a note to me that a woman had been left in what he thought a dying state on the workhouse grounds; I attended immediately, and found a woman lying in a litter of straw and in a dying state; it could not have been more than an hour from the time of my leaving the workhouse until I again reached it in compliance with the request of the master; when I first left the house the woman had not arrived; I said to the master, that as the hospitals were full a fire must immediately be put into one of the probationary wards, and the woman immediately put into a warm bed with blankets; she was perfectly pulseless, and very cold; I have seen the body at present lying in the dead-house, it is the body of the woman admitted by my orders on the 26th; the deceased at the time of her admission could speak very indistinctly; she said milk, and some was given to her, which she could scarcely swallow; I saw the man who brought deceased to the workhouse, he called himself Charles M'Gettigan, but afterwards said his father's name was Charles M'Gettigan, and that he lived in Glenvara; I told him he ought not to have brought the woman here, that he ought to have gone to a relieving officer; he said that the Rev. Mr. Macneely told him that the poorhouse was the proper place for her; I was present while Dr. Johnston conducted the post mortem examination; I have heard Dr. Johnston's evidence read, and I perfectly concur with his opinion as to the cause of the death of the deceased; the symptoms after death, combined with the appearances which I observed before death, are so conclusive, that I have no doubt as to the correctness of Dr. Johnston's opinion.

(Signed) W. H. MOLLOY, M.D.

Mary Begley, pauper, sworn.—I recollect Wednesday last, a woman called Susan M'Clafferty was admitted to the workhouse; she was very weak, unable to walk or stir; I tried three or four times if she could make an answer, and she could not speak; deceased drank some sweet milk; she took some medicine and some sweet milk during the night, and she died about 4 o'clock on Thursday morning; the deceased was well taken care of since she came into the house; there could be no better care taken of a woman.

We find that on Thursday, the 27th day of January last, the deceased, Susan M'Clafferty, died at Milford Union workhouse, in the parish aforesaid, barony of Kilmacrenan, and county of Donegal, from the effect of exposure to extreme cold and hunger; and we further find that Charles M'Gettigan did not think that by removing the deceased he was accessory to her death.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and beg to submit the following report of the proceedings thereat:—

The relieving officers' Application and Report Books were examined, and all the new cases upon them were adjudicated upon. The total number of cases approved of now amounts to 553, comprising 1091 souls eligible to and receiving out-door relief.

The workhouse now contains 405 inmates, but some of these are to be discharged to-morrow to receive out-door relief.

The Board of Guardians appeared to be keenly alive to the expediency of keeping the workhouse as a test for able-bodied applicants for relief, and scrupulously examined the register, with a view to discharging all paupers to whom out-door relief can be legally afforded.

In some of the electorates temporary employment, at a fair rate of wages in reclaiming waste land, and in trenching, draining, and fencing land, which has already been to a certain extent reclaimed, can be obtained by really able-bodied labourers.

The rate collectors' returns were examined, and from them it appeared that the collectors had been tolerably active during the past week; and I shall adopt every means in my power to compel the speedy collection of the amount of rate remaining yet unpaid.

After the transaction of the ordinary routine business, the Board investigated some charges involving neglect and violation of duties on the part of the porter, and determined on dismissing him from his office, and he was accordingly ordered to leave the workhouse to-morrow.

I have had my eye on that officer for some time past, and told the Guardians that unless they dismissed him I should be obliged to report to your Board, in such a way as would, without doubt, induce you to remove him from his situation.

Besides leaving his post and quitting the workhouse on various occasions without applying or giving notice to the master, he was suspected, I fear with too much justice, of introducing into the house a woman named Jenny Starrit, a thief and a prostitute, with whom he carried on an intrigue; so far had this suspicion gone, that I found on inquiry that it was openly talked of among the paupers. The woman alluded to was found concealed under the Board-room stairs by the master, on Thursday evening, the 3rd of February, and the porter could not account for her being there. The master took her before Mr. Law, J.P., but as she had no property belonging to the Union in her possession, Mr. Law discharged her from custody.

Herewith I transmit a copy of the hand-bill which, at the request of the Guardians, I prepared for circulation in the Union, in order that no persons might plead ignorance hereafter of the proper course to be pursued by applicants for relief, or for medical assistance, &c., under the provisions of the Relief Extension Act.

ENCLOSURE.

Milford Union.—Notice.

WHEREAS the hospital and the fever sheds at the Milford workhouse are at present fully occupied and cannot contain any new cases, except those casually occurring in the workhouse, the Board of Guardians have instructed the master to admit no pauper into the workhouse who may be labouring under fever or infectious disease; and they therefore hereby give notice, that unauthorized persons conveying paupers labouring under fever or infectious disease to the workhouse with a view of getting rid of them, and procuring admission for them must into the workhouse, ~~will~~ be held responsible for any evil consequences which may result to the sick paupers thus recklessly and inhumanly removed by them from temporary shelter.

Persons harbouring paupers who may afterwards fall sick on their hands, or destitute persons who may be taken ill at their own houses, should apply to the relieving officer in their district, upon whom the responsibility of attending to such cases properly devolves.

And further, Whereas numerous applicants for relief present themselves at the workhouse (to the great obstruction of business) on the ordinary days of the meetings of the Board of Guardians without having first applied to the relieving officers in their respective districts, the Board hereby give notice that all applications for relief must, in the first instance, be made to the relieving officers, who will, on the first Board day after the reception of such applications, report upon them to the Board of Guardians, by whom orders having relation to the merits of each case will be issued to the relieving officers.

sudden and urgent necessity

In cases of ~~extreme emergency involving the preservation of life~~ the relieving officers are empowered to act on their own responsibility until the first day of the meeting of the Board of Guardians following immediately thereupon.

By Order of the Board of Guardians of the Milford Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners approve of the proposed hand-bill, subject to the few alterations made thereon in red ink.

The draft of the hand-bill is herewith returned to you.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 14, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day.

There was a tolerable attendance of Guardians; and I am glad to be able to report that the ex-officio and influential members of the Board continue to set a good example in the way of patience and of devotion to business to the elective members.

The routine business was regularly and carefully gone into and a number of new cases on the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers were disposed of, generally in favour of the applicants for relief; but where just and reasonable grounds were shown for withholding relief, the Board very properly refused to extend it.

On the previous Board day some able-bodied paupers were discharged with their families from the workhouse, and instructed to apply to certain parties in their districts who are in want of labourers to trench and reclaim land—work at which an able-bodied man can earn 1s. per diem. Three or four of the able-bodied paupers so discharged applied to-day for re-admission to the workhouse, on the ground that they could not earn more than 4d. a-day at the work offered them; but the fact is, they did not even for a single day attempt to see what they could fairly earn at the work, and for this reason the Board of Guardians refused to entertain their applications. From all the inquiries I have made, I have no hesitation in saying that a man who will work can earn 1s. a-day at the employment before mentioned.

The rate collectors are proceeding vigorously, and nearly one-half of the present rate has been lodged with the treasurer to the Union. In the course of last week they collected 460l.

The auditor, Mr. Braddell, attended at the workhouse on Friday and Saturday last, to audit the accounts for the half years ending March 25th and September 29th, 1847, and by his sanction (and indeed at his suggestion) I brought his notes, remarks, and observations, as entered by him on the several Union books, under the notice of the Board to-day, and got them to pass resolutions which will have the effect of giving the lately appointed clerk to the Union and the master a fair start in their respective situations.

I was with Mr. Braddell at the workhouse till a late hour on Saturday last; and after he had concluded his business he expressed his opinion to me that both the clerk and master had during his audit displayed sufficient intelligence to satisfy him that, with ordinary attention and energy, they might shortly prove valuable and efficient officers.

With reference to the resolutions (which will appear in the minutes of to-day) requiring Mr. Crosbie and Mr. Murray to furnish to the Board on this day fortnight stamp receipts for the payments taken credit for, I have to report that Mr. Crosbie at once undertook to produce them by the time mentioned, and to be at the cost of the stamps himself. With regard to Mr. Murray, he was only acting clerk when the alleged payments were made, and I therefore must doubt whether the Board have any hold over him; but there is no suspicion of peculation against him, and I doubt not the parties to whom the payments were made will give receipts for them on stamped paper, provided the Board of Guardians furnish it to them.

I brought before the Board the expediency, and indeed the necessity, of calling upon the Finance Committee of their number to devote for the future more time and attention to all the monetary matters of the Union; and also suggested to them the propriety of either appointing a new Visiting Committee, or of stimulating the present one to a more active and zealous discharge of the powers confided to them.

The contractor for the new fever hospital and for the sheds in the girls' yard has commenced both these works; and I think it would be well if the Board of Guardians were to appoint, subject to your approval, an overseer of works.

The contractor stands high as a man of integrity and honesty of purpose, but he is not always on the spot, and it would therefore be politic to have some trustworthy and paid officer to overlook the workmen employed by Mr. Henderson.

I inspected the workhouse this morning before the meeting of the Board, and found it in a more cleanly state and better regulated in all matters relating to discipline and classification than it has been hitherto.

The decided step taken by the Board of Guardians last Monday, with regard to the late porter, has not been without its good effect, in showing the other officers of the house what they may expect if guilty of any neglect or dereliction of duty.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 19, 1848.

THE Commissioners concur with you as to the importance of appointing a Finance Committee, and of stimulating the Visiting Committee to an active and zealous discharge of the powers confided to them; and they request you will be so good as to state whether the Board took any steps in accordance with your suggestion on this head, and if they did not, that you will bring the matter again before them.

The Commissioners also desire to observe, that your suggestion for the appointment of an overseer of the works at the new fever hospital and sheds appears judicious; but before addressing the Guardians on the subject the Commissioners will consult their architect.

MR. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day, and have the honour to submit the following report of the proceedings thereat:—

The Board transacted regularly and efficiently all routine business connected with in-door and out-door relief, and immediately thereafter proceeded to the discussion and settlement of several extraordinary points relative to the internal economy of the workhouse, and to the statistical and financial details of relief afforded outside the house.

I had discovered that one of the pass or master keys belonging to the workhouse had disappeared, and as it was impossible to find out into whose possession it might have fallen, or to be at all certain that fac similes might not have been made from it, I thought it necessary to insist upon either an entire new set of locks and keys being procured for the workhouse, or that the wards of the present locks and keys should be so altered as to make the missing master-key or keys unavailable either to paupers or officers in the house.

The Board were disposed to think that new locks for the outside gates of the workhouse would be sufficient; but on my explaining to them that proper classification with regard to the different sexes and ages of the inmates could not be ensured without the alteration of every lock within the house, the Board (as you will see by the minutes) adopted measures to have the evil apprehended properly guarded against.

Unless all possible precautions are used to render the workhouse truly a place wherein labour is to be exacted for the relief given, and to prevent its being converted into a place of idleness and indulgence, the able-bodied labouring classes will be but too well pleased to pass their time within it till harvest comes round again.

To prove this and the disinclination of the paupers to perform work, I need only mention the following fact:—

On Thursday last I found it necessary to make the master of the workhouse bring before the magistrates at the Petty Sessions of Milford, a pauper who had since left, and refused to fulfil the work allotted him. He was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour, in Lifford gaol, and on the following morning (Friday), his punishment being made known to the paupers in the workhouse, several able-bodied paupers discharged themselves and families from it.

The Board of Guardians were apprised of this fact to-day, and are now determined to see that the work test is in future put stringently into operation in the case of able-bodied inmates of the house.

With reference to your letter relative to the sum due by the Milford Union to the audit fund, I have to report that a cheque for the money (6*l.* 10*s.*) was signed this day.

The rate-collectors continue to display activity in the collection of the rate, and I trust that nearly the whole of it will be lodged with the treasurer to the Union by the middle of next month.

Before adjourning to Thursday next, the Board of Guardians proceeded to the election of a porter in the room of Samuel Ellison, dismissed. Their choice fell on David Stewart, and I am of opinion they selected the most competent candidate from among those who presented themselves.

The objects of the adjourned meeting are two-fold: first, a revision of the relief register with a view to the discharge of all inmates of the workhouse eligible to out-door relief; secondly, the revision and amendment of the inventory of clothing, furniture, and stock in the house.

The Visiting and Finance Committees have promised to attend and lend every assistance in their power for the furtherance of these desirable objects.

I have instructed the master to have all the parties whom he considers fitting objects for out-door relief placed according to their sexes in the probationary wards to-morrow morning, and the medical officer is to inspect the cases and report on them for the guidance of the Board on Thursday next.

With reference to your letter, dated Dublin, February 19, 1848, I beg to inform you that the Board of Guardians have requested the Visiting and Finance Committees to be as zealous as possible in the discharge of their functions; and should both or either of them appear to me to act supinely for the future, I will not fail to report accordingly to your Board.

With regard to the appointment of an overseer to watch the progress and efficiency of the workmen employed in the erection of the new fever hospital, the Board of Guardians seemed to think that such an appointment rested entirely with your Board; but they will be glad to nominate a person to it, subject to your approval.

It having appeared that a space of 13 feet 8 inches would be left between the gable of the dormitory shed in progress of erection in the girls' yard and the probationary ward wall, the Board thought it advisable (and I entirely concur with them) to have the shed extended to the wall of the female probationary ward, and accepted of the architect's offer to complete the additional work at the same rate per foot as that already contracted for by him.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have drawn the attention of their architect to that part of your report which relates to the appointment of an overseer of works and the enlargement of the sheds in the girls' yard.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 28, 1848.

Millford Union.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day. There was a thin attendance of Guardians, but all the necessary business, including that which was left undone on Thursday last, in consequence of there not being a quorum of Guardians present at the workhouse on that day, was satisfactorily transacted.

The rate collectors having collected only 194*l.* and odd shillings during the last week, I got the Board to summon them to attend on next Board-day with their books, and lists of the principal defaulters, in order that summary proceedings may be taken to enforce payment of the rate from those parties. The whole rate amounts to a sum of 3180*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.*, of which 1965*l.* 0*s.* 5½*d.* has been collected, leaving a balance still due of 1215*l.* 16*s.* 0½*d.*

You will observe by the minutes of to-day's proceedings that certain resolutions were passed relative to the absence of vouchers for alleged payments of various sums in the half-years ended March 5th and September 29th, 1847. There is every reason to believe that the payments were actually made, as the parties to whom they were alleged to have been paid make no claim in respect of them. Financial accuracy appears to have been totally neglected prior to my coming into the Union; there was no Guard Book, and receipts, invoices, and vouchers, were tossed about on the table of the Board-room, or thrust into drawers and presses without any regard being had to arrangement. In this way many vouchers have been mislaid or destroyed; but fortunately there does not appear to have been any embezzlement or malappropriation of the moneys of the Union. A great deal of this irregularity is to be attributed to the dissensions which unhappily prevailed among the Guardians during the period in which it occurred, and to the change of officers consequent upon them; I firmly believe, however, that no loss will accrue to the Union, and I have taken care that the present clerk shall have all vouchers properly arranged, and posted in the Guard Book from the date of his appointment.

I brought under the notice of the Guardians the circular relating to cooked food, and impressed upon them the expediency of adopting that mode of affording out-door relief to the destitute. They promised to give the subject their best consideration when there should be a better attendance of Guardians than there was to-day.

I also called the attention of the Board to Circular No. 186, Miscellaneous. I had previously to receiving it suggested to the Board the course recommended in it; and had even advised them to carry the placarding system into Scotland and America.

Numerous heads of families have during the past year gone to Scotland and America, leaving their families and dependents chargeable to the Union, and I certainly am of opinion that were lists of such parties made out, describing their persons, stating the name of the Union, electoral division, and townland from which they had emigrated, accompanied by a statement in each case of the families and dependents left behind to be supported at the expense of the Union; and that were these lists to be extensively placarded in Scotland, America, and elsewhere, much good would result therefrom. Such emigrants might probably be shamed into sending for their families as soon as they possibly could, without taking their own time, and exactly suiting their own convenience and inclination. They would at any rate, in numerous instances, be debarred from forming fresh social ties in the country of their adoption. The lists I mention might be sent to the Roman Catholic clergy in America as well as to other parties there.

WITH reference to your communication relative to the renewal of the extended order authorizing out-door relief to certain classes not coming within the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and which order will expire on the 8th proximo, I have the honour to report that it will be advisable to renew the said order for a further period of two months.

If the order could be so modified as to embrace women past 50 years old, who have one or more illegitimate children under age, dependent upon them, and also children whose mothers are dead, and whose fathers have not been heard of for the last 12 months, considerable pressure would be taken off the workhouse. The cost of supporting such paupers in the workhouse is treble, or more than treble, that which would have to be incurred in affording them out-door relief.

I have considerable hopes that out-door relief to the able-bodied classes may be avoided in this Union for a very considerable time to come, if the Guardians continue to act energetically. Field labour is commenced, and many works of private enterprize, assisted by loans made by Government, are being proceeded with.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that they have given directions for the renewal of the order, and also for including in it the first class suggested by you, viz., women past 50 years old who have one or more illegitimate children under age, dependent upon them, but that they do not think it would on the whole be expedient to add the second class proposed by you.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 6, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Milford Board of Guardians to-day, and beg to report that there was a full attendance of Guardians, and that the routine and other necessary business which had to be transacted, was gone into in a careful and efficient manner.

The Milford Board of Guardians are now zealous and attentive in discharging their onerous duties, and appear anxious that the existing laws for the Relief of the Poor in Ireland should not be condemned as inefficient or impracticable until they have been submitted to the tests of time, experience, and judicious administration, both of their letter and spirit.

The rate-collectors were in attendance to-day, and instructions were given to them to proceed more vigorously with the collection of the rate. They severally stated that they had promises of payment by numerous parties in the course of the current week, and expected to be able to lodge a considerable sum with the treasurer on or before Saturday next.

The internal condition of the workhouse is much improved, and the master is more vigilant and more efficient in the way of insisting on the performance of task-work by the able-bodied inmates than he formerly was. The inmates now find that the workhouse is not a place of indulgence, affording comfortable winter quarters, and are glad to embrace any opportunity of procuring work at reasonable wages outside. If the weather improves, the sheds in the girls' school-yard will shortly be completed, and then I think all danger of a pressure on the workhouse by alleged able-bodied paupers will be removed.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day. The meeting was not a numerous one, in consequence of the necessary absence of several Guardians, who were obliged to attend the assizes at Lifford.

All routine business was satisfactorily disposed of, and there was no other business of much importance brought under the notice of the Board.

The rate-collectors were in attendance, with lists of persons who have not yet paid the present rate, and the Guardians having gone over these lists, instructed the collectors to put the law immediately into force against the most prominent defaulters.

The rate collectors pointed out to the Guardians a few cases in which trustees on the estates of minors, and receivers on estates under chancery, had refused to pay the rate, and I write by to-night's post, to those trustees and receivers under the Court of Chancery, to state, that in the event of their not forthwith paying to the collectors the amount due, I shall, at the request of the Board of Guardians, apply for the sanction of your Board for taking proceedings for the recovery of it in the superior Courts.

Milford Union.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, when the result of the annual election of Guardians was declared, and it showed that with a few exceptions, the Guardians of the last year were re-elected for the current one. The chairman, vice-chairman, and deputy vice-chairman of the Union were also re-elected to office for this year.

After the ordinary business had been transacted, a long discussion with regard to the expediency of out-door relief being given henceforth in oaten instead of Indian meal took place; and eventually a majority of the Board carried the question in favour of oaten meal; and further resolved, that in consideration of that description of food being more costly and more nutritive than Indian meal, the following comparative scale in substituting one kind of food for the other should be adopted :—

	Indian meal.		Oaten meal.
Instead of	5 lbs.	.	4½ lbs.
	7 "	.	6 "
	10 "	.	9 "

The arguments made use of by the majority of the Board to bring about the above alteration in the out-door relief dietary were not, in my humble opinion, such as ought to have legitimately weighed with a Board of Guardians, whose duty it is to provide for the sufficient maintenance of the destitute persons within the Union at the least possible expense to the ratepayers.

The majority of the Board argued that as the landowners and farmers had to bear the largest share of the taxation necessary for the support of the poor, it was only fair that the Guardians, when providing food for the poor, should give a preference to the home over the foreign market; and further, that it was highly desirable to raise, in every possible way, the price of home produce, in order to enable the landowners and farmers to meet the steadily increasing demands on their means for the support of the poor.

Now, putting this view of a question purely of political economy out of sight, without any reference to its truth or fallacy, I much fear that whatever good its adoption might effect in the way of putting money into the pockets of the ratepayers, would be more than counterbalanced by its unfair operation against the stomachs of the starving and helpless poor. For, in order to escape from the charge of extravagant expenditure in supporting the poor, the Guardians (as you will observe by their adopted scale) assume that because a pound of oaten meal is dearer than a pound of Indian meal, that therefore there must be an equivalent difference in the amount of nourishment afforded from a pound of oaten meal to balance its excess of price over a pound of Indian meal. But it is the opinion of many competent judges and of many medical authorities, that a pound of Indian meal, properly cooked, will yield as much nourishment to the consumer as a pound of oaten meal; and I know that many paupers would as soon have Indian as oaten meal for food, supposing them to be offered equal quantities of either kind; and none who are truly near the starving point would hesitate to prefer the increased bulk of food which Indian meal affords over oaten meal, for the same amount of money.

I have thought it only right to give you my opinion on the subject, because, although the Milford Board of Guardians have hitherto exercised great judgment and economy in giving to destitute persons a sufficient measure of relief merely according to the merits of each individual case, I am persuaded that any attempts at increased economy in this way would not only be merciless towards the poor, but would be fraught with danger to their health and lives.

I should be extremely sorry to interfere with the discretionary powers of the Board of Guardians; but they (the Guardians) do appear to me to step a little out of their province, when they avowedly express their determination to feed the paupers receiving relief, in and out of the workhouse, in such a manner as shall, if possible, have the effect of creating a market for and raising the prices of home produced provisions.

With reference to the clandestine introduction of spirituous liquors by paupers into the Milford workhouse, mentioned by me in my last report, I have the honour to report that the Board of Guardians have decided upon going fully into the case on Monday next; and I will in the mean time summon all parties from whom evidence is likely to be obtained to appear before me in the Board-room upon that day.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration the statement contained in your report of the 26th ult., that the Board of Guardians have determined to give out-door relief in oaten meal instead of Indian as they have hitherto done, and that in consequence of the oaten meal being more costly and more nutritious than Indian meal, they have determined to reduce the scale of ration hitherto adopted.

In reference thereto I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they have communicated with the Board of Health on the subject of the change in the out-door relief allowances, and that Board has expressed an opinion that oatmeal is not more nutritious than Indian meal, and that there should not therefore be any reduction in quantity where oatmeal is substituted for Indian meal.

The Commissioners request that you will bring this subject again under the notice of the Board of Guardians, and impress upon them the necessity of acting in accordance with the views of the Board of Health in this respect.

GRANARD UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 24, 1848.

1. We have this day been enabled to increase the accommodation of the workhouse to a considerable degree, by the conversion into dormitories of two apartments, and two sheds that have heretofore been unused for any purpose.

2. We trust before very long that we shall probably be in a position to obviate all necessity for out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Act at all, and in furtherance of this object we beg to request your sanction, at as early a day as you can furnish us with it, for the immediate erection of sleeping galleries in the three dormitories to which they have not been as yet added, one had been got up prior to our coming here.

3. With reference to a still further increase in the house accommodation, we would suggest that not only should the project of the late Board for raising the idiot wards be at once persevered in, but that you should also consider the propriety of either adding one wing, capable of holding 100 persons, to each end of the main building, or if you prefer a structure of a more economical nature, of erecting slated sheds along the walls of the male and female yards. The badness of these walls, and the consequent improbability of their being able to bear any great weight upon them, as well as the altered circumstances of the country with regard to the extent of destitution, we consider a fair argument in favour of the former of the two propositions. We shall be anxious to receive your decision upon this very important subject.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that they have communicated with their architect on the subject, and I am to request that you will specify the two apartments and two sheds heretofore unused, which you propose to convert into dormitories.

In regard to the erection of sleeping galleries in the three dormitories to which they have not yet been added, the architect thinks that it would not be advisable to erect sleeping galleries at present, considering the approach of warmer weather, and the necessity for corresponding day-rooms which would be requisite if the sleeping accommodation be increased.

With regard to raising the idiot wards, I am to enclose herewith plans for that purpose, and am to request that the Vice-Guardians will take the necessary steps for carrying out this desirable addition to the workhouse accommodation.

In regard to the proposition for the erection of wings for 200 more persons, or of sheds along the walls of the male and female yards, the architect states that permanent additions (which alone are desirable for this purpose) to accommodate 200 persons would cost about 1000*l.*; and the funds for the purpose should be provided in the first instance. He at the same time intimates that the yard walls are not adapted to be used for the purposes suggested.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners recommend that you should hire a detached building if it can be found in any part of the Union, for the purpose of procuring additional workhouse accommodation, without the delay necessarily incurred in the erection of any new building.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 26, 1848.

As we have every reason to believe that much gross imposition has been practised in this Union in the admission of able-bodied persons in actual employment upon the out-door relief lists, and the arrangements are not yet perfected for putting to them the work test, we have to request your sanction to our offering the house test to the heads of families, and relieving those dependent on them outside.

As a general principle we do not advocate the adoption of this course, and under the present circumstances of this Union we consider it the only safeguard we can with confidence look to, and we have no doubt of its working well in the removal of abuses.

We shall of course not continue a practice in many respects so open to objection, one hour longer than we find it necessary.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM to state that the course proposed is one which you can legally take, and the question is one of expediency.

The Commissioners have no objection to leave the matter in your hands to try the experiment, if you feel satisfied that in present circumstances it would be attended with good results. Great care, however, must be taken to give due relief to the families not admitted into the workhouse, while the able-bodied men are relieved in that establishment; inasmuch as if they should be exposed to unnecessary privations, the Vice-Guardians will incur much blame.

Captain LANG to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

WITHIN the last few days the able-bodied paupers in the workhouse of this Union have been employed in cleaning up the several yards, gathering the stones off the ground belonging to the workhouse, and in breaking them as small as possible for the purpose of gravelling the yards, &c., which had never been properly done or finished. On a minute inspection of the premises I found the sewerage very defective, and many of the principal sewers stopped by an accumulation of filth; they were originally badly constructed, neither wide enough, nor with sufficient fall to carry off the water from either the kitchen or the wash-house. I have directed the master to employ a portion of the able-bodied paupers in having the sewers opened, that they may be thoroughly cleaned out, and these defects remedied. The fireplaces are all too small for the size of the rooms, and constructed on the very worst principles for economy of fuel and giving out heat; it will be necessary to have them all re-set, and to adopt the use of the low American or cottage grates, which are much less expensive than those in use, and much more advantageous in every respect.

The pumps are all unserviceable and out of order. I have directed the contractor to be written to, that if he does not take immediate steps to have them repaired and made serviceable, I shall have the work done by some other tradesman, and the cost stopped out of his contract.

The clothing and bedding of the paupers I found very deficient, and in a bad state. I have directed the master and matron to make out lists of the stock on hand of the several articles, distinguishing such as are unserviceable, that on inspection they may be cast, and the deficiency supplied.

We have advertised for a tailor and a shoemaker to instruct some of the boys above 15 in these trades, so that in future the shoes and clothing may be made in the establishment, while it will place so many in a position to earn their own bread on leaving the house.

I have to report a visible improvement in the cleanliness and regularity of the workhouse.

I hope soon to get rid of many of the contracts entered into by the late Board of Guardians, which were made on very unfavourable and, indeed, exorbitant terms. As soon as we can establish a bakery in the workhouse we shall get rid of the bread contract, which was the worst of all. I shall continue to give my earnest attention, and direct that of the Vice-Guardians to these most necessary reforms.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 10, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that they have communicated with their architect respecting the sewers of the workhouse of the Granard Union, and he suggests that some of the drains must require cleansing; he states that there is a plan of the drains at the workhouse, and that there is not any great extent of under-ground drains.

With regard to covering the yards with broken stones or gravel, the architect suggests that the present surface of the yards should be lowered in any place where the additional gravel may raise the outer surface of the ground higher than the inner floors of the workhouse; he also suggests that the labour of the paupers might be advantageously employed in getting the yards, roads, and site of their workhouse in good order.

Captain LANG to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 29, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians appear to anticipate considerable difficulty in successfully grappling with the entangled state of the affairs of this Union, and in bringing up the arrears of business into which the books and accounts have been suffered to fall, whether through the negligence and inattention of the late Board of Guardians, or the untoward circumstances in which the clerk was placed.

They have expressed their wish that an application should be made to your office for the assistance of a clerk conversant with the machinery of workhouse accounts.

As a preliminary step to a right understanding of the financial state of the Union, I have advised them to call in (by a public advertisement) all outstanding claims against the late Board and the workhouse, to be accompanied by the necessary vouchers, and then to institute a searching scrutiny into the items of each account, balancing them against whatever sums may appear to have been paid on account at any period, and to have the whole of these demands before them in a tangible shape, previous to signing a cheque for the full payment of any particular one.

With such implements as we could obtain, we have this day set the able-bodied on the relief lists of the Granard electoral division to work upon the ground belonging to the house.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 1, 1848.

ADVERTING to the application of the Vice-Guardians of Granard Union, for the assistance from this office of a clerk conversant with the machinery of workhouse accounts, I am to transmit herewith, for your information, a copy of a letter this day addressed to the Vice-Guardians on the subject.

Your letter to the chairman of Board of Works was forwarded to him, and the Commissioners have themselves addressed the Board of Works on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—March 1, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, conveying the request of the Vice-Guardians of Granard Union, for the assistance of some gentleman out of this office for a few weeks to aid in the regulation of the accounts of the Union; and in reply I am to state that in the present great pressure of business in this office, the Commissioners are unable to spare any of their officers, and regret that they are therefore unable to comply with the request of the Vice-Guardians.

The Commissioners, however, request that every exertion may be made to have the accounts and arrears made up without delay, and that any assistance which may be necessary should, if practicable, be procured for the purpose.

1. WE have the honour to report that since the 24th ultimo, we have been closely engaged in revising the books of the several relieving officers.

Taking into account the difficulties we have to contend with, and the absence as yet in the rural districts of any valid test to indicate the destitution of the recipients, we think we are warranted in saying that we have already made some progress towards an improved state of things.

The late system pursued in this Union having been to admit upon the lists almost indiscriminately, all who applied for relief, without in any case allowing nearly enough for the support of life, we have had to entertain and decide every case upon the relieving officers' books separately.

This has involved a considerable loss of our time, but was unavoidable under the circumstances.

The increased scale of rations adopted by us will add materially to the current expenditure of the Union.

Captain Lang, your resident Inspector, is doing all in his power to press forward his arrangements for the application of the work test to the able-bodied, and we shall be in a position by Monday next to offer house accommodation, which is in our opinion the only indisputable index of destitution, to as many as 140 persons; and should you not disapprove of the course, we mean to confine this to the able-bodied heads of families to whose circumstances the strongest suspicions of imposture attaches.

2. The collectors, with whom we have not as yet been able to have more than one interview, have given us promise of vigorous exertion in getting in the rates. We have required them to attend before us on every Tuesday, and we shall thus be able to exercise over them a strict control.

In one district (Gelshagh) the refusal of the late collector to give up his books has caused considerable delay; we had been obliged to summon him to the Petty Sessions' Court to be held on this day, and he has only this instant attended before us to comply with our demand.

3. An air of bustle and activity has at length begun to exhibit itself amongst the inmates. Several of the defects pointed out in our general report have been remedied, and numbers of boys and men are now daily employed in breaking stones for the yards, and digging up the grounds about the workhouse. For the present we forbear making further allusions to the officers of the house; but it is not improbable that before long we may have to recommend to your consideration the propriety of effecting some alteration in this respect.

4. We beg to acknowledge, in conclusion, our sense of the kindly co-operative disposition exhibited by Captain Lang on every occasion.

There are many salutary reforms in the affairs of this Union which we all feel to be most necessary, but with the generally defective staff we have to rely upon for carrying out our views, it will be a work of some time to effect them.

Captain LANG to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

I HAVE to report that the Vice-Guardians are proceeding zealously and steadily in the operations necessary for bringing the affairs of this Union into a more regular and satisfactory state.

The improvement within the last week in the condition of the workhouse is apparent and progressive, under the watchful inspection of the Guardians and the unremitting attention I have devoted to it.

Printed notices have been made out, fixing the time and places of attendance for the relieving officers in their several districts for receiving applications and distributing relief. Their operations hitherto were conducted without any order or regularity, and they never had enforced the least subordination amongst the paupers crowding round the relief stations. Much disturbance, and in some cases threatened violence to the relieving officers, resulted from their negligence. I have succeeded in suppressing all demonstrations of this nature by threatening to strike off the lists every person concerned in any outrage, or abetting the perpetrators.

I find it will be necessary for me frequently to be present at the issue of rations at the remote relief stations until a more orderly and regular system is established, and narrowly to watch the conduct of the relieving officers, and to support their authority with the paupers.

An address has been printed for distribution to the principal rate-payers and resident gentry, calling upon them to inspect frequently the list of paupers receiving relief, and to afford information to the Vice-Guardians of any imposition attempted or perpetrated.

I have at last received the order from the Board of Works for the implements we required, and a beginning has been made in bringing the labour test into operation, which I hope to be able to extend generally throughout the Union in the course of the ensuing week.

Captain LANG to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 7, 1848.

WITH reference to your circular, of the 2nd March, I am of opinion that the order for out-door relief to able-bodied men, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, might be suspended in this district on the 18th of March. The Vice-Guardians agree with me in this, and by that time we hope to be able to make such arrangements as will allow us to apply the workhouse test in all such cases.

I would be more especially strengthened in this opinion, could we be favoured by a grant of provisions from the British Association, to expend in affording rations to the children of the poor attending the several schools. With this view I wrote to the Count Strzelecki, from whom I received the enclosed courteous reply; and I have to request the favourable consideration of the Commissioners to my application for a grant.

When I was acting as Inspector in the Ballyshannon Union, the Count was pleased to place some grants at my disposal, which I applied in this way with the most gratifying results.

The grants were so well and economically administered, that I was enabled to supply the children at eight or ten schools with sufficient good nourishing food of porridge made of Indian meal and rice, up to the period when the distribution of bread commenced under the inspection of Mr. D'Arcy.

It would afford the Commissioners much gratification to read the numerous letters of thanks I received from the resident clergy and gentlemen interested in the success and prosperity of the several schools, and to have witnessed the improved appearance and health of the poor children. In this district such a measure would be most necessary and beneficial; the hordes of poor children continually to be seen about the roads and streets throughout this Union, surpass in numbers and destitution all I ever observed in any other district I have passed through. We have brought the labour test fully into operation in this immediate vicinity, and have a large number of the able-bodied at work on the ground about the workhouse, which I hope will soon present a more cultivated and pleasing aspect.

I have communicated to Edward Sheridan, the relieving officer of Lough Gowna and Scrabby, the decision of the Commissioners on the investigation into his conduct: and the Vice-Guardians are on the look out for a properly qualified person to fill his situation.

ENCLOSURE.

COUNT STRZELECKI to Captain LANG:—March 3, 1848.

I WAS very glad to receive a letter from you, and shall be most happy to comply with your wishes, provided that the Poor Law Commissioners will see the necessity of my interference in your Union. To them you should refer, and represent the extent of the distress, for I am entirely guided by them in the selection of Unions, to which the relief in food to children, granted by the Association, is to be extended.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 7th instant, relating to the suspension of the order for out-door relief to able-bodied men in the Granard Union, and I am to state that under the circumstances, the Commissioners intend not to renew the existing order, which expires on 19th instant, but will issue an order authorizing out-door relief to other classes (except able-bodied men) not relievable out of the workhouse, under section 1 of 10 Vic. cap. 31; such as widows with one child, orphans, and women whose husbands are in confinement or absent from Ireland.

As regards the application for a grant of provisions from the British Association, the Commissioners regret to be unable to comply with your request, inasmuch as the means at the disposal of the British Association are limited, and the Commissioners feel the paramount necessity of economizing those means as far as possible.

The enclosure in your letter is returned herewith, as requested.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

1. SINCE we had the honour of reporting our progress to you on the 2nd instant, we have been unusually occupied by a variety of business, in consequence of which our minutes for this week, and this report will unavoidably arrive at your office a day later than usual.

Granard Union.

2. We have had to entertain for the supply of different articles tenders to a large amount. The minutes will explain what we have done in this respect; in ten instances we have had to reject all the tenders for meal contracts as extravagantly high. The apparent combination of the parties in those particular localities we ascribe to the prevalence of a feeling, that our insolvent condition would force us to accept any terms offered to us.

Our success in last week's collection has, however, enabled us to pay large sums on account to nearly every one to whom we stand indebted; and as our resources are, notwithstanding, far from being exhausted, we have no doubt the result of a second advertisement will be very different.

3. We have heretofore not been in a position to advert at length to the rate collectors; we have this week, however, effected a close examination of their books, and can therefore now speak with some confidence on the subject. The amount lodged last week, 950*l.*, was, we think, satisfactory, all things considered. It was the first week's operations under our immediate surveillance, and two collectors, lately appointed, had not begun to act at all. One of the latter has, we regret to say, since resigned; but notwithstanding this untoward event, we think, judging from what we have seen of the men, that we have a fair prospect of being soon placed in a sufficiently independent position to meet all our liabilities, and command whatever we require at the market prices.

So far we can speak favorably of the aspect of things in this important department; but in all other respects we must add, that nothing can possibly be more disorderly or loose than the manner in which the accounts of the collectors, and everything connected with them have been conducted from the formation of the Union up to this moment.

We felt it necessary to record by resolution in the minutes of this week's proceedings our views on this head; and we here revert to the subject merely to state, that when we couple with the condition of this one branch of the accounts, the fact that three successive half-years have now almost elapsed since the general accounts of the Union were last made up, we cannot conceal our deliberate opinion, that one or other of two things is absolutely necessary, viz., that either an experienced auditor from the office should, as already suggested, come here for a while, and place all the accounts of the Union in a complete state up to this date, or, if this cannot be, that a vastly more efficient and energetic officer than the present clerk be provided. This alternative we put with reluctance. The clerk is a respectable person, and has had some domestic afflictions to excuse a good deal of past neglect; but a sense of duty obliges us to say, that we fear he is now wholly incapable, even with ordinary assistance, of attempting to grapple with the complicated mass of arrear he has suffered to accumulate.

4. The minutes convey the resignations of several of the officers of the Union; this will, we hope, enable us to introduce some more useful persons into our staff than we found on our arrival.

5. Our anticipations of the good effects to be derived from putting the house-test to the heads of families have been fully realised. Several persons, who boldly presented themselves for admission, on finding that, contrary to general belief, we had room for them, returned home again without delay. We regret we cannot apply the test in every instance, as we do not think it is possible without it to defeat the system of imposture so deplorably prevalent.

There is nothing further that requires comment at present from us.

Captain LANG to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that the Vice-Guardians continue their strenuous exertions to bring the affairs of this Union into a more satisfactory state, and I receive from them the most cordial co-operation.

In consequence of the notice for contracts, several have been offered in the course of the week on more advantageous terms than those previously existing; some have been accepted for a limited period, and others deferred for future competition.

The master has tendered his resignation, which has been accepted by the Vice-Guardians, who have advertised for candidates to fill the situation. Edward Sheridan, the relieving officer for Loughowna and Scrabby, has given in his resignation, as has also Thomas Sheridan, the relieving officer for Granard and Abbeylara.

Granard Union.

There has been a visible improvement in the cleanliness and regularity of the workhouse, and with the efficient assistance of the Vice-Guardians I do not despair of seeing the workhouse and grounds become a model establishment for neatness and order.

The important duty of collecting the rates is progressing in a satisfactory manner, and the lodgments made last week show an increased activity and energy on the part of most of the collectors.

The inclemency of the weather has in some degree retarded the operation of the labour test; but in the course of the ensuing week, I hope to be able to report considerable progress in working out this important duty.

Two of Robinson's steam-cooking apparatus have been ordered, to make a commencement in substituting cooked food for distribution in the division of Granard, in lieu of the present rations issued for out-door relief.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

NOTHING has occurred since the 10th instant which peculiarly requires comment from us.

The affairs generally of the Union exhibit, we think, a decidedly improved appearance in almost every department.

We are given to understand that our proceedings have upon the whole met with the approval of the gentlemen connected by property with this district. Some of them have occasionally attended at the Board-room to assist in the transaction of local business. We have endeavoured to promote this practice amongst the rate-payers of every class in the Union, as we feel that the confidence and co-operation of those who possess accurate local information, are of the last importance in enabling us to cope successfully with the difficulties of the present period.

On the other hand we hope we have not failed to secure to the really destitute suitable relief so far as we could acquaint ourselves with their circumstances. We have heard that amongst this class too, a feeling of satisfaction at present arrangements is as general as it could be reasonably expected to be.

In the electoral division of Granard itself, the workhouse grounds have afforded us the means of testing the destitution of all the able-bodied applicants, and the usefulness of it as an index of real want is sufficiently evidenced by the fact, that of the original applicants for relief, those who attended to work were not as numerous as those who declined.

In the rural districts, where the same facility did not offer for putting a similar test, we have required the heads of families to come into the house, sending an order at the same time to the relieving officers to make due provision for their families outside. This system too has exposed a very great amount of imposition; but, when we consider the numbers that have, nevertheless, within the last few days availed themselves of the offer, we are disposed to think that in any restricted order you may continue in operation after the 18th instant it would be well to include the families of all who are so situated. It may be safely assumed that if employment can be had men able to work will not remain in the house. This suggestion, however, we merely offer for your consideration.

The collectors with one or two exceptions are doing their duty very creditably. The lodgment last week, though it fell short of what we reckoned upon, was good, and the magistrates had yesterday before them at petty sessions, we believe over 100 cases for non-payment of rate.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

IN reference to your proposition to admit into the workhouse the heads of families, and relieving their wives or children outside the workhouse, I am directed to request that you will bear in mind that under the provisions of section 54 of 1 and 2 Vic. cap. 56, and section 8 of 10 Vic. cap. 31, relief to wives and children under 15 years of age, is relief to their husbands or parents respectively; and if such husbands or parents be not of the class specified in section 1 of 10 Vic. cap. 31, or in the Commissioners' order already issued under section 2, out-door relief cannot legally be given to them.

Granard Union.

1. SINCE we had last the honour of reporting to you, your general order limiting the classes entitled to out-door relief has come into operation.

This has lessened considerably the pressure both upon ourselves and the officers of the Union generally, and will afford us more leisure than we have yet enjoyed for effecting some desirable improvements in the condition of the house, as well as for inspecting personally the several relieving officers' districts, &c., which we believe to be a most necessary measure.

2. Our intended plans have to some extent been deranged by our failure on Wednesday to obtain, in several instances, suitable persons to succeed the officers who had resigned; our staff, therefore, continues very imperfect: we have re-advertised, offering an increased rate of salary, and trust this will induce a superior class of persons to offer themselves to us.

Many of those rejected came to us highly recommended, but we did not think we should be warranted in appointing to responsible situations, involving the expenditure of a large amount of the public property, persons who, upon examination, were proved to be incapable of making the simplest arithmetical calculation that could be devised. The minutes will explain the particular cases in which this course has been adopted by us.

3. We perceive by a letter this day received from you, that in one paragraph of our report of the 17th instant, we did not distinctly convey our meaning.

We are aware that under the order now in force in this Union, no out-door relief can be given to the dependents of any class of persons not included therein.

Our suggestion was offered in anticipation of the order itself, and was only intended to bring under your notice the expediency, if it was possible, of making in the order a special exception in favour of families, the heads of which were in the house.

The limited house accommodation at our command, and the great distress we apprehend amongst the classes excluded from your order, would still lead us to think favourably of this arrangement; but of course if it would infringe in any way upon the law, it is unnecessary to entertain it further.

4. We have endeavoured to induce persons relievable under section 1 of the Extension Act, and your orders to leave the house; to the former we have offered relief in money, 1s. per week for the heads of families, and 6d. for the dependents; but even so we have not had much success.

5. The collection of the rate progresses steadily; the average weekly receipts, though not large, are uniform, and on the whole we think far from bad.

6. We have supplied the place of the collector, who resigned, by the appointment of a county-cess collector from another part of the Union; no local person could be relied upon to act in this district. The poundage, 2s., though high, is the same that the late Board allowed; and the division is in every sense so bad, that no competent person would accept less.

7. We have had some correspondence with Mr. Davis, agent for the surrounding property, relative to one or two fields that adjoin the workhouse, and which we think would be a most desirable addition to our present grounds. Mr. Davis will soon visit Granard, and has promised us his co-operation in the matter.

8. Through the medium of the same gentleman we have a prospect of getting a piece of land about a mile from this for a burial ground for the paupers.

9. We have this week been enabled to contract for the supply of meal to all the depôts on advantageous terms, 1l. 5s. per ton less than we were a fortnight since offered by the same parties.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 29, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 24th instant, and in reply I am to state that in the case of any family, the head of which can legally be relieved out of the workhouse, it is in the discretion of the Vice-Guardians to relieve any members of such family either in or out of the workhouse, as they may deem best; due care being taken in case relief be given to members of a family out of the workhouse, while the head of it is relieved in the workhouse, that the relief to the former be sufficient.

As regards the additional ground you propose to take adjoining the workhouse, I am to request that you will inform the Commissioners of the extent of the ground you propose to take, and of the purposes to which you propose to apply it.

1st. We have had to adjourn our Board meeting this week from day to day since Wednesday last, to enable us to scrutinize the several accounts which have been furnished according to our public advertisement calling for them.

Since taking charge of this Union we have paid off debts, some of them very long out-standing, to the amount of 294*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.*, and with the exception of a few cases in which the accounts were not satisfactorily made out, this sum has discharged nearly all liabilities to the 25th instant.

We shall next week submit for your information a statistical statement exhibiting the financial condition of the Union on our arrival here and at present.

For the five weeks ended the 25th instant, the average amount of our weekly lodgments was 750*l.*, and in forming a judgment of this sum, it is necessary to bear in mind that two districts, for reasons already referred to, have contributed nothing to the amount, and that the rate made by the late Board, though in some instances as high as 3*s.*, varies a good deal in the different divisions and is in some cases only half that.

2nd. We have been able, since our last report, to visit four of the rural districts. In one place (Rathowen) we personally visited the houses of some of the recipients, and what we then witnessed has strengthened our anxiety to devote as much time as our other duties will permit to a periodical inspection of all the districts.

3rd. The pressure upon the house is becoming daily greater. We have made every arrangement consistent with a due regard to the comfort and health of the inmates, that suggested itself to us for making the house accommodation available as far as possible. As yet we have been able to meet the demands upon us, but the agricultural employment of the district is so very limited that we cannot be sure of being many days longer in a position to do this.

4th. With reference to the land alluded to in your letter of the 29th instant, it has appeared to us that the present workhouse ground, not altogether exceeding three acres, does not afford a sufficient field for the employment of the inmates, and we think that if an addition of from five to eight acres could be procured on reasonable terms, it would be of the utmost advantage as affording not only the means for employing the able-bodied paupers generally, but more especially so the growing up boys, whom it would be desirable to prepare for their future pursuits by an instructive system of labour during their residence in the workhouse.

It is not, however, yet certain that the land in question can be had for this purpose; and in any case we shall of course submit all the particulars for your approval before taking any step in the matter.

5th. The two subjects already referred to, viz., the examination of the accounts of the creditors, and the inspection of the rural districts, have engaged so much of our attention that we have had little time at our disposal for any other purpose this week.

Nothing now occurs to us which it is necessary to bring under your notice.

6th. We regret to find that illness will prevent our having the pleasure of meeting Mr. Flanagan for some time: there were many matters of detail on which we should have been glad to have had his advice and opinion.

7th. Things are, upon the whole, progressing in a manner satisfactory to us; we have given our exclusive attention since our arrival to the performance of our duties, and many abuses have, we think, been checked, and many difficulties surmounted by us; but many of both still remain to be grappled with.

In making our weekly report to you yesterday, we stated our belief that we could not much longer receive into the house the numerous applicants for relief.

The unabated pressure which has since then continued, has produced the result somewhat earlier than we then reckoned upon, and we are under the necessity to-day of requesting from you greater powers than we possess under your order of the 18th ultimo.

Men, women, and children, of various ages are hourly thronging round the house in increasing swarms. The fineness of the weather, which obviates the necessity for the proper amount of workhouse accommodation, and previous good arrangements, have enabled us to provide temporarily for 920 individuals, but we cannot receive one more.

We have done all we could to remove from the house all persons available under the 1st section, but many of them could not be induced to leave, and we are unwilling to use coercion.

We think that by giving out-door relief to the families of those persons who are not now entitled to out door relief, and receiving the persons themselves into the house, we could accomplish the two objects of giving the necessary extent of relief, and forcing all able to procure employment to do so.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 5, 1848.

WITH reference to your reports of the 31st ultimo and 18th instant, and the views as expressed in the latter report, to the effect that by granting out-door relief to the families of the able-bodied, and receiving the latter into the workhouse, you could accomplish the two objects of giving the necessary extent of relief and obliging all the able-bodied who could procure employment to do so; I am to state that the Commissioners have addressed Captain Lang, the Union Inspector, upon the subject.

WE have the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 5th instant, referring to our reports of the 31st ultimo and 1st instant, respectively, and stating that you had addressed Captain Lang on the subject of our application, for authority to relieve out of the workhouse the families of such able-bodied persons as we could receive into the workhouse.

Captain Lang has since laid before us the communication above referred to, conveying your concurrence in his view of the inexpediency of adopting our suggestion.

We shall of course devote our best energies to carry out the law in conformity with any instructions we receive from you.

But standing in the position we do of Guardians of the poor, and responsible for their lives, we had no other course open to us, when upon the 1st instant we found the house over-crowded to the extent of 230 individuals beyond the legitimate number, and throngs of wretched objects still calling for relief, than to apply to you for increased powers to enable us to deal with such an emergency as occasion should require.

We have not left one available inch of space idle throughout the whole establishment, and the doctor, with whom we have inspected every apartment, is seriously apprehensive that fever, from which we are now remarkably free, will again break out if the numbers are not reduced. This applies to the dormitories, which we have had thoroughly ventilated. The day-room accommodation is of course deficient to a much greater extent.

The pressure from applicants continues undiminished, and as no additional houses can be hired in the locality, we are wholly unprovided with any means of meeting further demands.

We can truly assure you that since the date of our arrival here, we have laboured without intermission to place the affairs of the Union in a more healthy state than we found them, and we shall be sorry if there is an impression on your minds that we would lightly ask from you powers which we did not absolutely require, or having obtained them, use them without necessity.

We annex a report just received from the medical officer on the state of the house.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. GLEADOWE GRIER to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—April 6, 1848.

I HAVE examined particularly into the state of the workhouse with regard to its over-crowded state, and am decidedly of opinion unless you immediately diminish the number of paupers in the house at present, there must undoubtedly be an outbreak of fever and other diseases, which will place the lives of the inmates in the greatest danger.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 8, 1848.

Granard Union.

I AM to state in reply that on the representation made by you of your difficulties in regard to the amount of workhouse accommodation, the Commissioners are prepared to entertain the propriety of issuing a more extended order than that now in force, under the 2nd section of the Poor Law Extension Act, if the Inspector of the Union, Captain Lang, and yourselves should on consideration deem that course necessary.

The Commissioners fully appreciate your exertions, and have great reliance on your assiduity and judgment; but the only course by which they can communicate to you the authority you ask for is to issue a full order under the 2nd section—a course which should be avoided if practicable, but which in the last resort the Commissioners, if advised that it is necessary, are prepared to take.

ROSCOMMON UNION.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 16, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians have been occupied the whole of the week in regulating the interior economy of the house, examining the various books, &c., and endeavouring to complete the collectors' books to enable them to issue the warrants, but unfortunately some of the late collectors did not attend to give the necessary informations; the Vice-Guardians have written to their securities, which may have some effect. They devote their whole time and attention to their duties, and if perseverance and personal exertion can overcome difficulties, I feel assured that the Vice-Guardians of this Union will do so.

The condition of the house in point of regularity and cleanliness is daily improving, but much has yet to be done. No attention has heretofore been paid to the cleanliness of the house or of the paupers, and no fixed duties allotted to the able-bodied, to keep either the dormitories, dining-halls, or passages clean. The Vice-Guardians and myself have appointed four women to the dining-halls, whose duty it will be to keep the halls, tables, and stoves in order. We have also appointed six women to the kitchen, and women to the several dormitories, convalescent wards, &c.; in short, to every station, who will be responsible for their respective departments: this is the only means by which the house can be brought into order.

Considering the crowded state of the house, the paupers, generally speaking, are tolerably healthy, but suffering a good deal from the want of clothing, particularly the children, who are nearly naked.

Fever and dysentery are still on the increase, but few deaths have taken place during the week.

Forty-five cases of fever have been removed out of the body of the house within the last few days, into the new fever hospital; and as soon as the beds are ready 15 or 20 more will be removed in the course of the ensuing week.

It is gratifying to me to have to report the change that has taken place in the expenses of the house; since the Vice-Guardians have been appointed, a reduction of 4*d.* per head in the week has been made; and we hope to make a further reduction when stirabout is substituted for bread, which will be next week.

WE have now the honour of submitting a report of our proceedings since our taking charge of this Union on the 3rd instant. The large sums due to the several contractors rendered an interview with them absolutely necessary, in order to insure their continuing to supply the house, which they all consented to do, on our promising to pay them the amount of this month's supply on the 1st February, and to liquidate their debts contracted by the late Board of Guardians as speedily as possible, according to the date of their cheques. In consequence of this arrangement, the baker has reduced the price of the four-pound loaf, 4*d.*, and the milkman has taken 1*d.* per gallon less for new milk, and ½*d.* per gallon for butter-milk; these large abatements have reduced the weekly cost of maintenance 4*d.* per head, and we hope to effect a further saving this week, by substituting an oatmeal dinner for the present one of bread.

The financial state of the Union has engaged our most anxious attention; and in order to put it in a creditable state, we have been examining the rate and collectors' books; with the view of carrying into the collectors' books as large a portion of the arrears as we considered were likely to be recovered; to assist us in this examination we have had the attendance of several of the former collectors, and before striking off any sum, have satisfied ourselves as fully as possible that it was irrecoverable. So soon as we have gone over all the books we will furnish you with full particulars; to-morrow we expect to sign the warrants for 10 of the electoral divisions, and in the course of the week to sign the remainder. In order to stimulate the collectors we have made their rate of poundage a decreasing one after the first month, and have required that they shall complete their collection within four months from the date of their warrants. Roscommon Union.

The treasurer has agreed that our monthly cheques shall be first provided for out of the collectors' lodgments.

In order to get the ledger and other books posted, we have allowed the clerk 2*l.* 10*s.* per month to pay an assistant.

There are 1081 paupers in the house and fever hospitals, 55 of whom are in the new fever hospital, 62 in the temporary fever hospital, and 45 in the body of the house, all in fever. So soon as a sufficiency of clothing and bedding can be procured, we hope to be able to remove all fever patients from the body of the house; a number of tailors and women are busily employed in making them, and already 40 have been clothed. We are happy to be able to state that there is a great improvement in the order and cleanliness of the house, much of which is attributable to the exertions of Captain Evans.

REFERRING you to our report of the 17th instant, we now have the honour of waiting upon you with a report of our proceedings since.

We are happy in being able to state that, with the exception of four books, we have at length completed the whole; the collectors of 14 divisions have received their warrants, and are, we confidently expect, proceeding vigorously with their collections. The remaining books would also have been completed, but for the want of proper returns from the former collectors; so soon as they are finished we will send you, in a tabular form, the gross amount of arrears to be collected on each electoral division, and the sums which we have struck off as not being recoverable.

We are getting the necessary supply of bedding, clothes, &c., prepared for the house at Coolmeen, and expect to have all matters prepared for the removal of the school girls to it on the 31st instant.

There are at present 62 patients in the new fever hospital; and so soon as beds, &c., can be got ready, we hope to remove all the fever patients from the body of the house into it; when the additions referred to in our letter of the 20th instant are completed, it will be capable of accommodating 80 persons.

The general health of the house has much improved during the last week, as has also its cleanliness and order. Captain Evans is untiring in his attention to it. The porter, who has been in charge of the house for some weeks, has been appointed master of the Mohill poor-house, consequently we will be obliged forthwith to advertise for one.

We regret to state that there are numbers of persons in every part of the Union in a state bordering upon actual starvation; whom, owing to the crowded state of the house, we are unable to relieve by admission into it, in consequence of having no funds, and the Union being already so deeply in debt, we cannot obtain the necessary credit to enable us to administer any out-door relief.

The cost of maintenance for the week ending the 22nd, is 2*s.* 0½*d.* per head; and the number in the house and hospital 1076.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 26, 1848.

WITH regard to the latter part of your report, relative to the distressed state of the poor in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners have made application to Count Strzelecki for a further loan, to enable you immediately to give out-door relief to the classes specified in the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

SINCE our report of the 24th ultimo, we have had the honour of receiving your letters of the 26th and 28th ultimo, apprising us that at your instance the British Association had made a grant of 300*l.* for the purpose of enabling us at once to give out-door relief in this Union, and we are happy to state that we have received, through Captain Evans, 100*l.* and 20 tons of Indian meal, with Roscommon Union which we have commenced out-door relief in eight districts, to the classes specified in the 1st section of the Poor Law Extension Act, and will do so in the remaining four, so soon as the relieving officers have made out their lists.

On the 25th ultimo we admitted into the house 220 paupers, most of whom were labouring under dysentery, &c., and consequently unable to return again to their own district.

All matters not being as yet completed, we have not been able to send the schools girls to Coolmeen, but hope to be able to do so in a day or two. We have appointed John Hannan as steward at Coolmeen, to take charge of the house, &c., at a salary of 12*l.* a-year, with rations.

The numbers in the house on the 29th were 1219, of whom 163 were in fever and dysentery, and 48 labouring under other diseases; and the cost of maintenance for the week was 1*s.* 10½*d.* per head.

Yesterday we elected the following officers: James Murphy, master; Margaret O'Farrell, matron; and John Somers, schoolmaster; they are to enter upon the duties of their offices to-morrow, and will, we trust, ere long restore the house to order and cleanliness.

The collectors for 16 electoral divisions are busily engaged in the collection of the rates, and have lodged with the treasurer, up to the 1st instant, 370*l.*

WE have the honour to submit to your notice our proceedings since the 2nd instant, which we trust you will find satisfactory.

In consequence of the crowded state of the house, we were unable to admit more than 20 paupers; but we shall be able in the course of a short time, to make room for about 120 able-bodied.

We have appointed David Palmer as porter, at a salary of 15*l.* per annum, with rations.

The number in the house on the 5th instant was 1233*l.*, of whom 93 are in fever, 100 in dysentery, and 59 various cases.

The average cost of the house for the last week was 1*s.* 9½*d.* Out-door relief is now in operation in all the electoral divisions, but not to any great extent at present, to the first class under the Extension Act.

Great praise is due to all the collectors, whose exertions have enabled us to carry out our arduous undertaking more cheerfully. They have lodged in the hands of the treasurer the sum of 444*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*, for the week ending the 5th February.

The remaining rate-books have this day been signed, and we are in hopes of getting in a considerable sum in the course of the week.

We have much pleasure in stating that the master and matron are giving us every satisfaction, and devoting their attention to the regularity and cleanliness of the house.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners infer with satisfaction from your report, that the condition and prospects of the Union are daily improving.

In regard to the collection of the rates, however, the Commissioners have this day received a report from their Inspector, Mr. Flanagan, which they regret to say obliges them to express their entire disapproval of the course which has been taken by the Vice-Guardians, for the purpose of realizing a prompt collection of part of the rates.

The Commissioners had previously addressed Mr. Flanagan, requesting him to state his reasons for recommending the Commissioners to sanction so high a poundage as 4*s.* in the pound, which had been voted by the Guardians to the collectors, for all rates to be collected by them before the 1st March next.

Mr. Flanagan now informs the Commissioners that this rate of poundage is only nominal, and that there is a secret arrangement made by the Vice-Guardians with the collectors to remit 2*s.* in the pound, to every rate-payer who shall pay in his rates voluntarily before the period mentioned.

To remit to a rate-payer part of a rate duly assessed upon him in consideration of prompt payment, is not a legal transaction; and the Commissioners think that any endeavour to give such a practice the appearance of legality, by establishing a nominal poundage in favour of the collector, is inconsistent with official propriety, and not calculated to gain the confidence or approbation of the public.

The Commissioners do not enter upon any detailed considerations of the policy or expediency of remitting part of a rate in consideration of prompt payment, which proceeding is in their opinion, to say the least of it, extremely questionable; but they call on the Vice-Guardians at once to discontinue it on the grounds already stated, as they cannot permit a practice which is in itself illegal, to be carried out under cover of an ostensible arrangement, calculated to mislead opinion as to its real nature.

WE have the honour to submit our report of the proceedings for the last fortnight.

The number in the house, including the pauper girls, at Coolmien, on Saturday, 19th instant, was 1406; the number admitted during the week was 221; the number discharged, 19; and the deaths, 12. On the above date the number in fever was 148; labouring under other diseases, 45; and in the temporary fever hospital, 72, three of whom are in dysentery.

The average weekly cost per head was very slightly reduced for the last fortnight. We are much pleased with our collectors, who appear to be exerting themselves very much; the lodgments for the week were 785*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; payments by the treasurer, 556*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; and the credit balance, 657*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*

The present state of the house is somewhat improved; but in consequence of the inner wall and outer fence being low, a number of irregularities have occurred, which we hope to check by placing guards round the premises. A few of the able-bodied that we admitted during the week got out of the house over the yard wall and went home, knowing the day the relieving officer gave their families relief. Those parties have been discovered and punished.

We regret to state that our newly-appointed master has not given us satisfaction in any way, although we have now allowed him to remain for three weeks on probation. We beg respectfully to call your attention to our answers to queries sent by this post in reference to him.

As soon as we get the tools which Captain Evans has applied for we shall set the able-bodied to work. Those whom we have no room for we will employ in breaking stones, &c.; and those in the house we will employ about it in general work, and principally in raising the outer fence, and such other occupation as we find necessary.

In consequence of the absence of Mr. O'Loughlen, the other Vice-Guardian of this Union, it has been impossible to hold the ordinary meeting as required; however, I have issued the orders for the usual supplies for both indoor and out-door relief. With respect to the latter, from both what I have seen and heard, it will be advisable (and Mr. Flanagan, Poor Law Inspector, fully concurs with me) to issue two orders, one for out-door relief to able-bodied persons who have families; the other for to hold meetings, if considered necessary, in the coming season, in other parts of the Union besides here. By the issue of the first order we can relieve the house of able-bodied paupers and their families, and by so doing, be able to apply the workhouse test to single able-bodied men and women.

On the 4th instant there were in the fever hospital and infirmary 194, at Coolmien 223 girls, and in the workhouse 107, or at least about 200 more than the house is well capable of containing; and the consequence is, that there is (and the more particularly among the younger portion of the paupers) a great deal of sickness, and a general appearance of delicacy among the boys, who are not on the sick list; the latter, I think, proceeds from the over-crowded state of the boys' school.

Roscommon
Union.

I am further of opinion, from the state of the house, that assistance is required in every department of it. Our master tendered his resignation ten days ago, previous to your letter arriving here, disapproving of him, but in consequence of no ordinary meeting having been held since, it could not be recorded. We will require an assistant master and matron, an assistant schoolmistress at Coolmien, and an assistant schoolmaster here. Independent of the sick and delicate children who do not attend school, there are upwards of 200 in each school, and consequently utterly out of the power of any one individual to give that attention which is absolutely necessary both for the moral training and health of the children. We will also require an hospital matron.

With respect to the state of our funds, I am happy to be able to state that of rates and arrears amounting to 14,481*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.*, a sum of 7469*l.* 12*s.* 7*d.* was collected and lodged between the 25th January and 4th March, on which latter day a sum of 5449*l.* 9*s.* 5*d.* appeared to our credit with the treasurer. With respect to out-door relief, I consider the relieving officers are all under paid; salaries, highest 40*l.*, lowest 25*l.* And it will be advisable to establish in the centre of each electoral division, depôts where the food can be distributed by proper persons appointed for that purpose, by which means more time will be at the disposal of the relieving officers to inquire into the cases of applications for relief than can be done at present, when they have to attend two days at least here with their books, besides attending to give out food on other days.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them a report from Captain Evans, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, on the subject, and they have accordingly given instructions for the immediate preparation of an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied under the 2nd section; and also of an order authorizing the meetings of the Board to be held elsewhere than in the workhouse.

I am at the same time to state, that an additional Vice-Guardian has been appointed in room of Mr. O'Loughlen, resigned, and he will be at Roscommon on Wednesday next.

The attention of the Vice-Guardians is especially directed to the necessity of organizing a system of employment for able-bodied men who may receive relief under the order now about to be issued; and their attention is called to the circular letters issued by the Commissioners on this subject.

Captain Evans, the Inspector of the Union, has expressed himself as opposed to the introduction of any out-door employment; but the Commissioners have directed a letter to be written informing Captain Evans that their views on the subject remain unaltered.

The Commissioners are in communication with Mr. Flanagan regarding the alteration of the salaries, and additional officers suggested in your report.

They are desirous that as little augmentation of the establishment charges should occur as may be consistent with the proper conduct of the Union.

The Commissioners approve of the establishment of depôts and food distributors, as proposed.

The Commissioners will address you further on the subject of the return of the inmates of the workhouse.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you, that in consequence of some ejectments which have occurred within a few miles of Roscommon, I anticipate that an increased mass of pauperism will be thrown on the Union for support, and as it would be utterly impossible, in the crowded state of the house, to give admittance to a single applicant, a large number of the able-bodied must necessarily be placed on the out-door relief lists, by this means evading the test of coming into the house, and occasioning a great deal of deception and fraud; I would beg to suggest, that in order to provide accommodation for those persons, the Vice-Guardians should allow out-door relief to the able-bodied who have already undergone the test of the workhouse; thus affording the Guardians an opportunity of admitting the able-bodied who are applying for out-door assistance, and preventing imposition. In reference to the subject of employing the paupers in breaking stones and works of that description, I would beg to state my firm conviction that such a system would be ruinous to this Union, deeply involved in debt as it is, whilst the out and in-door expenditure amounts almost to 1200*l.* per month. The collection of rates in the Roscommon Union has proceeded with great rapidity, the receipts amounting to upwards of 7000*l.*, but this sum has been raised from the wealth and property of the land. The collection of the remainder must necessarily be of slower progress, and attended with more difficulty. Now, in order to carry out the project of employing the paupers in the manner alluded to, it would be necessary to have a large staff of overseers with high salaries to superintend the works. This would entail an increased expenditure on the resources of the Union, whilst the numbers who would flock to those works, in order to obtain the out-door relief, would be enormous, and the expense of supporting which would finally swamp the funds of the Union. The amount of rate collected would be all required to liquidate the debts of the Union, whilst the remaining 6000*l.* would not support the out and in-door relief for more than five months. Taking these matters into consideration, I would beg to state that the present would be a very unseasonable time to commence any project which would add an increased tax to the already burdened rate-payers of the Roscommon Union.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have issued an order under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, authorizing the Vice-Guardians to afford relief to able-bodied persons out of the workhouse, a step which from your report it appeared quite necessary should be taken.

The Commissioners desire me at the same time to state that they do not concur in your views regarding the inexpediency of requiring labour from able-bodied persons so relieved, in return for their relief; and they beg especially to refer you to the circulars which have been issued for the guidance of Boards of Guardians on this point, and which have been communicated for your information.

The Commissioners would on no account omit from their order the condition requiring labour from the able-bodied, which has invariably made a part of an order of that nature, and it will therefore be quite necessary that some system of employment should be organized in Roscommon Union without delay, and the Commissioners do not share your apprehension that this step will entail increased expenditure, but, on the contrary, they believe that if such a system be properly organized and judiciously superintended, it will result in repelling and not in attracting, as you anticipate, application for relief, and be a means of economizing the expenditure in out-door relief.

It is a source of much regret to the Commissioners to find that you entertain views so much opposed to all experience on this subject.

I am finally to inform you that an additional Vice-Guardian has been appointed in room of Mr. O'Loughlen.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—March 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners having had under consideration the return of pauper inmates of the workhouse of the Roscommon Union, for the week ended the 4th instant, I am directed to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a circular letter issued by the Commissioners on the 26th of August last, and I am to state that experience has entirely confirmed the views of the Commissioners as expressed in that circular.

In some Unions the necessity of granting any out-door relief to able-bodied men has been prevented by granting out-door allowances to the aged and infirm, and by obtaining vacant accommodation in the workhouse for able-bodied men and their wives.

The Vice-Guardians will perceive that the workhouse of the Roscommon Union has not yet been used to its full extent as a test of destitution to able-bodied persons, the number of able-bodied men being 144, and of able-bodied women 234; whilst the number of aged and infirm men is 93, and of aged and infirm women 155.

Roscommon

In Kanturk, Clifden, and Galway Unions, all of which are under the management of Vice-Guardians, the Union workhouses do not contain a single aged and infirm person; and in Kanturk Union, as well as in several others, all the children (in conformity with the Commissioners' suggestions) have been removed to a separate and distinct establishment.

With this experience before them the Commissioners entertain no doubt that it is quite practicable to act on the suggestions contained in their circular of the 26th of August; and the Commissioners refer to that circular itself for the reasons which influenced the Commissioners in making those suggestions.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 16th instant, in reply to my report of the 12th instant, and regret that I have incurred your displeasure in advancing opinions contrary to those sanctioned by your approval. I would, however, respectfully beg to state my reasons for so doing. The grounds on which I founded my report were, the depreciation in value of the price of honest industry, and a tendency to foster habits of dependence in the people on other resources than their own. It is a hard case when the industrious labourer breaks his pile of stones, and the contractor or overseer of roads come to purchase them, and only offer him half the value he might reasonably expect, telling him that they can buy them for the same price from the Guardians or their superintendent. That it has a "tendency to foster indolent habits of dependence," a wealthy farmer, named Clarke, told me yesterday that when it was known that out-door relief was to be given to the able-bodied class, one of his labourers immediately left his employment, and applied for relief. I asked him the name of the person, and he replied that his life would be imperilled should it be known that he had been the informer. These are some of the reasons why I made my report, which I regret extremely has not met with your approval.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

You state that the grounds on which you rest your objection to the employment of able-bodied persons receiving relief from the poor rates are the depreciation in value of the price of honest industry, and the tendency to foster habits of dependence in the people on other resources than their own.

In reference to these points the Commissioners request your attention to their circular letter which accompanies the order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied males in every case in which such an order is issued.

The Commissioners have their doubt upon the objections now urged by you, and described them as applying more or less to every mode of exacting labour in return for relief from the poor-rates, but have nevertheless urged the employment of able-bodied males in stone-breaking, as least open to those objections, rather than adopt the alternative of giving relief to such persons without any test or condition whatever.

The form of order which is invariably used on such occasions by the Commissioners contains a regulation requiring a daily task of work to be performed by each able-bodied person receiving relief out of the workhouse.

The above rule was adopted by the Commissioners after mature consideration, and they hold its observance to be a matter of the utmost consequence wherever able-bodied persons are relieved out of the workhouse.

The Commissioners likewise call your attention to the correspondence of the Commissioners with the Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, who have directed that the implements at the disposal of the Board of Works should be made available for the employment of able-bodied persons receiving out-door relief in the several Unions in Ireland.

Whatever weight, therefore, may be due to the observations in your present report, you will perceive that the points adverted to by you have already been considered by the Commissioners, and that the course which they have taken has been directly recognised by Her Majesty's Government.

Your report to the Commissioners of the 12th March informs the Commissioners of the necessity which you consider exists in Roscommon Union for relieving able-bodied males out of the workhouse; and in pursuance of that report, and of a similar representation from the Vice-Guardians, the Commissioners have issued an order authorizing such relief in that Union; but they are not prepared to permit such relief to be given without requiring labour from such applicants as a condition of receiving relief.

Captain MUSTERS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 21, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you, that during my inspection of the workhouse yesterday, I discovered that four persons had been admitted in the course of the day, who I found had been allowed to enter the body of the house without either having been examined by the medical officer or placed in the probationary ward; and on inquiry found that the probationary wards, both male and female, were disused, the latter being turned into a kitchen. The doctor being in the house at the time, I requested him to examine the four persons admitted, when he immediately pronounced one of them attacked with bad fever, who, of course, was immediately removed to the fever hospital. It appears that from want of clothing, there being none made at present, the paupers admitted into the house have been obliged to remain in their own clothes, and there being now upwards of 900 in the house, fever and dysentery on the increase, I thought it my duty, as your Inspector, to bring the subject before the notice of the Vice-Guardians this day. I also requested the medical officer, Mr. Harrison, to make a report to them on the subject, which he has done, being of the same opinion with myself, that, for the present, no further admittances can take place until there be a sufficient quantity of clothes made for those at present in the workhouse, as well as a proper supply prepared for those who may be admitted in future. The Vice-Guardians have given orders that the probationary wards be immediately prepared, and a wardsmen and woman be appointed for each, as otherwise it would be utterly impossible, so long as the paupers remain in the filth and nastiness in which they usually enter the house, to keep any cleanliness or regularity, or prevent the spread of infectious diseases in the workhouse. I would further beg to state, that no paupers be admitted until those arrangements are completed; and that in consequence of your sanction, allowing out-door relief being given to the 2nd section, 10 Vic., cap. 31, I am of opinion that this will be the most seasonable time for having everything put in order regarding the internal arrangements of the house.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 25, 1848.

I AM to state, that the Commissioners concur with you in the propriety of the course which you recommend; and they request that you will be good enough so to inform the Vice-Guardians.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MUSTERS:—March 24, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a constabulary report received by the Commissioners, relative to the death of a man (name unknown), on the 16th instant, in the Roscommon Union; and I am to request that you will be so good as to make inquiry into the facts of the case, and report the result to the Commissioners.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—April 10, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the enclosed copy of a report which the Commissioners have received from Captain Musters, Temporary Poor Law Inspector of the Roscommon Union, relative to the death of a man (name unknown), in that Union, on the 16th ultimo.

ENCLOSURE.

Captain MUSTERS to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 6, 1848.

IN reply to your communication of the 24th ultimo, I have the honour to inform you that I made inquiries into the circumstances of the case referred to in that letter, and find from the police constable of the Fuerty police-station, near to where the man was found dead, that he was an old decrepit man, a stranger, and travelling through the country, and was never known to have applied for relief either to the relieving officer of the district he died in, or at the Union workhouse.

WE beg to forward, for your information, the state of this Union at present, and in doing so regret to state that the house is in a very sickly state, both from its being over-crowded and from the want of clothing. To remedy the latter we have entered into contracts for the supplies of the various description of clothing required, some of which for the male paupers have come to hand, and we have set tailors to work without delay. The materials for the female paupers, calico, flannel, have come to hand and are in progress; but the description of goods for their over-dresses we have been obliged to reject, as not equal to pattern.

The statistics of the house on the 20th, Monday, were as follows:—

Males—Infirm	16
Fever hospital	27
House infirmary	26
Other cases	155

Out of this entire number, 604 are ill or delicate. To remedy this evil we consider it will be absolutely necessary that all the boys and girls under 15 years should be removed out of the workhouse, by which means it will be brought to a healthy state, and a workhouse test left for 800 able-bodied.

We have removed out of the workhouse all the aged capable of being removed, also all widows with children. On going through the hospital we found every thing, as far as cleanliness and close attention on the part of the medical attendant, as it should be, and nothing to find fault with except the flooring, which is very bad. We would recommend that in all the wards the walls at the heads of the beds should be sheeted with timber, and in the lower wards the passages leading up the centre of the room should be boarded. On visiting the girls' school at Coolmien, we have heard with regret that they have had no Roman Catholic service there since their arrival, now nearly two months ago; the parish clergyman having to read prayers in two different parts of his parish, is unable to do so, and he cannot afford to keep a curate. We would suggest that some allowance should be made to him, say 25*l.*, which would enable him to procure the assistance of one, and have Coolmien school attended and looked after by a clergyman, which we consider absolutely indispensable. We regret to state that the collection for the last fortnight has been but 51*l.* 8*s.*; but the collectors are, we believe, now making new exertions, and we have called on them to furnish a list of the names of the immediate lessors and of 10 of the highest occupiers in arrear.

Captain MUSTERS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that during the past week owing to the wretched state of this workhouse my attention has chiefly been directed to that department; though in the visits I have at times paid to the several schools receiving relief from the British Association in this Union, I have had an opportunity also of observing the state of several of the electoral districts. In a report already forwarded, I mentioned having found it necessary to at once lay before the Vice-Guardians the necessity of closing the workhouse for a short time; the number being considerably above that allowed by the Commissioners, and no clothing for men, women, or children. The sealed order for out-door relief to the able-bodied being just about to be put into operation rendered this proceeding, in my opinion, the more necessary, from the impossibility of making use of the workhouse in its present state as a test for that class.

Under these circumstances I suggested to the Vice-Guardians the propriety of immediately providing the necessary clothing for the house—of removing (according to the Commissioners' circular of the 18th January) all widows with two or more children, infirm, &c., to the out-door relief list—and these measures, with an extension of the accommodation already provided for the children at Coolmeen, which the Vice-Guardians have an opportunity of obtaining with great advantage and trifling expense, will, I think, in a short time allow the workhouse to be again opened and made available, which is most essential here for the able-bodied.

In the mean time the system of stone-breaking for the able-bodied will be at once adopted throughout the Union. The staff requisite to carry it out will be appointed on Thursday next, by which time the Vice-Guardians hope to have received the necessary supply of tools, &c., &c., already applied for. At present the able-bodied in the town of Roscommon are required to attend regularly at the workhouse, and kept at work for eight hours during each day.

In the several districts which I visited during the week I regret to say I found very great destitution. I found it necessary to send for the relieving officers and warn them to attend strictly to their duty, to give provisional relief where they found it necessary, at the same time to make every inquiry to prevent imposition; but in cases that ought to be relieved, to do so efficiently, as I found they had in many cases been in the habit of giving much less than the authorized allowance; but on this subject I shall be able to make a more satisfactory report next week.

For the present, I will only add a few remarks on the state of the dietary of the workhouse, which appears to me much too (and unnecessarily) expensive, consisting chiefly of bread, for which they pay 7*d.* the four-pound loaf; the cost per head a-week being from 1*s.* 11*d.* to 2*s.* and upwards. I submitted to the Vice-Guardians the dietary of the Callan workhouse, composed of Indian meal and rice, which had been tried there for some time and found to answer very well, and which would by its adoption occasion a very considerable reduction.

Roscommon
Union.

I hope after a short time, when matters get a little better regulated at the workhouse, and the system of work thoroughly and properly established in the Union, to be able to introduce cooked food in several parts of the Union, either by means of baking where it might be found convenient to erect ovens, or by kitchens for cooking Indian meal and rice—a cheap, and in one respect a more satisfactory, food to the poor than bread, being more filling and easier made; but either system would, I am convinced, be a great saving of expense to the Union, and probably where one was found inconvenient the other might answer.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848.

I AM to state, that the prices of the bread supplied for the use of the inmates appear to the Commissioners to be extravagant, and they approve of your proposal of a change in the dietary.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 31, 1848.

IN forwarding our report to you as to the state of the house, we regret that sickness amongst the inmates continues unabated, and fear it will remain so until the numbers of its inmates are diminished.

There is a very great pressure on the out-door relief, much more we are certain than would be if we could test the able-bodied paupers, but which will be impossible for us to do to any extent to make it available until the entire of the children are removed. With respect to the erection of sheds, doing so adjoining the workhouse would be attended with great and in our opinion unnecessary expense, as we can obtain at a rent of about 40*l.* per annum a house and offices, capable of containing, at least, 120 persons, whilst a shed capable of holding 50 patients would have cost, at least, 200*l.*, and would take five or six weeks to erect. The medical attendant is of opinion that if all the children were removed away, that he would have plenty of hospital accommodation, and that thereby sickness would diminish to a great degree. Coolmien and the additions offered to be made by Mr. Harrison at an increased rent—

Martinstown	250 boys, 60
New workhouse, Connolly's	120 boys, 40
	820 £200

With reference to the state of the Union funds we are sorry to state that we are of opinion they will soon be completely exhausted. Our weekly expenditure is about 500*l.* for in-door and out-door relief. The cheques of the late Guardians are out to a large amount. To the baker there is a sum of about 2300*l.*, of which the bank, holding 900*l.*, paid themselves. Two millers in Clare hold cheques of his to about 1900*l.* In fact, the late Guardians issued cheques to the amount of about 5000*l.* of which the bank being holders of about 3200*l.*, of course will pay itself. There was but 263*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.* rates collected since last report, and from all we see and hear, legal proceedings and distress must be resorted to to recover the rate outstanding, amounting to about 5400*l.*, a large portion of which, from the poverty of the country, is not recoverable. In fact, if we can carry on relief until the 1st of May, it is the most that can be anticipated without assistance in the shape of loan or otherwise. The valuation of the Union is in such a state as will require a competent person at least two months to revise, so that it will be impossible to put on another rate before July, very little of which can be expected to be collected before harvest.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 8, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 31st ultimo, relating to the Roscommon Union, and to state in reply that they sanction your taking the premises alluded to, in order to provide additional accommodation or any other premises which can be obtained.

The description of the prospects of the Union given in your report is most unfavourable, and appears to demand the utmost energy and discretion on the part of those now entrusted with its local management.

You will recollect that the Commissioners have used their power to its utmost extent in providing an extraordinary local agency in lieu of the late Board of Guardians, and that the Commissioners are disposed to support you in any well-considered measures for bringing the Union into a more satisfactory state.

You must not relax in your endeavours to secure a vigorous and prompt collection of the current rate. Your report on this point is not expressed in such a tone of confidence and resolution as to be satisfactory to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners trust that you will bear in mind that your appointment as Vice-Guardians was not made for the purpose merely of reporting your difficulties, but of doing everything in your power to surmount them.

The Commissioners know from experience how much may be accomplished by Vice-Guardians under such circumstances where energy and method are employed.

Should you not feel yourselves competent to contend with the present difficulties of this Union, the Commissioners would accept your resignation on that ground; but they sincerely trust that the Guardians will not feel any necessity for that course.

MANORHAMILTON UNION.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major FITZGERALD:—January 31, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Under-Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man, named Hugh M'Canna, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body, to have died from want; and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Vice-Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

*County of Leitrim,
Drumkeeran, January 21, 1848.*

On yesterday H. M'Canna died suddenly.

Copy of Verdict.

We find and all agree that the deceased, Hugh M'Canna, died on Thursday, the 20th instant, on the high road near Drumkeeran, in want of proper nourishment and exhaustion; and we further add, that the supply allowed from the out-door relief to deceased and family was not sufficient for their support.

*Inspector-General,

JOSEPH D. MULLEN, Sub-Inspector.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply:—February 3, 1848.

IN compliance with the directions contained in your letter, dated 31st January, 1848, I have the honour to report the following facts relative to the case of Hugh M'Canna, deceased, who was stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body, "to have died from want" in the electoral division of Drumkeeran, in this Union.

I have examined the in-door and out-door registries, and the relieving officer's book, by which it appears that the said Hugh M'Canna was in the workhouse from the 21st December, 1847, to the 31st December, 1847, on which day he was transferred to the out-door registry, and received relief from the relieving officer of Drumkeeran electoral division from the 1st of January, 1848, till his decease. He received during that time the allowance sanctioned for out-door relief in this Union, viz., twelve ounces of meal per day.

The Drumkeeran relieving officer states, that since the death of Hugh M'Canna, he is informed that he was in the employment of a brother-in-law, who he supposes gave him some support; of this circumstance the relieving officer was not aware at the time he was issuing relief to him.

I went to Drumkeeran yesterday for the purpose of making further inquiry, but the persons whom I wished to see were absent at a funeral.

The subject was likewise referred upon this day to the Board of Guardians by the clerk of the Union, in compliance with your orders, of which notice will appear upon their minutes.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 6, 1848.

HAVING been for so short a time acquainted with this Union, I am unwilling to hazard a decided opinion as to its general condition; and most of the details to which I have been able to direct my attention, I have already touched upon in a special report on matters which had been referred to in a letter to you from Mr. Otway, 23rd ultimo.

As far as I can yet judge, destitution varies much in this Union according to the locality; and, as might be expected, the pressure is in a direct ratio to the numbers of the small cottiers. The electoral division where it is greatest is Drumkeeran; where least, Drumahaire.

Although applications and admissions to relief are during this season on the increase from week to week, I do not, on the whole, apprehend that the lamentable necessity of out-door relief to the able-bodied will arise in this Union, provided due diligence is used in increasing workhouse accommodation (some details upon which are contained in the special report already adverted to) and especially if the opportunity for providing employment by means of the Land Improvement Act shall be generally taken advantage of, as it has already been by some of the proprietors in this Union.

The Guardians appear for the most part intelligent, and disposed to discharge their functions with a view to the interests of the Union; but I think there is a want of method in the Board-room arrangements, which requires correction, and without which neither can their own business be carried on with practical effect, nor will their officers be trained to those habits of strict obedience and punctuality which are essential.

I have felt it my duty, in my special report, to express that the collection of rates is not in a satisfactory state. The Guardians seem disposed to exercise a proper economy and vigilance in their expenditure, at the same time that they do not evince any tendency to disregard the claims of the destitute; but I am quite certain that the most effective means for ensuring a just economy of funds furnished by self-taxation will be found to consist in the certainty, punctuality, and rigidity with which they are collected and can be made available. In other words, the financial affairs of that Union which has always funds in hand will be always the best managed.

Trusting that these views meet your approbation, I will use my earnest efforts to press them upon the attention of the Board of Guardians of this Union.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that, pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Guardians passed at their last weekly meeting on February 3, a Sub-Committee met this day for the purpose of concluding an arrangement for hiring a house in the vicinity, to be occupied by the schoolmaster and male children now resident in the workhouse. The Committee examined and approved of a cottage in the outskirts of the town, consisting of a ground-floor, which would furnish (by roofing and flooring one end which is now dismantled) a school-room, a kitchen, and a master's room, and of a loft which would answer as a dormitory for the boys. The repairs would cost about 50*l.* The rent asked by the proprietor for the cottage and some land in front, which would answer for a play-ground, is 20*l.* per annum.

The situation is not badly adapted to the purpose, but I doubt whether you will feel disposed to sanction so large an outlay as 50*l.* for a temporary object.

I shall regret our not being able to find any place that will suit the object we have in view, because, though I agree with Mr. Otway that building on the workhouse site is preferable, the main object at present is to provide immediate accommodation for our extra numbers, and the proposed building for this purpose on the workhouse site, of which the estimate was sent to Mr. Otway, will not be completed for four months.

The chief want at present is not of dormitories so much as of day-rooms, and partial improvement might be effected in this respect at a very slight cost; there is a very good room, with a fire-place in it, on the ground-floor, in the infirmary range, which is used only as a turf store. At the cost of a very few pounds a turf store might be formed along the side wall which connects the infirmary range with the main building, and the room now used for a purpose it was never intended for might be made a day-room of for paupers.

The extension of the infirmary range, to which I referred in a former report (3rd February), will I think be ready for the admission of paupers this week.

Manorhamilton
Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 9, 1848.

THE Commissioners having learned by your report of the 7th instant that the cottage proposed to be taken for the male children in Manorhamilton Union workhouse would require an expenditure of 50*l.* for repairs and roofing, and that day-room accommodation is at present the chief want, for which you consider that provision may be made at the workhouse, they have requested the Board of Guardians to take into consideration the practicability of sufficiently extending the accommodation by temporary buildings on the site of the workhouse.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state that I this day brought under the consideration of the Board of Guardians certain matters respecting which I had received your instructions in letter dated 9th February, 1848.

A contract has been this day entered into for a supply of clothing sufficient for the whole number of paupers approved for admission by the Board, with the object of preventing for the future the over-crowding of the probationary wards, from want (which has hitherto been experienced) of an adequate supply of workhouse clothing. }

There has been an improvement this week in the paying in of rates by the collectors, with the exception of those of two electoral divisions, Drumkeeran and Inismagrath. The collectors of these two electoral divisions were called before the Board, and admonished that severe measures will be taken against them unless a very considerable sum shall be lodged by each before this day fortnight. I have likewise ordered them to bring before the Board this day week a nominal list of all defaulting rate-payers in their electoral divisions whose rates exceed 1*l.* The amount paid in for the Union this week is 508*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, which exceeds last week's collection by 248*l.*

Your recommendation which I brought before the Board, that they should meet twice in the week, was not acceded to. The Guardians present stated that some of the Guardians never attend at all, and that those who do so regularly, find it not easy to give their attendance once a-week without clashing with magisterial business, or detriment to their private affairs. I argued that, even looking at it only with a view to their own interests, there are few matters relating to their private affairs which they will find it more perilous to neglect than the duties imposed, and a vigilant control over the expenditure which their properties are taxed to meet. However they would not consent to attend twice in the week, but have resolved, in order to get through more business on the Board day, to meet for the future at half-past 10 o'clock.

It has likewise been arranged that two of the Guardians are to meet me on each Tuesday at the Board-room for the purpose of examining and checking some of the accounts of the establishment, so as to facilitate the work to be gone through on the following Thursday.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 12, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to report again to the Commissioners, as to whether the arrangements made for conducting the business of the Board of Guardians are sufficient for the purpose.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that the collection of rates is more satisfactory than it was, and I trust the improvement henceforth will be progressive.

By an arrangement made upon the last Board-day a Finance Committee is to attend regularly each Tuesday, to examine and check the accounts and expenditure at the workhouse. By this means, upon Thursday, the regular Board-day, more time and attention can be devoted to the lists of applications and to the books of the relieving officers: neither of which matters can afford to be hurried over, without serious detriment to the claims of the poor and the interests of the rate-payers. In the case especially of relieving officers it will only be by vigilantly enforcing adherence to the rules laid down by the Commissioners that we can hope to train them into useful public servants. This matter, I am bound to say, has not been hitherto sufficiently attended to, in a great degree in consequence of the mass of business heaped upon one day in the week.

I have this week examined very closely the state of the wards, school-rooms, and infirmary, and have found a fair degree of attention paid by the officers to regularity, cleanliness, and ventilation.

The medical officer informs me that, both in the workhouse and in the district, fever has latterly assumed a more malignant and fatal type.

Upon the subject of extra accommodation within and without the workhouse, I have had the honour of reporting specially during the week, and therefore I do not now advert to them.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major FITZGERALD:—February 12, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a communication which they have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a woman named Rose M'Namara, who it is stated was found dead in a temporary shed which had been erected for her; and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the fact of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

*County of Leitrim,
Dromahair, February 4, 1848.*

ON the 29th ultimo, Rose M'Namara was found dead in a temporary shed which was erected for her, and in which she and her children had taken shelter after being turned out of the fever hospital.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major FITZGERALD:—February 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a communication which they have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man named John M'Ternan, who is supposed to have died from starvation; and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN reference to the accompanying special reports required by instructions contained in your letters, I deem it my duty to add a few observations.

3 H 2

Union.

It is very lamentable that neither of the persons reported upon made application for assistance to the relieving officers of their district. It is also I think to be regretted that the Board of Guardians, when it was decided to give up the Killanummery hospital, did not instruct the relieving officers to make special inquiry respecting the circumstances of the persons discharged from it, as it is well known that convalescents from fever are very weak, and peculiarly subject to relapse.

I have pointed out to the relieving officer, that if he had been as cognizant as he ought of the circumstances of the families whom he was relieving, he could not have been ignorant that the boy had been sent to the fever hospital, and would probably have had his attention drawn to his subsequent condition; the father concealed both circumstances, and had continued to draw his son's allowance while in hospital.

It appears to me, that in almost all the cases of death among the poor requiring explanation in this part of the country, want of house shelter, and exposure in travelling during an inclement season, from their habits of wandering from place to place, have been the contributing causes, and not actual want of food.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN compliance with instructions contained in your letter, 21th February, 1848, I have inquired into the circumstances of the case of Rose M'Namara, deceased. I find that on the 15th of January, she left the Killanummery hospital cured of fever, and it does not appear that she ever made application for relief either at the workhouse or to any relieving officer. She died in a shed erected for her by one of her friends on his own ground. The relieving officer states, that he never knew anything about her till he heard of her decease.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN compliance with instructions contained in your letter, 14th February, 1848, I have made inquiry into the case of John M'Ternan, reported by Constable Evans on the 7th instant; I find that the person referred to in the report, erroneously called "John Ternan," was a boy of 14, named James Foley; he left the Killanummery hospital on the 22nd January, being a week convalescent after fever; he received from the doctor who had been in charge of the hospital, which was at that time ordered to be closed, a ticket of admission to the hospital at Manorhamilton; the boy, instead of going there, returned to his father, who, fearing contagion, would not admit him among his other children, and probably from want of shelter, in addition to his weak state of health, the poor boy perished in the inclement weather, or it might have been from a relapse. The father was in the receipt of out-door relief for himself and his children, including the boy James, and he did not report either his being in hospital, or his subsequent condition to the relieving officer.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—February 29, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, that the Commissioners have received a report from Major Fitzgerald, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, relating to the decease of two persons (named Rose M'Namara and James Foley), in which he states that Rose M'Namara left the Killanummery fever hospital cured of fever on the 15th of January, and that it does not appear that she ever made application for relief either at the workhouse or to any of the relieving officers.

With reference to the case of James Foley, Major Fitzgerald reports that he left the Killanummery hospital on the 22nd January, being a week convalescent after fever, and that he received from the doctor who had been in charge of the hospital, which was at that time ordered to be closed, a ticket of admission to the hospital at Manorhamilton; but that the boy, instead of going there, returned to his father, who, fearing contagion, would not admit him among his other children, and that probably from want of shelter, in addition to his weak state of health, the poor boy perished from the inclemency of the weather, or perhaps from a relapse of fever.

Major Fitzgerald further reports, that the boy's father was in the receipt of out-door relief for himself and his children, including the boy James, and that he did not report either his son's being in hospital or his subsequent condition to the relieving officer.

It is to be regretted that the Board of Guardians, when they had decided to close the Killanummery hospital, did not instruct the relieving officers to make special inquiry respecting the circumstances of the persons discharged from it.

The Commissioners concur with Major Fitzgerald in thinking that had the relieving officer been as cognizant as he ought to have been of the circumstances of the families whom he was relieving, he could not have been ignorant that the boy James Foley had been sent to the fever hospital, and would probably have had his attention drawn to the boy's subsequent condition.

The Commissioners desire me to request that the Board of Guardians will take into their consideration the propriety of removing the relieving officer of the district, and of appointing a more efficient person in his stead

I HAVE already reported that the rates paid in this week have been less in amount than I expected.

It appears that, in certain instances of endeavouring to recover from defaulters, the collectors committed a legal irregularity. They attempted to obtain by distress the amount due from parties whom they had already served with a notice of summons: the parties rescued their cattle; and when the collectors applied for assistance to the resident magistrate, he informed them that they ought not to have proceeded both by distress and summons. They asked me what they ought to do, and I told them to follow up their summonses wherever they had served notice, and wherever they had not served notice to distrain. I have since consulted the resident magistrate, who approves of those instructions; and says further, that the summons may now be followed up against the person who rescued his cattle; this I am glad of, as he is a rich gentleman farmer, who can well afford to pay his rate, and ought to have set a good example by doing so.

I regret the above occurrence, both on account of the delay to the getting in of the rate and for the mischievous effect of a successful resistance to the payment of a tax not overpopular. However, the resident magistrate, as soon as the collectors place themselves in the right, will give every aid when required for the enforcement of the law.

The applications for relief from the able-bodied have, in some parts of the Union, diminished, in consequence of the employment offered by drainage under the Land Improvement Act. Agricultural work also is commencing; and in the undrained fields, which I am sorry to say constitute large portions of the farms in this county, spade labour (which is predominant in most parts of this Union) can begin its operations earlier, in a wet season especially, than a plough could enter the ground.

Several also of this class have left the workhouse to seek for employment.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

THE amount of rates paid to the treasurer this week is 263*l*. This is from five electoral divisions; nothing has been paid in from the other five, partly owing to circumstances concerning which I have sent you a special report this week.

The Board of Guardians, in the month of January, made a contract for supplies of Indian meal and oatmeal to the workhouse, which at present prices has turned out a very unfavourable one to the Union. They have allowed the relieving officers to draw their supplies for out-door relief from the same person, which would prove a serious loss if continued. I have therefore induced them to advertise for tenders, by which a great saving will be effected. We have also the choice of dealing with the commissariat at Sligo, which might be an advantageous arrangement. I propose going to Sligo to-morrow, for the purpose of making inquiry.

I perceive a strong tendency on the part of some of the Guardians to play into the hands of favourite contractors, which it will be my duty to check and expose.

The addition to the infirmary range, which the contractor was bound to have ready about the 18th of this month, is not yet complete, and the Guardians do not seem at all impressed with the importance of keeping the contractor to his engagements.

The fitting up of a building in the precincts of the town, which you sanctioned for a temporary school-house for the male children, is getting on rapidly under a clever tradesman, to whom I have entrusted the work.

A visit to the Manorhamilton workhouse by your architect would be desirable, for reasons which I have stated in a special report.

The sanitary condition of the workhouse is improved as to fever. Dysentery cases are still numerous.

The state of the workhouse in point of cleanliness and regularity, is on the whole creditable, and will be better as soon as the extra accommodation is available.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

I ENCLOSE a memorial from the chairman of the District Committee for the relief district comprehended in the electoral divisions of Drumkeeran and Inismagrath, in this Union, occasioned by the following circumstances:—on examination of the relieving officer's book of that district, I suspected that he was giving out-door relief to able-bodied persons, and on visiting the Committee I found my suspicions verified. They had ordered their relieving officer to give relief to certain heads of families, for a portion of their families, they themselves being employed on money wages not sufficient to support the entire family. I ordered the system to be stopped, telling the Committee that it was illegal, as no order had been issued by you, authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, and adding that there is no principle more opposed to the word and spirit of the Irish Poor Law, than giving relief in aid of wages. I pointed out to them the various evils that would ensue if such a course were pursued,—that every gentleman and farmer in the country might employ labourers at any wages he pleased, conditioning to get their families placed on the rates; that such a system would inevitably tend to lower wages and perpetuate pauperism and dependence.

However they argued the case as stated in their memorial, urged the purity of their motives, which were to save their district from excessive taxation, and at the same time to foster the spirit of industry among their labouring poor and keep them out of the workhouse, and they requested me to refer their case specially to you.

Mr. Cullen, the gentleman who signs the memorial, is a useful Guardian, gives employment under the Land Improvement Act, and exerts himself generally for the benefit of the district.

At the same time I have thought it right to point out to the Manorhamilton Board of Guardians, the necessity which this case proves of a closer examination of the books of relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. CULLEN to Major FITZGERALD:—February 24, 1848.

I have been directed to furnish you with the following particulars relative to the mode of our out-door relief:—W. Ward is upon our list; he has eight of a family, he earns 4s. a-week by labouring, and he is allowed one stone of meal per week out-door relief. This supports his family, and he is contented. Now, should we send him and his family to the poor-house, his family cost us 1s. 0½d. a head per week, making 8s. 4d. per week. By our own mode the family only costs 1s. for a stone of meal; leaving a saving of 7s. 4d. in favour of our plan, or upwards of 700 per cent. The nearest calculation we can make is that 100 families are so circumstanced in these divisions that their own labour will not support them without assistance; therefore by your order all those 100 families must go into the poorhouse, and the labour provided by proprietors, is of no avail, as they will not be permitted to work and receive out-door relief. The value of the two divisions is about 7500*l.*; a rate is struck now for 1200*l.*; from 250*l.* to 300*l.* of this will not be collected, from the great poverty of the district. Our number of poor who will be supported by poorhouse and out-door relief for these two divisions, will amount to 1200; and I now leave it for you to say, are those divisions able to support such a host of paupers in the manner the law directs.

I trust you will place our case before the Commissioners at your earliest convenience; for if ever there was a cause for relaxation from a strict rule, this is the one, as positively the income of these divisions will be nearly half absorbed by poor rates alone.

I hope you will excuse the length of this letter; but the subject is tedious.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 1, 1848.

In reply I am to state that the Commissioners fully concur in the view which you have taken of the question.

The Commissioners are of opinion that the strongest possible line should be drawn between relief and wages, it being an essential principle in any sound system of Poor Law administration that relief and wages should be kept totally distinct, and that a destitute able-bodied man should be relieved wholly by the Union, or employed wholly by the party for whom he works.

The Commissioners are convinced that the infringement of the principle would lead to pernicious consequences, and by making employers of labour suppose that they had a pecuniary interest in introducing a system of out-door relief to able-bodied men, it would eventually entail an enormous burthen on the poor-rates which the property of the Union would be wholly unable to support.

The following additional objections to the employment of the recipients of relief on the property of private individuals may also be stated :—

Firstly. Such a system tends to absorb the general stock of employment, and so to bring more labourers on the poor-rates.

Secondly. It tends to lower the market value of labour, to the great injury of the self-relying labourer, since the occupier of land will not contract for the employment of pauper instead of independent labour unless he can obtain some advantage in the rate of wages.

Thirdly. It tends to spoil the industry and habits of the labourer, who will not work with the same energy in return for relief as when he has a bargain with a private employer to work for wages,—the continuance of his employment and the amount of his receipts depending in one case on his industry and the value of his work, and in the other case on the necessities of himself and those dependent on him for support.

The memorial is herewith returned.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 4, 1848.

I HAVE to state that in consequence of the Leitrim and Fermanagh Assizes it has not been possible to have a Board of Guardians this week. I endeavoured to obtain a quorum of three to meet Mr. Otway, who had signified to me his intention of attending on Thursday, but I could only get two members.

Mr. Otway visited the workhouse on Tuesday, again on yesterday (Thursday). He was much struck with the weakly aspect of the children in the school-rooms, which he conceives is owing to an insufficiency of nourishment, as they do not get supper. My attention had been already turned to this matter. I had got the Sligo scale of workhouse dietary, and on Monday last examined the condition of the children in that establishment, between whom and our's I observed a marked difference in appearance very much in favour of the former, who are allowed a bread supper.

I am sure that for children three meals in the day are better than two, even if the total quantity were the same in both cases, and I was about to bring this matter before the Guardians at their first meeting.

Mr. Otway, however, informed me that the dietary for the children might be immediately altered by the authority of the medical officer, if he should deem it necessary as a matter of health; that officer's attention being then directed to the subject, he made a careful examination and reported that it was essentially necessary that the food of the children should be increased, and a different distribution of meals adopted. The change was carried into effect on Thursday, a supper of four ounces of bread being provided for each child under 15.

A report of the grounds upon which he had deemed it necessary to order this change was laid by the medical officer on the Board-room table, which will be submitted to the first general meeting of the Board of Guardians, who I have little doubt will sanction and confirm the alteration.

I purpose likewise to call their attention to the dietary of the adults, with the object of advising a small increase, as the days are now lengthening, and we shall be able to keep them more actively employed.

The applicants on the relieving officers' books on Thursday received provisional relief either in or out of the workhouse for one week; as there was no Board to examine the applications, as far as time permitted, I decided respecting doubtful cases myself.

For the week ending 26th February, there were on in-door relief 773; on out-door about 1500. I cannot be quite certain as to this last number, as the relieving officer of one of the relief districts has been suddenly attacked by fever, and his books have had to be made up by a deputy, whom I was obliged to appoint upon a short notice.

I stated in my report of the 26th February, that I had induced the Guardians to advertize for tenders for supplies for out-door relief. If there appears any difficulty upon Thursday next in concluding a contract in time, advantageous for the Union, I intend to recommend that a temporary supply shall be obtained from the Commissariat, which we shall obtain (for ready money) at market price, viz., Indian meal for 8*l.* 8*s.*, and rye meal for 7*l.* per ton. The Guardians have hitherto been supplying out-door relief, by Indian meal, at 11*l.* per ton, from the workhouse contractor.

I have also made myself acquainted with the terms upon which Sligo merchants will deal, so that I hold a check over the contracts that we may receive from the Manorhamilton contractors, who have hitherto played into each other's hands.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 7, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that the period for which your sealed order was issued, authorizing out-door relief in this Union to two classes under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, viz., to widows with less than two children, and orphans, will expire on the 12th instant, and the Board of Guardians deem it desirable, in which opinion I coincide, that you be pleased to renew this order for a further period of two months.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order for the period specified.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report the proceedings of the Board of Guardians this week, upon Tuesday and Thursday.

Upon the former day they examined the accounts of the Drumkeerin fever hospital, and transacted some other financial business. I recommended them to pass a resolution that in future cheques to pay contractors, &c., should be signed only once in the month instead of weekly, or at irregular intervals as heretofore.

The Chairman signed summonses against certain defaulting high rate-payers in the Killarga electoral division, taken from a list furnished to me by the collector of the district. Each collector will in future be obliged, when he attends the Board, to produce similar lists.

Mr. M'Mullen (Mr. Wilkinson's deputy) made upon Tuesday a verbal report to the Board of Guardians, recommending that the infirmary extension buildings should be taken out of the hands of the contractor, and completed by the Guardians themselves. A resolution to that effect was passed, respecting which I have had the honour to make you a special report.

The chief business on Thursday was examining the applications for relief. I had occasion to call the attention of the Chairman to the tardiness with which the examination of the relief register is executed by the Union clerk. His explanation being that the relieving officers did not attend in due time. A resolution was ordered to be placed on the minutes, enjoining strict attention to that part of their duty in future. My own opinion is, that the inaptitude of the clerk for the methodical dispatch of business is the true cause.

Mr. M'Mullen's report (a copy of which I have the honour to enclose) was laid before the Guardians, who resolved that it should be referred to the Finance Committee on Tuesday next.

Tenders for the supply of Indian meal for out-door relief were accepted at 8*l.* 15*s.* per ton, delivered at each depôt. A considerable economy will thus be effected, as the Guardians have hitherto allowed the workhouse contractor to supply meal to the relieving officers at his own contract price of 11*l.* per ton.

I think there will also be a saving in the next bread contracts for the workhouse, for which tenders are to be received upon Tuesday next.

I have omitted to state that I laid before the Board of Guardians your letter, calling their attention to a neglect of duty on the part of the Killarga relieving officer. The Board called him before them, and cautioned him to be very careful in making himself acquainted with any changes occurring in the families he was relieving. It appearing in this instance that the father of the boy Foley had studiously concealed from the relieving officer the sickness and absence of his son.

The Board considered that this animadversion would have the desired effect, without adopting the severe course of dismissal, in which I concur, as this officer has latterly improved much in zeal and diligence.

March 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them a report from Major Fitzgerald, Temporary Poor Law Inspector for the Manorhamilton Union, in which he states that the chief business of the Board of Guardians, on the 9th instant, was examining the applications for relief, and that he had occasion to call the attention of the Chairman to the tardiness with which the examination of the relief register is executed by you, your explanation being that the relieving officers did not attend in due time. Major Fitzgerald, however, is of opinion that your inaptitude for the methodical dispatch of business is the true cause.

The Commissioners have also had before them the observations of Mr. Otway, Poor Law Inspector, in which he expresses his concurrence in opinion with Major Fitzgerald, and states, that he told you some time ago that he would hold you responsible for the relieving officers' books being properly filled up, unless you pointed out in distinct cases how and when the relieving officer failed in his duty; and unless he found that you had taken proper steps to have every relieving officer punished for neglect of duty immediately on occurrence of such neglect.

The Commissioners have directed me to request that you will furnish them with any explanation you have to offer on the subject.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major FITZGERALD :—March 14, 1848.

WITH reference to your report of the 11th instant, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to forward herewith for your information a copy of queries and opinions of Mr. Henn, Q.C., on the legal point regarding the collection of the poor-rate referred to in your former reports.

Manorhamilton
Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Queries.

Opinion of J. Henn, Esq., Q.C.

THE Commissioners are desirous of receiving your opinion on the following points:—

1st. Whether the collector, by leaving the six days' notice, deprives himself of the power of proceeding by immediate distress before the expiration of the six days?

2nd. If so, whether after the expiration of the six days the collector can proceed by distress under his own warrant, or must he proceed in pursuance of the notice by complaint before a justice?

1. Where the collector has given notice that payment of the poor-rate may be made at his house or office, within six days, and that in the event of default of payment further proceedings will be instituted, I do not think he has a right to distrain before the expiration of the six days; and even if such right exists, I think it would be wrong to exercise it.

2nd. I do not think the mere service of the notice specified in the Act would deprive the collector of the right to distrain if the rate should not be paid within the six days, but in the printed form sent, notice is given that in default of payment within the six days, proceedings will be instituted against the party served for the amount, together with all reasonable costs and charges, &c., &c., which clearly refers to the summary proceedings before a justice of the peace, and after the service of such notice I do not think the collector ought to proceed by distress.

J. HENN.

I HAVE the honour to report that on Monday (this week) I attended the District Committee at Drumkeerin, and upon examination of the relief books I struck off about 20 families from out-door relief, the heads being able-bodied labourers, some of whom were in employment, and others I believe might be if they chose. I desired the relieving officer to offer tickets of admission to the workhouse to those among them who should apply to him for relief.

I then thought it right to point out to the Committee how absolutely essential it is at this season to apply every stimulant to agricultural industry, and how desirable it is that employment be given at fair money wages. I also proved to them how much better off a large and destitute family is by having even one member supporting them by his wages, than they would be if the whole of them received out-door relief.

Supposing the father of a family to earn 10*d.* a-day, or 5*s.* a-week; 5*s.* will purchase 60 lbs. weight of Indian meal at the present retail price in the district. Supposing the family to be six in number, they would only, upon out-door relief, if all adults, be allowed 5½ lbs. each in the week, or 35½ lbs. for the whole family, instead of 60 lbs.

If one of those adults be a son able to earn 4*s.* a-week, that will bring 48 lbs. more of food into the family, i. e. they would receive 108 lbs. of food in the week, instead of 35½ lbs., the out-door relief allowance; and yet there is little doubt that, unless the stimulant of refusing out-door relief is applied stringently, many would rest satisfied with the 35½ lbs. food of idleness!

A proprietor in that district has been employing 70 or 80 labourers at agricultural spade labour. He began by paying them low daily wages of 6*d.* or 8*d.*, with which they were perfectly satisfied; but after a short time he discovered that he was getting no work done, and ordered his agriculturist to give task-work. I asked the agriculturist what those labourers ought to earn at the rates he offered them; he said 10*d.* a-day, but that they almost all refused to work by task at all. What would the effect be if we allowed relief to the families of such persons?

At the same time I have great doubts whether "giving employment" always means employment at fair money wages punctually paid. This is the one thing needful; and unless it becomes the rule instead of the exception, taxation and destitution will go on increasing pari passu.

The receipts acknowledged by the treasurer this week from collectors amount only to 219*l.*; but an additional sum has been lodged, though too late for this week's minutes. Notices were issued to summons certain lessors and high ratepayers, whose names were handed in as defaulters, in the electoral divisions of Drumkeerin and Inishmagrath.

It appearing that sufficient publicity had not been given to the notices for tenders for the supply of bread to the workhouse, the time for receiving them was extended to Tuesday next.

The Guardians resolved to defer the consideration of Mr. M'Mullin's report upon fever hospital and school-rooms proposed to be built until the infirmary range was complete, and they could ascertain what the actual accommodation then will be.

The Board was occupied on Thursday in examining the applications on the relief books.

Great mischief is caused by men deserting their families, and leaving them to be supported by the Union. I have had informations sworn by the master and relieving officers of these families having become chargeable, and have had warrants issued against four or five of the parties, who, there is reason to suspect, are lurking about the country. This is a serious evil, which will, I fear, increase during the spring.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that the Board of Guardians met twice this week; a quorum of three on Tuesday, and the General Board on Thursday.

Upon Tuesday, fever hospital and other accounts were examined; some observations thereon appear on the minutes.

The only tender for supplying bread to the workhouse was put in by the former contractor, and was so high that I advised the Board at once to reject it, which was done. Before the Board broke up another party agreed to contract for a reasonable price, which was accepted; viz., 6d. per white, and 4d. per brown, 4 lb. loaf. The former contract having been 7½d., a considerable saving will thus be effected in the in-door expenditure.

I likewise stated in a former report, that by advertising with due publicity (aided, I believe, by a rumour which is abroad, that the collection of rates will be enforced, and contractors for the future punctually paid in this Union), we have now Indian meal supplied for out-door relief at 8l. 15s., instead of 11l. per ton, which latter price the Guardians had volunteered to pay, for no reason that I could conjecture except to benefit the contractor.

It is right to state that in effecting economical reforms of this nature, I find Mr. Tottenham, Chairman of the Board, a zealous and able assistant when he attends.

Thursday the Board was occupied chiefly in examining the applications for relief.

As I have reason to think that at this season of the year, unless great vigilance be exerted, the families of persons in employment on money wages will continue to receive out-door relief, I suggested to the Guardians that on Monday next all the members of the families receiving out-door relief in the electoral division of Manorhamilton, be required to appear at the workhouse, except the bed-ridden, and that some of the Guardians belonging to the district shall be present at the scrutiny, which was agreed to. In no other way shall we be able to get at the truth. I think this will do it.

The collectors have lodged 446l. this week, and notices served upon certain immediate lessors and high rate-payers, taken from a list given in by the collectors. I have already asked to have some of your printed forms for that purpose sent to me, which I think I shall be able to make good use of.

Fever is, I am glad to say, much decreased, which I attribute mainly to the precautions now taken for keeping the in-coming paupers as short a time as possible in the probationary wards. This, and sending all doubtful cases at once to the hospital, instead of admitting them to the house, are, I am convinced, the most effective means that can be resorted to for keeping fever away from a workhouse. We have a porter who performs his duties in enforcing these measures with much intelligence and effect; and the medical officer is fully and properly awake to their importance.

You will observe on the minutes that the Guardians request a plan from Mr.

Manorhamilton
Union.

Wilkinson for a fever hospital, to cost 600*l*. I am not prepared to say whether that sum would suffice for providing the accommodation that would be requisite. Mr. M'Mullen's estimate was 1900*l*. for a building to contain 100 patients.

The new master, Mr. Browne, arrived yesterday. I have been at the workhouse with him yesterday and this day; he appears intelligent and zealous, and will, I hope, be a useful officer.

The late master is unfortunately laid up with dysentery, which will delay the regular taking over of the establishment for a few days.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Commissioners' architect has been drawn to the resolution of the Board of Guardians referred to in your report.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 1, 1848.

UPON Monday I attended the Relief Committee and inspected the fever hospital at Drumkeerin. This is the electoral division, the destitution of which it will be the most difficult to cope with of any in this Union. I take every opportunity of urging the proprietors and farmers to give employment as the only means of reducing their own taxation, but the farms are generally so small that the owners are able to cultivate them (as they understand cultivation), by means of their own families, and this district is more in the condition of the destitute parts of the south of Ireland than any other in this Union.

However, some proprietors are now giving employment on money wages, and I do not apprehend, that even in Drumkeerin, there will be a necessity to extend out-door relief to the able-bodied.

I also think that the bread rations to the schools will prove a valuable aid in this poor electoral division.

Upon Tuesday fever and other accounts were examined. The master of the workhouse having reported to me that the meal contractor furnishes the supplies very irregularly, which interferes with the proper arrangement of hours for breakfasts or dinners, the clerk was instructed by the Board to announce to the contractor, that unless the supplies are furnished regularly and in the due quantities, his contract will be rescinded. As it is a very advantageous one to him, this will doubtless have the desired effect of producing regularity in future.

Upon Thursday, in addition to the usual examination of the relief applications, a special personal scrutiny was made of those receiving out-door relief in the Manorhamilton electoral division. We had not time to go through the whole of the cases, but a quorum of the Guardians will meet me on an extra day (not being the general Board-day), for the purpose of concluding this which is a very useful examination.

The new master finds that his time and attention must be so absorbed for some time in effecting any necessary reforms in the general arrangements of the house as to classification, discipline, cleanliness, &c., that he has requested to be allowed some temporary assistance in the department of accounts. The Guardians have, by my advice, appointed an assistant for a limited period—salary to be fixed on Tuesday next.

I hope you will be pleased to sanction this arrangement which I conceive to be absolutely necessary under the circumstances.

I have commenced the issue of bread rations to the schools, but am doing it very cautiously, and I will postpone reporting to you in this matter till I have got the system fully into action.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 8, 1848.

UPON Monday I proceeded to Drumkeeran, examined the relieving officer's books, and visited some schools.

The Finance Committee met upon Tuesday, which being the 1st in the month, the day fixed for paying contractors, a large amount of the sums due was paid off. Other special business was transacted. Upon a matter relating to the conduct of a relieving officer, I have the honour to send a special report by this post.

Upon another case, relating to the death of a child in the workhouse, I beg to observe, that though quite aware myself of the real circumstances, and that the story accusing the master of severity was a pure fabrication, I thought it right, in justice to him, to have the matter publicly investigated, as you observe it was, and with the most satisfactory result.

The fact is, discipline had been much relaxed, and classification neglected, by the late master; and the present one, by the steps he is obliged to take for effecting the necessary reforms, has excited feelings of hostility among those whom he is obliged to coerce. In the beginning of this week there was actually a spirit of insubordination in the house. Upon Tuesday, however, I had two persons, who had distinguished themselves by insolence and disorderly conduct, brought before the Board for the purpose of making an example. The Guardians very properly expressed their determination to uphold the authority of the master, and those two persons have been committed for trial at the next petty sessions.

The master has since told me that the effect has been "magical" in restoring obedience and subordination.

I have no doubt I shall have in a short time to report a marked improvement in the workhouse. The master is most zealous and efficient, and of course I afford him every support and assistance in my power. The appointment of an assistant-master has been a great relief to him.

Upon Wednesday a quorum of the Guardians and myself completed a personal scrutiny of the families on out-door relief in the Manorhamilton electoral division, and struck off nine, the heads of which we discovered to be in employment. It is of immense importance to be able to detect these cases, because it is one of the abuses which rate-payers will sometimes connive at, as it enables them to get labourers to work for them at reduced wages.

For no evil is it more necessary to find a cure, or more difficult, than the attempt to take advantage of the misery of the times to force down wages. Besides sundry other social evils, one of the effects is, to induce the labourer to seek employment in other places, where better wages are given; and he leaves his family a burden upon the rates here. Others, who stay at home and accept the paltry wages offered, remain, they and their families, in a state of semi-starvation, and doubtless give very bad work to the employer.

The answer, of course, of the farmer or employer will be, that in times like these, he cannot afford to give the wages he used to do.

Several proprietors in this Union are giving employment under the Land Improvement Act, and the labourers are earning fair money wages, but they are chiefly the tenantry of the proprietors.

I observe a great deal of the tillage going on is by young boys and women.

A considerable quantity of potatoes is planted.

Upon Thursday ordinary business was transacted, and the minutes of Tuesday confirmed.

I am happy to note an improvement in general attention to business on the part of the Board latterly, and one or two useful additions have been made by the late annual election.

The rate collection is not in a satisfactory state, and I have warned one or two of the collectors that I shall put into force the 100th section of the Act 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 56, which renders them liable to a fine of 5*l.* for neglect of duty.

A large amount of the sums unpaid is due by occupiers who let their land for grazing; and till after the 1st May there is no stock upon the land, and therefore the rate collectors have nothing in such cases to get hold of.

I have been engaged a good deal this week in visiting the schools, and carrying Count Strzelecki's arrangements into effect.

MOHILL UNION.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 11, 1848.

I REGRET that I cannot report this week any abatement of the pressure of applications for relief from extreme want in the Mohill Union. The books of the relieving officers (the examination of which occupied, as usual, the greater part of Wednesday and yesterday) exhibited an increase of 1000 individuals, whom it was found necessary to take on the out-door relief list; and my close inquiries of these officers, compared with my own observations and information obtained this day during a tour through great part of the Union, convince me that this increase will continue for some weeks to come. At the same time the number of admissions lately made to the house, has filled it even beyond what it is advisable to retain there. I have within the last few weeks several times urged upon the Vice-Guardians the precaution of sending out of the house as many widows and children as they could; and with this object in view, the late master had been a fortnight since, directed to make a list of all those who had been six months in the workhouse; but this like his other duties was neglected; and the Vice-Guardians, overwhelmed as I foresaw by the multiplicity of matters to be attended to in both Unions, had not found time to see to its accomplishment before the last Board day (yesterday).

Among the able-bodied men, I fear there are numerous cases of desertion of their wives and families, rather than submit to enter the workhouse; but several of that class have also been driven by want to accept the admission to it, finding they could not get out-door relief; and as there are now for the first time, 15 or 20 of these in the workhouse, the maintenance of strict discipline, and the exacting of labour, become most important.

There have been recently in the house several daring cases of plunder of bread, and other delinquencies, and some indications of insubordination which must be instantly repressed if possible. I had hoped that the presence of the new master, Mr. Moran, who has been in charge for five days, would have been felt; but I have been surprised and concerned to perceive no indications of energy, command, or order on his part. At the Board yesterday, he had none of his provision accounts made up; nor it appeared had made a roll of the inmates; and when questioned by the Vice-Guardians with great mildness and forbearance, he exhibited a degree of nonchalance, if indeed his manner do not deserve a stronger epithet, for which I auger little good.

The Vice-Guardians have required of him to have certain duties performed by Sunday morning (one of the principal of which is making a bona fide roll of the inmates), and pointed out to him his responsibility for the stores, and for the daily consumption in the house, which he did not appear to have at all assumed; and as one of them at least will attend that morning to see the result, we shall have means of judging of his competence for his present office. Should he fail, or exhibit, as I apprehend, a disposition to resign the situation, the position of the Vice-Guardians will be very critical. In the interval before another master could be found, insubordination and disorder may attain a height difficult to suppress: and I know not what can be done but to turn out the greater part of the inmates, which will be attended with disastrous consequences to the system of relief, or to apply for, and if possible obtain, for a short time, some extraneous assistance—such as two intelligent and determined non-commissioned officers of the line, or sergeants of the constabulary.

I look on the maintenance of the workhouse test at this season, accompanied (to render it effectual) by strict discipline and order in the house, as the point on which the future safety of the Union depends. In the workhouse there is no adequate place for confinement of the refractory; and the gaol has rather attractions, than terror, for the wretched and degraded individuals who form the majority of the inmates, and to whom the food and warmth of the gaol are actual comforts.

The collection of the rates in the six divisions where it has commenced, proceeds tolerably well. About 400% had been obtained in the last week; and I hope that no forcible resistance will be offered to the collectors: but I fear that the actual poverty of a multitude of the tenants holding from 10 to 20 acres of land will make its complete collection impossible in several districts.

Fever appears to be on the increase in one part of the Union; while in another from no visible cause it has latterly very much decreased.

The supply of cast military bedding, most seasonably granted to the Vice-Guardians by the Commissary-General, will enable them to receive patients from the sickly portion of the Union (in which it is situated) into the temporary fever hospital recently hired, and taken over by them this morning.

Mohill Union.

Further Report from Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—
February 12, 1848.

WHEN sending off last night, my weekly report, written immediately after returning from an extended visit through the Mohill Union, from Carrigallen, (to which I had proceeded for that purpose, late on Thursday night, after the Board had closed its sitting,) to this place, I was not aware that the event therein adverted to as probable, had already occurred. Mr. Moran yesterday formally resigned the office of master, and in a way that would render his remaining there beyond to-morrow useless and inadvisable. He has done literally nothing since his arrival, and Mr. Duncan, whose intimate acquaintance with the forms of workhouse accounts, enables him to form a conclusive opinion, considers him quite ignorant of and incapable of keeping such.

As a temporary expedient, the Vice-Guardians have placed in charge of the workhouse an intelligent and active, but very young man, who has been for the last 10 days employed by them as assistant master, and I trust that assisted by our almost constant presence and support in the house, he will be able for some time to preserve order and system. Meantime they will advertise for a master and clerk, the latter being in a hopeless state of disease.

I beg leave now to draw your attention to the present position of affairs at the workhouse. The staff consists of this inexperienced young man, as acting master. There is no matron, and the assistant matron lately engaged, exhibits little of the energy required in such a house. No clerk, (the duties of that officer being, since Christmas, performed by one of the Vice-Guardians, aided by a smart and clever boy as acting clerk,) a schoolmaster who cannot even keep the boys in the school-room; and an indifferent schoolmistress and porter. In the house, probably from a number of mislaid keys being in the possession of the paupers, it is found quite impossible to keep the doors locked or preserve classification, and there are no means of punishment, there being not a single cell or lock-up room in the house, whose original construction is most inconvenient and insecure.

At this conjuncture the house contains more inmates than it has ever had previously; and there is reason to apprehend the immediate necessity for admitting a considerable number of able-bodied men, as soon as room can be made for them.

As the petty sessions are held but once a fortnight, and there is no provision for the custody in the interval, of a delinquent, the jurisdiction of the resident magistrate is of little avail for the prompt punishment of offenders that may be required to maintain order.

Under these circumstances I beg leave to recommend that a special application should be made to obtain for us, for three weeks or a month, the services of an active and resolute constable of police, or, if possible, of a sergeant and corporal from some regiment of the line, to maintain the discipline of the house and enforce employment, while the present acting master shall keep the stores, look to the issue of clothing, and the constant stream of admissions and discharges, and under the direction of the Vice-Guardians endeavour to expurgate the register and bring up the arrears of, and keep henceforth the master's books and accounts.

I would also request permission strongly to urge the propriety of increasing the salaries to be offered for the situations of master and clerk, the former to 60*l.* per annum, and the latter to 50*l.*; as there is no probability of procuring a thoroughly efficient and competent master for the amount at present allowed (40*l.* per annum with only the pauper's rations), and as it is manifest that in consequence of the extensive degree of destitution in this Union, the workhouse, including the additional sheds to be erected, must remain for some years liable to be constantly filled, and the task of bringing up the clerk's books and returns, and the business likely to arise from the mistakes of the valuator in his yet unfinished revision, will probably impose on the clerk constant and unremitting labour for some months.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 14, 1843.

WE beg to draw the attention of the Commissioners to the absence of a refractory ward in connexion with the Mohill Workhouse. The places we use for this purpose at present—two small stores under boys' and girls' stairs, opening on passage from entrance-door to dining-hall—are totally inadequate. We would therefore request the sanction of the Commissioners to the erection of a refractory ward on some suitable part of the workhouse premises.

The limited means we possess for the punishment of offending paupers interferes much with our efforts to restore discipline. The powers conferred by the 58th sec. of 1 and 2 Vic., c. 56, are quite inadequate to cope with the insubordinate and unruly numbers which our policy of confining relief to able-bodied men alone in the workhouse has made inmates; and this difficulty is much increased by the absence of a refractory ward. As paupers can now only be brought before the magistrates at petty sessions, which are held but once in the fortnight, and as no means of restraint exists for offenders during the intermediate time, we find the section of the Act almost inoperative, and breaches of the workhouse rules may occur with impunity. The minor punishments of reduction of allowances of food or additional work would be of little effect, even had we officers or means to properly carry these out.

If the magistrates were invested with the power to make prompt convictions, an important assistance would be rendered in enabling us to uphold discipline in the workhouse.

Another point we shall advert to when on this subject is, the lowness of the walls of that portion of the boys' and girls' yards fronting the schools. The children can pass over these walls with the greatest ease; and as there is no adequate boundary fence to the workhouse grounds, great irregularities arise in consequence. We propose that these walls should be raised three or four feet; and although perhaps this would slightly injure the appearance of the building, we think it indispensable. So soon as funds permit, if the plan meets the Commissioners' sanction, we will have it carried into effect.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 18, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners, before giving their sanction to the proposed alterations, will communicate with their architect, Mr. Wilkinson, who is at present on service in another part of Ireland.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—February 26, 1848.

ADVERTING to your report of the 14th instant and the Commissioners' reply of 18th instant, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, in reference to your application for the sanction of the Commissioners to the erection of a refractory ward at the workhouse, that they think proper wards should be provided for each sex, and that if no part of the existing buildings can be applied to that purpose, they consent to the erection of such wards in the manner proposed.

At the same time the Commissioners wish to point out, in regard to your observations as to the insufficiency of the provisions of the 58th section of 1 and 2 Vict., c. 56, to repress insubordination and refractory conduct, on the ground that the offenders can only be brought before the magistrates at petty sessions, which are held but once a fortnight, that under the 60th section of that Act a warrant of apprehension may be obtained at once from one justice, and the offender may be taken into custody immediately thereupon, and kept in custody until the petty sessions are held.

With regard to your proposition to raise the walls of the boys' and girls' yards fronting the schools three or four feet, the architect observes that the raising up of the dwarf walls in front of the schoolrooms, as proposed, would make the rooms behind the walls too gloomy. Iron railing was originally intended to be put on these walls if necessary, and can be now added.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 14, 1848.

WE regret that the death of our late clerk, Mr. William Simpson, and the illness of the acting clerk, have delayed the transmission of several returns, and the minutes of meeting on 10th instant; we hope, however, to have these documents forwarded by to-morrow night's post.

The master recently appointed has resigned, and the matron's continuance being dependent on his, we now advertise for both these officers. We propose to continue the salary of the master at that already fixed, 40% per annum, but to increase the rations, say to the extent of 5% in the year.

In reference to the proposition contained in our letter of the 2nd instant, of appointing two relieving officers at a salary of 35% per annum each, in room of the officer for the Carrigallen, Newtown Gore, and Drumreilly electoral divisions, resigned, and to your communication in answer thereto, sanctioning that arrangement, we beg to state that, in consequence of considerations which subsequent information have presented, we are disposed to adhere to the original plan of having but one officer, at a salary of 50% per annum for those divisions. Viewing all the circumstances of the case, we believe this to be the better course; it will secure a person of a superior class, be in uniformity with the practice in the other parts of the Union, meet the temporary pressure of destitution (the officer having an assistant as already sanctioned by you) better than by employing two inferior men, promote economy, and tend to restrain complication in the working of the system of out-relief, as well as be in keeping with what would ultimately be desirable, after the distress of the present season had settled within ordinary limits.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that with the view of procuring a better master for the workhouse the Commissioners are prepared to sanction a salary of 50% for that officer, and the Commissioners are satisfied with the arrangement that there should be only one relieving officer for the electoral divisions of Carrigallen, Newtown Gore, and Drumreilly, as now recommended by you, and as originally approved by the Commissioners.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

ALTHOUGH I have constantly inspected the workhouse at Mohill, and have reported that I observed extremely little improvement in its deplorable condition, I think it advisable to take this opportunity of again representing its state for the information of the Commissioners.

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that not a single regulation or recommendation of the Commissioners is or can be at present carried out in the Mohill workhouse. The Vice-Guardians are both in attendance there on two days in the week, and one or other of them present for seven or eight hours every day of the remaining five (even the Sunday being latterly of necessity a day of business), but the duty expected of them is more than any degree of personal labour can accomplish.

I have repeatedly stated that there is not a single effective officer in the house, and when I add that there is not at this moment any roll of the inmates, nor even a knowledge of the actual numbers in the house, that in consequence of the defective supply of water the breakfast often cannot be prepared even for the hospital patients until one in the afternoon, and that there are numerous cases of dysentery throughout the house which the medical officer cannot remove into the infirmary from want of room; that the probationary wards are crowded, and the ordure and filth defile the premises even in front of the main building; that the acting master yesterday reported about 30 male paupers for various acts of disobedience and insubordination, whom there were no means of punishing, except by turning them out of the house, and thus reducing them to starve or rob (which, of course, was not to be thought of); that the porter, over-worked, intimated his intention to resign, and the acting clerk (a boy) was obliged by indisposition to leave the house in the afternoon; that I was myself engaged for some hours yesterday, assisting one of the Vice-Guardians to select some women with families to be sent out of the house for out-door relief, and in the necessary preliminary inquiries found the register full of inaccuracies and omissions which create complete confusion, and would require a long and laborious inquiry to correct; and that further, every attempt at rectifying the defects of the house is checked or vexatiously opposed by some local inconvenience, such as the want of tradesmen or artizans capable of executing an order or completing a contract; some idea may be formed of the disheartening and almost insuperable difficulties to be overcome.

Were it even possible to procure at once a complete and effective staff of experienced officers from the best Union workhouse in Ireland, I do not believe they could establish the order, discipline, and cleanliness that is essential to the conduct of these institutions in a month; and I greatly fear that there is no chance of the Vice-Guardians procuring the services of any competent to the duties, and who will encounter the many disgusts and incessant labour required in a really earnest attempt to effect the object desired.

THE Commissioners appreciate the difficulties described by you, and regret the disorder and confusion described as existing in the workhouse.

The Commissioners are prepared to sanction the rate of salary proposed for the master of the workhouse, namely, 50*l.* The salary of the clerk should also certainly be raised, and the Commissioners request you to obtain the views of the Vice-Guardians on the subject. The Commissioners think it may properly be raised to 60*l.* at least, considering the increased duties of the clerk under the new Acts; and the Commissioners trust the Vice-Guardians will be able by their advertisement to obtain the services of efficient officers.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 16, 1848.

WE beg to report for the information of the Commissioners, in reference to the transactions of the Mohill Union during the past week as follows:—

Rates and Rate Collectors.

2. The total amount lodged during the week ending 12th instant, was 409*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* In the current week 146*l.* has been already lodged; this is considerably short of the amount collected (which we are unable exactly to ascertain until the fortnightly examination of the collectors' accounts on Tuesday next). This deficiency in the lodgments arises from the distance of the Treasurer, his refusal to take silver or Bank of England notes without a high discount; but we expect before Tuesday next the collectors will have cleared up their accounts. The total amount now lodged of the new rate is 663*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* and we trust the amount collected will on the day named, (Tuesday next) not have fallen short of 1,000*l.*

3. We have now completed the appointment of collectors for the entire Union, a competent person being this day accepted for the Annaveagh electoral division, the last which was vacant. His bond will be perfected to-morrow, and we can then have all the rate already made, placed in full collection. We conceive the staff of collectors is as satisfactory as could be expected from the peculiar circumstances of the locality. Our utmost vigilance shall be directed to their progress, and the supervision of their accounts; and every practicable measure shall be put in force to ensure the accomplishment of our most important design, the due collection of the rates.

4. To our regret and disappointment the revising valuator has not yet completed the revision of the Mohill electoral division; and we fear it will be another week before he has it finished. If legal, we should wish to terminate Mr. Gallagher's employment with the completion of this division, and with your sanction will appoint a competent person to proceed with the revision of the three electoral divisions still undone. Should we be obliged to await the progress of Mr. Gallagher two months hence, the valuation will probably be unfinished, and the rate not in collection over all the Union. The Commissioners' opinion on this important particular we look to with anxiety.

Mohill Union.

Workhouse.

5. The person we appointed as master (Mr. Morran) has resigned, being we think incompetent. We proceed at once to elect a successor. The temporary matron we still retain, until a permanent one be chosen, and we are pleased with the exertions of Miss Morran in the former capacity. The death of Mr. Simpson, our clerk, and illness of the acting clerk, has retarded office business. We have advertised for a person to succeed Mr. Simpson, and hope after his appointment to make speedy progress in bringing up the arrears of accounts.

6. Much difficulty has arisen in the management of the workhouse, from the imperfect means of restraining and punishing refractory paupers, who exhibit much uneasiness at the prospect of improved discipline; we have already addressed a letter to you on this subject. Mr. Higgins, our temporary assistant, is particularly active and useful, and with his assistance the establishment is improving.

Out-door Relief.

7. We have now nearly 6,000 on the out relief lists, and within the next fortnight expect the number will reach 7,000, which will probably be the maximum. Employment to some extent it is expected will then commence, and its effects will diminish our relief lists. There is not a single able-bodied man receiving out-door relief, admission to the workhouse under our management being the sole mode of relief to that class. By pursuing this course we have kept thousands off the lists, and therefore accomplished a considerable saving. An improvement is perceptible in the appearance of the people, and we are disposed to think that very few really destitute persons coming within classes suitable for relief, have escaped the attention of the relieving officer; and we believe not one individual in the Union has sunk beneath starvation unrelieved, since the full organization of out-door relief. We have transferred about fifty widows and children from the workhouse this week to out-relief.

Fever Hospitals.

8. We this week place the Carrigallen fever hospital in operation. Our Mohill fever hospital is going on satisfactorily; by it we are able to keep the workhouse perfectly free of infectious disease.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 28, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report of the 16th instant relative to the revision of the valuation of Mohill Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that as it appears from your further report of the 23rd instant, that the revision of Mohill division has been completed, and that only three divisions remain to be completed, the Commissioners think it might be unadvisable to interrupt the completion of the revision, as delay must necessarily occur in the appointment of another person in place of the present revisor; the Commissioners have, however, addressed a further letter to him, of which a copy is enclosed for your information, and the Commissioners request that every means may be used to urge him to greater expedition in completing the revision.

FROM the tenor of my recent communications, it may be anticipated that I can have but little of improvement to report this week in the condition of the Mohill Union.

The workhouse continues in the same defective state, and cannot be expected to improve until the Vice-Guardians succeed in obtaining the services of an efficient master. I regret that the increase of the salary of this officer to 60%, as recommended by me, has not been sanctioned, as I am firmly persuaded that the thorough establishment of regularity and discipline (which must mainly depend upon his incessant exertions) would prove a means of saving annually several hundreds of pounds to the Union, by rendering the workhouse, what it cannot otherwise be made, an effective and rigorous test for discriminating between pretended and real destitution.

Mohill Union.

The increase of the clerk's salary to at least 60%, as recommended by you, I will urge upon the Vice-Guardians; and do not doubt that on consideration, they will coincide in regarding it as for the best interests of the rate-payers.

The increase of applications from destitute persons visited and relieved during the past week, has raised the out-door relief register to about 6400, of whom, probably, 300 may have been struck off or transferred to the workhouse.

Very few of these, I have reason to think, are not strictly entitled to and in actual want of relief, except the class of deserted women and children.

There is so manifest a disposition among the labouring able-bodied men, who will not submit to enter the workhouse, to desert their families, and thus get them taken on the relieving officers' books, that the Vice-Guardians have been obliged to enjoin in all these to compel the women representing themselves as deserted within the last few months, to come forward and swear an information against their husbands, which there are grounds for hoping will check this increasing practice.

With the exception of the applications from this class, I perceive the gradual abatement of the pressure for relief; and I now entertain a sanguine hope that we shall not be compelled at all to relax the test which has proved so effectual against the able-bodied men, especially as employment will shortly be more general. Already I have noted in the country indications of activity in tillage; and sometimes observe groups of three and four men labouring together, instead of the solitary digger more generally seen slowly turning up the irregular shallow furrow. And in the district near Ballinamore, four of the resident gentlemen are giving employment to a number of labourers in land improvement.

In addition to this, there will soon be a demand for several hundred such for certain works to be carried on under the Board of Works in general drainage.

The collection of the rates is proceeding, though not as yet very rapidly. The collector for the Annaduff division, who is a gentleman of much activity and business habits, has shown by the amount he has already lodged, the effects of energy and promptness in enforcing payment.

He reported yesterday that on the previous day a cow he had seized for rates had been forcibly rescued from his men; and an immediate application was made to the resident magistrate, who granted a warrant for the apprehension of the parties concerned, and has promised to send a force of police with the collector the moment it is applied for.

I trust that this prompt proceeding will put down any spirit of forcible resistance; and I may add, that the other collectors speak of no avowed opposition to the payments demanded, although there has not yet been time sufficient to judge of the success of the measures they must adopt, to compel payment from those who did not come forward within the first fortnight after they had received their warrants.

A collector has been chosen for the last electoral division remaining vacant.

In regard to your recommendation of 60% as the salary of the master of the workhouse, I am to observe that the amount approved, namely, 50%, is beyond the average salary for which efficient masters are obtained for other workhouses, of similar size to that of Mohill; and the salary of 50%, with rooms for residence, and the allowances made to the master of rations, coals, and candles, will exceed in value the salary of 60%, to be allowed to the clerk of the Union, who is a superior officer to the master.

With respect to the statement that the dinner for the inmates was not, on the day before your report, supplied till half-past 9 p.m.; and to some later, for want of tins and spoons, the Commissioners trust that some arrangement will be made by the Vice-Guardians and yourself, by which such an occurrence may be prevented in future.

In relation to the desertion of wives or children by able-bodied men, I am to state that the Commissioners approve of steps being taken for the punishment of men deserting their families, as provided by section 2 of the Vagrant Act, 10 and 11 Vict., c. 84.

The Commissioners also approve of the measures taken for enforcing the collection of the rate in Annaduff division, and request that all necessary steps may be resorted to, for the purpose in this and the other divisions of the Union. In case of rescue, after informations have been sworn, a further seizure should at once be made, wherever practicable.

The long-continued state of disorder and mismanagement in this workhouse is a subject of great regret to the Commissioners, whose authority has been used to its utmost extent, by establishing an extraordinary agency for the administration of the law, instead of that which was previously existing, and by default of which the workhouse and the affairs of the Union fell into so disorganized a state.

The Commissioners have relied, and still rely, on the exertions of the local agency now established, to restore the Union and the workhouse to a satisfactory state. The Commissioners trust that the opportunity now afforded by vacancies in the three important offices of clerk, master, and matron, will lead to a proper choice of successors, and, as regards the offices of master and matron, to an improvement in the management of the workhouse.

The Commissioners enclose for your information and guidance, and that of the Vice-Guardians, two printed copies of instructions, relative to the management of workhouses, drawn up by Mr. Nicholls during his residence as Commissioner in Ireland.

As the rate struck upon ten of the electoral divisions in the Mohill Union is now being put in active collection, and as a very considerable amount of money, both as rate and as arrears of the rates of 1845 and 1846, is due by the immediate lessor on several estates over which there are receivers appointed by the Court of Chancery, I think it advisable again to bring under your notice the extreme difficulty experienced in obtaining payment of rates from these parties.

In my report of the 12th November, 1847, I adverted to this difficulty, and requested instructions as to whether a special application should be made to the Chancellor for an injunction to these receivers to pay the rates in accordance with the order, dated 12th November, 1845; and I subsequently urged that a special application should be made by the attorney to the late Board of Guardians in the cases of several such estates. The attorney afterwards stated to the Board, that two of the Masters in Chancery applied to (Murphy and Litton) had declined issuing such an order, and referred the Guardians to the collector's power of distraint on the actual occupier of the land in case of non-payment by the immediate lessor, and stated that the receivers could not be called on to pay where they had not received rents.

But I have to observe that it is precisely on such estates (in which the rent has so frequently been allowed to run into arrear) that the collector finds it practically almost impossible to recover rates from a great portion of the occupants, in consequence of the holdings being absolutely destitute of anything to distrain, or of a preconcerted system of signals, by which as soon as the collector appears, the tenants are warned of his approach, and enabled to drive in and secure under lock and key any cattle or stock they may possess before he can effect a seizure.

Further, as it is not in the power of the collector or the Guardians to prove when the receivers have or have not obtained payment of rents, the payment of the poor rates due by immediate lessors may be continually evaded on the plea of having no monies in hand, unless the receivers be ordered by the Courts in all instances to pay these rates when notified to them as due, out of the first sums they shall thereafter receive on account of the said immediate lessors, and some injunctions be made against paying away monies obtained for rents to other accounts without first liquidating the collector's demand.

I have the honour to transmit herewith the copy I have obtained from the attorney to the late Board, Mr. O'Brien, of the letter from his conducting clerk in Dublin, containing the statement as to the reply made by Master Murphy in the cases of the estates of Mr. Nisbett and of Mr. Westby Percival; and to mention that the amounts due on other estates (such as that of the late Colonel Madden), are considerably larger than on these.

Mohill Union.

ENCLOSURE.

COPY LETTER from Mr. ROBERT JOHNSON, No. 11, Lower Gloucester-place, my conducting clerk, on the subject of an application I directed him to make to the master in the causes over which receivers have been appointed on the estate of Francis Nisbett and Westby Percival, for the poor-rates due on those estates, and chargeable to the inheritor as the immediate lessor.

ROBERT P. O'BRIEN.

1st December, 1847.

On this morning I applied to Master Murphy on the subject of the poor-rates due by the landlords of the lands over which receivers are appointed, and he informed me that there is no general order, such as you have mentioned, on receivers to pay the poor-rate, and that he could not listen to any statement of facts by any third party without an order from the Court; that if the receiver received the rents, he was bound to pay the landlord's share of the poor-rates; that if the receiver cannot receive the rents, he is not of course bound to pay poor-rates out of his own pocket; and that the Poor Law Guardians have a clear remedy by distraining the lands through their collector. I also spoke to counsel as to the course the Poor Law Guardians should pursue against the landlords for the poor-rates of their tenants, whose holdings are at and under the yearly value of 4*l.*, and he informed me that these poor-rates being the landlord's debts, your course should be by distress through the poor-rate collector on the lands of the landlord, or by distress of their own lands on the lands. This is his verbal opinion without looking into the Act, but might it not be advisable to lay a case before counsel and have his written opinion, under which the Poor Law Guardians should act upon all future occasions as well as the present.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 4, 1848.

In reference to your report of 21st ultimo, relating to the collection of the poor rates on estates for which receivers have been appointed under the Court of Chancery, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they are in communication with their solicitors on the subject.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—February 24, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to return the accompanying petition to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant from Widow Geelan, of Rooskynamona, in Mohill Union, which was transmitted to the Commissioners for inquiry; and I am to state that, having communicated with Major Haliday, inspector of Mohill Union, and with the Vice-Guardians of the Union thereon, the Commissioners have received from them respectively, communications, of which copies are herewith transmitted for the information of his Excellency.

ENCLOSURES.

To His Excellency the LORD LIEUTENANT.

PETITIONER HUMBLY SHOWETH—

THE humble petition of Widow Geelan, of Rooskynamona, hopes your Lordship will see me justified in granting me the out-door relief, I making application for it and was denied several times; I being a helpless widow these 40 years and upwards; lost my land; and I having a little boy destitute of his limbs, and both him and me are in a state of starvation, unless your noble Lordship does look to us with an eye of mercy and charity; and in so doing I will be in duty bound to always pray.

WIDOW GEELAN.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 22, 1848.

I HAVE this day visited at her own residence the Widow Geelan, who acknowledged to me that she was the petitioner in question, and that she had twice on former occasions written to the Lord Lieutenant and received replies. She is in possession of 3 roods 10 perches of land, of which upwards of half an acre is laid down in wheat, and promises well.

The son she refers to in her letter is a man of 30 years of age or upwards, but a cripple, and makes his livelihood by teaching. Another son, Michael Geelan, holds a good farm of nearly 10 acres, well cropped and manured, and is apparently in very comfortable circumstances, and well able to support her if she were destitute, which is not the case.

Her house has much less appearance of poverty or discomfort than those of a multitude of the class of small rate-payers: and she herself looks stout and well fed, though nearly 80 years of age, according to her own statement.

The land she says she lost, was another farm of four Irish acres, which is now held by her son Michael.

Mohill Union.

IN answer to your letter of the 18th instant, requesting the observations of the Vice-Guardians as to the case of Widow Geelan, who acknowledges to have memorialized the Lord Lieutenant, we beg leave to state that, having made due inquiry into her circumstances, we find that she holds 3 roods 10 perches of land, one half acre of which is well laid down in wheat. Her cottage neat, and no appearance of destitution either in her person or premises. "Her boy" is a man of 30 years of age, is a teacher, and earns a livelihood thereby.

She also has another son, a comfortable farmer (for this country), holding 9 acres 3 roods 32 perches of good land, which he has well cropped, the fields large, and generally in good condition.

In conclusion, we have to state that, had this woman not been in occupation of 3 roods 10 perches of land, which is in itself sufficient to disqualify her from getting relief, we should not be inclined to afford it to her from the independent circumstances of her son.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 23, 1848.

1. WE beg to briefly report on the circumstances of the Mohill Union, in connexion with the past week.

Rates.

2. The amount lodged in the week ending last Thursday was 196*l.* 4*s.* 1*d.* The collection of the current week will probably exceed 300*l.* Balances still appear in the hands of the rate-collectors; but this arises from the difficulty of making lodgments, and in all cases they have exhibited cash equal to the amount unlodged. The treasurer being so far removed from the Union occasions this inconvenience; but we shall give the closest attention to the proper disposal by the collectors of the monies they collect. We are inclined, from observation, to think the rate-collectors are acting with all possible vigour and industry. There does not appear any deep feeling of dissatisfaction at the rate; the chief difficulty in the collection will be the poverty of the country, for as yet no act of opposition worth notice has been committed.

3. We shall be able to sign the rate of the Mohill electoral division on Monday next, when it shall be placed in immediate collection; and we trust that large payments from it will quickly follow.

Workhouse.

4. The absence of a master has been remedied to some extent by the great exertions of a young man (Mr. Higgins), who we employed as acting master. All the paupers in the house are now clad tolerably well with the Union clothing; and those that were in probationaries have all been introduced into their proper wards. The sanitary state of the house has so improved as to be no longer the source of uneasiness it was for some time to us. Six paupers (five able-bodied males and one female) were convicted this day and sent to gaol for refractory conduct, which we hope will have a wholesome effect in subduing the feeling of insubordination, which returning healthfulness and amended discipline, was arousing among the inmates.

5. We hope that proper persons may offer for the offices of master and matron at the election on Thursday next. The increased salary (50*l.*) offered by your sanction for the master, may possibly attract a superior class of men to those who have hitherto proposed here for the situation.

6. As no contractor offered for the erection of the sheds, we have commenced ourselves to prepare for their construction, and propose that the work should be proceeded with under the superintendence of Mr. Kelly, if Mr. Wilkinson can concede his time for a few weeks to effect this purpose.

Out-door Relief.

7. The pressure has slightly diminished, and there is some prospect of a continuance of this diminution. The minutes and returns exhibit all the statistics, so that we need not allude to them more fully here. We trust that the public and private employment, which is now opening in many parts of the Union, will enable us to pursue the course we have up to this time adopted, of giving no out-relief to able-bodied men. We have still some space in the workhouse for that class, and will increase it weekly by the discharge of the aged and infirm.

Mohill Union.

8. Our hospital at Carrigallen has been opened for the reception of patients suffering from infectious disease; and all necessary arrangements made for its operation, under our own personal inspection. We consider that it will afford accommodation for this purpose of a superior description, and will tend to mitigate the suffering of that locality in a most important degree.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 28, 1848.

THE Commissioners trust that you will not relax in your exertions to enforce the vigorous collection of the rate, which is essential, not only for providing adequately for the relief of the destitute poor, but for relieving the affairs of the Union from the embarrassment in which they have hitherto been.

The Commissioners are glad to perceive a prospect of improvement in the state of the workhouse; and they request you to continue your attention to the provision of an adequate supply of clothing, as well as of other requisites for the workhouse. The Commissioners have been informed by Major Haliday, that the want of tins and spoons has led to great irregularity and delay, in supplying the meals of the inmates, and the Commissioners trust that this will be remedied.

I am also to state that the Commissioners approve of your making the workhouse as available as possible for the able-bodied, by giving out-door relief to the classes specified in section 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 25, 1848.

HAVING very little change to report in the condition of the Mohill Union during the past week, it is some satisfaction that the trifling degree perceptible, indicates a continued abatement of the pressure of distress, the first symptoms of which I had observed last week. Less than 600 additional individuals have, since then, been taken on the out-door relief lists; and in four of the districts of the Union the relieving officers seem to think that it will not be found necessary to add many more. In one, however, (that of Mohill) there will yet be, perhaps, 200 or upwards, who must be so maintained, in consequence of parties who have hitherto clung to the possession of their land, in hopes of obtaining relief, and of being able to put in a crop, ultimately abandoning it.

In one district (that of Ballinamore) where there is now a great deal of employment, the relieving officer had been able to strike off the list a considerable number of cases to which relief had been extended for a few weeks on account of sickness among the able-bodied members of the families, but who had now recovered, and had obtained employment and good wages. Indeed, in that district, such is already the demand for labourers for works of general drainage and of land improvement, that the farmers complain of want of sufficient hands for field work; and there will be during the summer ample employment for all the able-bodied.

I regret, however, to hear that numbers of the young men receiving good wages, instead of saving them to enable them to emigrate or to assist their families, spend them in nightly riot and drinking in the public houses of the town.

In the same district also the relieving officer (who is an extremely active and intelligent young man) had struck off the list one or two cases of parties holding some acres of land, but who had by misrepresentations succeeded in obtaining relief. Into these I made particular inquiry, and he satisfied me that he had personally visited the parties, but had been deceived, by not merely their own asseverations, but the testimony of their neighbours and the ratepayers around them that they had given up their lands. In fact, it is at times almost impossible for the relieving officer to get at the truth with respect to this point. Every possible artifice is used by the occupants. They nominally give up the possession of the land for a few weeks to some relative or friend, that they may swear they no longer occupy it, and thus get the weekly allowance; and it is only by the co-operation of the higher class of ratepayers, and by information obtained through the collectors that such falsehoods can be detected.

It will be of the utmost importance for the future self-supporting condition of this Union that the disqualification for relief attached to the occupancy of more than a garden plot of land should be felt as effective and permanent. The deeply-rooted habit of idleness for many months in the year, and of preferring to lie all day on straw, fed on a weekly dole of relief-meal rather than subsist in comfort by their own industry, and the infatuated attachment to the possession of a small bit of that land which is lying absolutely waste in large tracts all over the country, are the very worst and most discouraging symptoms of the low social state of this county, which exceeds in wretchedness any part of Ireland I have yet seen.

The workhouse continues in the same state as hitherto. At the petty sessions on Tuesday last, six of the inmates, out of the great number who had in the preceding fortnight committed various acts of insubordination, were convicted and sent to gaol for short periods; but so little effect was produced by this sort of deferred punishment, that an able-bodied male pauper yesterday deliberately broke several panes of glass, in order, as he said, to be sent to gaol also.

The amounts lodged by the several collectors during the past week, although sufficient to supply the drain on the treasurer for current expenses, hold out no prospect of enabling the Vice-Guardians to pay off any of the urgent creditors of the Union.

The Vice-Guardians having engaged another attorney to conduct their business, I hope that some further activity will be shown, and better success attend the law proceedings which are necessary to recover payment of the rates and of outstanding arrears from the numerous non-resident immediate lessors whom the collectors cannot reach.

The individuals charged with a forcible rescue of cattle from the collector for Annaduff, last week, were brought before the resident magistrate, and the female discharged, her husband being let out on a trifling bail to answer the complaint at the next quarter sessions. Several of the collectors are of opinion that this will prove quite ineffective, and that a summary conviction, and even a much slighter sentence would have put down further attempts at illegal resistance; and I cannot but think that one prompt and immediate example would have been of the greatest utility, although I have no doubt of the readiness and desire of the magistrate to give every assistance and protection necessary to the collectors in the performance of their most important duties.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th ult., relating to Mohill Union, for which I am to express the Commissioners' thanks.

With reference to that part of your report which relates to parties who had succeeded in obtaining relief by misrepresentations, I am to request that you will impress on all the relieving officers the necessity of their using all means in their power, by due investigation of the cases of applicants, to guard against similar impositions in future, as a recurrence of them would indicate their unfitness for their office.

As regards the collection of the rate, the Commissioners request that you will urge the Vice-Guardians and the collectors to use all possible exertions to press forward the collection vigorously, the collection of the rates in the circumstances of this Union being an object of the first importance.

With respect to the case of individuals making a forcible rescue of cattle seized for arrears of poor's rate by the collector, the Commissioners concur with your view of the advantage of summary punishment in such cases.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 29, 1848.

WE now give our usual weekly statement regarding the Mohill Union, for the information of the Commissioners.

Mohill Union.Rates.

2. The amount of lodgments by the rate collectors last week appears to have been 250%. Although the progress of the collection is slow, many causes arising in the circumstances of the country to retard it, you may feel assured that no effort on our parts shall be wanting to forward the important duty of collecting the rate. We shall apply to that service all the vigour and determination which can be brought to bear, and which the occasion so eminently requires.

3. The rate of the Mohill electoral division will be placed in collection on Thursday next, having been postponed from yesterday, to permit a full inspection of the rate-book before signature, so as to obviate the imperfect revision. At all events the collector was not prepared to undertake the duties in regard to it at an earlier period this week.

4. The pressing forward of the revision of the valuation of the remainder of the Union, so that no part may be excluded from participation in the payment of rate for a much longer time, has already formed the subject of a communication from us; and as it appears from your letter received this day that we must depend on Mr. Gallagher alone for completion of the work, we are led to fear serious further delays.

Workhouse.

5. We look forward with great anxiety to the result of the election for a master, which we have advertised to take place on Thursday next. Disappointments have so long thwarted us with regard to this officer, that the subject is one of great uneasiness. Until a proper officer be procured, we could not feel safe in bringing into use much that was required to promote the regularity of the workhouse. The introduction of discipline thoroughly in the establishment, and the repression of the destructive habits of the paupers by an energetic master, must precede the use of that amount of property which is essential to the comfort of the inmates, and the right working of the institution. The misfortunes we have met in our officers has, however, impeded the execution of many of our designs.

Out-door Relief.

6. Every possible means is being taken to repress imposition and relieve actual destitution, and we are tolerably confident that as few abuses exist in our system as might be expected in machinery which is now accomplishing the feeding of nearly 7000 persons.

Additional Accommodation.

7. Under the direction of Mr. Kelly we are getting some preparatory works executed in connexion with the sheds.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 3, 1848.

THE aspect of affairs in the Mohill Union presents little change to report within the past week. Applications for relief continue to pour in, but in diminished numbers; while some cases relieved at first on account of sickness, and also a few in which relief was obtained by deception as to the actual circumstances of the parties, are occasionally struck off. With respect to the latter class, and referring to your letter of the 1st instant, addressed to me by Mr. Stanley, I beg leave to express my opinion, that the occasional existence of such cases of successful imposition does not imply any want of due inquiry, or of capacity, on the part of the relieving officers.

In a country cut up into such minute and intermixed holdings as are common here, and where not only the occupants themselves but their neighbours conspire to deceive the relieving officer, and where even comparatively affluent rate-payers sometimes give false information as to the occupancy of land, it is vain to expect from these officers infallibility on this point, or to exact more than the best opinion and belief attainable from the evidence they can get on the spot during a period of such pressure as has been experienced here, where for a considerable time past nearly a thousand individuals each week had to be added to the out-door relief list. That list now contains upwards of 7000 persons, but I trust has nearly reached its utmost limit; and were it not for the untoward obstacles which prevent the commencement of various works under the "Land Improvement Act," the labouring class would henceforth be enabled, in most instances, to support their families.

The collection of the rates proceeds but slowly. Although the presence of the constabulary whenever required prevents forcible resistance, the system of locking up cattle or other chattles enables the occupants to set the collectors at defiance. The amount lodged in the bank last week is not more than suffices for the present rate of expenditure on out-door relief and the maintenance of the workhouse.

The workhouse continues in a state far from satisfactory. It reflects, however, no little credit on the young man at present in charge of it, that without means of punishment, or keeping the paupers within the precincts, and under the constant necessity for sending out for water, for communications with the temporary hospital and the house occupied in the town, and with the probationary wards, as well as for burials, he maintains so much of order as exists.

Yesterday had been named for the election of a master, matron, and clerk. A sub-constable of police, who appears to possess all the necessary qualifications, has been elected for the last-named office; but I regret to say that no candidates at all eligible appeared for the appointments of master and matron. An application was laid before the Vice-Guardians for these from the master (lately appointed) of the Roscommon workhouse, and his wife (the latter of whom attended), but unaccompanied by any testimonials; and the Vice-Guardians did not think it advisable to elect a person who did not appear personally, and who they ascertained had never held office in any similar capacity. It is also probable that so sudden a desire to change his situation indicates a want of the zeal and persevering industry absolutely necessary to cope successfully with the defects and disorder of the Mohill workhouse.

I have lately been in communication with the staff officer of pensioners at Longford, and went over there myself, hoping to procure on the out-pension list some active non-commissioned officer who could be engaged for a time to assist in maintaining order in the house, and to superintend the male adults at work, but have been unsuccessful. The want of quarters for their wives prevents any married men accepting the situation; and I find the bad reputation of the workhouse deters some whom, as single men, it might have suited.

Nothing remains but for the Vice-Guardians to advertise afresh for officers and the commencement of an era of improvement seems to me as remote as ever.

WE beg to report in reference to the last week's transactions as follows:—

Rates.

2. The rate collectors lodged last week the sum of 276*l*.

Pending the fortnightly examination of their accounts before next meeting we are unable to give a more exact statement of their progress.

The Mohill electoral division has been put in collection, and we hope soon to have the rate of Fenagh division also in process. Much of our time is occupied in examining into complaints of rate-payers who seek from us redress for excessive valuations and mistakes in it; and who object to arrears returned against them, and have other alleged causes of dissatisfaction.

We afford them every explanation in our power, and frequently find their complaints unfounded; in general we are able to provide a remedy for the real grievances.

Workhouse.

3. We have again been disappointed in procuring a master, no suitable person offering on the day of election, Thursday last. Advertising has now been tried so often that we almost doubt its efficacy, and we are endeavouring to discover, by private inquiry, some person who may be suitable for the situation. So long as we are without a proper master, of course we cannot expect the workhouse management will be conducted with any degree of satisfaction. We have also failed in procuring a matron. The assistant matron we have decided on dispensing with, and shall ask her resignation; her inefficiency rendering this course imperative.

4. The clerk (Mr. Fitze) whom we appointed has taken charge, and appears to have capacity and industry. We hope, with his assistance, soon to have the accounts brought forward.

Out-door Relief.

5. Our chief object is the introduction of cooked food. We have advertised for the supply of bread made from rye, Indian and whole wheaten meal, to each electoral division, and hope soon to have the system of administering relief by that means in operation, which we doubt not will be attended with the best results.

6. The pressure for relief has much diminished, and we trust soon to be able to have a considerable number struck off of the class who received relief on account of sickness, but who are now recovering. We are still able to afford the workhouse test to able-bodied men, and hope always to be in a position to do so. The sheds which we are proceeding to erect shall meet this purpose, which will be much required after the termination of the spring labour, when the pressure of applications will again likely be severely felt.

7. The fever hospital at Carrigallen contains 10 patients, and will likely soon fill up; the chief portion of the patients will, however, consist of those suffering from dysentery.

8. Adverting again to the workhouse, we propose to appoint a paid cook at a salary of 4*l.* per annum, and pauper's rations, which we think will be attended with much advantage, and we beg to solicit the Commissioners' sanction to the appointment.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

THE collector for the electoral division of Annaduff yesterday stated to me that he was unable to recover the sum of 42*l.*, being poor-rate and arrears due on the demesne and grounds of Francis Nisbett, Esq., of Derricarne, a deputy-lieutenant and magistrate of this county, in consequence of the gates being always kept locked, and admittance refused to him. He has noticed Mr. Nisbett more than once, and has twice unsuccessfully endeavoured to effect an entry on the grounds, to distrain for the rate, but to no purpose; and he states that men are employed to keep a look-out, and prevent his gaining admittance.

The collector states that there is a small path leading through the fence enclosing the demesne, but that it would not be possible to drive cattle, if seized, through it; and he is desirous to know if it be legal to break open a gate when in sight of stock to distrain.

As I cannot see anything in the Grand Jury Act (6th and 7th Will. IV. cap. 116) to authorize such proceeding, but as the collector states that a similar course was declared to be lawful in the execution of a sheriff's writ, at the recent case tried at Roscommon, in connexion with the death of the late Mr. Waldron, of Ashford, I deem it advisable to lay the matter before you, that an opinion may be obtained, to enable me to advise the collector.

I may add that Mr. Nisbett, who refuses to pay, is owner of a considerable estate, now under the Court of Chancery, on which a very large amount of rates and arrears is due by the immediate lessor; and as the tenantry on it are very numerous, and much opposed to the collection of rates, it is of considerable importance that the recovery should be enforced in this instance as soon as possible.

Mr. Nisbett is, I am informed, also in receipt of pay as a barrack-master under the Board of Ordnance.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 10, 1848.

Mohill Union.

I am directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 8th instant, as to the difficulty experienced by the collector in enforcing payment of the rate due from Mr. Nisbett, of Derricarne. It appears that notices requiring payment have been served upon Mr. Nisbett, and that the collector has endeavoured to obtain an entrance upon the grounds, in order to distrain for the rate, but without effect; it being stated that men are employed to keep a look-out, and prevent them from gaining admittance. It appears, however, that there is a small path leading through the fence enclosing the demesne, but that it would not be possible to drive cattle, if seized, through it.

Under these circumstances the Commissioners desire to state in reply to the inquiry contained in your report, that although it would not be legal for the collector to break any outer gate or door in order to gain admittance and to make a seizure, yet the collector can legally, as the Commissioners are advised, after gaining an entrance, make the seizure; and having once made the distress, there is no doubt that the officer is entitled to remove it to a proper place of custody, according to the nature of the distress; and that when once lawfully within the premises, and in possession of the distress, he is entitled, if his withdrawal be opposed, to use force in getting out.

WE beg to report regarding the transactions of the past week as follows:—

Rates.

2. The sum of 615*l.* 6*s.* 10*d.* has been lodged within the week ending this day (as appears by treasurer's book) by the collectors. The collector of Cloone and Drumreilly electoral divisions has made no lodgments nor attended for the fortnightly examination of his accounts on the day in this week fixed; we trust he may appear to-morrow and that he shall have made adequate progress. After his attendance, the usual weekly abstract of the rate transactions will be forwarded, which will probably exhibit the collection of the rate in a more satisfactory light than any previous returns, since the making of the rate.

3. We have directed the rate collectors to furnish us with lists of the rates due by immediate lessors, and by occupiers where the sums are of importance, with the view of having the necessary proceedings at once instituted for the recovery of the amounts. We shall not fail to adopt any measures in our power to promote the vigorous collection of the rate, so essential from the financial circumstances of the Union.

4. On Monday next we shall be able to sign the rate of the Fenagh electoral division and place it then in collection. The remaining two divisions, Ballinamore and Oughteragh, shall, we fear, from the slow progress of the valuator, remain some weeks longer untouched by the rate collector.

Workhouse.

5. The increased number of admissions and the withdrawal of the acting matron has been met to a considerable extent by the exertions of the other officers, and we have no occasion to report less favourably of the establishment this week than last. The execution of the repairs, improvements, and additions, is proceeding with as little delay as practicable; and we anticipate good results when these are completed.

6. We have advertised to receive applications for the situation of master and matron, in Dublin, on the 3rd of April next, and we hope that this method will produce such candidates as will enable the selection of a proper officer to be made.

Out-Door Relief.

7. The relief now being administered is, we are confident, meeting the extended destitution of the Union adequately and economically. The introduction of cooked food which we hope to accomplish immediately, will be a most important improvement in our system.

Mohill Union.

8. Our hospitals are working well, and when we have the hospital established at Ballinamore we look forward to the wants of the Union being tolerably well supplied in this respect.

9. We would now only refer you to the minutes and returns of this week for the necessary statistics regarding our operations for the relief of the poor in this Union.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 23, 1848.

As the future practical working of the Poor Laws in the distressed Unions in the west of Ireland, appears of not less grave importance than the adequacy of the present extensive system of out-door relief, it seems to me advisable, at this advanced season, to bring under your special notice the financial prospects and the present position of this Union.

The paid Guardians appointed by you have now devoted for upwards of three months, their best energies (while endeavouring to meet the vast amount of destitution to be relieved) to checking any tendency to waste or abuse, and also to enforcing firmly the collection of the rates; and although the unavoidable delay in completing the revision of the valuation of three of the electoral divisions, has prevented the collection being put in force as yet in them, it is proceeding steadily in the remaining divisions, and will shortly be in progress in these also.

I am, however, satisfied, that in consequence of the impossibility of recovering payment of rates due by immediate lessors, who are not resident in Ireland, the extreme difficulty experienced in obtaining such on the estates under the courts, and the actual extreme poverty of numbers of the class occupying small holdings of land, it will prove impracticable to collect more than about four-fifths of the current rate and former arrears of rate within the next six months; and that it would be useless to strike a fresh rate until after the harvest, inasmuch as the great majority of the small tenants could not pay it; and if, in consequence of being distrained and sold out, they were compelled to abandon their tenements, they would merge into the class of the destitute, and thus form a heavy addition to the already fearful burden likely to hang for some years upon the resources of the Union; while the continually repeated exaction of rates from the solvent portion of the rate-payers would be felt by them as a grievous injustice, and would probably seriously increase the difficulty at present experienced in collecting it.

It is also of much importance, that before another rate is made, the valuation should be corrected after due examination of the numerous objections that have been made against it, and many of which are apparently substantially well founded, but which the urgent necessity for putting a rate in immediate collection as quickly as the completed valuation of each electoral division would allow, did not admit of listening to before the Vice-Guardians signed the rate.

Without entering into all the details that will be set forth in the form of return of estimated expenditure to be furnished by the clerk of the Union, the following is an abstract of my estimate of the probable income and expenditure, up to the end of next September :—

Income, viz.

Amount of rate already signed, and of arrears of former rate uncollected on the 21st March, 1848	£.	s.	d.
	5,630	0	0
Amount of rate to be made on the three electoral divisions of Fenagh, Ballinamore, and Oughteragh	2,010	0	0
	7,640	0	0
Deduct one-fifth of total rate and arrears not likely to be collected	1,910	0	0
Also deduct collectors' poundage at 2s. in the pound, on four-fifths of total rate and arrears	765	0	0
	2,675	0	0
Total amount(net) of income available to end of September	4,965	0	0

Expenditure.

Mohill Union.

The present cost weekly of the out-door relief is about 218 l. ; and making all deductions I can consider probable during the summer, I cannot estimate the expenditure under this head, from the present period up to the end of September, at less than	£.	s.	d.
	5,000	0	0
The cost of maintenance of the workhouse inmates during the same period	1,200	0	0
Clothing, bedding, and materials	250	0	0
Cost of temporary fever hospitals, medicine, attendants, &c.	350	0	0
Rent of workhouse site and house in Mohill	50	0	0
Stationery, printing, law expenses, &c.	100	0	0
Salaries of officers and paid Guardians	850	0	0
Coffins and burial expenses	130	0	0
Erection of sheds and refractory wards, and sinking well, repairs, &c.	350	0	0
Probable expenditure to end of September, 1848	8,280	0	0
Probable income for the same period	4,965	0	0
Excess of expenditure over income	3,315	0	0

I have not included in this calculation an expenditure, nevertheless absolutely essential to the object of enforcing discipline and confinement, and thereby rendering the workhouse really an effective test for destitution—namely, the construction of a boundary wall around the site, which would probably cost about 400*l.*

I beg leave further to represent that the debts of the Union left unpaid by the late Board of Guardians amount to about 2500*l.*, of which great part is due for upwards of a year; that the creditors are threatening, and some of them have already commenced legal proceedings for enforcing payment; and it is obvious that if they obtain decrees and seize the moveables, they may compel the absolute closing of the workhouse; while it is no less a matter of sound policy than of equity that these parties (many of whom are small tradesmen much distressed by the non-payment of their claims,) should be paid as soon as can be effected.

Adding the amount of debts to the excess of probable expenditure over income, the result is, that there will be a deficit of nearly 6000*l.*, for which the resources of the Union will be unable to provide.

It appears to me, therefore, that the contingency upon which the assistance of the British Relief Association might be claimed, is incontestably established in this Union; and as the present weekly expenditure exhausts its resources as fast as they come in, that aid should be extended to enable the Vice-Guardians to pay to the creditors of the Union an instalment (say 10*s.* in the pound) of their claims at an early date, and to hold out to them a prospect of further payment within the year.

This might be done either by a grant of money, or by orders for provisions from the Commissariat store at Longford. The latter would, however, entail some considerable inconvenience, as many of the relief stations are at long distances from Longford, and the roads are bad.

In conclusion, I would repeat, that I am convinced that the assistance of the British Relief Association, which will be certainly requisite, ought to be given at the present period, and not deferred until a more advanced season.

The COMMISSIONERS to Count STRZELECKI:—April 1, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received from Major Haliday, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, of the Mohill Union, a report recommending that an application should be made in the case of that Union for the assistance of the British Relief Association, for the relief of destitution therein. Major Haliday suggests that this relief might be afforded either by a grant of money, or by orders for provisions from the Commissariat Store at Longford; the latter course, however, he represents as likely to entail considerable inconvenience, many of the relief stations being at long distances from Longford, and the roads being bad.

The Commissioners desire to submit to you the propriety of affording assistance to the Mohill Union in either of the two ways indicated by Major Haliday. The Commissioners think that if advances be made in either way to the extent of 250*l.* per week for two months, it is no more than will be actually necessary to secure the continuance of due relief to the destitute in this impoverished Union.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 24, 1848.

As I have thought it advisable to address to you a separate report at some length upon the financial statement and prospects of the Mohill Union, I shall confine my observations in the present weekly report to the state of the workhouse, and a few other points of interest.

The workhouse, which I have minutely inspected, is as clean as the want of an energetic master and matron, and the absence of any effective means of control or discipline, will allow; but a good deal of apparent dirt and litter at present disfigures the female yards and laundry, where it has been found necessary to take up nearly the whole system of under-ground drains and sewers, under the superintendence of the experienced clerk of works, recently sent down. No less than 57 barrels of accumulated mud and filth were taken out of these, which appeared never to have been cleaned since the first erection of the workhouse.

The construction of the intended refractory wards and the sheds for additional accommodation, must be carried on in the same manner by workmen employed under Mr. Kelly's superintendence, as the Vice-Guardians could obtain no tenders for this work except from Mr. Gardiner, the contractor for the fever hospital, who is quite incompetent. This hospital, which he was bound to complete by the 1st of May, is so little advanced that I am convinced it will not be ready for occupation till the middle of June, and the want of it may be grievously felt in the commencement of summer.

The out-door relief list continues still to increase, and the prolonged delay in the intended works under the Land Improvement Act, and the reluctance of the farmers (who make the heavy amount of rates an excuse) to employ labourers, except at very inadequate wages (from 3*d.* to 4*d.* per diem, with diet, and that only during fine weather), aggravate the general distress.

The Vice-Guardians are not duly supported by the local authorities in their endeavour to check abuse in the administration of this relief. The relieving officer for the Ballinamore district recently brought by summons before the petty sessions in that town, a man named Michael Whelan, whose four children had applied to him early in February, as orphans; and as his inquiries into the case appeared to substantiate their representation, had received relief for three weeks.

Although it was shown that the man was, and had been at this time, regularly employed on the canal cutting in that neighbourhood, the magistrate on the bench, Nicholas Kelly, Esq., R.M., dismissed the case upon the man's assertion that, at the time of his children being so relieved, his wages were not paid, and that he could not repay the amount (4*s.* 8*d.*) now. Such a decision appears calculated to encourage the prevalent disposition among this class to obtain relief out of doors if they can possibly succeed by any artifice or deception.

Nearly 500*l.* of rate was collected during the past week; and the collectors appear to me to be exerting themselves satisfactorily; but the practice in many parts of the Union of keeping the cattle locked up whenever the collector goes to the neighbourhood, defeats their exertions to a considerable extent; and another case of forcible rescue has occurred in the Annaduff division. I shall attend at the next petty sessions to see this case disposed of, and to press for a summary conviction.

The revised valuation of the electoral division of Fenagh is completed, and the valuator is engaged in the two remaining divisions, but from the necessarily tedious nature of his task, I apprehend they will not be completed for several weeks yet.

Mohill Union.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have submitted to Count Strzelecki, the Secretary of the British Relief Association, the propriety of advancing the sum of 250*l.* per week for two months, for the continuance of due relief to the destitute in the Mohill Union,—such advances to be made either in food or money, as indicated by you.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 28, 1848.

OUR report for the past week is as follows :—

Rates.

2. The amount collected during the week appears to be 509*l.* 16*s.*, part of which however is included in the lodgments referred to in our last report. Some of the collectors have made considerable progress since last meeting; and we trust the collection of the current week may not be beneath the average. The collectors are vigorously pressing payment by distraint under their warrant and summons before magistrates. We are obliged to await the lists of sums due by immediate lessors being furnished us by the collectors previous to taking the proper steps towards instituting the necessary law proceedings against the defaulters.

3. From the irregularities and incapacity of one of the collectors (Samuel Johnson, of Aghavas electoral division), we have felt it our duty to suspend him. As he will probably tender his resignation, the issue of the Commissioners' sealed order for his dismissal may not be necessary. We shall with the least delay procure a successor, holding Mr. Johnson's sureties accountable until a full settlement is made of his accounts.

4. We have signed the rate of the Fenagh electoral division, which we resolved should be increased to 2*s.* 6*d.* in the pound from 1*s.* 8*d.*, the poundage according to the resolution of the late Board. From a calculation it appears that even a larger rate than a two-and-sixpenny would be requisite to meet the expenses of the division up to 29th September next; but as the relief chargeable to it is not so large proportionably as that to other divisions of the Union, we have decided on making the rate sixpence less than the poundage on the remainder of the Union (3*s.*) We expect on the 3rd of April next to sign the rate of the Ballinamore electoral division—the largest in the Union—the revision of the valuation being almost completed—and thus place in collection the further amount of 1134*l.*, from which we expect speedy returns.

Out-door Relief.

5. Mr. Nicholson, the relieving officer of the Mohill district, has tendered his resignation, and we proceed to elect a successor. We have succeeded in getting proposals for baking bread throughout the Union on reasonable terms, the result of a personal visit to the bakers of the different localities, and hope early next month to have the system of giving cooked food fully introduced.

6. The Carrigallen hospital at present contains 13 patients. We have just completed a visit to it and the several relief stations of the Union, and find that the relief of the destitute poor in all respects is being conducted with propriety and regularity.

7. The workhouse (including detached nursery and temporary fever ward) is in a tolerably satisfactory state, and assuming an improved appearance.

8. Our clerks are busily employed in bringing up the arrear accounts.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major HALIDAY :—March 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to transmit herewith a copy of a constabulary report which they have received from the Chief Secretary's department, relative to the death of a man named Pat Mulligan, on the 18th instant, in Mohill Union, and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made any application for relief to the Vice-Guardians, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers; also in reference to his application to the medical officer of the hospital in question, if it was an hospital of the Union.

ENCLOSURE.

County of Leitrim.Ballinamore, March 24, 1848.

AN inquest was held on 20th instant, on the body of Pat Mulligan.

Copy of Verdict.

That deceased was found dying on the 18th instant, and his death was caused by exposure to the inclemency of the weather, and extreme destitution and want of care.

It appears deceased applied for admission to the fever hospital, but the doctor did not consider him a fit object.

J. LODGE, S. I.

Inspector-General.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—April 8, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the accompanying copy of a report which they have received from Major Haliday, the Temporary Inspector of the Mohill Union relating to the death of Patrick Mulligan at Carrigallen in that Union, together with the papers that accompanied it.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 1, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith the result of my inquiries made in accordance with your instructions, dated 28th March, into the facts bearing on the death of Patrick Mulligan, on whose body an inquest was held at Carrigallen, on the 20th ultimo, and the circumstances of which I had previously made myself acquainted with.

On receiving your letter I wrote to the coroner for a copy of the informations taken before him at the inquest, and proceeded to examine on oath the relieving officer of the district in which the deceased had lived, and to inspect the Application and Report Book, and relief list. Yesterday morning I received from the coroner the copy of the informations which I annex (letter A), but as they appeared incomplete, and contain no statement from which the jury could have obtained the information as to the deceased having been refused admission to the hospital, I at once proceeded to Carrigallen and there examined the medical officer of the temporary fever hospital, Dr. Taylor, and other parties, and received much oral information confirming all the evidence, which I annex (letter B).

The facts of the case appear to be, that the deceased, who was an unfortunate creature of bad character, and habitually preferring a life of houseless mendicancy, would not accept admission to the Union workhouse in December last, when his mother, who applied to the relieving officer of the district on the 10th December, had her case submitted to the Vice-Guardians (then just arrived) on the 16th December, by whom out-door relief was ordered for herself and four children under 15 years of age, which she has continued to receive up to the present time; that the deceased made no application from that time until the 10th of March—another relieving officer (Mr. Story), having meantime been appointed, and entered on his duties on the 16th of February—that on this application he immediately received from the relieving officer an offer of either admission to the workhouse or a recommendation to the hospital, and that he preferred the latter, but, not having in the medical officer's opinion any symptom of contagious disease, was refused admission to it, and that he never went back to the relieving officer, or made any further application until his death.

His death appears to have been the result of disease and debility, caused by the wretched life he seems to have voluntarily continued, and not of any immediate want of food. With respect to this I beg to call your attention to the evidence of Owen Smyth (letter B, No. 4), and to state that he was seen by several persons going about in the town of Carrigallen on the same day (the 17th March), and that on that day (being his ordinary time for the weekly distribution of out-door relief) the relieving officer, Mr. Story, was for some hours in the town, during which the deceased might have again applied to him, but did not do so.

I cannot impute any blame to the relieving officer, except as to his satisfying himself on the 18th March by merely sending an order for food for the deceased, and I have pointed out to him that his powers and duties extend to providing in all cases of sudden and urgent necessity lodging or conveyance to the workhouse or to an hospital, as well as food and medical attendance. It is evident, however, that in this instance the relieving officer, whose residence is several miles distant from Carrigallen, could not have arrived before the unfortunate lad's death.

I annex an extract from the Application and Report Book of the relieving officer already referred to.

ENCLOSURES.

A.

County of Leitrim } Informations taken and acknowledged before me at Carrigallen in said to wit. } county, on the 20th day of March, 1848, on view of the body of Patrick Mulligan, then lying dead at said place.

Mary Quin, of Carrigallen, deposed that she knew the deceased for the last 12 months; that on Saturday, the 18th, on looking into Mr. Irwin's corn-kiln, she saw the deceased Patrick Mulligan lying in the kiln pot; she called him and he moaned but did not answer her; she then went and told the police what she saw; she knew no more about the matter.

John Cullen, sub-constable, deposed, that on Saturday, the 18th instant, in consequence of information which he got from Mary Quin, the last witness, he went to Mr. Irwin's kiln and saw the deceased lying on his face in the ashes; he brought him out on the road, and placed him on some straw; he appeared to be dying; constable then went for Dr. Taylor, who came and administered such remedies as he thought best; constable then brought the deceased back into the kiln, where he died in about two hours afterwards.

Doctor Taylor deposed to his having known the deceased for some time previous to his death; to his having been called on by constable Cullen to go and see the deceased a short time before he died; to his having found the deceased in a very weak state, suffering from debility and exposure to the cold, which he thought caused death.

ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

B.

Copy of Depositions on oath taken before me at Mohill, on the 29th day of March, 1848.

1. Mr. John Story, relieving officer of the Carrigallen relief district, being sworn on the holy evangelists, is questioned by me:—

Q. Did a person named Patrick Calligan at any time make application to you as relieving officer?—A. Yes; a lad about 17 or 18 years of age, whom I believe to be the same, made application to me on the 10th March.

Q. Did you give him relief, or how did you act?—A. The lad asked me for a ticket to the hospital at Carrigallen. I asked him "was he not afraid to go into the hospital, as he did not appear to have fever." He said he did not care where he was sent to, as he thought he was going to die. As he did not appear to me to be very feeble, I told him he might have a ticket of admission to the workhouse. He gave me to understand that he would rather have admission to the hospital, as it was nearer at hand. I gave him a note to Dr. Taylor, the medical officer of the temporary hospital at Carrigallen, worded thus, "Admit the bearer, Mulligan, to the hospital, if you think him a proper object for it."

Q. Did you tell him he would be admitted to the workhouse if he was not received into the hospital?—A. I don't remember that I told him so, but I think he must have been aware of it. I would certainly have given him a ticket of admission if he had asked for it.

Q. Did you see him again previous to his death?—A. No; I never heard more of him until I received a note from Dr. Taylor, saying that he was lying in the corn-kiln at Carrigallen, and inquiring what should be done with him; that at present the constabulary were taking care of him. I immediately sent back by the bearer an order to the storekeeper at Carrigallen to send out food, either meal or bread, to him; but I heard on the second day after this that he had died before the food could be sent to him. This was on the 18th instant. On the 20th instant I went to Carrigallen, and there saw the body of the lad and a woman named Mary Mulligan, who was sitting by, told me he was her son. She is on the out-door relief list, getting relief for herself and four children under 14 years of age, since the 1st January. She said something about her son not* being relieved by Mr. Masterson, whom I succeeded as relieving officer, because he was over 15, and that she had found the ticket I gave him for the hospital on him.

* The expression "not being relieved" means not getting out-door relief. The deceased was offered admission to the workhouse, but that is never called "relief" by the lower orders in this country.

Q. Did the deceased ever apply to you previous to the 10th instant?—A. To the best of my recollection he never did.

2. Nathaniel Taylor, Esq., M.D., deposes.—I have known the deceased Patrick Mulligan for three or four years. He had no settled habitation, and would not live with his parents, whom I knew also. He was of very loose habits, and never had any regular employment, but begged and pilfered through the country. On the 10th instant he came to my house with a ticket of recommendation from the relieving officer, Mr. Story, but on examining him I found he had neither fever nor any other epidemic disease, and therefore told him he could not be admitted. He said that he did not care, but that he wanted something to eat. Knowing that his mother was getting out-door relief, which he himself mentioned to me, I did not think it necessary to tell him to go back to the relieving officer. I heard no more of him until the 18th instant, when I was called on by the constabulary to visit him. I found him lying on the road, cold, and with the muscles rigid. I had some hot wine and water administered to him, thinking to cause a reaction, but he was too much exhausted to swallow it. Every attention was paid to him, but he died in little more than an hour afterwards. I conceive he died of general exhaustion from want of sufficient food and clothing.

(Signed) NATHANIEL TAYLOR,
Medical Officer, Carrigallen Temporary Fever Hospital.

3. Sub-Constable John Cullen states.—I had known the deceased Patrick Mulligan for about seven months; he was of bad character, and had been repeatedly reported to the constabulary for acts of theft, and in consequence of his character no one would employ him, and he lived by begging. After I found him lying in the corn-kiln I went out for his mother, and she told me that her son had never slept more than one night under the same roof with her during the last 12 months. Before his mother came back with me he had been removed into a warm part of the kiln-pot, and Dr. Taylor got him wine and nourishment, but he was not able to take it, and in less than two hours after he was found lying, he died.

4. Owen Smyth, being duly sworn, saith.—I live near the town of Carrigallen, with my mother; I knew the deceased Pat Mulligan; on the day before he died he came to our door about noon; I offered him some stirabout, but he would not have it; he seemed very sick.

NENAGH UNION.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you, for the information of the Commissioners, the following report on the Nenagh Poor Law Union, and on the state and condition of its workhouse.

1. Poverty and destitution exist throughout the Union, with but few exceptions to a very alarming amount; notwithstanding that the workhouse is nearly full, and that out-of-door relief is afforded to those classes which come under section 1st, 10 Vict., cap. 31, at the rate of 440*l.* a-week. As yet no relief has been granted to the able-bodied poor, but at the meeting of the Guardians yesterday, a minute was passed, to take the preliminary steps necessary to carry this part of the law into operation; but as the sealed letter, authorizing the Board to grant such relief will expire next week, it will be expedient that the Commissioners should issue another sealed order to enable the Guardians to carry out this relief.

2. The rates are being collected but very slowly; the collection of the last week not having amounted to one-third of the sum expended.

I had the several collectors before me, and urged most strongly upon them the imperative necessity for the most strenuous exertions being used on their parts to enforce the payment of the outstanding rates; and the Board passed a very stringent minute to the same effect. I hope, therefore, to have this most important branch of the service in a more satisfactory state shortly.

The amount in the treasurer's hands yesterday was	650	0	0
The weekly expense for the workhouse is	125	0	0
The weekly expense for out-of-door relief is	440	0	0
The balance of the rate uncollected is	12,400	0	0

3. It appears that, since the time Mr. Bayly was wounded, the Guardians have not been as attentive to their duties as they were previous to that event; the consequence of such a want of attention is evident, especially in the workhouse; indeed, there seems to have been a want of general superintendence for a long period, as on a reference to the visitors' book only one entry appears by any of the visiting committee during the past year. This committee had been appointed from time to time, but they do not appear to have exercised the duties imposed upon them. There was, therefore, no kind of check over the officers of the house, and consequently it has been allowed to become lax in discipline, and very slovenly in the manner of conducting its affairs, both as regards method of arrangement, and want of proper cleanliness. Sufficient superintendence is here the more indispensable from the facts of the master and the matron being man and wife, and the under-master being their son. Owing to a representation on this subject having been made some time ago by Mr. Lloyd, Poor Law Inspector, the Board came to the resolution of appointing a paid superintendent at a salary of 60*l.* a-year, and advertised for candidates to fill this office, but I see no good reason why the Guardians should thus endeavour to abrogate their own duties and responsibilities, and encumber the Union with an officer unknown to the law. I therefore strongly urged upon them at their meeting yesterday to name a visiting committee, and promised to give that committee every assistance in my power to correct abuses, and to put the house in a proper state.

I am happy to state, that the Board met my wishes in the most cordial manner; an active visiting committee was appointed; the consideration of the former minute respecting the appointment of a superintendent was postponed for two months, and I have no doubt whatever, but that the workhouse will be in a creditable state before long. On Wednesday, I mustered all the paupers in the house, and in the supplementary house. The number in the former I found to be 1239, and in the latter 306; they seemed to be peaceable and contented with their lot, no complaints having been made.

4. The workhouse hospital, which I also visited, is very much crowded with patients, there being 196 cases under medical treatment; about 13 per cent. on the number of inmates. The prevalent diseases are fever and dysentery, but not of a malignant type; and small-pox and measles prevail to some extent amongst the children.

The Commissioners are aware that a capital additional hospital has been built on the workhouse premises, and only awaits the inspection of their architect, in order that the contractor may give over possession of it to the Board of Guardians.

The medical officer agrees with me in thinking, that if good fires were kept lighted in this hospital, it would be sufficiently dry to receive patients in a fortnight, at least on the upper and middle floors; but the Board will not, of course, make any order on the subject until they obtain the possession of it, and I would respectfully request of the Commissioners to direct their architect to inspect the building with as little delay as possible, in order that it may be made available for the speedy accommodation of the sick poor.

I beg leave to add that the whole of the Union is at present peaceable, as I have not heard of any outrage having been committed in this district since my arrival in it.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 23, 1848.

As regards the collection of the rates, the Commissioners rely upon your stimulating the collectors to exertion, and using every means in your power to have the collection vigorously carried forward. The small balance in the treasurer's hands, and the large weekly expenditure, render this a matter of the most pressing and urgent importance; and the Commissioners request you will report specially to them, should you have reason to consider that any of the collectors, through neglect or inefficiency, or from any other cause, are not making such exertions to procure payment of the rate as might fairly be expected from them.

The Commissioners regret to learn from your report, that the state of the house, in regard to discipline and management, is so unsatisfactory. The appointment of a paid superintendent to which you refer as being contemplated by the Guardians had been brought under the notice of the Commissioners previously to the receipt of your report, and they had objected to such an appointment on the ground that the duties which the Guardians proposed should be performed by that officer, belong to the master of the workhouse and the visiting committee. The Commissioners trust, however, that the steps taken by you will have the effect which you anticipate, and will be the means of bringing the workhouse into a creditable state before long.

The Commissioners have forwarded an extract from your report in regard to the inspection of the new fever ward to their architect.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 18th instant, relative to the out-of-door relief in the Nenagh Union, I beg leave to acquaint you, for the information of the Commissioners, that it will be necessary to grant an order to the Guardians for that purpose for one month from the 23rd instant.

I enclose the copy of a resolution of the Board of Guardians, passed on Thursday last, on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

February 17, 1848.

Resolved,—That as the sealed order of the Poor Law Commissioners of 23rd December, for giving out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, for the period of two months is about to expire, that the Poor Law Commissioners be requested to issue another order for one month, to commence and take effect from the 23rd instant, on which day the previous order expires, and for which period the Guardians consider it expedient that they should be empowered to give relief under the 2nd section, and that the Commissioners be requested to forward such order to the Board by next meeting.

JOHN BAYLY, Chairman.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 22, 1848.

Nenagh Union.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners will issue the order by to-morrow night's post.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 25, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you my second report on the Nenagh Union, for the information of the Commissioners.

1. At the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, decided steps were taken to commence the out-of-door relief to the able-bodied poor. A contract was taken to supply the several districts in the Union with Indian meal, at 9% per ton for one month, which sum is to cover the cost of distribution. Overseers have been appointed to superintend the breaking of stones; and an adjourned meeting of the Board is appointed to be held on Saturday the 26th instant, to make final arrangements. I pressed on the Board the utility of issuing the rations in cooked food, but although they did not positively object to that most salutary measure, they foresaw so many difficulties in carrying it into operation that the consideration of it has been postponed at present; and as a great point has been gained by the resolution to issue relief in kind instead of in money, which has been the mode followed heretofore, I did not press it imperatively, hoping by-and-by to convince them of the practicability of cooking the rations, of the economy of doing so, and of the great benefit the poor will derive from the practice; there is, perhaps more difficulty in persuading the Guardians of this Union of these facts, because during the relief operations of last year the cooking of food was not adopted in the Union although several of the electoral divisions went to the expense of setting up boilers which were afterwards never used.

2. The collection of the rates has not been satisfactory during the past week, and I again urged upon the collectors the necessity for more exertion on their parts; the Board has likewise taken very determined steps in this matter, having given directions that the names of the 10 highest rate-payers who are defaulters should be laid before the Board at each day of meeting, and came to the resolution to report to the Commissioners any collector who did not use his utmost exertions to get in the outstanding rates.

Amount of rates collected during the week	724	1	10
Do. in the treasurer's hands	820	5	3
Expense of house in the week	126	4	5½
Do. of out-of-door so far as known	349	16	6
Balance of rate uncollected	11,703	15	11

3. I attended on Monday with the Visiting Committee, and made a strict inspection of the house and of the accounts. There is already a marked improvement in the house; and the books appear regular; but it will require the vigilant superintendence of the Visiting Committee to check any wasteful expediture of the stores. The Committee recommend some alterations and arrangements for this object, and also respecting a better classification, which have been sanctioned by the Board.

Number of paupers in the house	994
Do. in the hospital	199
Do. in the auxiliary house.	310
Total	1,503

Hence it will appear that there are nearly 100 vacancies in the house; and I recommend the Board to keep these open as a test of destitution for the able-bodied poor.

4. The workhouse hospital is still much over-crowded, which the medical officer imputes to the severity of the weather, and the want of proper food and clothing the paupers are subject to, previous to entering the house; the diseases are not of a virulent character.

5. By the letter which you did me the honour to write to me, acknowledging the reception of my first report, I am glad to hear the Commissioners have called the attention of their architect to the new hospital, as until he shall make his inspection of it, the Board can take no steps to have it prepared for the use of the sick poor.

I shall conclude this report by stating that peace is generally maintained throughout the Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 6, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report dated the 25th ultimo, relative to Nenagh Union, the answer to which has been accidentally delayed. The principal matters adverted to in your report have however already received the attention of the Commissioners, having been brought under their notice by the minutes of the Board of Guardians and your observations thereon.

The Commissioners rely upon your exertions in endeavouring to convince the Guardians of the advantages of issuing the food in a cooked state, and in inducing them to adopt the system of administering relief under the Commissioners' Order in cooked food, it being as the Commissioners have already explained to the Guardians, illegal to issue the food in any other state, when it is practicable to issue it cooked.

With reference to your observation that you did not further press the point, as a great point had been gained by the resolution to issue relief in kind instead of money, which had been the mode previously followed; the Commissioners desire to observe that to the classes of destitute poor coming within the provisions of the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, relief may be legally afforded in money in any case in which the Guardians in the exercise of their discretion may think it expedient to give relief in that way; and the Commissioners have not issued any regulation which would limit or interfere with the discretion of the Guardians in this respect. As regards the administration of relief under the 2nd section however, the Commissioners desire to point out that relief to persons under the authority of an order of the Commissioners issued in pursuance of that section cannot under any circumstances be legally given in money, and if it were so given, the amount would be recoverable under the 28th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, from the parties who gave it. The Commissioners understand, however, that no relief whatever has yet been given in Nenagh Union under the authority of their order, and that the out-door relief has been confined exclusively to persons coming within the 1st section; they will feel obliged to you to inform them whether such is the fact.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 3, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to send you my third report on the Nenagh Union, for the information of the Commissioners, viz.:—

1. On revising the relief lists of the impotent poor, the grossest abuses were found to exist, by persons having been placed on them who are in nowise entitled to relief, many of them being in actual employment and receiving wages, whilst numbers of able-bodied persons have been included amongst the impotent poor. I am using every exertion to correct these abuses, and to cause the relief lists to be what they are really intended to be. The poor-house not being full is kept as a test of destitution for the able-bodied poor, as I have induced the Guardians not to give any relief outside, until the house shall be full. Lists of all persons receiving out-of-door relief have been printed, and posted in the several localities, from which great benefit has already accrued.

There is a great want of employment existing generally throughout the Union, and I see but little prospect of much increase during the spring.

2. The collection of the rates is going on but slowly. The collectors, however, now seem to be aware that their duties must be done, and are exerting themselves accordingly.

Amount of rates collected in the week	493	5	0
Amount in the treasurer's hands	1,112	13	4
Amount outstanding	11,210	10	11
Expense of workhouse for the week	123	10	1½
Expense for out-of-door relief	420	0	0

3. The house begins to assume a decent appearance, both as regards cleanliness and regularity. I have persuaded the Board to set the paupers to works of utility, and I hope soon to see general industry prevailing where scarcely anything but idleness was found. I am happy to state that I am assisted in every way by the Board in general, and by the visiting committee in particular.

Nenagh Union.

Number of paupers in the house	980
Number in auxiliary house	298
Number in the hospital	223

4. The hospital still continues crowded, but I trust the improvement we may now expect to take place in the weather will have its due effect in reducing the numbers on the sick list. I find that your architect has written to the clerk of the Union, to say he will soon inspect the new hospital.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 7, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement as to the abuses which have been found to exist on revising the relief list, I am directed by the Commissioners to request that you will be so good as to state your opinion fully in regard to the conduct of the several relieving officers, as shown by the abuses to which you refer. The determination to keep the workhouse as a test for the able-bodied, and withholding out-door relief to that class while there is room in the workhouse, is quite in accordance with the views of the Commissioners; and they suggest that you should strongly urge upon the Guardians the propriety of discharging from the workhouse on sufficient out-door allowances all such of the present inmates as can safely be removed, and as may legally be allowed out-door relief under the 1st section. The Commissioners observed by the last return that there were in the workhouse on Saturday, the 26th February, 186 aged and infirm males, and 223 aged and infirm females.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

IN reply to the last paragraph of your letter of the 6th instant, viz., “the Commissioners understand, however, that no relief whatever has yet been given in Nenagh Union, under the authority of their order, and that the out-door relief has been confined exclusively to persons coming within the 1st section. They will feel obliged to you to inform them whether such is the fact.”

I have the honour to acquaint you, for the information of the Commissioners, that such would appear to be the fact, and yet there is nothing more remote from the truth, for the fact is, that nearly the entire poor population of the Union, able-bodied as well as the impotent were receiving out-door relief, and all classed under the 1st section. Ever since my arrival here I have been labouring to correct such a flagrant abuse; much has been done, but a great deal remains yet to be done to effect this, and I have repeatedly called on the Guardians and the rate-payers to assist me in revising the lists. In the electoral division of Nenagh, great numbers have been struck off the list of impotent persons, and have been set to work at stone-breaking; the house is kept open as far as its means will afford, as a test for the able-bodied of the more distant divisions, over whom there cannot be so good a control, but I think that stone-breaking will become general during the week. The mass of destitution in the Union is indeed appalling.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—March 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners having received a report from their temporary Inspector, Captain Darley, from which it appeared that out-door relief had been administered in Nenagh Union exclusively in money, but that the Guardians were then about to issue relief in food, deemed it right to inquire whether such out-door relief had been confined exclusively to persons coming within the 1st section of the Act, as the Guardians had received from the Commissioners an authority to administer relief for a limited period under the 2nd section, and relief in money to persons not coming within the provisions of the 1st section would be illegal.

Captain Darley has informed the Commissioners in reply, that nearly the entire poor population of the Union, able-bodied as well as the impotent, have been receiving out-door relief, and all classed under the 1st section. He states however, that he has been labouring to correct this, and that much has already been done, but that a great deal remains to do—that he has repeatedly called upon the Guardians and rate-payers to assist him in revising the lists, and that in the electoral division of Nenagh, great numbers have been struck off the list of impotent persons, and have been set to work at stone-breaking.

The Commissioners regard this statement as one deeply affecting the conduct of the Board of Guardians of Nenagh Union. The Legislature has imposed upon them certain duties, and invested them with certain powers for the discharge of those duties. By the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, they are authorized and empowered to make due provision for the relief of destitute poor persons of the following classes, viz. :—

1. Persons permanently disabled from labour by reason of old age, infirmity, or bodily or mental defect.

2. Persons who being disabled from labour by reason of severe sickness or serious accident, are thereby deprived of the means of earning a subsistence for themselves and their families, whom they are liable by law to maintain.

3. Widows having two or more legitimate children dependent upon them.

By the 2nd section, the Guardians are required on receiving an order under the seal of the Commissioners, to make provision for the relief of destitute poor persons not being persons of the classes above mentioned, but the section expressly provides, that all relief given out of the workhouse to able-bodied persons, except in cases of sudden and urgent necessity, shall be given in food only. The Commissioners have issued an order under this section, and have prescribed certain regulations for the administration of such relief.

It now appears, however, from Captain Darley's statement, that the Commissioners' regulations have been disregarded, and that relief has been administered by the Guardians in a manner contrary to the express provisions of the Act of Parliament.

Under these circumstances it has appeared to the Commissioners that they would be justified in considering that through the default of the Guardians, the duties of the Board have not been duly and effectually discharged according to the intention of the Act, and that in this case therefore they would be warranted in exercising the powers given to them by the 18th section of the Act; but as the Commissioners understand that relief in money has been now discontinued, and that the Guardians are taking active steps in conjunction with Captain Darley, to remove the irregularities and abuses which have hitherto prevailed in Nenagh Union, in regard to the administration of out-door relief, the Commissioners do not propose on the present occasion to resort to their power of dissolving the Board, and appointing paid officers in their place. At the same time they deem it right to add that as much of the out-door relief which has been administered in Nenagh Union, has been administered in a manner contrary to law, it will be for the consideration of the auditor, whether in the discharge of his duty he should not disallow such illegal relief, and charge the cost thereof against the parties on whose responsibility it was administered.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. MATHEW, Auditor:—March 15, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward for your information, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Board of Guardians of Nenagh Union, relative to the administration of out-door relief in that Union.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you my fourth report on the Nenagh Union, for the information of the Commissioners.

1. In former reports and letters I have had occasion to remark upon the great abuses which have been tolerated throughout the Union, with but few exceptions. As such I will mention the electoral divisions of Clogprior and Lisbunny. In the former Mr. William Waller, and in the latter the Messrs. Baily, have exerted themselves with great zeal by giving employment to the people, and in the prevention of abuses. In the rest of the entire Union wholesale frauds have been permitted by placing persons on the relief lists, the able-bodied amongst the impotent poor, and, in many instances, by placing persons who have property in land and cattle on these lists. To remedy this monstrous evil has cost me already much time; but from my total want of knowledge of the people so placed on these lists the work is not yet half done. Several of the Guardians and rate-payers are now determined to purge the lists.

2. It now becomes my duty to report specially on the relieving officers, as it will immediately occur to the Commissioners that such a system as I have described above could not have gone on without their concurrence.

These officers were chosen, not from their capabilities, nor from their previous knowledge of business, nor from their respectability, but from the influence they possessed with the majority of the Board of Guardians (the rural Guardians), who voted for their relatives and friends, quite irrespective of fitness and qualification for the office. The consequence of such has now become apparent. So long as the loose system was allowed to place all who applied on the relief list (the impotent list), and that money was the medium of relief granted, matters went on somewhat smoothly; but so soon as they were called upon to revise the lists, and to distinguish between the classes in sections 1 and 2, and to administer the relief in food, they were generally found to be unequal to the task; so much so, that the clerk of the Union now finds it impossible to get them to bring in their accounts in order to have them checked; and he is thereby unable to comply with the Commissioners' instructions, by properly filling up the minutes of the Board of Guardians.

That the relieving officers were perfectly aware of the existence of these abuses there is no doubt; indeed they generally admitted the fact to me. They seem to have been induced to sanction those improprieties in some cases through favour, and in others from intimidation, or other undue influence.

But whilst I write in condemnation, I am also bound to add any mitigating circumstances which may appear; and I would here most respectfully submit, that in my humble opinion the districts assigned to each relieving officer are a great deal too extensive, which makes it impossible for him to perform his duty with strict integrity; and, therefore, he reports many cases of destitution upon mere representation made to him, without examination into the real merits of each individual case, thereby permitting numberless abuses to creep in. Again, every relieving officer is required to attend at the Union-house two days in each week, and the clerk requires his attendance on another day to check his accounts. Thus fully one-half of his time is taken from the duties of his district, and the remaining half is not sufficient to perform those duties effectively, where they lie over such an extended surface. In prosperous times these causes of complaint would be futile; but when it is considered that almost the entire rural population of the Union is in a state of destitution they become real causes of difficulty. The numbers to whom relief was granted during the last week in and out of the house amounted to nearly 12,000 persons, and I greatly fear that this vast number will be increased during the present week. I am now obliged to report to the Commissioners the names of three of the relieving officers, who are, in my opinion, so incapable of rightly performing their duties that I would recommend their immediate dismissal, viz., James M'Grath, of No. 3; Michael Hogan, of No. 8; and Michael Hogan, of No. 9 districts; the remaining officers may be still further tested, and there are some of them who are very efficient men, if properly urged and kept at their work.

The house is now nearly full, and stone-breaking has commenced in most of the electoral divisions.

I shall not fail to bring before the Visiting Committee, and through them the Board, the recommendation of the Commissioners, as expressed to me in your letter of the 7th instant, respecting the "discharging from the workhouse on sufficient out-door relief, all such of the present inmates as can safely be removed, and as may be legally allowed out-door relief under the 1st section," in order to make room in the house for the able-bodied poor.

Nenagh Union.

4. The collection of the rates is in due progress, but not so satisfactorily as could be wished.

	£.	s.	d.
Amount collected last week	523	12	7
In hands of treasurer	1,321	18	9
Amount uncollected	10,686	18	4

5. The new hospital has been taken up from the contractor by the Board, and orders given to have the building insured, and to have it properly aired for the reception of patients; and I hope shortly to see it occupied, which will greatly relieve the present over-crowded state of the sick wards.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement in regard to the placing improper objects on the lists for out-door relief, I am directed to refer you to the letter which the Commissioners addressed to the Guardians on the 13th instant, a copy of which is enclosed.

In regard to the relieving officers the Commissioners request you will be so good as to acquaint them with special facts concerning each of the relieving officers whom you deem unfit for their office. The Commissioners will then communicate with each of such officers, and will formally dismiss any one whose answer is not satisfactory.

In regard to the size of the relieving officers' districts, the Commissioners desire to state, that they were originally constituted solely in reference to out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and that it was always intended to increase the number when out-door relief became requisite for able-bodied men.

As you have been appointed specially Inspector of Nenagh Union, the Commissioners request you to report as to the new distribution of districts, and the additional number of relieving officers which you would recommend, in order to ensure the due administration of relief to the destitute in conformity with the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts.

WITH reference to your letter of the 14th instant, and to the second and last paragraphs of it, I beg to report that James Magrath, of No. 3. district, in the weeks ending the 5th and 12th February last, sent in his returns so incorrectly made up that he was specially censured by the Board, as entered on their minutes of those dates; that on the 4th March he did not attend, and made no return; that on the 11th March he was absent, and made no return; and that yesterday he was absent, and was specially reported by the Board for neglect of duty.

That Michael Hogan, of No. 8 district, made no return for the week ending the 5th February, nor did he attend to have his accounts checked; that in the week ending the 4th March he made no return and was absent; that on the 11th March he made no return and was absent; and on the 16th was specially reported by the Board.

That Michael Hogan, of No. 9 district, made no return for the week ending the 26th February, nor did he attend to have his accounts checked; that on 4th March he did not attend to have his accounts checked; that on the 11th of March he sent in no return, and was absent; and that on the 16th instant he was specially reported by the Board for neglect of duty.

These are some facts respecting these relieving officers, and their general mode of transacting business is slovenly and most unsatisfactory.

With respect to the last paragraph of your letter of the 14th, relative to the new distributions of the districts of the relieving officers, and the additional numbers which may be required, I beg to send the annexed schedule which was approved of by the Board of Guardians yesterday. The Commissioners will see by this, that it is proposed to add three additional relieving officers in the Union, which I apprehend will be sufficient to carry out the law with effect.

Nenagh, March 17, 1848.

A. DARLEY, Poor Law Inspector.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 17th instant relative to the conduct of three relieving officers in the Nenagh Union, and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have called on the relieving officers in question to send in their resignation.

With reference to the plan forwarded by you for a new arrangement of the relief districts, in order to facilitate the discharge of the duties of the relieving officers, I am directed to state that the Commissioners have written to the Board of Guardians approving the arrangement; and the Commissioners request that you will be so good as to confer with the Guardians as to the salaries to be allowed under the new arrangement; and in doing so the Commissioners wish you to bear in mind the general views of the Commissioners on the subject, as stated in their circular of 16th of July, a copy of which is enclosed.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain DARLEY:—March 15, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a constabulary report, which has been transmitted to them by the Under Secretary, relative to the death of Patrick Hayden, at Cloughjordan, in Nenagh Union, and I am to request that you will be so good as to inquire and report to the Commissioners on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

Nenagh Union.

County of Tipperary, W. R.
Cloughjordan, March 9, 1848.

ON the 7th instant Patrick Hayden died of extreme want: an inquest was held and a verdict returned, that deceased died from actual starvation. The condition of this family, six in number, is truly awful.

PATRICK BOURKE, Head Constable.

Inspector-General,
&c. &c. &c.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—March 20, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 15th instant, enclosing a copy of the constabulary report relative to the death of Patrick Hayden, at Cloughjordan, from starvation, I have the honour to acquaint you, for the information of the Commissioners that the father of the said Hayden, also named Patrick, holds four acres of land, and told the relieving officer of that district he would sooner starve than give up his land. The deceased was a child of from five to six years of age.

Nenagh Union.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 15th instant, calling upon me to report to the Commissioners, "whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect," &c., I yesterday brought the cases mentioned in the order to Listowel Union under the consideration of the Board of Guardians, when they unanimously agreed in thinking that it could not be carried out in the Nenagh Union at present; and I beg leave to add that my own observation of these cases causes me to coincide with the opinion of the Guardians.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have given directions for an extension of the order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in Nenagh Union until the 1st of April.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you my fifth report on the Nenagh Union, for the information of the Commissioners, viz.:—

1. The relief lists have been arranged in some degree of form, so as to distinguish between the classes under the first and second sections.

Stone-breaking has become general throughout the Union; but until entirely new lists can be made out, it will be impossible to have matters satisfactorily put in order. This will be commenced immediately after the 25th instant, when new books will be had; and then I hope to see the relief lists fairly representing the different classes of the destitute poor.

2. The workhouse is now full; but great difficulty arose on the sudden admission of upwards of 100 inmates, from the circumstance of there being no ready supply of clothing in the house. To meet this emergency the Guardians have been obliged to take ready-made clothes by contract; but in future the supply must be made up in the house. Ten additional boys have been put under the tailor for instruction in that trade, and the same number under the shoemaker, by which means the supplies can be kept equal to the demand.

The internal management of the house goes on with regularity, and the inmates are well conducted generally.

3. Yesterday I laid before the Board of Guardians your letter of the 7th instant, respecting the emigration of young persons to South Australia, and the Board have directed lists of the names of such to be made out, when they will be forwarded to you.

4. I also again brought under the notice of the Board the necessity of cooking the food for the out-door relief, and laid before them your letter, enclosing Captain Wynne's mode of making bread. The Board acquiesced in the advantage of the plan; but I find it almost impossible to urge them to take the matter up actively, as it is still longer deferred, and contracts have been entered into for the supply of Indian meal for another month. The want of a regular Chairman of the Board is sorely felt, as no single Chairman ever goes through the business of the day. The attendance of the Guardians is very uncertain, and always too late, a Board seldom being formed before half-past 12 or 1 o'clock, and then the business is hurried over without due regard to its great importance.

I hope, however, after the new elections of Guardians on the 25th instant, that an efficient Chairman may be selected; but unless the Guardians assemble early, the conducting of the affairs of the Union in a business-like manner will be hopeless.

5. The collection of the rates does not meet my expectations. The Board have caused the collectors to give in the names of the 10 highest rate-payers in each district who are defaulters; and these names have been read out each day of meeting; but still the outstanding rates are of very large amount.

Yesterday the collectors were directed to collect and pay into the bank each week 10 per cent. on the outstanding instalment.

WITH reference to your statement that the Board acquiesced in the advantages of the cooked food system, but that you find it almost impossible to urge them to take the matter up actively, as it is still longer deferred, I am to state that the Commissioners rely upon your bringing the matter again before the Guardians, and urging them to take immediate steps to carry out the system. The number on the relief lists in Nenagh Union is so large, and so many abuses have taken place, that no means should be left untried to check those abuses, and to remove from the relief lists all who are not really destitute; and the Commissioners are convinced that these ends will be to some extent promoted by distributing the food in a cooked state, inasmuch as, while on the one hand, cooked food is better suited to the wants of the really destitute, and is therefore more desirable to them than food in an uncooked state; it is, on the other hand, less desirable to those who are not really destitute, being less convertible, and, therefore, less suited to the purposes of those who fraudulently endeavour to obtain that relief which is intended exclusively for the destitute.

The Commissioners attach great importance to the adoption of this system; and though they are anxious to avoid embarrassing the Guardians by requiring them to adopt it, without allowing them another opportunity of making the requisite preparations, they feel bound to insist upon its being carried into effect without more delay than is absolutely necessary for making such preparations; and they desire to add, that should the Guardians still decline to act in accordance with the Commissioners' regulations in this respect, the Commissioners will feel bound to consider whether their omission to do so, coupled with the other irregularities in the administration of out-door relief in Nenagh Union, which have recently been brought under the notice of the Commissioners, and on which they have addressed the Guardians, together with the late and uncertain attendance of the Guardians, and the hurried manner in which you describe the business as being transacted, does not amount to such a default on the part of the Guardians as would not only justify, but call for the exercise of the Commissioners' powers under the 18th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 24, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward my sixth report for the information of the Commissioners.

1. The out-door relief is now in operation throughout the Union.

2. I laid before the Board of Guardians yesterday your communication to me of the 21st instant, in reply to my last report relative to the cooking of food. The Board was very badly attended, in consequence of the assizes which are now being held in Nenagh, requiring the attendance of the greater number of the Guardians, and nothing was done but the mere routine business of the Board.

3. From the circumstance of nearly the whole of the rural Guardians being disqualified from being re-elected, owing to not having paid up the last rate, I greatly fear much difficulty will ensue in not having the new books initialed in proper time, and should my doubts on this subject be realized, I shall consider it to be my duty to call upon the Commissioners to give me assistance to effect this very necessary business, as the other Guardians may not be able to attend during the assize week.

I always find this duty most difficult to have executed, and under the present untoward circumstances, my efforts to have it accomplished will, I fear be fruitless.

4. We had the advantage of Mr. Lloyd's assistance at the Board yesterday, and his experience in the conducting of the Poor Law was of material benefit. He recommended that wherever the cooking of food could not be conveniently done, to have the meal steeped previous to its issue, and so soon as the new arrangements of the Union are made, and the additional relieving officers appointed, this shall be commenced.

5. The collection of the rates goes on but slowly, and the Board resolved to apply to the Commissioners for power to proceed in the superior courts against several defaulters who are non-resident in the Union. The collectors say that in many cases there is no property on the land to enable them to distrain.

Amount collected this week . . .	266
Amount in bank . . .	986

6. I have received the Commissioners' sealed order to enable the Board to grant out-door relief until the 1st of April, but I am certain the able-bodied poor will not be employed to any extent in the Union during the spring, assuredly not in some of the electoral divisions; the consequence will be that this class will be forced on the relief lists under the 1st section before long. Nevertheless it will be well to make the experiment, and I shall not fail to send a more detailed report on this subject, should it become necessary for me to do so.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 28, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report in which you advert to the order authorizing out-door relief to the 1st April, and state that you fear there will be little employment during the spring, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they will renew the order on the 1st April, if you deem it absolutely necessary; but still the Commissioners are anxious to break through the habit of dependence on the poor rates at a time when the labour of able-bodied men is required for the cultivation of the land.

The Commissioners desire to draw your attention to their letter of the 15th instant, and they request that in the event of your applying for a renewal of the order, you will be so good as to state whether you are now of opinion that the Union has progressed so much as to admit of carrying the provisions of the Liscarrow order (a copy of which you received with that letter), into effect.

It will be observed that under that order single men, and men with only two children, would be thrown on their own resources.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain DARLEY:—March 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a constabulary report, which has been transmitted to them relative to the death of Patrick Reedy, in Nenagh Union; and I am to request that you will be so good as to inquire into and report on the circumstances attending his death.

ENCLOSURE.

County of Tipperary, N. R.

Nenagh, March 21, 1848.

An inquest was held yesterday on the body of Patrick Reedy, who was recently discharged from the fever hospital.

Copy of Verdict.

That deceased died from want of proper nourishment, and exposure to the inclemency of the weather, being in a delicate state of health.

Inspector-General.

CHARLES O'DELL, S. I.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS in reply :—March 29, 1848.

Nenagh Union.

IN reply to your letter of the 28th, enclosing a Constabulary Report, relative to the death of Patrick Reedy in Nenagh Union, I have made inquiry, and cannot ascertain whether the above-named person was a fixed resident in this Union; at all events no application on his behalf was made to the relieving officer. I annex his report to me.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. J. MEAGHER to Captain DARLEY.

I BEG to acquaint you that Reedy must be a stranger, as himself, nor no person on his behalf, ever called upon me or to my assistants to get his name on the relief list; if he had I would have visited him, and reported his case to the Board.

Received this evening, March 29, 1848.—A. D.

Captain DARLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 31, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit you my seventh report on the Nenagh Union for the information of the Commissioners.

1. The new Board met yesterday. There having been only four elected Guardians present, with these and the ex-officio Guardians the affairs of the Union will have to be conducted until the Commissioners sanction another election, but numbers are not so much needed as a few working business-like men. I regret they are rare in this Union. With a very few exceptions, the greatest apathy is shown by the members of the Board, and if they do not improve in their attendance and attention to the affairs of the Union, business cannot be conducted as it ought to be.

I persuaded the Board to name 10 o'clock in the forenoon as the hour for assembling on Board-days. I also got them to name a Finance Committee and a Visiting Committee. I hope these Committees may be induced to attend to their important duties.

2. The workhouse is in a more creditable state, but from the slovenly manner the management has been heretofore conducted, I find the utmost difficulty in keeping the officers of the house up to their work. All the able-bodied men are employed in breaking stones and planting potatoes in the workhouse grounds, and 68 women and girls are engaged in sewing, knitting, and spinning, and we are laying out work for double that number. The male and female schools are greatly improved; the children healthy and duly progressing in learning. I have established an infant-school in a room off the women's yard, and placed a young woman over it who is herself an inmate, and who has been for some time past acting as monitor and assistant to the schoolmistress.

A fortnight ago the house was full, but from the dislike the able-bodied poor have to remaining in it, coupled with the mistaken idea that they would get out-door relief, it has thinned considerably. I caused the master to post notices cautioning them against the mistake, and I gave the relieving officers directions not to place any such persons on their lists for out-door relief, yet these steps have not stopped the emigration. I therefore hope they have procured employment elsewhere.

3. The new hospital will be fit for the reception of patients next week, which will give more accommodation in the house, and as stone-breaking outside will cease to-morrow, access to the house will be afforded to those able-bodied persons who may be unable to obtain employment on their own account, and who are really destitute.

The number in the hospital still exceeds an average proportion; it however steadily diminishes. The diseases are not severe, except some cases of measles and small-pox. The present number is 183.

4. The collection of the rates goes on slow enough. The Board came to the resolution to direct their solicitor to write to several defaulters upon whose land no property can be found, threatening them with actions at law if they do not pay their rates.

Nenagh Union.

5. Since my last report I have visited several districts of the Union. From my own observation, and from the best information I can collect, there exists great destitution, and but little prospect of employment.

The planting of potatoes will be pretty general on a reduced scale by the better class of farmers; but the poorer sort have neither seed nor manure to make the experiment with.

The land is being tilled chiefly by the assistance of horse labour.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 1, 1848.

THE Commissioners infer from the statements in your report, coupled with the fact that you have not replied to the Commissioners' letter of the 28th ultimo, that you do not consider it necessary that the out-door relief order should be renewed, and accordingly the authority to administer out-door relief in Nenagh Union under the 2nd section will cease on this day.

ROSCREA UNION.

Roscrea Union.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 20, 1848.

ON Monday last I visited the workhouse of this Union, carefully inspected its condition and state of repair, and inquired into its management. I was much pleased to find that the greatest attention to the cleanliness and ventilation of the house was paid by the master and matron.

There were some matters amiss in the house—such as a bad management of the inmates of several rooms, a want of proper attention to repairs of iron work and masonry, and other matters which I presume I need not particularize, as the Board of Guardians have agreed to such changes and alterations as I may consider necessary, and, in fact, most of those changes have already been carried into effect.

The schoolmistress has charge of 180 pupils—a greater number than she can properly attend to, even with the aid of monitors. There is not any infant school. I consider that an assistant-schoolmistress is required, particularly as I hope the Commissioners will sanction the removal of the girls (over 5 and under 15 years of age) to the auxiliary house at Dunkerrin.

On Tuesday I examined the books and accounts of the master and matron and found them very correctly kept, and posted well forward. The Inventory and Labour Books were alone wanting; the former books being finished, and new ones not yet provided.

The former clerk having resigned, his brother continued to discharge the duties of that office provisionally; and on the 4th instant the Guardians elected a Mr. Smith, but as the Commissioners have not yet approved of this appointment, Mr. Smith has not entered upon the duties of his office. This state of things is most inconvenient, and I trust will not be much longer continued.

The absence of the acting-clerk prevented my having an opportunity of examining his books; but I have appointed Tuesday next for that purpose, and have no doubt I shall find the books, accounts, &c., in excellent order, as I understand Mr. Wall (the late clerk of this Union), was a most efficient public officer.

I believe there is room in the workhouse at present for very nearly 100 adult paupers.

On the 16th I visited Dunkerrin auxiliary house. There are 200 boys here under the sole charge of the schoolmaster, over whom there is no check or supervision. I consider that this house might, at a comparatively small cost, be made to accommodate all girls now in the Union workhouse under 15 and over 5 years of age (about 200), and thus enable the Guardians to offer admission to the workhouse to many who now receive out-door relief, but who I believe would not go into the workhouse. If this arrangement was carried into effect there would be at least 450 inmates at Dunkerrin, which number would justify the appointment of an assistant-master or matron for that establishment, and thus correct the irresponsibility which at present exists, and which, if it does not lead to fraud, at least offers perfect immunity from its consequences.

I am instructed by the Board of Guardians for this Union to request the sanction of the Poor Law Commissioners to such repairs and additions to the house at Dunkerrin as will afford the amount of accommodation required to carry into effect the arrangement proposed, and that the Commissioners will direct their architect, or his assistant, to examine the house and offices at Dunkerrin, with a view to provide the Guardians with the necessary plans and estimates.

I cannot complain of any want of exertion on the part of the collectors since they became aware of the power vested in them to enforce the payment of rates, and of the responsibility they would incur by a neglect of their duty. I confidently rely upon a very large proportion of outstanding rates being collected within a few weeks.

Some miscalculations in financial returns I have received (this moment discovered) compel me to delay forwarding a full statement of the present financial position of this Union.

The returns from relieving officers I hope to forward to-morrow; and with them, a report of the present working of out-door relief in this Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 24, 1848.

WITH reference to your suggestions as to the workhouse schools, and the proposed removal of the female children to the auxiliary workhouse at Dunkerrin, I am to state that the Commissioners approve of the appointment of an assistant schoolmistress, and of the removal of the female children to Dunkerrin, if they can be accommodated there conveniently.

The Commissioners request that you will have the goodness to inform them of the alterations and additions which you would propose to have made to the building at Dunkerrin, with a view to the accommodation of the female children now in the workhouse.

I am at the same time to state, that the attention of the Commissioners' architect will be drawn to the subject.

With respect to the clerk to the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners have not yet received the report of the Inspector of the district upon the answers to the usual queries relating to Mr. Smith, who has been appointed to that office.

The Commissioners recommend that all the workhouse inmates coming within the classes specified by the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act should be discharged. The Vice-Guardians may provide those classes not only with the allowance for food, but for clothing, lodging, and fuel.

I am to request your attention to the Commissioners' Circular of the 18th ultimo, on the subject of sending paupers out of the workhouse to receive out-door relief.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 22, 1848.

IN my weekly report forwarded to you on Sunday I promised to send an outline of the financial state of this Union. If the Poor Law Commissioners require me to give a more particular or minute statement, it shall be at once forwarded:—

	£.	s.	d.
The amount of rate made on 24th September, 1847	14,066	14	8
Arrears of former rate then uncollected	821	14	9
Total	14,888	9	5
Amount of rates collected	6,832	14	9
Amount of rate and arrears now uncollected	8,056	14	8
Amount collected in the week ending 18th February	530	9	0
Balance in treasurer's hands to the credit of the Union	1,519	2	8

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 24, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' thanks for your report: I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners are desirous that the outstanding rate should be collected with as little delay as possible; and I am to request that you will be good enough to keep the attention of the Guardians continually directed to this important matter.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 20, 1848.

IN forwarding the accompanying resolution of the Roscrea Board of Guardians I beg to observe that if the Poor Law Commissioners will in any case permit a deviation from the general rule as to the mode of employing able-bodied paupers out of the workhouse, I believe that the peculiar state of the road in Killavenogue would justify such a deviation as is proposed.

Roscrea Union.

The road in question is a new road leading from Roscrea to Templemore, formed, fenced, and stoned under the Board of Works, excepting a little over a quarter of a mile at the Roscrea end, and upon this part of the road it is only required to scrape the road and spread the stones already broken and lying in heaps on the road side.

ENCLOSURE.

Proposed by Martin Maher and seconded by Dudley Byrne—

That Mr. Todd be requested to ask permission of the Poor Law Commissioners to employ a portion of the able-bodied paupers now receiving out-door relief in the electoral division of Killavenogue in repairing some parts of the roads in that division, where they have been left in a state almost impassable since the suspension of the Public Works; and a like permission in the electoral division of Shinrone, where the stones are already broken.

February 25, 1848.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 28, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners will not object to the paupers being employed in scraping the road already formed and fenced, and laying down the broken stone upon it.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report to you, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, the present state of this Union as respects the mode of carrying into effect in it, the Acts for the Relief of the Poor in Ireland.

I have the pleasure to renew my statement of last week as to the strict attention paid by the master and matron to the ventilation and general cleanliness of the house. I consider that the drainage of the yards and of a portion of the ground attached to the house may be improved, and I feel, I may add, will be attended to; the master is very careful in having the cesspools regularly emptied. I think the present burial ground is most objectionable, as well from its situation as the nature of the ground; I have called the attention of the Guardians to this subject, and have to state that they quite agree with me as to the unfitness of the ground for the purposes to which it is now applied, and they are not only willing but anxious to receive the sanction of the Commissioners to their purchasing or renting a few acres of land near the workhouse, that a more suitable place of interment may be provided, and that a sufficient extent of ground may be at the disposal of the Guardians for the useful and regular employment of the able-bodied (male) inmates of the house.

I beg to premise that I have met with every assistance from the Board of Guardians in making such changes as I found necessary in the administration of the Poor Laws in this Union. There is now a very good attendance of Guardians at their Board-room at eleven o'clock (instead of two and three o'clock, P.M.); there is now a real Visiting Committee (of three Guardians and myself), instead of a nominal one; and there is now a bonâ fide examination of all accounts and books by the Board, and not by the chairman and clerk only; in short, I have no doubt that in a very short time few Unions will have a more efficient Board of Guardians than Roscrea.

I have spoken to many gentlemen of this Union upon the subject of establishing a Union Farming Society, in connexion with the parent society in Dublin, and of requesting that a practical instructor should visit this neighbourhood; and have given notice that I will call the attention of the Guardians to these subjects on Friday next.

I have found great difficulty in correcting the most extraordinary abuses in the system of out-door relief generally prevailing in this Union; this was caused very much from the inferior class of persons who had been appointed relieving officers—their extraordinary ignorance (real or pretended) of their duties, and to the too great extent of their districts. These causes are now removed, and I confidently trust that I shall in future have little if any reason to complain of irregularities in this class of officers.

I am happy to have it in my power to state that on Friday last the Guardians of this Union passed a resolution directing that out-door relief to the able-bodied class of destitute persons should be given in cooked food. As the carrying this resolution into effect has been committed to my charge, the Commissioners may rest satisfied that no time shall be lost in doing so; indeed I shall be prepared to supply cooked food rations in the Roscrea district on Tuesday next.

I have to a certain extent found it advantageous to adopt the labour test suggested by the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union; but neither the Guardians nor I, considered it advisable to incur the expense of actually measuring each man's work; we are content (for the present) to depend upon the judgment and experience of the overseers.

The amount of rates collected in the past week was but 392*l*. I can however account for this falling off by stating that the collectors had only four clear collecting days, as I was obliged to occupy one day, and another was lost in attending the meeting of the Board of Guardians; however, I venture to assure the Commissioners that they may look for much larger collections in future, as I trust the time I occupied the collectors will not prove to have been altogether lost. I have only to observe that a considerable portion of last week's collection consisted of arrears due when the last rate was made in September last, and to the collection of which I particularly called the attention of the collectors.

Next Wednesday there will be an extraordinary meeting of the Guardians of this Union, exclusively for the consideration of the finances of the Union, a report of which I propose to forward next day.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 29, 1848.

WITH regard to the burial ground to the workhouse I am to state that the Commissioners have heretofore drawn the attention of the Guardians to the expediency of their occupying some additional land for this purpose, and the Commissioners are quite ready to sanction any arrangement with regard to a burial ground which you may recommend. With respect to the occupation of additional ground for the employment of the able-bodied inmates of the workhouse, I am to state that as a general rule the Commissioners deem it undesirable that the Guardians should take land with the view of affording employment to able-bodied inmates of the workhouse, as all experience has shown that attempts to provide such employment in the cultivation of land belonging to the Union do not answer the end proposed.

The Commissioners however think that a limited quantity of land may be advantageously appropriated to the purpose of employing the boys in workhouses, and giving them some knowledge of agricultural labour.

With respect to the labour test I am to state that the Commissioners do not require that the Guardians should do more than satisfy themselves that the persons receiving relief are kept to work during the hours allotted for labour; they are of opinion however that it will be found useful to ascertain that a due quantity of work is performed by means of measurement, otherwise there will not be a proper check on the overseers' returns.

Your report is upon the whole very satisfactory to the Commissioners.

MR. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

THE house is clean and well ventilated. Many of the windows in the west and south sides of the house are not water-tight, and will require alteration in the construction of the sills, if frequent repairs are to be avoided.

The infirmary is dreadfully crowded (exactly double the number of patients it was calculated to accommodate, 40). There have been some cases of small-pox in the house; and the medical officer of the fever hospital having objected to receive them, the Guardians have directed accommodation to be provided in the Bourney temporary hospital. They are to be removed to-morrow.

Much confusion continues to prevail amongst the younger classes of boys and girls from the want of an assistant schoolmistress; and the Guardians do not wish to appoint an assistant until after the removal of the schoolmistress and older girls to Dunkerrin.

The defects in the drainage of some of the yards and grounds mentioned in my last report having been brought under the notice of the Guardians, the necessary directions have been given to have them remedied.

I am happy to say that steps have at length been taken to procure a small portion of ground near the workhouse as a place of interment.

I have carefully examined and measured every room in the house and offices, with a view to ascertain, as nearly as I could, its capabilities, &c. But nothing can be decided upon until the Commissioners' architect has visited (I believe for a second time) the house; and I, therefore, hope I may very shortly expect his arrival.

The necessary arrangements have been made to issue rations in cooked food in the following divisions: Roscrea, Shinrone, Kilmurry, Kilcommon, Dunkerrin, Rathnaveoge, and Cullenwain (seven). Early next week similar arrangements will be completed in Killavenogue, Killea, Bourney, and Roscomroe (four), Borris-in-Ossory (see accompanying letter).

Full employment is provided for all destitute able-bodied persons in the divisions of Aghancon, Ettagh, Kyle, and Burrisnafarney (four). The three remaining divisions I have not had time to visit during the last week; but hope to do so shortly.

The collectors have been exerting themselves to the utmost during the last week. They have succeeded in collecting a sum of 586*l.*, which I do not consider a bad week's work. The collectors hope to receive a large amount of rates next week, as the county half-yearly payments for roads, &c., will then have been made. They have also been promised payment of a considerable sum after the next fair of this town (25th instant).

I do not anticipate much difficulty, nor even delay, in collecting the greater part of the balance of unpaid rates, more particularly if I receive the Commissioners' sanction to state (in reply to Mr. Evans' letter forwarded herewith) that it is not proposed to impound any portion of the present rates to repay the loans made last year under the Temporary Relief Act. There are two small properties in this Union from which I anticipate some difficulty in collecting the rates. The landlords are absentees, and the estates are under the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery. But the receivers tell me they do not receive any rent, and that they cannot pay the rates for which the landlords are primarily liable; nor do they believe that distresses could be made which would cover the amount of rates and costs. I shall make further inquiries upon this matter.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. EVANS to MR. TODD:—March 4, 1848.

As I am Guardian for the electoral division of Aghancon, I am anxious for its well working in every respect; and in one particular point I am always anxious to urge the close collection of the poor-rates. This you may see upon examining the payments of the past-paid rates on my division.

May I now, therefore, beg leave to bring before your notice a remark that has been made by some of the rate-payers, which is simply this—you may expect some defaulters this season, in consequence of the poverty that prevails amongst those small holders of land rated over 4*l.* per annum and under 10*l.*; and we who have done more than could be expected from us, with justice to ourselves, through the past season to relieve the poor by employment and otherwise, not leaving them a charge upon the rates, will have to submit to your striking a new rate instant, in the event of your having one portion of this 3*s.* rate that you are now pressing us for absorbed by your in-door and out-door relief up to this period, and the balance being handed over in part payment of the Government loan.

We do not object to the honesty of paying back what the Government so kindly lent us to feed our poor, when all the ratepayers would not unanimously join to support the poor by employment or otherwise from private resources; but we object to the hardship that would be imposed upon us by the striking and enforcing a new rate "such times as these" immediately after the payment of such a heavy general rate. So far for the ratepayers' appeal.

From what I know of the people of this locality and their resources, I think if you would be good enough to suggest to the Commissioners their kind forbearance for a future and more convenient season, that those ratepayers that are able to pay would pay without hesitation, and that I could now succeed in getting the able-bodied poor supported by employment, so that we should have no person chargeable upon rates but the helpless poor, with the exception

Roscrea Union. of three or four dishonest bad characters, for whom I would not solicit any private employment; but for those we can make provision in the workhouse, and in the support of the helpless poor all will most willingly aid.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 8, 1848.

I AM to state that the attention of the Commissioners' architect will be drawn to that part of your report which relates to the construction of the window-sills in the workhouse, and to the auxiliary workhouse at Dunkerrin. With regard to the crowded state of the hospital, I am to state that such steps should be forthwith taken as may be necessary to reduce the number of inmates of the wards to a proper number, either by the discharge of some of the present inmates from the workhouse, and then appropriating the wards vacated to the reception of the hospital patients, or by hiring some building to which some of the patients may be removed.

With regard to the children in the workhouse, it will be desirable that you should press upon the consideration of the Guardians the expediency of at once appointing an assistant schoolmistress, notwithstanding the reason to the contrary stated in your report.

In reference to the letter from Mr. Evans, enclosed with your report, I am to state that the Union will not be called upon to make payments on account of the advances under the Temporary Relief Act, if the making such payment would be likely to cause serious embarrassment, it being the desire of the Lords of the Treasury that the rate should be reserved for defraying the current expenditure under the Poor Law in preference to the repayment of the advances, if the rate is not sufficient for both objects.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I REGRET to have to report the illness of the master; his disease is fever, which the medical officer states to be "highly infectious, although not of a very malignant type." Mr. O'Malley's illness was reported to the Board of Guardians on Friday, but no order for his removal was made; and I do not believe myself warranted in assuming the responsibility of taking any decided step in the matter.

I believe that the exertions of the master's friends, assisted by Mr. Wall, the acting clerk, will render it unnecessary to appoint a temporary substitute, at least for the present.

The clerk has been directed by the Guardians to advertise for candidates.

In my last report I stated that the Guardians had directed the removal of small-pox patients to the Bourney temporary hospital. Upon examining the patients, many were so far advanced in the disease that their removal was considered inexpedient by the medical officers; and accordingly I had (the stable) the only building available, fitted up for the reception of those patients. The floor is covered with plank, and a stove has been set up. The medical officer altogether approves of this arrangement.

I met a Committee of the Guardians at Dunkerrin on Wednesday, to make arrangements as to procuring some ground to afford room for the training of the boys in agricultural labour; but under the circumstances already referred to, no definite arrangements were come to.

I have been engaged the greatest part of last week in urging forward the necessary arrangements for issuing rations in a cooked state. It has been up-hill work; the Guardians are generally passive, and the people violently opposed to it. I am, however, making a steady progress, and hope another week will see the completion of every necessary arrangement. I forward with this, one of many petitions I have received upon this matter; but I am persuaded that, after a fair trial, the people will be well pleased with the change.

The townland lists of recipients of relief, directed to be published by your circular of the 25th ultimo, are in course of preparation.

The amount of rates collected during the past week has rather disappointed me. The collectors had led me to reckon upon a much larger sum, and I believe many promises of ratepayers have not been observed to them; but I have given the collectors notice that if they do not make greater exertions next week, the penalties in their bonds will be enforced against them.

The collector for Shinrone had summoned, by my desire, some defaulters in his district, rated to large sums (one 30%), and who were perfectly well able to pay their rates, but who had hitherto frightened the collector by holding out a threat of appealing to Quarter Sessions. I attended the Shinrone Petty Sessions on Tuesday, and obtained convictions against upwards of 20 defaulters, and who all (except one) abandoned their threatened appeal, when they found that, pending the issue of an appeal, the rate must be paid. I believe this will have a good effect, and that I need not apprehend any further opposition to the collection of the outstanding rates.

The amount collected last week was 480/. The balance to the credit of the Union I could not collect from the treasurer's book, as several cheques issued had not been presented for payment.

ENCLOSURES.

I.

To the Commissioners, Noblemen, and Gentlemen of the sitting Board of Guardians of Roscrea Union.

THE petition of the undersigned labourers, working under Thomas Deegan, steward, humbly sheweth,—That the change which has been made with respect to their meal was not at all for the better, as we would sooner have the management of it ourselves than be forced to take stirabout, as it is of very little use to most of us, having long distances to take it. After taking it four miles, which many of us have to do, it is then too cold for use; and even our allowance is not able to support or keep us alive.

Your petitioners humbly request that you will again take them into consideration, and again grant them their meal, and remove from us our present grievances, by granting some addition to our allowances; and we shall be in duty bound to pray.

II.

Mr. POWER, Collector, to Mr. TODD :—March 6, 1848.

I WILL have a gentleman summoned to-morrow (Tuesday) to Shinrone Petty Sessions, who intends to lodge an appeal against me.

Sir, as you desired me to give you notice of it, if leisure should permit, I would like you would attend the court.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 12th instant; and, with reference to the illness of the master of the workhouse of the Roscrea Union, I am to state that the Commissioners consider that it is desirable that you should at once consult the medical officers of the workhouse as to the removal of the master from his apartment in the house. I am at the same time to draw your attention to the 10th Article of the General Regulations, with regard to the holding of a special meeting of Guardians to give any decisions on the subject which may be necessary.

The Commissioners will communicate with Mr. Wilkinson respecting the proposed additions to the auxiliary workhouse at Dunkerrin; they have no doubt that he has made such arrangements as will prove satisfactory.

The Commissioners trust that you will be successful in your endeavours to make arrangements for giving out-door relief in cooked food, and that you will receive such co-operation from members of the Board of Guardians as will be necessary to ensure success in this important matter.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 13, 1848.

I THIS morning received your letter of the 11th instant, requiring from me, by return of post, a reply to a circular addressed to me on the 2nd instant, and enclosing a second copy of that circular.

In a former letter I stated that in this Union ample employment was provided by proprietors for all able-bodied persons requiring it in four electoral divisions (Burrishnafarney, Aghancon, Ettagh, and Kyle).

In five other electoral divisions (Killea, Roscomroe, Kilmurry, Shinrone, and Kilcommon) employment to a considerable extent is to be expected (assisted by some works carrying on under the Land Improvement Act), but not at all adequate to the requirements of the destitute people of those districts.

Roscrea Union.

In seven other divisions (Roscrea, Dunkerrin, Cullenwaine, and remaining four Queen's County divisions) a precarious and wholly insufficient amount of employment is to be calculated upon.

In the divisions of Rathnaveoge, Bourney, and Killavenogue I do not believe there will be 20 labourers employed before next harvest.

That my reply to the circular of the 2nd instant might be worthy of credit, I do not think a little time devoted to collecting information as misspent, and regret it if the Commissioners should think otherwise; and even now (after a drive of 30 miles over an important portion of this Union) I am well satisfied that I have had another day's information and knowledge of the Union before reply to the circular.

If the renewed order authorizing out-door relief in this Union can be made to apply to certain divisions, and not to others, this may be done; but if out-door relief being required in one division renders a continuance of the order necessary for the whole Union, I cannot fix any period (before next harvest perhaps) for the determination or suspension of the order issued for this Union, under the Poor Relief Extension Act, authorizing out-door relief.

P.S. There has not been any assistance afforded in this Union from funds supplied by the British Association.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to inform you that, as the Commissioners are not empowered to restrict the operation of the order to any particular electoral divisions, they have given directions for the renewal of the order for the entire Union.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners rely on the exercise of due discretion, on the part of the Board of Guardians, in either withholding or affording out-door relief to the able-bodied according to the peculiar circumstances of each case. The Commissioners trust that your apprehension that it will be necessary for the Board of Guardians to continue to give out-door relief to able-bodied men in the Roscrea Union until the time of the next harvest may be groundless.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following statement relative to this Union for the information of the Commissioners:—

I have not been able to visit the workhouse since Monday last (owing to severe illness), but from the report of trustworthy persons I may state that the illness of the master has not prevented the customary attention to the cleanliness and ventilation of the house. I am happy to learn from the medical officer that he expects the master will shortly be able to resume his duties.

I observe with regret that some of the paupers have misconducted themselves last week; but I hope the steps directed to be taken for their punishment will have a beneficial effect in preventing further acts of insubordination.

Relief to able-bodied destitute persons and their families is now given very generally in a cooked state in this Union. My illness and the very inefficient relieving officers I have to deal with have delayed its being more generally acted upon. I shall have to recur to this subject to-morrow or next day, and shall not, therefore, say more at present, than to express my belief that there must be an example made of one or two of these men before they will be induced to attend to a proper discharge of their duties.

I am very sorry I cannot report more favourably. The sum for which the treasurer's receipts were produced amounted to but 252*l.* I believe, however, that other sums were received, but not lodged in time; but I shall see to all this to-morrow or next day, and shall make a further report upon the matter. The Commissioners may be satisfied that I feel the necessity for most strenuous exertions in collecting the rates outstanding, and they may depend upon my making every endeavour to press the collectors to greater activity.

Roscrea Union.

It is satisfactory to me that I can state that this workhouse is essentially clean; that the regulations of the Commissioners are strictly adhered to; that irregularities and acts of insubordination amongst the inmates having been promptly punished, order and proper discipline have been restored, and that the appearance of a neglect of duty on the part of the officers, caused by the younger children wandering through all parts of the house, ceased to exist upon the appointment of an assistant schoolmistress.

The want of employment for the adult female paupers (nearly 300) in the house has occupied my attention, and I propose shortly addressing the Commissioners upon that subject.

On Friday the Board of Guardians purchased the tenant-right in a small farm near the workhouse for a sum of 14*l.* : it contains two acres and 37 perches (Irish), and is subject to a rent of 5*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.* I shall take an early opportunity of writing more particularly upon this subject, and explaining my reasons for advising the Guardians to take this farm as "tenants-at-will."

The Board was occupied until nearly five o'clock on Friday in going through the ordinary business, and entering into contracts, &c., when the meeting was adjourned until Saturday, for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the Union for the half-year. Upon this understanding I did not object to the Guardians devoting the remainder of Friday afternoon to a revision of relieving officers' lists, &c. I am sorry to say, however, that not one Guardian attended next day; and although I had all the accounts examined and prepared, and remained in the Board-room until five o'clock, nothing could be done, greatly to the inconvenience of the contractors, relieving officers, and others. I shall endeavour to have an extraordinary meeting of Guardians on Wednesday or Thursday, when I hope to have the accounts for the half-year examined and disposed of. I believe I am tolerably correct in stating (in round numbers) the liabilities of the Guardians at 6000*l.* up to the 25th instant, which would leave their treasurer's account as follows :—

Balance in favour of Guardians on 18th instant	2,266	4	6
24th.—Amount paid in by collectors during the current week	324	0	0
25th.—Amount paid in this day	195	0	0
	2,785	4	6
Less by liabilities, say	600	0	0
Balance to credit of Union	2,185	4	6

I expect that there will be large collections of rates made during the next and following week, although the fair of this town was considered a dull one, there being no buyers for stock of any kind, unless for immediate consumption. I am sorry to say the number on the out-door relief list in this Union is 7,624, being an increase of over 200. Under section 2 the number of cases are 618, and of dependents 2,112. The expenditure exceeded that of the previous week over 21*l.* This is partly caused by the wet state of the land, and partly by the cessation of employment upon the railway from Ballybrophy to Thurles.

Mr. TODD to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 3, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report upon the present state of this Union for the information of the Commissioners.

The presence of a number of workmen employed in raising a story over the idiot wards necessarily interrupts the appearance of order about the house. There is also considerable inconvenience in the house, caused by the want of a nursery and a sufficiently large day-room (women's). I propose to draw the attention of the Guardians to these matters at their next Board-meeting. The master is sufficiently recovered to re-enter upon the duties of his office.

The returns from the relieving officers for the last week may be relied upon, as corresponding with the entries in the Application and Report Books sanctioned by the initials of the chairman of the Board of Guardians. They show a slight falling off in the numbers and cost of the week's rations issued, as compared with the previous week. But I have reason to believe that the amount of Relief in this Union exceeds the requirements of the really destitute, and that therefore a very considerable reduction in the relieving officer's lists is necessary, both as regards numbers and extent of relief.

The collectors have exerted themselves during the past week, and considering the circumstances of a considerable portion of this Union, I think the amount collected satisfactory, and it would have been more so, but that some lodgments were made after the treasurer had made up his week's account.

The amount collected was 637*l.* during the week.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 3rd instant relating to the Roscrea Union in which you state that you consider that the amount of relief given in the Union, exceeds the requirements of the really destitute, and in reference thereto I am to state, that the Commissioners rely upon your taking such steps as will effectually expose cases of simulated distress.

I am at the same time to state that an extract from your report relative to the additional accommodation required at the workhouse, has been forwarded to the Commissioners' architect.

TRIM UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that we removed the girls out of the workhouse on Wednesday last into the house we had taken from Doctor Lamprey. We decided on removing the girls there instead of the boys, as we conceived that that would diminish considerably, probably wholly remove, any ideal injury which the premises might sustain from being applied to the purposes of a poor-house; and we have taken all necessary steps to prevent as far as possible, all damage to any part of the interior of the house.

We are at present in treaty for another house for the boys, and we only wait your approval to proceed with the bargain, and to submit it in distinct terms.

We are, however, strongly of opinion that the erecting additional accommodation within the precincts of the workhouse, as far as it is feasible and consistent with the health of the inmates, is to be preferred to the taking of extern houses, as the staff are thus enabled to have a more constant surveillance over all matters in their charge.

We are happy to say, that notwithstanding the urgent application for outdoor relief under section 2 from Athboy, that the number of applications for in-door relief on Saturday last, in consequence of being refused the former, was not very considerable, as will appear on the minutes.

We await your instructions relative to the erecting of single galleries in the dormitories, for doing which we have received tenders.

It appears that several of the Relief Committees, at the termination of the relief system, left the boilers which had been used by them in the kitchens, where they had been originally set, under the impression, we believe, that they might be required again; and there is now a charge made for the rent of the premises at a rate of 2s. per week. We should be glad to know whether we ought to pay the charge up to this date, and have the boilers removed into store, or leave them where they are, subject to the accruing charge of 2s. per week for each kitchen.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 18, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report of the 7th instant, relating to boilers which had been used by the late Relief Committee in Trim Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that the boilers should be removed and taken into store as proposed in your report.

WE have to report that we have before us an offer of a house in the town of Trim capable of containing about 120 boys, for the sum of 40% for one year certain. We would at once conclude the bargain, but that we are anxious to put ourselves in communication with the proprietor, who lives in Dublin, in reference to some allowance for putting the premises in a proper state of repair, to do which, we consider it will require about 5%. It is not our intention, however, ultimately to decline taking the house, even if he should refuse to make us any allowance, as we consider it fit for our object.

As there is an immediate prospect of removing the boys from the workhouse, it brings strongly before us the capabilities of the schoolmaster who will be in charge of them. It appears that the present master was only appointed temporarily on the 4th of August (on his son being sent up to the training school in Dublin, from whence he was appointed to another Union), and without preferring any specific charge against him, we have no hesitation in saying that we do not consider him qualified to make an efficient master. We have also to observe that in our opinion, the salary hitherto given, viz., 12*l.* per annum, is inadequate to procure the services of a properly qualified person.

The medical officer has just reported to us that he finds dysentery on the increase among the boys from 9 to 15 years of age, and he attributes this to the fact of their getting buttermilk instead of sweet milk at this time of year. Under these circumstances, at his recommendation, we have thought it advisable to place all the children on sweet milk diet for the present.

We have entered into a contract for building single sleeping galleries in the upper dormitories.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 18, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have already expressed their approval of the Vice-Guardians taking a house in addition to that taken from Dr. Lamprey; and the Commissioners presume that the statement in your report refers to such second house.

I am also to request that you will inform the Commissioners whether the schoolmaster has sent in his resignation, if not, he should be called upon to do so; and when the office has been thus vacated, the Guardians can take the usual steps, with a view to the appointment of his successor.

With reference to the diet to be adopted for inmates affected with dysentery, I am to express the Commissioners' approval of the Guardians being guided by the opinion of the medical officer.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

REFERRING to our last report as regards the schoolmaster, we think it right to state our opinion that the present salary of 12*l.* per annum is inadequate to procure the services of a properly qualified person; and we propose that we should be authorized to advertise for a schoolmaster at 20*l.* per annum.

Applications have been sent to us to provide coffins for persons dying outside the workhouse; and we have stated it to be our opinion that we should not be justified in doing so, and have referred the parties to the churchwardens as the proper persons to supply them.

We regret to report that an old woman was found dead the other day on the road. It appears she was in the receipt of out-door relief; and, on questioning the relieving officer, he has informed us that the persons with whom she was living on seeing that she was dying had turned her (with great inhumanity) out on the road. The only blame we attach to the relieving officer in the matter was his timidity in not taking on himself the responsibility of provisionally supplying her with food more suitable to her than the rations ordered, which were meal rations, and, as it appears, unfit for a person in her state. As this may probably become a subject of inquiry on a coroner's inquest, we have thought it right to mention the facts to you as far as they are known to us.

We have been informed that a public meeting was held in this town yesterday for the purpose of procuring subscriptions to give employment to the able-bodied destitute poor; and we hope they will succeed in getting sufficient funds to support them by employment till the agricultural spring work commences. We have mentioned this fact to put you in possession of circumstances as they occur in the Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 23, 1848.

As regards the appointment of a schoolmaster for the workhouse, I am to express the Commissioners' approval of a salary of 20*l.* per annum for that officer.

With reference to the death reported by you, I am to state, that the relieving officer's attention has already been expressly called to the extent of his provisional powers by the Commissioners' Circular of the 10th November last: he should be reminded of that communication, and warned to be careful to do his duty in cases of this description in future.

WE have to report that we hope before the end of this week, to have the house lately taken by us, in a state fit to receive the boys from the workhouse.

We have this day received a communication from the Central Board of Health, enclosing a requisition devolving on us the management of the temporary fever hospital at Trim. In answer, we have stated that there are no less than four fever hospitals in Trim Union, and requesting further information as to whether it is intended to have them all closed but the one situated in the town of Trim, to which their communication seems solely to refer.

We have also to report that on Saturday last, we caused to be brought up before the magistrates, a man whose wife had been maintained for some time in this workhouse; he was committed to gaol for three months with hard labour; we hope it will have the effect of checking parties from deserting their families, and leaving them chargeable on the rates, several cases of which kind have occurred in this Union.

We have again to bring under your notice a difficulty we experienced in providing clothing for persons whom we wish to remove from the workhouse, as being infirm, &c. The simplest plan would be to get whatever clothes we found it necessary to give, made up in the workhouse, of a different description from that worn in the house; but then the expense could not be put entirely against the electoral division where the pauper will be chargeable; we therefore think this system objectionable. Probably the better way would be to contract with some clothier to supply any article we may require ready made, which we can charge as given in money or kind against the proper electoral division.

Application has been made to us on one or two occasions by the relieving officers, to know what they should do when they were applied to by parties suffering under small-pox, who might require medical attendance. The temporary fever hospitals have declined admitting them for fear of infection. Under the circumstances we have been rather at a loss to know what instructions to give.

I AM to state that the Commissioners see no objection to the course proposed by you with reference to the supply of clothing where necessary to persons leaving the workhouse.

As regards the relief of persons suffering from small-pox, I am to state that the temporary hospitals provided under the Fever Acts are not confined to the reception of fever cases; but cases of other epidemic or contagious disease are receivable therein, and there can be no doubt that small-pox comes within the terms of the statute.

In cases of necessity the relieving officers are competent to procure medical assistance and charge the cost to the electoral division, or Union at large, as the case may be.

WE have the honour to report, that during the past week we again investigated minutely the details on which our estimate for the expenditure of this Union, up to the 29th September next, was based; and finding an excess of 125*l.* in the calculated expenditure (including the repayment of 1333*l.* advanced by the Treasury) of the Athboy electoral division above the funds which would be available at the rate proposed to be struck, we thought it advisable to rescind our resolution of the 26th February, as regarded that electoral division, and have put on the minutes another resolution, that a rate of 2s. 6d. in the pound be struck, instead of 2s. 3d., as previously resolved on.

Trim Union.

The rate books were not ready to be signed on Saturday, as we had hoped they would have been; but we fully expect there will be no longer delay beyond next Saturday. We investigated the arrears appearing at the foot of the collectors' accounts, and when we were satisfied that the amounts were due on dilapidated buildings or on houses which had been unoccupied since the striking of the rate on which the arrear accrued, we had them cancelled, as we considered it worse than useless to bring forward on the new rate books unrecoverable arrears. We did not strike off any sums chargeable on land.

We are happy to state, that the discharges from the workhouse during the past week exceeded the admission by 23; and the total number in the house on Saturday was only 505. We have reason to hope that the numbers will not much exceed this during the summer; but in framing our estimate we have thought it safer to make an allowance for an average increase of 50 over the numbers appearing on the books on the 5th February, as possibly in the month of July a number of able-bodied labourers might apply for admission, whom we ought to be in a position to relieve if necessary. Captain Huband visited the workhouse on Saturday last, and we believe he was satisfied with the state in which he found it.

SWINEFORD UNION.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 1, 1848.

I REGRET to have to commence my report with the announcement of the death of the poor schoolmaster, of typhus; he died this morning. The Committee met at the usual hour, and vast numbers of applicants appeared. Near 200 were admitted, until to-morrow, when selection will be made of from 300 to 400 persons, women and children chiefly, and infirm old persons, it was necessary to provide temporarily for these, and being fine dry weather I have had the larger portion of them placed in the new fever sheds (which have never been used), which will make the ordinary probationary wards available for cleansing and dressing the others in the morning; this was the best arrangement I could think of. Many of them came in evidently for the purpose of forcing the measure, and no doubt will leave on being put to work in the morning.

I will forward the state of the house as soon as it is regulated. In the absence of master, matron, and schoolmaster, the pressure is very severe on the remaining officers of the house; and it would be injustice to them not to state the zeal and activity all evince to do their best, particularly the schoolmistress, who, I regret to say, was an unsuccessful candidate to-day for the situation of matron. The difficulties are aggravated by the whole pump and water apparatus being out of order, and no water available except what is brought in buckets from a small stream hard by; and this without the power of remedy, having in vain written to Sligo and Castlebar for a plumber. I also made application to the barrackmaster at Castlebar, to know if he could send over any one connected with the engineer department, and I have the hopes a person will be here in the morning to set all in order.

The appointment of master and matron took place this day, the selection fell on a Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell; seven applications were put in, amongst others an old police serjeant of 18 years' standing with excellent characters, but not one voted for him. I cannot but think in any future alteration or extension of the Act, it would be wise for the Commissioners to appoint direct—many heart-burnings and much feeling would be avoided by the appointments resting in head quarters for every situation, and very much abuse no doubt prevented. The letter I was enabled to lay before the meeting, so promptly sent by the Commissioners from the Board of Health, was received with the attention it deserved. I have forwarded it to the medical officer in charge of the Union, and trust we shall receive the cask of chloride of lime to-morrow.

The whitewashing of the premises has been commenced, and will be continued until completed.

I shall be most willing to give my best assistance to the Guardians, to get through the present "crisis" in the affairs of this Union, and have no doubt we shall succeed. This month over, we may fairly look for the worst being passed.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain BROUGHTON, in reply to the foregoing:—

February 3, 1848.

THE Commissioners consider the arrangements which you have made satisfactory.

I am at the same time to state that they recommend the adoption of means for providing a supply of water within the workhouse as soon as possible, and desire to suggest the use of the adjoining stream for that object, if the ground permit and an agreement can be effected.

The Commissioners will defer confirming the appointment of the new master and matron, until you are satisfied of their undoubted fitness.

Swineford Union.

Mr. W. J. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you that I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians of Swineford Union yesterday.

There were a considerable number of applicants for relief, very few of whom appeared to me to be in distress; in fact, accustomed as I have been to imposition, I never saw a more disgraceful scene than yesterday's.

I think it is most desirable that an Inspector should at once be sent to Swineford. I find that in justice to my own Union I cannot give as much time as I could wish to Swineford. It would require a person to be constantly on the spot to have anything approaching to an effectual check upon the game which the people are attempting to play.

I have written to Count Strzelecki about the schools, the demands for which I am satisfied Captain Broughton never approved of, and which exceed all reasonable bounds. Mr. Richard Bourke issued 25 tons of provisions last week; and in consequence of a letter which I received from him I did not reduce the issue yesterday, but I warned the patrons that they must be prepared to expect a very great reduction in the next issue.

I understand that the cause of the overwhelming demands for relief yesterday, may in some measure be attributed to the Guardians having ordered relief to all persons whose names appeared on the relieving officers' books last Tuesday week, without requiring the applicants to appear before them. On that occasion they met at the court-house. There was some intention of meeting there yesterday; but I requested the Chairman to put it to the Guardians whether they could conscientiously order any paupers into the house if they objected to meet there themselves.

Owing to the changes of officers in the establishment, the death of the school-master, the illness of Captain Broughton, and the pumps being out of order, I found the house in a very dirty state. I called the attention of the Guardians to the subject, and I have no doubt that they will endeavour to get the house into its accustomed good order.

Implements are much required for the able-bodied paupers. The Guardians have sent a requisition to the Board of Works, but as yet they have not received any reply. I told them that they ought to have applied through your office.

I am sure that the Commissioners will be glad to learn that poor Captain Broughton is going on most favourably, and that the loss of his services in the Swineford Union is most deeply regretted by the Guardians, many of whom stated to me yesterday that his whole time and thoughts were constantly occupied in trying how he could best serve the interests of his Union. I can easily conceive this, as I understand that in his ravings he frequently alludes to the state of its affairs.

I write in great haste as the post is just going out; and I wish not to lose a moment in requesting the Commissioners to send down an inspector. I think, perhaps, he had better come to Ballina in the first instance.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' thanks for your report.

I am at the same time to state that your report will be communicated to Mr. Gibbons, the Temporary Inspector, who has gone down to Swineford.

The Commissioners desire me to express their great satisfaction at the intelligence conveyed to them in your report respecting Captain Broughton.

The Commissioners have already communicated with the Board of Works with regard to the implements required for the employment of the able-bodied paupers receiving out-door relief in the Swineford Union.

Mr. GIBBONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you that I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians on the 24th instant.

There was a great press of applicants, many of them appearing in a very destitute state. The Board sat till late in the evening; and finding it impossible that the quarter of the number of applicants could be gone into in one day, I requested the Board to meet daily until the present press of applicants was disposed of, which they at once agreed to.

The Board sits each day, and a very considerable number of cases have been disposed of; but there still remains a surprising number.

None of the applicants refused to break stones; but the great majority refused to enter the house, and many of those who were passed for the in-door relief afterwards left the house.

Those that were passed for the out-door relief were informed they should work eight hours per day; they all expressed their willingness to do so.

The Board have not the necessary implements for stone-breaking.

I am informed they have applied to the Commissioners for the implements, and have not as yet been favoured with a reply.

The Board have resolved on taking an additional house for the children, so as to make more room for adults in the Union house.

The house is at present full; but on Monday next the Board propose discharging a number of the old people, and of those the longest in, so as to make room for the able-bodied.

I am informed that there is great misery in different parts of the Union.

I propose, with the sanction of the Commissioners, to go through the Union, and to ascertain if possible the truth respecting the existence of the extent of misery reported to me.

The Guardians have met each day since my arrival, and will continue to do so for a few days. I attend their meetings.

I called the attention of the Board to the very neglected state of the house, being in want of cleansing, whitewashing, &c.

I expressed my surprise the house should be so neglected, and was informed the master was only a very short time in office; that the late master had been very inefficient, and that there were but few able-bodied paupers in the house.

I stated they should not be so very liberal of out-door relief to the able-bodied, when the house was in such want of cleansing, and they had not a sufficient number of able-bodied in-door to do the work. I also remarked that the fever being at present in the house was principally owing to neglect.

The Board directed the necessary cleansing, whitewashing, &c.

I also called the attention of the Board to the neglected state of the grounds about the house, and the approaches thereto.

Also to the state of the drains, sewers, &c., which are very imperfect.

The pump is also out of order; but a contract has been entered into to have it repaired and kept in repair.

The principal drains are not covered in; the grounds and buildings may be easily drained, as there is a fall of about 10 feet to the river.

I have been also obliged, at each meeting of the Board since my arrival, to call their attention to the great inconvenience as well as danger in allowing the hall, passages, and stairs leading to the Board-room, to be filled by the applicants for relief, many of them having members of their families in sickness and fever.

A full Board meets on Tuesday next, when I shall again bring all those matters before them; the several Guardians present expressed their wish to have all those matters properly attended to.

The fever hospital progresses slowly, and the fever sheds are not finished.

A Mr. Robinson came before the Board, and stated he could not get men to work, though he had offered 10*d.* per day. I requested him to furnish the names of the persons refusing to work; he stated he could not just then do so.

Some of the applicants stated they had offered to work for 2*d.* per day and their diet.

It was complained that an applicant refused to work though offered fair wages. I inquired into the charge; the man was offered 5*s.* for digging half an acre of land; he stated it would not be 2*d.* per day, and that would not support his family; he was admitted for in-door relief.

I am informed that some abuses exist respecting the application of the funds granted by the British Association in respect to the food supplied, and the number of children relieved. I propose inquiring into the matter during the ensuing week. I have been, up to the present time, much occupied at the Union house; but I expect that in a few days the Board will have disposed of the present list of applicants: they require attention.

Respecting the anonymous communication of the 19th instant, the charges shall be brought before a full meeting of the Board on the 29th instant, and the explanation reported to the Commissioners. I have retained the letter till after that date.

I have obtained the following information respecting the charges:—

On the 15th instant the Board elected rate-collectors. The election had been advertised 10 days previous. The parties elected were all Poor Law Guardians, namely, Patrick Kelly, Patrick Cunniffe, and John O'Grady.

The former collectors were deemed inefficient, on account of the large arrear of rates they allowed to accrue due.

On the 22nd instant the Guardians elected relieving officers for each electoral division without having advertised their intention.

Miss O'Hara, the schoolmistress, was dismissed for refusing to obey the orders of the Guardians.

A surprising number of applicants applied for relief within the last few days; the out-door relief was offered to the most wretched, the others were offered the in-door, but very few accepted of it; but all, old and young, were most anxious to be employed at stone-breaking. I am informed there is a considerable number of cases to be examined into. The Guardians state there is great distress existing in the remote parts of the Union. I shall endeavour to ascertain the truth of those statements of extreme distress, as yet I have not had sufficient time to see my way clearly.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 4, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners consider it to be necessary that you should make yourself fully acquainted with the state of the Union generally, and visit the places at which the relieving officers receive applications, and give out food.

The Commissioners must consider the administration of relief exceedingly defective where it appears that there are not able-bodied paupers in the workhouse sufficient to keep it thoroughly cleansed; and they recommend that arrangements be made for taking able-bodied paupers' families into the house in the room of such of the present inmates as can be properly, and with safety, transferred to the out-door relief lists.

The Commissioners at once communicated with the Board of Works on being informed of the implements which were required for the employment of able-bodied paupers in the Union; and they have reason to believe that the application has since been complied with.

Mr. GIBBONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

I TAKE the liberty of suggesting that at the end of the present month the out-door relief might be, with more safety, suspended to the able-bodied.

There is some field labour at present in progress, but it is chiefly among the occupiers of small holdings, so that the people generally do not benefit by it. The season is also excessively wet, which in some degree retards field labour.

There is not at present an excessive number of able-bodied men receiving out-door relief.

I have used my best exertions to clear the Union-house of the old and sickly, with whom I found the house crowded on my arrival; the consequence is, we have now a fair proportion of the able-bodied in-door.

There are a considerable number of deserted women in this Union; women whose husbands are in America and in England, and women not married having numerous children.

From the best information that I have been able to obtain, it appears to me that the 18th instant is too early a date for the total suspension of out-door relief to the able-bodied men in this Union; but it might be limited from that date, and in fact I have endeavoured to limit the out-door relief as much as possible to the aged and helpless women having long families, &c. &c.; and it shall be my endeavour this week to limit it still more closely.

Swineford Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to inform you, that in accordance with your views, the Commissioners have given directions for the issue of an order authorizing the Guardians to afford out-door relief to able-bodied persons, with the exception of single men having but two children.

Mr. GIBBONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

THE Board of Guardians and the Union-house generally, have occupied almost my whole time these several days past.

The applications for relief have been very numerous the last few weeks; I have endeavoured to have the in-door test given to all able-bodied persons.

Eight hundred applicants were passed for in-door relief in one day; 130 only remained, and 45 out of that number refused to wear the Union clothing, and were consequently dismissed without relief.

The people being so anxious for out-door relief, and willing to break stones or do any work they should be required, and refusing the in-door relief, induced me to attend closely to the admission of applicants. I have had numerous old and infirm people, and women with long families (with whom I found the house crowded), discharged, and the able-bodied admitted.

The house appears to have been neglected, inasmuch as there was a great deficiency of all necessary articles, such as clothing, shoes, &c., cans, spoons, and measures, brushes, and other articles absolutely requisite. I have had those articles all ordered, and most of them supplied to the house. There is still a great deficiency in clothing; the probationary wards are full, solely for want of Union clothing.

Finding there were some tailors in the house, I have had some materials purchased for repairing the old clothes, and directed that some of the most handy boys should be picked out and put to work, under the directions of the tailors, in repairing the old clothes.

I understand there are some shoemakers in the house, but I have not been able to have the old shoes repaired.

I have had whitewash brushes purchased, and have directed a number of the paupers to be kept constantly whitewashing the different parts of the house. Parts of the house are damp, and parts require better ventilation.

I found the drains very defective; one principal drain appears never to have acted; they are all defective. I have had them opened by the paupers, and am having them cleaned.

I have had scrapers provided with a view of having the approaches to the house cleaned; and as soon as the new drains are covered in, I propose having the ground about the house cleared, and levelled, and tilled by the in-door paupers.

It would be very desirable to have an oven erected in the Union house or adjoining. The bakers in this Union appear not to understand their business; they are chiefly people who have taken up the trade since the loss of the potato crop. The baker who supplies the Union-house has informed me he had been a gardener.

A practical baker, sent by the British Association, will shortly visit this Union. I have mentioned the circumstance to several of the bakers, and they expressed great satisfaction and anxiety to benefit by his instructions.

The Board have taken two temporary houses for in-door relief; they are ill adapted for the purpose, but still are the best that could be had. There are too many paupers at present in the Union house; I should say the house must be permanently enlarged. I understand that Captain Broughton has some plan in contemplation for the permanent enlargement of the house.

Swineford Union.

There is not at present an excessive number of able-bodied men receiving out-door relief.

The implements for stone-breaking have arrived; the works commence on the 13th instant.

The Board are in debt; I am frequently asked for small sums, the applicants being under the impression that I can order them payment. The Board have no funds. I found there has been no buttermilk, and only have the quantity of new milk supplied to the house, solely in consequence of the accounts not having been paid.

The collectors of the rates inform me that they meet with considerable delay in collecting the rates in consequence of so many of the proprietors being absent, and no property on the lands they could distrain. There appears no opposition to the rates—all promise payment.

The Board of Guardians and the house generally have occupied me so much that I have not been able to visit the Union generally.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

With reference to the difficulty experienced by the collectors in the collection of the poor-rates, I am to state, that the Commissioners are anxious that your continual attention should be directed to the collection of the rates, and that the collectors should be instructed to take immediate steps to effect the prompt collection of the rates in their respective districts; having regard only to the ability of the parties to pay their rates, and the wants of the destitute poor of the Union.

The Commissioners recommend that the names of the ten highest rate-payers in each electoral division should be laid before the Board of Guardians at each meeting, in order that they may give directions for enforcing the immediate payment of the rate when necessary. The collectors should each state opposite each of the ten names the reason why the rate has not been paid.

If prompt and energetic steps are taken, the Commissioners have no doubt that a large proportion of the rates may be at once collected, and they confidently rely upon the success of your endeavours to produce a satisfactory result in this important particular.

The Commissioners trust that you will not again have to report the insufficiency of the supplies for the workhouse inmates.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners have no objection to the erection of an oven in or adjoining the workhouse.

The attention of the Commissioners' architect has been drawn to the state of the drains, and the proposed enlargement of the workhouse.

Mr. GIBBONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

I BEG to report that the master and porter of the Union house are ill of fever.

I do believe that fever would not be in the house had there been a sufficient supply of clothing, but owing to the insufficiency of clothing the probationary wards were crowded, and the paupers remaining in their own clothes caused fever.

I have discharged all the inmates from the probationary wards on out-door relief for one week, for the purpose of having the wards cleaned and clothes provided.

The Guardians were anxious to meet at the Court-house, however I represented the ill effect their so doing would have, and they consequently met as usual at the Board-room.

There was great confusion in the house on Monday the 20th instant; I had some difficulty in preventing the paupers from forcing their way out of the house.

It was reported that fever was in the house, the inmates all became alarmed and insisted on being discharged, however after some time I induced them all to return quietly into the house; I remained in the house all day.

The Board met on the 21st instant.

The collectors lodged 346*l.*, and about 100*l.* was lodged during the last week; they expect much more in a few days, so that I hope for the future there will be a sufficient supply of all necessary articles.

The Guardians have ordered full supply of clothing; and the milk accounts, in particular, to be paid, as the children and sick and women nursing have suffered from the very great insufficiency in the supply of milk for some weeks past.

The Guardians have also directed that tenders should be taken for erecting an oven in or adjoining the premises, and have also engaged a person to take charge of the house during the master's and porter's present illness.

The Guardians have also directed that all applicants admitted for relief on the 21st instant should be allowed one week out-door relief, for the purpose of having the probationary wards properly cleaned; also to have a supply of clothing.

I expect by the end of the week that there may be a sufficient supply of clothes; and as the collectors are now actively engaged, and as there does not appear any vexatious opposition to the rates, I hope for the future the house may be properly supplied. I called the Guardians' attention to the fact that the fever being in the house was principally owing to their not having a sufficient supply of clothes and other necessary articles.

I have made arrangements for fully carrying out the order respecting out-door relief.

The schools have taken up much of my time this last week, I was obliged to suspend the rations from some of them, I am happy to say that doing so had a good effect. I am sorry to say that the baking in some parts of the Union is shameful; I have reported all matters connected with the schools to Count Strzelecki.

Mr. GIBBONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

I BEG to state that the Union-house required my unremitting attention during the past week.

The master and porter being both ill of fever, and there being neither schoolmaster nor mistress, has caused considerable relaxation of discipline in the house.

On the 23rd instant I counted all the inmates in every part of the house, including the infirmary and fever wards, &c., and found the total number amounted to 373 individuals, including all ages, being a very considerable decrease from the number stated in the weekly return.

I have had the names, ages, and parish of all now in the house taken down, with the view of inquiring into the cause of the decrease, and ascertaining if any parties have left the house without authority, and whether the full number stated in the weekly return was actually in the house.

There are not at present more than six able-bodied men in the house; the great majority of those returned as able-bodied are boys over or at 15 years, and few of those are able-bodied.

There were several able-bodied men in the house last week, but they discharged themselves, and many of them have left for England, as I am informed.

The work I had in progress of deepening the drains is all stopped for want of assistance.

I should mention that many of the paupers have left the house on account of the master and porter being in fever, and I have constant communications, stating that those who have left the house have caused fever and other sickness to spread through the Union.

All the destitute admitted for relief this last week have been allowed one week of out-door on account of the fever being in the house and the insufficiency of clothing, also to have the old clothing cleaned and repaired, and to have the probationary wards whitewashed, &c., &c.

I have directed that the relieving officers should send in a return of all the able-bodied persons on their books, distinguishing them in classes; also a return of the number of women whose husbands are stated to be in England, as this class is excessive in this Union.

I have before reported it as my opinion that had the Visiting Committee attended to their duty, the house could not have fallen into the present state of neglect, respecting clothing, the absence of all discipline, as well as the filthy state of the probationary wards and other parts of the premises.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—April 8, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received and have had under consideration a report from their Inspector, Mr. R. Bourke, relative to his recent investigation into the state of Swineford workhouse, and into the system adopted by the Swineford Board of Guardians in administering relief.

Mr. Bourke states that having compared the number of persons in the workhouse with the number appearing on the books, there was a discrepancy in the books amounting to 168 more than were actually in the house, and that no explanation could be given for the absence of so large a number of the inmates; that having examined the admission and discharge book to ascertain when the inaccuracy had taken place, he was unable to fix the period closer than between the 22nd January and the present time; Captain Broughton having at that date counted the house with the late porter, who was then acting as master.

Mr. Bourke further states that the present workhouse master appears to be totally unacquainted with his duties, and that he has made no entries except in the admission and discharge book, the register, and the provision check account, and that even these appear not to have been accurately prepared, and that no entry has been made in the relief list and abstract for the last seven weeks.

It appears from Mr. Bourke's report, that on the 27th ultimo there were but 405 inmates in the workhouse, although the return for the previous week showed a total of 1080; that many of these persons left the workhouse from fear of infection, and the rest were discharged in consequence of danger being apprehended from permitting so large a number of persons to remain in one building in their own clothes. Mr. Bourke states that he endeavoured to ascertain exactly the stock of clothes belonging to the Union available for the use of the paupers, but that he was unable to do so, as none of the clothing books have been made up or any entry made therein since 1846, and that no inventory of the stock on hand appears at any time to have been taken. It further appears that there is no contract for clothing in existence; neither are any of the articles now used in the house, except Indian meal and turf, supplied in this manner, and that hence no sufficient check exists as to the delivery or consumption of provisions and necessaries for the establishment.

Mr. Bourke reports that in company with Mr. Gibbons, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, he visited the house, and found that in many respects it is in a seriously defective state—the probationary wards and yards and the men's and women's yards being filthy, and the hospital still unprovided with bedsteads, the bedding of the patients being exceedingly dirty.

Mr. Bourke also states that the bread supplied to the inmates was of the worst possible quality, although the baker had engaged to supply bread made of whole flour, and that great complaints were made to him by the inmates of the infirmary on the subject; that the children were using beer at dinner instead of milk, there being no contract for the latter article; and that the condition of most of the children appeared very wretched, their clothes having been allowed to fall into rags, and their general appearance altogether much worse than when he had previously seen them.

Mr. Bourke further reports that the drains about the house still remain unclosed, that the pump is out of order, and that discipline appears to be totally neglected; that the ventilation is still unexecuted, and that the only parts of the house which are clean and in good order are the dormitories, the school-rooms, and the dining hall.

Mr. Bourke is of opinion that the irregularities existing in the workhouse books could never have taken place if the Board of Guardians had duly examined them on their days of meeting, and that the house could not have fallen into its present state if an active Visiting Committee had been in existence, and the orders given by the Board had been looked after by them.

It appears that the liabilities of the Union to the end of the month of February last were 1743*l.*, and that there are outstanding cheques to the amount of 666*l.*, but the amount of rate still to be collected exceeds 8000*l.*, and Mr. Bourke is of opinion that if due activity is forced upon the collectors there is no reason to fear but that the funds of the Union will (if prudently managed) be sufficient to meet its expenses. Mr. Bourke, however, apprehends that unless means are immediately adopted for rendering the workhouse available to its fullest extent as a means of checking imposition, there can be no doubt that the expenses of out-door relief will soon exceed all the resources of the Union.

Swineford Union.

Under these circumstances the Commissioners strongly advise the Guardians to devote themselves to the correction of the several abuses pointed out by Mr. Bourke, and to take the necessary steps for carrying out the details of the administration of relief in conformity with the regulations laid down by the Commissioners, otherwise the Commissioners will feel it their duty, in reference to Swineford Union, to take into serious consideration their responsibilities under the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

SLIGO UNION.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 2, 1848.

YESTERDAY I attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians, and I beg leave to state that I have very great gratification in reporting to you, for the information of the Commissioners, the very judicious and effective measures the Guardians are adopting in affording both in-door and out-door relief; and I feel perfectly satisfied that they are exerting themselves to their very utmost in endeavouring to obtain every possible hospital accommodation that can be procured.

I have prevailed on the Guardians to have all the fever patients removed into the County Fever Hospital, which will give much greater hospital accommodation in the poor-house.

I have had a personal communication with the medical officer, and he agrees with me that the fever is not to be so much dreaded as dysentery; but change of diet and every precaution has been taken to remedy this existing prevalent evil, and it is to be hoped in a short time the disease will be considerably diminished, though it is the general opinion that the cesspools and necessaries have in a great measure been the cause of increasing the disorder.

There have been 24 deaths during the last week, and chiefly from dysentery, there are also in the same period 17 new cases of fever and 35 of dysentery.

Every applicant (about 140) that came to the poor-house yesterday was either admitted into the house, or granted out-door relief in conformity to the "regulations."

A very heavy fall of snow and intense frost for the last 10 days have prevented the rate-collectors from carrying out their duties with as much activity and success as one would have wished, but as well as could be expected under such circumstances.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 9, 1848.

I REGRET I cannot report favourably on the state of this poorhouse. I attended the meeting of the Guardians yesterday, and the medical report laid before the Board was very unsatisfactory. There were 20 deaths last week, 29 new cases of fever, all of which were removed into the county fever hospital, and 57 new cases of dysentery. About a fortnight or three weeks since the medical officer recommended a change of diet, which was ordered by the Guardians, and which has considerably increased the expense of the house; and at the same time it appears that dysentery has not diminished, but increased. I have communicated with the apothecary on the subject, as well as another medical officer, who are of opinion, that the paupers when taken into the house are then ill of the complaint; and the disorder is such, that if not attended to at the commencement, generally proves fatal. During the month of January I am sorry to say there were 109 deaths in the house; and whilst the Guardians were assembled yesterday, the assistant matron was taken to the county fever hospital in a very precarious state.

The lunatics and idiots will be removed this afternoon to a house taken for them in the town, which will give further hospital accommodation in the poorhouse.

A contract was accepted yesterday for adding two rooms to the infirmary, and I will use my best exertions in expediting the completion of them.

Every individual who came yesterday for admittance to the poorhouse was taken in, and all the applicants who were entitled to out-door relief were placed on the different relieving officers' books.

It gives me very great pleasure in being able to report favourably of the relieving officers.

The rate collectors are also more active than they were, and since my last report, have lodged in the treasurer's hands 1100*l*.

At a meeting of the Guardians a fortnight since, when there were 14 Guardians present, it was resolved to raise the salary of the medical officer, Dr. Knott, from 70*l.* to 90*l.* per annum, and to give him an assistant, with the salary of 60*l.* per annum, in consequence of the increase in the house; and yesterday was appointed to elect the assistant.

There was no less than 41 Guardians present, many of whom I never saw before in the room; instead of proceeding to elect the assistant medical officer, it was proposed and carried, that it was not necessary to add further to the medical expenses of the house, and that the present medical officers were considered sufficient to carry out the duties and attend on the sick.

In my opinion I do not consider that they are; there are at present 400 sick in the house. The apothecary, Dr. M'Munn, has so much to do, with a salary only of 50*l.* per annum, that he is obliged, and has had the services of his brother for some months, who attends daily at the poorhouse for four or five hours, to assist him in compounding medicines; both the apothecary and his brother were seized with fever last summer whilst attending at the poorhouse; they are both exceedingly diligent and attentive, and I consider that they are deserving of every consideration from the Guardians.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 16, 1848.

FOR the information of the Commissioners I beg leave to state, that at the meeting of the Guardians yesterday at the poor-house, all the able-bodied paupers with their families, amounting to 129, who applied for in-door relief were admitted; there were a few widows with their children who had the out-door relief granted them.

There have been 17 deaths since my last report, but all of them young people under 15 years of age, and chiefly from dysentery and measles: 26 new cases of fever have broken out, and 43 of dysentery; the fever cases have been sent to the county fever hospital.

A contract has been accepted to-day for the erection of the fever hospital, which is to be completed in six months; the improvements in the idiots' wards, with the rooms over, are progressing rapidly; I am very anxious to get them completed, as they will afford considerable hospital accommodation, which is so much required, and enable us to move the patients out of the two new sheds which they now have in the men's and women's wards, and occupy them as was originally intended as two day-rooms for the men and women.

Your communication relative to the temporary assistant medical officer was read yesterday, and a special meeting of the Guardians is ordered on the 22nd to take it into consideration.

I received your communication yesterday, which was made known to the Guardians.

I beg leave to enclose you a list of the six highest rate-payers in each electoral division who have not yet paid their rates.

In consequence of the repeated refusal of several of the parties to pay the amount when called on, I have made a requisition for the military to protect one of the rate collectors, and they went yesterday to Ballysadare, and to-day they proceeded to Coolaney. If there were troops quartered at Ballymote, as I have before suggested, they could be made much more frequent use of; but there are none quartered in the whole county except in Sligo, and it is almost impossible to take them beyond a day's march from their barracks, as there is not any accommodation for them (particularly the cavalry) in any of the villages; however, it will be absolutely necessary to have the use of their services in several electoral divisions.

I am decidedly of opinion that six policemen with the collector would have the same weight in gathering in the rates as the number of military who are generally sent to protect him.

In travelling through the country I regret to see so little preparation by the farmers for the ensuing crops; scarcely anything is doing except by large landed proprietors. There are still extensive haggards of corn perceptible in every electoral division; the small tenants complain that they have not the means of preparing their ground, nor corn to sow. If any measures could be suggested (which I think might be very easily arranged with security to the Government) that the small tenants who have not actually the quantity of corn necessary for their land, could be supplied with as much as may be required, the land would then be occupied, which otherwise will remain a complete waste; and in this Union I look forward, I regret to add, to witnessing many thousand acres.

The potatoes are now getting scarce in the markets; but I believe that those who have them, and can live without disposing of them, or making use of them, are hoarding them for planting in the spring, and that the markets are merely supplied by small farmers who are obliged to sell for subsistence, and not having manure nor any means of preparing manure necessary for planting them. I find that the potatoes planted in the autumn, and those that are now in the pits, are tolerably free from the late disease.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Government has been drawn to your observations relating to the assistance required by the collectors to aid them in bringing in the rate.

With respect to the lists of rate-payers who owe sums of considerable amount, I am to request that you will have the goodness to move the Guardians to take prompt measures for enforcing payment. If the Guardians shall consider it necessary to proceed in the superior Courts against immediate lessors, the Commissioners will be prepared to give their sanction to that course, on receiving a list of the names of those so to be sued.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 22, 1848.

I BEG to enclose you a letter which I have addressed to Mr. Pim, but shall not forward it to him unless approved of by the Commissioners.

Sligo Union.

By employing an active clerk to keep the accounts, I feel quite certain that I shall be able to manage the expenditure and routine of the business, so as to give satisfaction, and without interfering with my present duties.

ENCLOSURE.

Captain GILBERT to Mr. PIM:—February, 1848.

WHEN I was last in Dublin, and had the pleasure of seeing you, you made me an offer of 500*l.* if I could find any one to whom it might be entrusted for the purpose of laying it out judiciously in employing the destitute portion of fishermen on this coast.

Ever since I came into this country, and long before I had the pleasure of your acquaintance, I have been most anxious to establish a fishery at Mulloughmore, a small village, the property of Lord Palmerston, where he has built a very extensive quay and large stores, at a cost of nearly 14,000*l.*

Mulloughmore is situated most favourably in the Sligo Bay for fishing, and in the immediate neighbourhood of the most destitute part of this Union. The men are all brought up to support themselves and their families by fishing; but since the failure of the potato crop have been so reduced and become so poor, that they cannot obtain the necessary fishing gear to continue their former occupations.

Their distress becoming daily more manifest, I am resolved to become responsible myself for the loan which may be entrusted to me; and by the most judicious management I can use in its disposal, rescue this impoverished part of the Union from its fast increasing state of distress. This relief would be of invaluable service to the rate-payers also, as the decreased pressure for relief under the Act, and the lessened number of applicants to the poor-house, would be a considerable saving of taxation to them.

Captain Routh, who was sent down by Government, when on his tour of inspection through the Unions, a few days since, inspected Mulloughmore also, and approved of it as a suitable fishing and curing establishment.

I shall be happy to hear from you; and if your benevolent intentions are still inclined to relieve the destitute in the manner you proposed, I shall feel obliged for any particulars and instructions you may have it in your power to give to aid me in carrying out this system of relief.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners will not object to the course you propose to adopt, provided that it does not interfere with the discharge of your duties as Inspector of the Union.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

IN forwarding to you the proceedings at the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, I beg leave to state for the information of the Commissioners, that about 150 applicants to be relieved were admitted into the house, and a few were allowed to be placed on the relieving officers' books for out-door relief. There are now upwards of 1800 in the house, and about 7300 getting out-door relief.

I regret still to report unfavourably of the sickness in the house; there were 35 deaths last week; out of that number 31 were children, who died from measles and dysentery, and the four adults from dropsy and old age. There were 25 new cases of fever which were removed to the county fever hospital, and 46 cases of dysentery; this latter disease appears to be increasing, I shall, however, commence almost immediately to erect new necessities, according to the plan already laid before you, which, I trust, will have the effect of diminishing, if not altogether preventing the infection.

The rate collectors in general have been very active during the last week, and 1200*l.* has been lodged in the treasurer's hands.

A resolution was made yesterday to take into consideration the Commissioners' letter regarding the appointment of an assistant medical officer; and it was proposed that the apothecary, Dr. M'Munn, should be the assistant medical officer, and his brother, Mr. M'Munn, who has voluntarily given his services to compound the medicines for the last several months, should be appointed as the apothecary, with a salary of 20*l.* per annum. I highly approve of this arrangement, and consider it most just towards the parties who have been already employed in the poor-house; and I fully trust that when the resolution is brought before the Guardians to be decided, that they will approve of it, and recommend its being sanctioned by the Commissioners.

The Charter House, the property of Mr. Wynne of Hazlewood, and now occupied by the orphan children, is free of rent, and will be so for the next two years. There is a large shed attached to the premises, which, for 30% or 40%, will make excellent school-rooms, and a dining hall, and they will be commenced immediately.

There are two fields in the rear of the house, also the property of Mr. Wynne, which the Guardians have taken at a moderate rent; and the boys will be taught gardening and field operations. This will not only be advantageous to the boys themselves, but by selling the produce will considerably more than pay the rent.

In my last report I mentioned to you that potatoes were becoming scarce, and consequently dear. Since that time a very singular circumstance has occurred. From 20 to 35 sacks of potatoes have been generally brought into the market every Saturday since the failure of the crop; but on Saturday last there were no less than 150 sacks selling at 6d. per stone, and some sacks were unsold. This was the largest quantity brought into the market at one time since the failure, and it can only be attributed either to the want of money, the people being pressed for rates, or the near approach of the time for potato planting, and to some farmers who are gathering all the money they can together to leave the country.

I have also made inquiries about the quantity of butter and oats brought into the market, thinking that butter might have been increased by the green crops, but such is not the case.

Employment is greatly wanting for the able-bodied men in the town of Sligo, and if the Commissioners would in any way make an application to the Board of Works for the commencement of the lunatic asylum it would be very desirable.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Board of Works has been drawn to your suggestion relative to the commencement of the works at the proposed lunatic asylum.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

I AM particularly anxious to bring some of the expenses of this poor-house before the Commissioners, and I fully intend to lay them before the Board of Guardians, for their mature consideration, on Tuesday next.

When the out-door relief first commenced to the infirm, widows, &c., the liabilities of this Union were so great, that a contract was obliged to be made with a person (to whom a considerable sum was due for bread and meal) to supply the quantity of Indian meal that might be required to the 25th of March. The price the Guardians agreed to give up to that time was at the rate of 13% per ton.

I have received a letter to-day from the Commissariat officer in charge of the depôt in Sligo, enclosing the prices of all the bread-stuffs in the Government stores; and informing me at the same time that the depôt is open to the public, and that Indian meal was 8% 8s.

My principal object in explaining this to the Commissioners is with the hope that they will make an application to the British Relief Association for a grant of 500% worth of bread-stuffs for the use of the poor-house, in order that the contract might be at once terminated. This grant will be worth double its value at the present moment than at a future period; and in recommending this to the Commissioners' notice for their approval, I trust I may be permitted to add, that the very judicious arrangements that the Guardians have adopted to prevent the general out-door relief to the able-bodied paupers, as well as the good management of their funds during the time of very extensive alterations, buildings, &c., &c., for the accommodation of the increased number of inmates in the house, and more particularly in providing hospital accommodation and comforts for a very large number of sick, are all of such importance, and attended with such heavy expenses, as to entitle them to the assistance from the British Relief Association, which I understand has been bestowed upon some of the Unions.

In consequence also of the great liabilities the Guardians were obliged to accept a contract for best white bread, at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}d.$ per pound; and most unfortunately, dysentery having appeared in the poor-house in a very fatal form, the medical officer ordered all the inmates to be supplied with this bread, which for the last two months has been attended at an immense expense; but not seeing any benefit arising from the change of diet, I shall propose at the next meeting of Guardians that bread at a cheaper rate be substituted for it; in fact, I do not see why the paupers in the house should not receive the same sort of bread as is used for the school children, and given to the out-door paupers in the Ballina Union, composed of rye meal, Indian meal, and Egyptian wheat-meal.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 28, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 26th instant, in which you recommend that a loan of 500*l.* may be now obtained for the Board of Guardians of Sligo Union,—as in consequence of a contract made under unfavourable circumstances the Guardians are bound to pay a very high price (13*l.* per ton) for Indian meal, which the contractor is to supply to the 25th proximo,—and you calculate on obtaining it by way of loan from the British Association, at 8*l.* 8*s.*

The Commissioners apprehend that any advance of a loan to the Union at present would have an injurious effect on the collection of the rate, which is outstanding to a considerable amount;—and that under any circumstances they could not recommend a loan for the purpose of enabling the Guardians to evade a contract with a contractor, which would certainly be contrary at least to the spirit of the agreement by which they are bound, and might by destroying confidence in their contracts, have an injurious effect on future competition.

The Commissioners, under the circumstances, recommend that in pursuance of the last covenant of the contract, a notice be now served for its termination.

With respect to your observation on the expense of providing bread at $2\frac{1}{2}d.$ per pound, which the medical officer has ordered for hospital patients,—the Commissioners further recommend that notice to terminate the contract for this supply also be given.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 1, 1848.

I ATTENDED the usual weekly meeting of the Guardians at the poor-house yesterday. The business of the house was gone through, and everything appeared to be carried on in a satisfactory manner; but there were no occurrences or changes in the system of relief, calling for special mention on my part.

There are at present 1664 paupers in the house, and 7397 receiving out-door relief; making a total of 9061 receiving relief in the Union.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 9, 1848.

I BEG to enclose a summons which was served on Sir James Crofton, and upon which the magistrates objected to adjudicate, though Sir James's servant appeared for him, in consequence of a receiver being appointed over Sir James's property.

I have made every exertion to find out who the receiver is, but unsuccessfully. It is totally impossible to obtain any access to Sir James Crofton or his house.

I also beg to inform you that the rate collector of Templeboy is not able to obtain any intelligence of the residence of Sir Roger Palmer, or his agent, who is also a defaulter to the poor-rates to the amount of 11*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*

There is also a Mr. Wallace, in the electoral division of Ballymote, who cannot be found, and is a defaulter of 21*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*

The rate collector of the electoral division of Coolaney has again informed me that Mr. Owen Lloyd has not answered any of his letters, and his rate, 35*l.* 8*s.* 1½*d.*, is still unpaid.

There is also a Mr. Abraham Powell, solicitor, Blessington-street, Dublin, who is a receiver of the property of his brother, who is a lunatic in the electoral division of Tubbercurry, and though he has been repeatedly applied to by letter will not answer one of them.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 9th inst., relating to the non-payment of the rates assessed on the property of several persons in the Sligo Union, and I am to state for your information that if the rate charged against Sir James Crofton is in respect to his interest as immediate lessor, the solicitor of the Guardians should act under the orders of Court at page 16 in the Collector's Manual; but if any portion be due by him as occupier, this must be sued for by summons, if an immediate distress cannot be executed.

With reference to the statement that the rate collector of Templeboy can obtain no intelligence of the residence of Sir Roger Palmer, or his agent, I am directed to state that the agent of Sir Roger Palmer (who himself resides at Kenure Park, Rush, county Dublin,) is a Mr. Ormsby, residing in the county Mayo, near Ballina.

The other receivers referred to in your communication should be applied to in like manner as suggested with respect to Sir James Crofton's case.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

I BEG to state that I attended the usual meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday; there was no business transacted more than the usual routine, save the election of Dr. A. M'Munn as assistant to the medical officer, with a salary of 20*l.* per annum.

The destitute still clamour for relief, and such as are willing to enter the house are taken in; but the unwillingness of the greater part to avail themselves of in-door relief is not proof enough of their own sufficiency of support, for there are hundreds of workmen and tradesmen out of employment, who though not caring to be well fed in the workhouse, are still endeavouring to subsist on one meal of indifferent food in the 24 hours. This entire Union is poor and poverty stricken throughout, and more particularly in the sea coast districts, and in this town and its neighbourhood. I have applied to the Society of Friends for a loan to advance the fishing interest on the coast, and to provide some temporary employment for the mechanics and labourers of this town. I have written to request the Commissioners of Public Works to make and enclose a cemetery and burial ground much required here, and which had been in contemplation by them some time before. So far as Government is concerned there are no other means at my disposal at present to ameliorate the prevailing distress in this Union, except the ordering of out-door relief to the able-bodied, which is inadvisable, while there remains accommodation for them in the workhouse.

Last week the weather having been so severe, as much progress could not be made of the additional buildings for the sick as might be expected.

A contract has been entered into for the erection of two ovens in the poor-house, which will be soon finished. I also intend when our present contracts for bread-stuffs have expired on the 25th instant, to alter the dietary of the inmates, and give them (at the same time lessening the cost) a better kind of nutriment.

Sligo Union.

All the economy in my power to devise will be requisite, as I find that the great difficulty in collecting the rates makes our funds insufficient to meet the demand on them.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 22, 1848.

YESTERDAY the last meeting of the present Guardians was held.

I am sorry to find that for the approaching election the ratepayers in some electoral divisions have nominated persons living at a distance from the locality, and strangers to their interests. This misrepresentation of divisions will have an evil effect, inasmuch as that when the relieving officers' books are to be checked, those Guardians, not knowing the place or persons, must very ineffectually perform a particular part of their duty, of striking off the relief lists any abuses thereon.

The workhouse still continues full. The decrease caused by paupers leaving the house, dying, &c., keeps up a constant sufficiency of room for the able-bodied applicants.

Sickness is still very prevalent but not increasing. The master of the house is confined with fever, and the wardmaster died lately of the same disease. The additional hospital buildings are finished, but not yet dry and ready for occupation. 600*l.*, rates collected, were lodged last week.

There were no proceedings of importance sufficient to communicate to the Commissioners, the entire day being occupied in considering and accepting the new contracts.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 23, 1848.

IN reference to your observation on the vacancies occasioned in the house by deaths and by persons leaving, the Commissioners desire to state that they must rely on you for seeing that every possible precaution is taken to check the mortality in the workhouse, and to alleviate the sufferings of the destitute poor persons, many of whom the Commissioners fear seek admission in a very debilitated state.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GILBERT :—March 18, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Under-Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man named John Hiland, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body, to have died from exposure to cold and hunger; and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians of the Sligo Union, to the Union workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE in foregoing.

COUNTY of SLIGO.

Riverstown, March 13, 1848.

AN inquest was held at Cooper Hill on the body of John Hiland. Verdict—
"Deceased came to his death by exposure to cold and hunger."

J. GRANT, S. I.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS in reply :—March 21, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 18th instant, I beg to state that John Miland (not Hiland) and his wife were on the relieving officer's books of the Collooney electoral division, and were regularly relieved.

He was about 70 years of age, totally blind, and very deaf. About 10 days or a fortnight before his death his wife left him, and went off with another man, and has not since been heard of.

The man certainly did not die from want, or from cold and exposure; but in all probability from his loss of sight fell into the ditch, where he was found dead about 12 hours after he had been seen in his usual health.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GILBERT :—March 25, 1848.

Sligo Union

RETURN to Captain Gilbert to state whether the usual allowance of food was delivered to the old man after his wife's departure? who delivered it? and whether any information can be given as to the ability of the old man to make use of the food without assistance, of which he seems to have been totally deprived when his wife left him?

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS.

It was not known that his wife had left him, or that he required assistance until after his death. He received meal always, and part of it was found in his cabin after he had died, by the relieving officer who gave it to him.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON :—April 3, 1848.

WITH reference to the communication referred to the Commissioners on the 16th ultimo, relating to the decease of a man named John Miland, in the Sligo Union, I am directed to forward herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of the report which they have received from Captain Gilbert, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, on the subject.

I am at the same time to state that the verdict of the jury does not appear to be borne out by the facts of the case.

KANTURK UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

WE have the honour to report, for the week ended the 5th instant, that the collection of the rate is very satisfactory, the amount 1122*l.* 18*s.*, making in nine weeks' collection the sum of 12,773*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.*

The collectors' accounts have been checked pursuant to your orders.

Our arrangements relative to the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied will soon be made, and would have been ready before were it not for the very great extent of this Union, and the absolute necessity there is of depending upon ourselves, by examining the numerous quarries and making contracts with the occupiers of them. Having made application to the Office of Public Works for a loan of implements, we have been directed to state to the Poor Law Commissioners the actual quantity we require, and if recommended by them, an order on the storekeeper will be at once given. We annex the quantity required, and shall thank you to request from the Office of Public Works an order for the immediate delivery of the implements.

In reference to your letter relative to the arrangements proposed by Mr. Wilkinson for providing additional accommodation at the workhouse, we take the liberty of suggesting the advantage this Union would derive by adopting the powers vested in the Commissioners under the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, section 24, by combining the Unions of Kanturk, Killarney, and Tralee into a school district, and placing the schools upon the Crown lands in or near King Williamstown, at which place the three Unions meet.

We would also suggest that application be made to the Government to obtain some of the Crown lands, and attach such to the schools. With the assistance of an experienced agriculturist, the children of both sexes could be brought up in pursuits that would enable them to benefit themselves and others, and be the medium of diffusing an improved system of agriculture and domestic economy through the districts.

It is our intention to place ourselves in communication with the Unions in question, with the view of obtaining the co-operation of the several Boards of Guardians.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 15, 1848.

I AM to state that the collection of the rates is very satisfactory.

With regard to the proposed formation of the Kanturk, Killarney, and Tralee Unions into a school district, and the establishment of schools at King Williamstown, I am to request that the Commissioners may be informed of the distance of King Williamstown from Kanturk, Killarney, and Tralee, respectively.

The Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Works with regard to the implements required for the employment of the able-bodied poor in the receipt of out-door relief in the Union.

Mr. BRISCOE, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the week ended the 19th instant, that the collection of rate was 88*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, making, in 11 weeks, the amount 14,558*l.* 4*s.* 11*d.*

The collectors' accounts were checked according to your orders.

During the last fortnight the workhouse test has been extensively made use of; and the result has been that more than five hundred refused workhouse relief.

Among our arrangements for out-door relief to the able-bodied, we have appointed all our superintendents, fixed the particular quarries in which works are to be performed (adjoining unfinished roads), and partially commenced operations, which will be general when the Board of Works have forwarded their order for implements.

We shall feel obliged by the Commissioners forwarding the appointment of the valuator, as it is of great importance to the Union that the rate after the next be made upon the new valuation.

Kanturk Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 24, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Board of Works has been drawn to that part of your communication relating to the implements required for the employment of the able-bodied persons relieved out of the poor-rates of the Union.

The appointment of Mr. Wilson as revising valuator for the Union is under consideration.

Mr. BRISCOE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 28, 1848.

IN reference to your letter requesting the observations of the Guardians upon extracts of a communication from Mr. Benjamin Sheehan, to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, I have the honour to state that the officer alluded to in such extracts is Mr. Savage, relieving officer for the electoral division of Kilmeen.

That complaints were brought against this officer and investigated by my late colleague Mr. Lucas and myself, but such were not proved; that a second day was named to enable the parties to substantiate their complaints, but they failed in so doing.

That the late Board did not dismiss Mr. Savage, but he tendered his resignation in consequence of several attacks having been made on his depôt, meal stolen therefrom, and his life threatened.

That upon the Union being placed under Vice-Guardians, Mr. Savage was re-elected by Mr. Lucas and myself, as the candidate best qualified for the situation.

That when we first became Guardians, on each Board-day several hundred persons assembled at the workhouse gates in a tumultuous manner, and would not allow any person to enter, so much so that no investigation could be entered into until a late hour, and not without the interference of a military and police force.

That since the people became quiet, and for the last two months, we believe every case has been investigated. That from the strictest inquiries the Guardians are not aware that bakers, shopkeepers, and other independent persons are getting relief.

That the Guardians investigate every complaint brought against their officers, and last week dismissed a relieving officer for giving relief to a person not entitled to it.

That I perfectly recollect the case alluded to in such extracts, as I investigated it, that of Patrick Sheehan. It is true that he produced a medical doctor's and his priest's certificate of being lately quite deranged, and of unsound mind still; and was told, and believe such to be the case, that he has a wife and four children under age.

This Patrick Sheehan appeared perfectly sound in mind, not only upon the day he was under investigation but at two subsequent periods I saw him; but was informed that the period his mind was not sound was 18 months ago, at which time he gave up his calling, that of a schoolmaster.

That the grounds upon which I refused to relieve this Patrick Sheehan were these: that he lived with his father, Benjamin Sheehan, the writer of the communication from which the extracts were taken; that this Benjamin Sheehan is a military pensioner, having as his son stated a pension of one shilling a day, and that the said Patrick Sheehan was his only child.

I must apologize, gentlemen, for troubling you with so long a letter, but must state that the grossest imposition is attempted by almost all parties, and with few rare instances indeed we never receive any assistance in preventing fraud.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM to state that your explanation is quite satisfactory to the Commissioners.

Kanturk Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 1, 1848.

WE have the honour to report, for the week ended the 26th ultimo, that the week's collection of rate was 735*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.*, making in 12 weeks the amount 15,293*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*

The collectors' accounts were checked, according to your orders.

During the last week the result of the workhouse test has been, that 658 refused to go into the house, and 133 left it.

Through your kind interference we received the order from the Board of Works yesterday for implements, and we are distributing them to day.

The auxiliary workhouse taken from Sir Edward Tierney, we have placed the boys and girls schools in. The house is named by the Commissioners for 400. From the arrangements we have made, and the attention paid to ventilation (with the consent of the physician of the establishment), we have to request the permission of the Commissioners to augment the number to 600.

As we consider that the workhouse is the only sure test, and that additional accommodation is always of great importance, we have to request your approval of our procuring tents to place on the workhouse grounds, in which to place convalescents from the hospitals—this has also met with the consent of our physician.

REPLY to the foregoing—March 7, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to request that you will communicate with the medical officer of the workhouse, in order that he may furnish a specific report as to the number of persons who may be accommodated in the additional workhouse to which you refer. In making this report, the medical officer should be requested to state after the apartments have been measured, the number of cubic feet which he would allot to each person. The Commissioners have reason to know that the workhouse of the Kanturk Union was last year considerably overcrowded, and they are desirous that the same serious evil should not arise again.

The Commissioners are in communication with the Board of Health on the subject of the latter part of your report.

WE have the honour to report for the week ended the 4th instant, that the week's collection of rate was 541*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.*, making in 13 weeks the amount 15,834*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* The collectors' accounts were checked according to your directions.

The workhouse test is working to our entire satisfaction; this week, out of orders given for the admission of 966, the number that refused to come into the house was 853; last week the number was 658; making in one fortnight, 1511.

The arrangements for out-door relief to the able-bodied are now in operation in every part of this extensive Union.

The workhouse grounds being in a wet state we are thorough-draining them, and intend to sow the whole under flax or hemp.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 22, 1848.

THE collectors' accounts for the rate struck November 19, 1847, have been closed, and the result of the collection is as follows :—

	£.	s.	d.
Rate, November 19, 1847	16,412	12	6
Arrear of former rate	424	13	11
Collected	16,837	6	5
	16,018	6	9
Present arrear	£818	19	8

We have reason to be satisfied with the exertions made by our collectors, as we are aware that this arrear is principally composed of rates on holdings under 4*l.*

value, the immediate lessors of which are as poor as the occupiers of lands under ejectment—of collieries rated that have not been worked—and some clerical errors in the rating.

On the 18th instant we made and signed a new rate from two to six shillings in the pound upon the several electoral divisions of the Union; such rating having been calculated according to the amount due, current expenses, and estimated cost for relief up to the 29th of September next.

We hope that our calculations may prove what we anticipate, that with diligent attention in the working of the Union there may be a surplus at the above period.

The collecting-books will be ready for signature upon the 24th instant, and we shall bind our collectors in bond No. 7, so that we can compel them, if necessary, to collect within four months from the dates of their warrants; but under the circumstances of the country, we shall only require the collectors to keep with our treasurer a balance of about 2000*l.*, so that we shall be enabled to take advantage of prices, and not to be at the mercy of contractors.

The workhouse test continues to work well; the number refusing house relief 472.

As the Commissioners' order for out-door relief to the able-bodied expires on the 24th instant, we shall be obliged for an extension to the 1st of May; but as is the case at present, we shall only avail ourselves of this order when absolutely necessary.

Having called in the balances under the Temporary Relief Act, application has been made for leave to apply such by giving out potatoes for seed in portions sufficient (in no case exceeding) what would plant a quarter of an acre of land. The seed to be given to labourers who can procure land, to which they would apply any manure they may have.

The applicants being members of Relief Committees, say the seed would be planted under their immediate inspection; and as they are not satisfied with our views as to the manner in which these balances are to be applied, we shall feel obliged at your very earliest convenience, to reply to this part of our report.

Whether the Commissioners agree to the application of the Relief Committees or not, we take the liberty of suggesting the utility of affording relief to labourers for a limited period, during the time they are getting in their crops, possessing land not exceeding quarter of an acre, and to those who obtain small portions of land to plant potatoes in.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 25, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order accordingly.

As regards the disposal of the balances of loans under the Temporary Relief Act, I am to state that any balances of advances under the Temporary Relief Act, which Relief Committees have handed over to you, must be placed to the credit of the electoral divisions for which the advances were made, and can only be legally applied by you to objects for which the poor-rates are applicable.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

WE have the honour to state, for the week ended the 25th instant, that we signed the collector's warrants for the new rate struck the 18th instant, and such having been but just published, the collection has only partially commenced.

The workhouse test still continues to work well. The result, 796 having refused during the week.

We have nearly finished the second revision of the out-door lists by personal examination of upwards of 6000 cases.

The result of the revision is, that notwithstanding the order for relief (out-door) to the able-bodied was in full operation during the revision, we have been enabled to reduce the total number relieved from 19,144, at a weekly expense of 446*l.*, to 17,146, at a weekly cost of 356*l.*—a saving of 90*l.* a-week, being at the rate of 4680*l.* a-year.

As we bake in the house we have a paid baker, assisted by some of the pauper boys. We particularly wish for the Commissioners' consent to be allowed to pay such baker a small fee—say 2*l.* or 3*l.*—for each boy that may be bound to him as an apprentice. The same to apply in the case of tailors and shoemakers while working in the house.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 11, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners are unable to sanction the payment of fees for apprentices out of the poor-rate, as such payment would not be a legal charge upon that fund.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 3, 1848.

WE have the honour to report for the week ended the 1st instant, that the workhouse test continues to work well; the result this week—903 refused house relief.

In consequence of dysentery prevailing we have, with the consent of the medical officer, temporarily altered the dietary in some classes—white in place of brown bread, and the use of rice. It has been attended with beneficial results. This temporary alteration has caused our average weekly expenditure to be higher.

Some contracts we have entered into, have been on favourable terms for the Union; that of milk there is a saving of more than 300*l.* a-year; meat at a reduction of two-ninths, and the contracts for meal could not be on lower terms. Many articles, such as soap, when we have time we shall purchase in Cork.

We have pleasure in stating that the arrangements we made for carrying into effect your order for out-door relief to the able-bodied, have been in the most judicious manner carried out by our excellent Inspector, Mr. George Connors. Task work is required, and the greatest regularity prevails in every department.

Requiring hardy old men in section 1, and sons under 15 of widows, to work, we find is attended with good effects.

The labour test is working well; this week we gave directions to stop one quarry, five persons only attending there.

SCARIFF UNION.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 5, 1848.

IN consequence of the very great increase in the number of applicants for relief, the Vice-Guardians were detained here from Tuesday until this day (Saturday), chiefly in examining the relieving officers' books, and deciding upon the nature of relief to be afforded in each case.

There is just now a great pressure upon us again, aggravated no doubt by an erroneous impression upon the minds of a population utterly demoralized that every one must now get "the relief," as they believe the workhouses to be all full. A salutary check will, however, be in full operation next week, as arrangements are made for putting to work the whole of the male able-bodied recipients of relief; and we are now only waiting for the implements promised by the Board of Works. In the meantime an overseer has been appointed at Tulla, and instructed to muster daily and employ in stone-gathering the whole of the able-bodied men receiving out relief in that division. All single females are to be admitted into the workhouse; and we shall soon be in a condition to receive an additional 400 persons.

In order to carry this arrangement into efficient operation, I have proposed that the whole of the men be told-off to the premises at Tomgraney, and which can comfortably accommodate 800. The Scariff workhouse I wish to reserve for adult females exclusively, and being only one class an economy of room will be effected. Cloone's house in Scariff to be for the old women. The male school children to be transferred from the workhouse to Kirby's house in Scariff. Hogan's house to be converted into a fever hospital; and a house which I hired this day in Scariff for 24*l.* per annum to be appropriated for small-pox patients, of whom, unfortunately, we have at present a great number.

The establishment for the female school children has succeeded even beyond my most sanguine expectations; indeed, its advantages cannot at this period be too highly estimated. At present Moynoe house contains nearly 400 inmates, among whom there have been but two deaths in all. In short, the poor children are enjoying the best health, and appear perfectly happy. The basement floor is now being boarded, and this will render the house capable of accommodating an additional hundred, or 500 in all, as every room is used as a dormitory, the beds being removed from the lower to the upper rooms during the day. A considerable number of large families have, at their own desire, been lately removed from the workhouse to out-door relief, as we are glad to have their vacancies for single able-bodied persons. It is my wish that all the paupers now in the different houses, as well as all others who may be hereafter admitted, may be retained so long as they require relief, as I am anxious to disabuse their minds of a notion that the workhouse is an ordeal which must be submitted to preparatory to getting on out-door relief. However, I confidently believe that the labour test to out-door paupers will operate quite as beneficially as the workhouse test in other cases.

The poor-rate continues to flow in; and I have intimated to the collectors that I expect they will complete the collection during the present month. Two or three of the old collectors are very inefficient, and so are some of the relieving officers; the lesser evil is, for the present, to bear with them, and in the meantime to look out for efficient substitutes.

It is desirable that no unavoidable delay should take place in framing a new valuation.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

As regards your statement that the Vice-Guardians are only waiting for the implements promised by the Board of Works, I am to state that the Commissioners have received and forwarded to the Vice-Guardians on the 8th instant the necessary orders for the implements required by them to set the paupers to work.

In reference to the arrangements mentioned in your report for occupying the several workhouses in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners are very unwilling to interfere with the arrangements made for the accommodation of paupers received into the workhouse, and the different auxiliary buildings which have been obtained; but the Commissioners fear that the course which you state to be adopted at Moynoe house, viz., using the whole of the rooms as dormitories, cannot be long continued without prejudice to the health of the children who occupy the same rooms in the day. The Commissioners request, therefore, that you will specially consult the medical officer on this subject, with the view of making some arrangements less open to objection on sanitary grounds.

With reference to your suggestion that no delay should take place in framing a new valuation, I am to state that the Commissioners have the subject under consideration.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 4, 1848.

WE have no communication from you to acknowledge this week, except that dated 29th January, 1848, enclosing copy of a constabulary report relative to the death of Patrick Collins at Tulla.

On inquiry of the relieving officer of that district, he reports that he was not present at the inquest, but that he knew the deceased Pat Collins to have been out of his mind and frequently wandering about the country. He does not believe that Collins was in immediate want of food.

Mr. Purcell, the relieving officer for Feakle, states that Mr. Martin, the coroner, has endeavoured to mislead him by giving a recommendation for relief to a man holding 10 acres of land and not in need, while he has complained of others receiving relief who were fully entitled to it.

Our attention this week was almost wholly absorbed by the number of cases on the relieving officers' books, the examination of which has occupied the greater part of three days, and even until a very late hour at night.

We have commenced arrangements in the Tulla districts for employing the able-bodied men receiving relief; and we hope next week to have the system there in full operation. We are preparing to enforce it also in Feakle and Killaloe, and shall commence as soon as we have appointed proper superintendents of labour.

We hope to be able to give an abstract of the number receiving out-door relief at foot of this report; but the business of examining the Application Book, and making the necessary orders, has been so very heavy this week, that the statement has been delayed from appearing on the minutes.

We have been employed part of the week in discharging from the workhouse such cases as were reported by the doctor as fit subjects of out-relief from age and infirmity, as well as some widows and children. Of these classes we discharged this week from the house about 174 persons.

The numbers in the several houses this day were nearly as follow:—

Union workhouse	817
Clune's house	137
Kerby's ditto	274
Reddan's store	256
Hogan's (sick)	23
Moynoe	360
Total	1,867

Our time has been so occupied this week with the relieving officers, that we are not able to give as detailed an account of the collection as we could have wished. With the exception of Tulla, Killaloe, and Ogunnella, there appears to be considerable activity displayed by the collectors; but in those districts very little seems to have been done, and unless a more active progress is made next week, we shall have to take measures to put the collection in other hands.

Some cases of rescue of cattle seized in Mountshannon, were before the magistrates at Petty Sessions on Thursday, and have been referred to the Quarter Sessions. Captain Hart's attendance proved useful in preventing the offenders from being too leniently dealt with by the magistrates.

We have paid off during the week 1232*l.* 0*s.* 3*d.* of the outstanding checks of the late Guardians, leaving the amount now outstanding 2069*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*

We have had great complaints of the present state of the burying ground for the paupers at Tomgrany, the place being so filled that the coffins are in some places scarcely concealed by the earth. It will be absolutely necessary to procure a piece of ground immediately, and we wish to know if we should advertise for the purpose.

We wish to have your instructions as to appointing districts and medical officers for carrying out the provisions of the Vaccination Act fully throughout the Union, as small-pox seems to be one of the most prevalent diseases at present.

We have written again to the Board of Works, requesting their order for us to receive the necessary implements for putting the paupers to work.

We have had an assignment prepared of the house of Clune, in Scariff, by the attorney who usually acted for the late Board of Guardians, but we find he has erroneously made us parties to the deed instead of the Commissioners.

We send you a copy of the deed herewith, in order that you may point out what alterations should be made in it. Clune is impatient to receive the purchase money, as he is preparing to take his family to America. As he is a poor man, the delay is a matter of great inconvenience and expense to him, and we shall have to make him some compensation for it. Your early attention to this matter is, therefore, respectfully requested.

Number on out-door relief, as far as ascertained this week, about 10,000.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report, dated the 4th instant, relative to the Scariff Union, and have directed me to express their thanks for your communication.

The Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your observations in regard to the death of Pat. Collins, to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

In regard to the state of the burying-ground at Tomgrany, and your inquiry as to whether you should advertise for a piece of ground to be used as a cemetery, I am to state that the Commissioners see no objection to a piece of land being taken for this purpose, under the 20th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and you can advertise for a suitable piece of land if you deem that course advisable. You will observe that the land must, according to the section above referred to, be conveyed to the Commissioners.

With reference to your request for instructions as to appointing districts and medical officers for carrying out the provisions of the Vaccination Act, I am to forward to you a copy of the Vaccination Extension Act, together with a copy of an instructional circular issued by the Commissioners in the year 1840, which will, probably, be found to give all the information you require.

The Commissioners have forwarded the assignment of Clune's house, which accompanied your report, to their solicitors, and have requested them to make the necessary alterations.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HART:—February 9, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a constabulary report which has been transmitted to them, relative to the death of Mary, Margaret, and William Boland, in Scariff Union; and I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with your observations on the subject.

Scariff Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. SHAW to the INSPECTOR-GENERAL:—February 3, 1848.

ON the 1st an inquest was held on the body of Mary Boland, Margaret and William Boland, who were found dead.

Copy of Verdict.

That Mary Boland was found dead beside a ditch.

That William and Margaret Boland came to their death from starvation.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply:—February 10, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of yesterday's date, enclosing a copy of a constabulary report of the deaths of Mary, Margaret, and William Boland, I beg leave to state that a similar report having reached me on the 2nd instant I immediately instituted inquiry into the circumstances, and ascertained that William Boland (the father) held about 20 acres of land, and which of course precluded him and his family from receiving any relief under the Poor Law, in corroboration of which I beg to enclose the relieving officer's statements.

I regret to have to state that verdicts of "death from starvation" have been returned upon very insufficient evidence—I allude to the absence on some occasions of a medical man, and the absence on all occasions, of the relieving officer of the district.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. PURCELL to Captain HART:—February 2, 1848.

EARLY in the month of November last I went to Gurthaveha, where Boland, the subject of the post mortem examination of the 1st instant, then lived. He held a few acres of land from Colonel Wyndham. He stated that he would never give up his farm, although his neighbours and I advised him to the contrary.

Mary Boland was his daughter by a former wife—she never agreed with the rest of the family—she spent her time for the most part begging—was often known to be turned outside doors.

He stated to me that he preferred holding his farm to receiving relief.

Mr. PURCELL to Captain HART:—February 7, 1848.

WILLIAM BOLAND, of Gurthaveha, electoral division Feakle, on whose body the inquest was held, and verdict of death by starvation was returned, holds a farm there. He paid his rent last harvest to Mr. Crow at Ennis, who told him that his landlord, Colonel Wyndham, would probably send him to Sydney April or May next, the hope of which was the cause of his retaining the possession of his land so long.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 5th instant, with respect to the prosecution of Callaghan, late collector for Kilno electoral division. We have to state that his father, who is, we believe, an honest, industrious farmer, has paid the amount of his son's deficiency, 31*l.* 6*s.* 9*d.*; and has since brought us a letter from Callaghan acknowledging his guilt fully, and asking for clemency. On consulting with Captain Hart, by his advice we have agreed to his request in consequence of the father's good character and his promptness in paying the money, although cautioned at the time that his doing so might not prevent a prosecution. We have also considered that Callaghan has been already severely punished by the pain and disgrace of his imprisonment, and that a sufficient example has been given of the determination of the Vice-Guardians to punish any attempt at fraud or concealment on the part of the collectors; we have therefore directed the clerk not to proceed with the prosecution, on Callaghan's father agreeing to pay the penalty for his non-appearance.

We have also to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 8th instant, sanctioning the payment of 30*l.* to the clerk, and 5*l.* to the porter for preparing and copying rate-books and collection-books; and of 9th instant, agreeing to the appointment of assistant relieving officers in the Feakle and Tulla districts, as a temporary measure. On account of a similar pressure in the Scariff electoral division, we have had to make a like appointment for this district next week, for which we hope for your sanction. The Killaloe and Ogunnella district is also too large for one relieving officer to perform the duties satisfactorily; and we shall consider whether it would be better to divide the district and appoint an additional officer, or recommend an assistant.

We have made some progress in putting the able-bodied male paupers receiving out-door relief to daily work; but owing to the very great and constant pressure of applicants in all the electoral divisions, the duty of examining the relieving officers' reports, joined with other necessary business, has been so urgent and has occupied so much time, that our arrangements are not yet completed.

We visited Tulla on Tuesday, and there inspected the paupers who have been this week employed in gathering stones preparatory to having them broken, as soon as we can obtain the implements.

The relieving officer, Mr. Kerwick, and the superintendent, Mr. Wade, are performing their duties satisfactorily.

We have made arrangements for commencing work on Monday in the Scariff, Killuran, Kilno, Clonrush, Woodford, and Feakle electoral divisions, and this day we go to Killaloe for the purpose of making arrangements for that electoral division and Ogunnella.

We hope to receive another order from the Board of Works for the additional implements applied for in our letter of yesterday.

The total number of able-bodied male paupers receiving relief in Tulla electoral division is 541; in Killuran, 94. We have not received a return from the other electoral divisions, but next week will be able to state the whole exactly.

We have contracted with Mr. Walnut, of Scariff, to supply meal at all the relief stations at each electoral division of the Union, and in the required quantities direct to the recipients, at the low rate of 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per ton, or one penny per pound. Mr. Walnut has always given satisfaction in the quality of the meal he has supplied to the workhouse.

The collection continues to proceed on the whole satisfactorily; although in many instances distraints have to be made, and summonses have to be issued in cases of rescue. The total amount received up to this date, as far as we have been able to ascertain, is as follows:—

Tulla . . .	1479	12	10	balance to be collected,	2311	16	7
Feakle . . .	885	19	8	„	1747	19	11
Killaloe . . .	1394	10	6	„	2522	5	3
Ogunnella . . .				„
Killuran . . .	545	7	5	„	456	5	11
Kilno . . .	653	5	10	„	1126	12	9
Scariff . . .	602	0	0	„	1694	8	7
Woodford : . .	766	11	1	„	1166	15	11
Clonrush . . .				„
Mount Shannon				„
	£6327	7	4		£11,026	4	11

We have paid this week for outstanding checks, 388*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; leaving now outstanding 1734*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*

One of the checks paid this week was for 117*l.* 17*s.*, on which law proceedings had been taken, and a latitat served on the clerk before we came into office. The holder was satisfied to pay his own costs, amounting to 9*l.*, and to accept payment of the original sum.

The total amount of our payments out of the present collection, including the outstanding checks, is 6046*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.*, leaving a balance still for current expenses.

At the request of Mr. Reade we have inserted a long letter from him on our minutes, to which we have attached our observations; such communications lead to no practical good, and occupy much of our time to very little purpose, but we did not wish to allow him a pretext for complaint.

Scariff Union.

We have also inserted our letter to the coroner and his reply. We find that the rates for payment of which he states Boland's bed-clothes were sold, were county-rates, not poor-rates; and Mr. Purcell, the relieving officer, informs us that Boland's death was caused by cold caught from want of sufficient covering. He and his family were lying in a shed fixed against the old house, which had in part fallen down. The Bolands being in possession of 20 acres of land had not applied for relief.

In the case of Bridget Gallagher, Purcell states, he has procured positive proof that she had sufficient food, and did not die of hunger. There can be no doubt of the great extent of destitution generally in this Union, as the people are without wages or employment, and have no visible means of subsistence; but many who are above actual want are most ingenious and persevering in their efforts to extort relief by falsehood and stratagem. There exists a great difficulty in ascertaining the truth as to the bonâ fide cessation to occupy land. There is the greatest reluctance to surrender to the landlord, even in cases where many years' arrears of rent are due; in most cases the land would be given up if the cabin could be retained, but the consequence of surrendering the cabin with the land is, that the cabin is immediately demolished, and the recent tenant becomes a permanent pauper, without a home.

The numbers in the several houses this day are as follow:—

Union workhouse	793 mixed.
Tomgrany store	279 men.
Kirby's house	234 women.
Clune's house	130 women.
Hogan's house	37 sick.
Moynoe house	443 girls.

About 11,000 on out-door relief.

The cost of maintenance for the above numbers, within and without, is about 500*l.* per week, and rent and salaries are about 50*l.* per week more.

The following is an estimate for the next six weeks, to 25th March:—

	£.
Six weeks' maintenance, 550 l. per week	3300
Due for, and required for, clothing	2000
Debts still unpaid	4300
Poundage on rate	850
	£ 10,450
Rate still uncollected	£ 11,026

The above confirms our previous calculation, that the present rate will only carry us on to the 25th March. Immediate measures should be taken to provide for the expenditure of the succeeding six months, and respecting which we await your instructions.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 17, 1848.

WITH regard to the appointment of an assistant relieving officer in Scariff electoral division, the Commissioners have not objected to the appointment, as they understand that the causes which have led to it are likely to be of temporary duration only; but under other circumstances the Commissioners, as they have already stated to you, would much prefer that the district should be divided, so that the entire responsibility for the due discharge of the relieving officers' duties in each district might rest upon one individual.

The objection to the appointment of assistant relieving officer is, that it has a tendency to divide, and thereby to lessen, the responsibility of the relieving officer.

The Commissioners will give their best consideration to the division of the Killaloe and Ogunnella districts, as proposed by you, on your causing the scheme of the proposed division to be forwarded to this office.

In regard to your statement that the present rate will only last to the 25th of March, and that immediate measures should be taken to provide for the expenditure for the ensuing six months, I am to state that if the Guardians will go on weekly providing for the able-bodied men and their families in the workhouse, and for persons entitled to relief under the 1st section out of the workhouse, the Commissioners will apply to the British Association to make for awhile, advances to the Vice-Guardians, for the relief of destitute able-bodied men and their families out of the workhouse.

With this view the Commissioners request you to furnish them with an estimate of the weekly sum which in your opinion will be required in order to preserve from starvation the destitute poor who are entitled to relief in your district, forming a separate estimate for each of the three following heads:—

1st. Relief in the workhouse.

2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

3rd. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to such relief under the 2nd section of that Act.

At the same time the Commissioners rely upon your continued exertions in enforcing a due and efficient collection of the rate from all parties in the Union

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

ALTHOUGH the number of applicants for relief has enormously increased of late, since it became known that the workhouses were full, still I am of opinion, seeing that every destitute person within the Union is now duly relieved, that the lists will be speedily reduced, for I find that my expectations are already being realized in many able-bodied men refusing to come to daily labour for their rations, and single females in like manner refusing in-door relief. Daily labour for able-bodied men, and workhouse accommodation for single females, are the best possible tests; I am, consequently, desirous of reserving every vacant berth within the workhouse for single persons, and for the present, at least, to continue on out-door relief such destitute persons as have families, which will also prevent the destruction of their habitations.

I am again enabled to report most favourably of the collection of the poor-rate. Since writing my last week's report, the collectors have notified to me the receipt of 1450*l*. To this important duty I devote unceasing attention; and as every instance of open resistance has been borne down by the arm of the law, it seems now to be pretty generally felt that the rate may as well be peaceably paid. I feel bound, however, to express my conviction that if the chairman and the 25 members of the late Board of Guardians who signed the extraordinary memorial to the Lord Lieutenant, complaining of (to use their own words) "the neglect of the Commissioners to enforce upon the Board of Guardians" (the memorialists themselves) the laying on and collection of rates sufficient," that had all these gentlemen paid their own rates, as they should have felt bound in honour to have done after signing such a document, there would have been neither resistance nor difficulty of any kind experienced in its collection, and the whole amount would have long since been got in. But in the comparatively few cases of rescue, the ignorant farmer very naturally calculated that in such a case the law would be a dead letter in the administration of those who were themselves resisting, passively resisting, the payment of poor-rates. In thus stating what I am informed was at one time the opinion of the tenant class, I must also add that every magistrate on the bench has, when cases of rescue have been brought to notice, afforded the collectors every assistance and justice, especially Mr. John Pat. Molony.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

WE have received your letter of the 12th February, 1848, enclosing a complaint of Thomas Stammers, for being over-rated. On examining the Rate

Scariff Union.

Book, we find his statement to be correct; and on making inquiry, it appears he holds but the one farm of two and a-half acres.

We have therefore desired the collector not to enforce payment for more than the small-farm, and to let the other lie over as an arrear until the valuation is revised. The poor man also complains that his two and a-half acres were over-valued by mistake, in comparison with his neighbours holding the same quantity of land, and by which means he has been rated for his holding, while his neighbour's holdings have been rated on the immediate lessor. This also appears to be the case, but as we have no power to alter the valuation as it appears in the Rate Book, there seems no present remedy. The poor man is in arrear of rent, and declares he has no means of paying either. We told him the rate should be paid before the rent, and he should get his landlord to allow him an equitable portion; but as the property is in Chancery, and under a receiver of the Court, it is not likely he can get any redress. He says he must give up the land and become a pauper. We fear many such cases will be found before our collection is completed.

Relative to the subject of land occupation, we have to acknowledge your circular of 15th February, 1848. We think the queries put to Mr. Henn, do not fully meet the case, and we find ourselves in as much difficulty with his opinion before us. It is clear that the ceasing to occupy more than one-fourth acre of land is what the law requires; but the query for counsel should be, "what constitutes occupation in the meaning of the statute." It appears from Mr. Henn's opinion, that if a man quits house and land even without a legal surrender, it is to be construed as ceasing to occupy; but Guardians require to be instructed as to whether—

1st. If an occupier of land quits house and land, and comes to the work-house, or goes to live elsewhere, but still retains the key of his house, and, perhaps, has left some furniture in it which he still intends to claim ownership to; is such a quittance a bonâ fide cessation to occupy?

2nd. If an occupier of land ceases to use the land in any way, either by neglecting to till or graze it, declaring that he has withdrawn from the occupation but still retains the house; is such to be considered a cessation to occupy?

3rd. Or if an occupier transfers to a third party all his right, title, and interest in the land, on condition of being allowed to occupy the house, is such a transfer, whether legal or not, a sufficient cessation of occupation to entitle the person to relief?

These queries are of vital importance in some parts of this Union, but particularly in Feakle, where land is poor, mountainous, and boggy, and where many persons, in a state bordering on starvation, hold 10 or 12 acres of land nominally, on which there is probably not a quarter of an acre of cultivation. Our relieving officer has reported many of these; not on his Application Book, for they did not apply for relief, knowing the occupation of land disentitled them from receiving it; but verbally he had told us of families whose houses he had gone into, where some of the children were lying on the miserable bed, emaciated with hunger, and unable to get up from weakness. To these he gave food to support life, although legally they were not entitled to receive it, and we could not but approve of his having done so, whoever may have to bear the cost of it. Many tenants of Colonel Wyndham, in Feakle, are, we are informed, clinging tenaciously to the land, in the expectation held out to them by the agent, that he will afford means to his tenants to emigrate in the spring. In the meantime many of these unfortunate people are on the verge of starvation. We have to report that in Tulla electoral division, as informed by our relieving officer, a number of families have been this week brought on his relief list, by being dispossessed of their lands, and their cabins thrown down, on Sir Robert Keane's property in Glandree. The relieving officer of Kilnoe also informs us that in Annaghneal, in his electoral division, about 30 families, containing about 150 persons, have been dispossessed on the property of Mr. Wesby, and their cabins levelled with the ground. These unfortunate creatures have been added to our relief list this week. Some have petitioned us not to require them to work for their weekly subsistence until they had finished constructing temporary huts to shelter themselves and families from the weather.

We have considered these details important, as tending to show the reason of the increased applications for relief.

The poverty of the districts above referred to, may in some degree be judged of by reference to Mr. Griffiths' valuation now before us. We do not know what part of Feakle is the property of Colonel Wyndham, but the whole parish is valued as follows:—

Feakle contains 35,993 acres, value 7493*l.* 6*s.*, or about 4*s.* 2*d.* per acre average. Of the resident gentry or proprietors some idea may be formed by the statement that out of 96 townlands, of which the district is composed, in 79 the houses are set down as of no annual value; and in the remaining 17, the annual value of the houses is stated at 160*l.* 6*s.*, out of which is to be taken 65*l.* 12*s.*, for the value of one church at Feakle, one police barrack, two National school-houses, and three Roman Catholic chapels; so that the whole annual value of buildings for dwelling and farm purposes, over 36,000 acres of land (of the population of which 2500 persons are receiving out-door relief, to keep them from starvation), is under 100*l.* per annum.

The townland of Glandree above referred to, contains 2563 acres, valued at 495*l.* 4*s.*, or about 3*s.* 10½*d.* per acre on an average. The annual value of houses is stated as nil.

Annaghneal contains 442 acres, value 178*l.* 8*s.* per annum, or nearly 8*s.* 1*d.* per acre; houses nil. Annaghneal is in the parish of Kilnoe, containing 10,512 acres, value, on an average, at about 8*s.* 6*d.* per acre, and with a house valuation of 213*l.* 11*s.*

This is, therefore, one of the least distressed parishes in the Union, and in which the rate has been collected quietly and peacefully.

We have to report the collection as proceeding this week satisfactorily in the total amount collected, although Feakle and Killuran are backward.

Since last report we have advice of the following:—

It is very satisfactory that, notwithstanding the great destitution which prevails throughout the Union, that the farmer class generally, who possess the means, have shown a disposition to meet the rate promptly and cheerfully; and that, although seizures of cattle have had to be made by the collectors, and in some of the electoral divisions rescues have been attempted and made, yet there has not been a single instance of violence, or any necessity for calling for aid either from police or military. In the cases of immediate lessors there is more difficulty experienced, the landlords not being generally well inclined to pay those rates promptly. This is, in many instances, perhaps to be attributed to the imperfection of the valuation, and to doubts of the legality of the rating. Among the landlords and gentry there are several who have paid this heavy rate promptly and cheerfully, and expressed their conviction of its necessity. There are difficulties existing on the part of landed proprietors from their not having ready money at hand, and being obliged to dispose of live stock before they can meet the heavy amount they are required to pay. The difficulty of collecting rents for the last two years has increased the embarrassments of the landlords. These considerations should have some weight in judging of the conduct of those who, without expressing reluctance, or making any complaint, have yet been unavoidably tardy in paying.

The necessary examination of the relieving officers' books, and the hearing and inquiring into complaints against them, have occupied so much of our time that we have not yet finished our arrangements for out-door work, nor able to inspect those who are at work.

We experience much annoyance from the continued and reiterated complaints of Mr. Reade, of Wood Park, Mountshannon, who, since his intrusion into the Board-room on Tuesday last, and his attempt to dictate what mode of relief we should adopt in Mountshannon electoral division, has written us an extraordinary letter, which we did not think necessary to place on the minutes. As it appears Mr. Read has had a petition presented to Parliament, we shall be preparing ourselves to meet his complaints by the evidence of what facts we can collect, in case any investigation should be called for. We have reason to believe that if we acted on his suggestions we should have to give account of many deaths from starvation in his electoral division. The whole number of able-bodied paupers receiving out-door relief in Mountshannon electoral division is 22, whose wives and children amount to 74, and the cost of their weekly relief is 2*l.* 16*s.*, or one penny per day for each individual. These 22 have been ordered to work this week, and Mr. Reade complains that they refuse to work for him. There may be reasons for these, which we shall endeavour to account for in a future report.

We have received an authority from the Board of Health to establish the temporary fever hospital at Killaloe, as an hospital for that electoral division, and have made arrangements for its management with the Relief Committee at Kallaloe.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your weekly report, dated the 19th instant.

With reference to your observations as to the occupation of land, and the difficulties you experience in applying the opinion given by Mr. Henn, I am to state that the Commissioners do not think it necessary to take a further opinion as to what constitutes occupation within the meaning of the statute, as they think the definition of the term "occupier," which is given in the 124th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, will be found to afford a sufficient guide. The word "occupier" is there defined to "include every person in the immediate use or enjoyment of any hereditaments rateable under this Act, whether corporeal or incorporeal."

As regards the three specific questions proposed by you in reference to this subject, I am to state:—

1st. The Commissioners do not think that a person who quits house and land and goes to the workhouse, or goes to live elsewhere, but still retains the key of the house, and has left some furniture in it, which he intends to claim ownership to, can be considered as having ceased to occupy.

2nd. In regard to the second case supposed, viz., that of an occupier of land who ceases to use the land in any way, either by neglecting to till or graze it, declaring that he has withdrawn from the occupation, but still retains the house, the Commissioners think that under no circumstances does the mere declaration of an applicant for relief appear to the Commissioners to be a sufficient proof that such applicant has ceased to occupy more land than a quarter of a statute acre: he should, under any circumstances, be at least required to prove that he has bonâ fide offered to surrender such land.

3rd. In reference to your question whether if an occupier transfers to a third party all his right, title, and interest in the land, on condition of being allowed to occupy the house, such transfer, whether legal or not, is a sufficient cessation of occupation to entitle the person to relief, the Commissioners have to state that they cannot give an answer to such a general question; but if you will state any particular case in detail to the Commissioners, they will acquaint you with their opinion respecting it.

The Commissioners have read with much concern your statement in regard to the great distress in Feakle, but at the same time they feel bound to state that the relief which the relieving officer has afforded in certain extreme cases, without entering them on his Application and Report Book, because he knew that they were disqualified, is at variance not only with the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, but also with the 52nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, which prohibits the application of the rates, either directly or indirectly, in any manner not expressly provided for by law.

In fact, any expenditure so incurred by the relieving officer is liable to be disallowed by the auditor, and is, in fact, a breach of trust.

Scariff Union.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 19, 1848.

I AM again enabled to report favourably of the collection of the poor-rate. Since last Saturday, the 12th instant, the collectors have advised me of the receipt of 1077*l.* 5*s.* 0½*d.*

In all other respects, too, we are getting on in a satisfactory manner. In a word, the Poor Laws are now, I trust and believe, administered within the Scariff Union with vigour and efficiency.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 26, 1848.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the statements contained in your report.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 26, 1848.

I HAVE nothing of material importance to communicate in this report; I have only briefly to state that everything is working well here.

The collectors have advised me of the receipt of 628*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, since last Saturday the 19th instant. A much larger amount would have been collected, had it not been for several of the collectors having to attend the assizes at Ennis.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 26, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of 15th instant, respecting new valuation of this Union, we have to state that the agreement entered into with Mr. Sampson for the valuation now in force was, that he should be paid 1*l.* 5*s.* per 1000 acres, and the sum he was paid was 242*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* We are of opinion that for an entirely new valuation of the Union, such as is requisite to ensure a fair and just collection of poor rates, and wherein every holding should be carefully distinguished and applotted, no less a sum than 300*l.* could be offered, so as to give the valuator a fair remuneration for his services. If, however, such assistance can be derived from Mr. Griffith's Townland Valuation, as will very materially lessen the trouble and expense of a new valuation, a lesser sum might be named.

In reply to your letter of the 17th instant, relative to the means of providing for the expenses of the Union after the 25th March next, we have to submit, as you desire, the following estimate of the probable weekly expenses of the Union under the different heads you require :—

1. Relief in the workhouse to 1500 persons, at 1 s. 8 d. per week.	125	0	0
2. Relief out of the workhouse to 400 persons, entitled under 1st section Irish Relief Extension Act, at 8 d.	133	6	8
3. Relief to able-bodied, under 2nd section, 11,000 persons, at 7 d. each	320	16	8
	629	3	4

Scariff Union.

This estimate exceeds the rough sketch which we gave in our report of the 12th instant, but since then a large number has been added to our relief lists, and which we fear even the stringent test of labour will not much diminish.

Every week we hear of new instances of those who hold land, either voluntarily or by ejectment, giving up their holdings, and making application for relief. There is no doubt in many instances a reluctance to work, and many devices are used to endeavour to avoid it; but we are satisfied that real destitution exists to a sufficient degree to keep our relief lists well filled for some months. We are in hopes that as the year advances, and some demand arises for field labour, we may be relieved of a portion of the destitute, but we very much fear that a large number will remain unemployed during the summer.

We have put down the in-door paupers in our estimate as 1500, although the present number is about 1950. Our reason is, that we foresee the immediate necessity of discharging some hundreds, in order to guard against the bad effects which might arise from over-crowding, now that the weather has become milder.

The labour test is now being applied in all the electoral divisions, and we hope with good effect, so far as it goes; but we have only this morning received the orders from the Board of Works for the implements we last applied for. This has prevented our commencing the system of taskwork, which will afford a more effectual check to imposition.

The collection this week has made but slow progress, which is partly owing to the assizes for the county now going on at Ennis, and which takes a number of the larger ratepayers from their homes to attend as jurors.

We have been obliged to put a resolution on our minutes, requiring the punctual attendance of the collectors every Tuesday, on pain of being fined 1*l*. for absence.

We shall endeavour to urge the collectors next week to make better progress, and to take proceedings in all cases where they experience delay in payment. A good deal of difficulty exists in ascertaining the names of immediate lessors.

The following is the state of the collection to this date, as far as we have information:—

We have to report that the different houses occupied by the paupers are by degrees being brought into a more satisfactory state of order and cleanliness, and the greater part are now provided with clothing, and the whole with sufficient bedding.

We have been fitting up Hogan's house for the sick, and have made room for additional beds. This house we intend to appropriate to sick females. The house last taken from Molony, we are about preparing for sick male paupers.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 4, 1848.

With reference to that part of your report which contains an estimate of the weekly expenses of the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners have applied to the British Association for 320*l*. to defray the expenses of out-door relief to the destitute able-bodied of the Union during the present week, and they will make a similar application during the next three weeks.

At the end of that time, the Commissioners trust that you will have discharged all the debts of the Union, and that you will thus be in excellent credit, and will not need any further assistance from the Commissioners.

The Commissioners rely on your not relaxing your exertions in the collection of the rates.

Scariff Union.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

NOTHING has transpired here during the past week worthy of remark. Fever is unfortunately somewhat on the increase. In other respects everything relating to the administration of the Poor Laws is in a satisfactory state.

The collectors of poor rates have advised me of the receipt of 704*l.* 5*s.* 4½*d.*, during the week ending this day.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of your letters, dated February 25, 1848, and March 2, 1848.

We shall endeavour to interpret the meaning of "occupancy of land" according to the letter of the law, and in accordance with your views, as far as in our power to do so, although we must acknowledge it still remains sufficiently obscure, and is a subject worthy of the revision of the legislature.

Any special cases of difficulty that may arise we shall report.

The cases which were reported by the relieving officer at Feakle as having been relieved without being entered on his book, shall be more particularly inquired into and reported on. Your observations on the subject were read to all the relieving officers, and they received specific instructions not to give relief in such cases.

Our out-door relief lists continue to increase from new applications, owing to the exhaustion of the little means of support possessed up to this time by many poor families who have now no further means to look to until the summer advances.

The number in the different houses is kept up by new admissions as fast as we can discharge those whom we can relieve outside with more economy.

The collection proceeds gradually, but more difficulty is to be expected in the collection of the latter part of the rate than the first, as those who had means at hand, were of course the first to pay. There is now much delay incurred and time occupied in attending sessions and prosecuting summonses. The imperfection of the valuation also renders the difficulty of levying the rate very great in many cases.

The collectors all attended on Tuesday, and had their accounts examined by the clerk.

Our estimate of this week's collection is as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
Tulla	191	1	3

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

REFERRING to your circular letter of the 2nd instant, I beg leave in the strongest manner to express my belief that the most fearful as well as direful consequences would result from a suspension on the 18th instant of out-door relief to able-bodied men. In short, the burden of supporting almost the whole of the labouring population is now thrown on the poor rates; for the farmers and their families are themselves performing all their own labour, and the little employment given by the eight resident proprietors, is scarcely felt as a relief to the mass of poverty existing within the Scariff Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 11, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed that under that order, single men, and men with only two children, would be thrown on their own resources.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 11, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge receipt of your several letters this week.

We have replied at length in a separate letter of this date to Mr. Reade's complaints.

We have received from Captain Hart the order on the depôt at Limerick for 320*l.* of provisions, which we intend to present on Monday, and have the provisions forwarded at once to Killaloe. It will, we fear, be necessary for us to hire a store for a depôt, and to appoint a person in charge to attend to the delivery of the provisions as required. An aid in money would have been much more useful and economical, as it would enable us to dispense with the staff and machinery necessary for the distribution. These expenses are now borne and the trouble undertaken by the contractor in each district where Indian meal is distributed. Until we know what sort of provisions we shall receive we cannot make arrangements for using it. We observe that you intend to apply for a similar aid for the next three weeks, and that you expect at the end of that time we shall have discharged all the debts of the Union, and be in such excellent credit as not to need any further assistance from you.

We beg respectfully to reply that we consider such an amount of aid will be wholly inadequate to the wants of the destitute poor, and that if we are to expect no more it will be necessary immediately to take measures to levy a new rate, without even waiting for a new valuation—a measure which we fear would be fraught with disastrous results in the present impoverished state of the Union. Much of the present collection was promptly and cheerfully paid under the impression that no new rate would be levied until next harvest if the present were readily collected. Hopes were encouraged that Government assistance would be lent during the summer to a sufficient extent to prevent the necessity of striking a new rate until the valuation was revised and a new harvest ready to be gathered. Whatever is to be done, we have here to express our hope that no time may be lost in giving us the necessary instructions how to proceed in obtaining a new valuation. A valuator ought to be immediately appointed.

We do not relax in our exertions to press forward the collection of the present rate, but we have now arrived at the difficult part where legal means must be resorted to; many districts occupied by tenants without crops or stock of any kind, with nothing to be seized on but their last blanket; immediate lessors who cannot be identified, and for the collection of whose rates we must wait until the 3rd April before serving the month's notice on the occupier, and when that month is expired we shall have nothing to look to but uncultivated and unstocked farms. We feel ourselves consequently placed in a very difficult position, and unless promptly and efficiently aided we fear the consequences will be lamentable. As to our credit being excellent, we admit that it is so at present, but if we should begin to fail in the fulfilment of our engagements our acquired credit would not last long. We have just advertised for our provision contracts for the next three months, from 25th instant, and before we conclude them we must be able to state to the contractors what are our proposals and intentions as to payment. The tenders we shall receive will be no doubt made on the faith of the contractors receiving cash payments. We must explain to them our position before we ask them to bind themselves.

We have not yet paid for all the clothing we have been obliged to procure, and yet our funds in the hands of the treasurer are entirely exhausted this week, and we have only paid about 3000*l.* of the old debts, leaving nearly 3000*l.* still due.

The collection this week is as follows:—

	This Week.			Total Collected.			Uncollected.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Tulla	185	4	11	2,346	1	2	1,445	8	3½
Feakle				1,143	19	8	1,489	19	11
Killaloe	69	7	1½	1,691	11	7	1,086	11	1
Ogunnella	45	16	8½	486	18	11	651	14	2
Killuran	24	0	0	692	1	7	309	11	9½
Kilnoe	91	5	4	1,144	10	0	635	8	7½
Scariff	73	0	0	1,007	12	3	1,288	16	4
Woodford	35	16	0	250	3	2	233	13	8½
Clonrush				502	3	11	351	7	6½
Mountshannon				265	0	0	330	18	8½
	524	10	1	9,530	2	3	7,823	10	2½

We have to state, in explanation, that although a large sum appears to our credit on the 4th March at our treasurer's, it is occasioned by a number of checks not having been presented at that date, although previously drawn, and at this moment the total amount of the checks we have issued exceeds by more than 100*l.* the actual sums lodged with the treasurer to the last advice.

We have to call your attention earnestly to the fact that if we would save the people from starvation it will be absolutely necessary to extend the order for out-door relief generally to all classes for two months longer. The order for out-relief of widows with one child and for orphans, will expire on the 18th instant, and should be immediately renewed, as well as the order for out-relief to the able-bodied. We are most anxious to make arrangements to supply the food to this class in a cooked state, and also to enforce a more efficient system of labour, but the immediate pressure on us has been so great, within the workhouses and in the immediate neighbourhood of Scariff, that we have not had time to establish such an organization as we should wish. We are not perfectly satisfied with all our relieving officers, some of whom are very unsatisfactory in their accounts; but we see at present so much difficulty in removing them, and substituting others who might be strangers to the system and to the population, that we think it better to endure the present evil than incur the chance of a greater.

We have received a letter from Mr. Kerin with a statement of his claims, which are as follow:—

	£.	s.	d.
For William Dean, five checks, amount	72	6	4
Interest	1	18	7
Costs	13	4	0
	87	8	11
For Andrew Vance, one check, amount	32	6	10
Interest	0	19	4½
Costs	18	13	2½
	51	19	5

In reply we have written to Mr. Kerin that if he would send or present to us the above checks we would replace them by checks on the treasurer for a similar amount, but that we declined paying costs or interest. Mr. Kerin states that the costs were taxed in the presence of the solicitor then concerned for the Guardians, that his proceedings were by "a common-law subpoena suit by

Scariff Union.

"capias," and that the solicitor gave him pleas of confession in both cases. We replied that we did not believe the Union was legally liable for such charges, but if they were recoverable by law it should be against those who signed the checks, knowing there were no funds to meet them, or against those who authorized a solicitor to enter a plea of confession.

Your circular, of 25th February, 1848, was received, relative to preparing and posting lists of persons receiving relief, and preparations are making to comply with it.

A case is reported in our minutes of 8th instant, of a woman having been found dead outside the door of the workhouse, and it is mentioned that a suspicion arose that she was brought there in order to secure her being buried with a coffin. We are informed, by good authority, that in many cases of deaths occurring to destitute persons on out-door relief, the bodies are buried privately by night, for the double purpose of concealing the want of a coffin and of avoiding the knowledge of the relieving officer, in the hope of the relief being still continued for the deceased person.

The number of cases of illness in the workhouses has been very much increased during the last fortnight, and all the sick wards are full. We are happy to state, however, that the mortality is not considerable, as the diseases are not generally of a malignant nature, being chiefly dysentery, diarrhoea, and a mild form of fever. We have, in consequence, been obliged to introduce a considerable portion of rice into the dietary. The number of sick and convalescent this day is about 300. The deaths during the week amount to 25.

The number in the workhouses this day :—

Union workhouse	869 chiefly females.
Tomgranny	235 men.
Kirby's	253 boys.
Clune's	152 women.
Hogan's	70 sick women and girls.
Molony's	71 sick men and boys.
Moynoe	350 girls.

We are sorry to have to report that Mr. Shaw, the master of Moynoe workhouse, is very seriously ill with fever.

Since the foregoing report was written, we called on R. Routh, Esq., Assistant Commissary-General in Limerick, for the provisions mentioned in the order of the British Association. Mr. Routh informed us that there are no provisions in the dépôt in Limerick, but he assigned the order to the clerk commanding Her Majesty's ship "Madagascar," lying as a store-ship at Tarbert, 45 miles below Limerick. We have endorsed the order to the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company, who will send a boat alongside the "Madagascar" to receive the provisions, and who will have them conveyed by water to within about one mile of the Scariff workhouse, and for which they will charge us 8s. 4d. per ton. The quantity we have agreed to take is:—

30 tons of Indian meal, at 8l. 8s. per ton	£252 0
2½ tons of rye-meal, at 7l.	17 10
1½ ton barley meal, at 7l. 10s.	11 5
3 tons of biscuit, at 13l.	39 0
	319 15

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

WITH reference to your observations as to the supposed insufficiency of the aid obtained by the Commissioners from the British Association, the Commissioners regret to state that they have no reason to expect that the amount can be increased. The funds of the British Association are limited, and when compared with the numerous and pressing claims upon them, are small in amount; and it is therefore absolutely necessary that the utmost vigilance and caution should be used in their distribution, so that by judiciously husbanding the resources of the Association they may be made as extensively available as possible throughout the distressed districts of Ireland. In carrying out this view it is necessary to consider not only the state of Scariff Union, but also the state of other distressed Unions in Ireland, in many of which the distress is greater, and the means of alleviating it more limited than at Scariff.

The Commissioners are aware that the comparatively superior position of Scariff Union is to a great extent owing to your exertions in conjunction with Captain Hart; they entertain a high sense of those exertions, and they confidently trust that you will be enabled by a continuation of them to carry on efficiently the relief of the destitute poor without further external aid than has already been awarded.

The rate now in course of collection was, the Commissioners believe, estimated by you to last till the 25th March, and, judging from the statements in your report, the Commissioners hope that it may be found sufficient for some weeks beyond that period, as it appears that there is still nearly 8000*l.* uncollected, and the debts of the Union, including the amount due for clothing, cannot, the Commissioners presume, much exceed 3000*l.*, so that after making allowance for irrecoverable arrears there should still be a considerable surplus available. The advances from the British Association, which will amount in the whole to 1280*l.*, will of course increase the amount, and enable you to calculate that your available resources will extend to a still further period; and the Commissioners cannot but think that, after paying off so large an accumulation of debt as you have done, you may reasonably ask from the treasurer of the Union, and from the contractors, such an extension of credit as will enable you to carry on the affairs of the Union without making an additional rate during the few months that must elapse before the new valuation (for the immediate commencement of which the Commissioners are now in treaty with a competent person) is completed.

The Commissioners will, in compliance with your wishes, request that the two advances which are yet to be made by the British Association may be in money, and not in food.

The Commissioners are in correspondence with Captain Hart on the subject of the renewal of the out-door relief order, and they will take care that the present order (which will continue in force until the 24th instant) shall not be allowed to expire without a new order being issued, or some further directions given in the matter. It does not appear to be necessary to renew the order of the 18th January, which authorizes out-door relief to certain classes of persons not comprised within the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, inasmuch as you have full authority under the order of the 24th January to relieve all classes of destitute persons, including those named in the order of the 18th instant.

The Commissioners will, in compliance with your request, endeavour to obtain for you instructions as to the best manner of baking rye and barley meal.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, enclosing a copy of an order authorizing out-door relief, under certain limitations, to the poor of Listowel Union.

In reply thereto, I beg leave to represent that, as almost the entire of the labouring population of Scariff Union are reduced to the deepest state of destitution, it would not be safe to place any restriction whatever in the grant of out-door relief to all classes.

At present there is scarcely any employment for the labouring poor, and from the prospects before us I have but too much reason to fear that the period intervening between this and next harvest will be one of severe trial; but, that point once weathered, I trust that afterwards all may go on well.

Scariff Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners whether in your opinion there may safely be a suspension or modification of the order under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, on the 1st April next.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I REGRET that I cannot report any diminution, or even present prospect of a diminution of the destitution existing within this Union. The labour test is duly applied to those on the out-door relief lists, and I am certain that every able-bodied person will escape to independent labour whenever and wherever it offers.

During the past week the collectors have advised me of the receipt of but 490*l.* 6*s.* 9½*d.*

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 16, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, in which I am requested to inform the Commissioners whether in my opinion there may safely be a suspension or modification of the order authorizing out-door relief, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, on the 1st of April next.

In reply thereto I beg leave to state my conviction that, as there is no prospect of any employment (except to a very limited extent) for the labouring population before next harvest, it would consequently not be possible to discontinue out-door relief to the able-bodied at so early a period.

The Commissioners are aware that out-door relief to the able-bodied is rigidly refused to those residing in the only electoral division out of the ten (that of Mountshannon) in which employment may be obtained; and I propose to discontinue it in one or more of the least populous electoral divisions immediately the new wing buildings are completed. These will accommodate from 300 to 400 persons; and we have now about 2,000 under roof.

Unfortunately, fever, dysentery, and diarrhoea prevail to a considerable extent throughout the Union, as well as in the workhouses, and it would not, therefore, be desirable to make any increase in our present number of in-door paupers. We are also much in want of an additional medical officer, as a permanent arrangement; and I have requested the Vice-Guardians to bring the matter at once under the notice of the Commissioners. I would suggest that Moynoe workhouse and the houses in Scariff be placed under the separate charge of another medical man; and that Doctor Egan confine his attendance to the Scariff workhouse and Tomgraney; which is quite enough for one man to efficiently attend to.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have given instructions for the continuation of the order for another month.

With regard to your remarks respecting the appointment of an additional medical officer, I am to state that the Commissioners will give the subject their consideration.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 15th instant. We have received from Captain Hart a second order from the British Association for food to the value of 320*l.*

In our last report we stated the quantity we applied for, and we have since received the official return of the quantity delivered to our order, and which is now in a boat on the way to Scariff, viz.:—

Scariff Union.

	£.	s.	d.
60,200 lbs. Indian corn meal, at 8 l. 8 s. per ton	225	15	0
3,360 lbs. barley meal, at 7 l. 10 s. per ton	11	15	0
5,600 lbs. rye meal, at 7 l. per ton	17	10	0
6,720 lbs. biscuit, at 13 l. per ton	39	0	0
	294	0	0
247 sacks, at 1 s. 11 d. each	23	13	5
60 bags, at 1 s. each	3	0	0

By this you will perceive we have only received 29*l.* 13*s.* 5*d.* in food, and have to allow 26*l.* 13*s.* 5*d.* for sacks and bags, which are of no use to us. We hope we shall be allowed for them when returned.

We shall endeavour to distribute this food to the best advantage among the really destitute, but at the same time must acknowledge that in the present state of our Union, the amount of this aid bears a very small proportion to our wants. We are aware that the demands on the funds of the British Association are very great, and that there are worse cases of distress to be met in other Unions with less resources.

We must therefore express our thanks on behalf of the ratepayers, and of the recipients of this bounty, for the aid thus afforded them by the benevolence of the members of the British Association.

In order to obtain a clear sight of our position we have examined the state of the accounts of receipts and expenditure since 28th October last, the date of our appointment, when the debts of the Union were about 6000*l.*, and nothing to meet them or to provide for immediate necessities. We here submit a statement which will of course be revised and corrected to 25th March:—

In Feakle the difficulty of collection is very great, much of the land being deserted, and no stock to be found or any property to take possession of. In Ogunnella and Clonrush it is much the same. In many cases where immediate lessors are rated, we must wait until the occupiers can be proceeded against as the immediate lessors cannot be found.

Mr. Crotty, the collector for Kilnoe, is decidedly the best and most active collector we have, and has nearly brought his collection to a close. Mr. Taylor, the collector for Scariff, is also a good and active collector, but unfortunately he caught a heavy cold by being exposed to incessant rain in performing his duties, the week before last, and has been this week confined to his bed. Mr. Scanlan, the collector for Killaloe, has not given entire satisfaction, and is not we think proceeding as actively as he might. He states that he cannot get on at all in Ogunnella in consequence of the poverty of the people. Mr. Molony, the collector for the Connaught district, has been evidently neglecting his duties for the last two weeks, and is very unsatisfactory in his reports.

We are now experiencing the difficult part of the collection, and cannot expect it to proceed as quickly or as satisfactorily as hitherto. We had all the collectors before us on Tuesday, and impressed on them the necessity of taking legal proceedings at once against all defaulters.

It is our intention, in making our contracts next week, to stipulate with each contractor for three or four months' credit if we should require it, although by so doing we fear we may not be able to obtain all our contracts on quite as low terms as if we promised to pay cash.

We shall also act on your suggestion, and apply to the treasurer for an advance if you will obtain the necessary guarantee from Government for payment of interest, although even with this guarantee we doubt very much the success of such an application.

As to future prospects, we calculate that a rate averaging 2s. 6d. in the pound would be necessary on a valuation of 48,000l., to carry on the relief in this Union for three months from the time our present resources are exhausted, and if we receive no other aid than what you have intimated.

We fully concur with Captain Hart as to the necessity for renewing the order for out-door relief to all classes, as the destitution still exists and will we have no doubt continue to exist during the summer, unless some sources of employment arise, of which there seem but little prospect at present. The landed proprietors and farmers appear to be blind to their own interest, in not making some exertion to employ the paupers in their respective districts in such works as would be of some durable value, such as repairing roads and passages now in a sad state of neglect. By consenting to a county rate for the repairs of roads, they might lessen the amount of poor rates and receive some value, whereas they are now receiving none.

The necessity for continued out-door relief to all classes is the more urgent, as the sickness within the workhouse has very much increased, and the deaths weekly are now double what they were a month ago. In consequence of the prevalence and extent of dysentery and diarrhoea, we found it expedient to discontinue the use of brown bread, and to substitute white bread for the paupers generally. Owing to the scarcity of milk at this season we have determined to give a portion of coffee to mix with the milk as a part of the daily dietary, instead of milk alone. The properties of the coffee will, we hope, contribute to check the prevalent diseases.

We see a strong necessity for a resident apothecary and an additional medical officer, for Dr. Egan is quite unable to perform all the necessary duties unaided. He had an assistant for a while at his own expense, but unfortunately the person he employed is at present in fever. We are sorry also to have to report the continued illness of Mr. Shaw, and we fear there is but small chance of his recovery. We should regret him as a very valuable officer. Our assistant master, Mr. Farrell, is also in fever, so that we find ourselves at much inconvenience, and many irregularities in the houses are the consequence. We are looking for some person capable of taking temporary charge of Moynoe house, in the capacity of master. If the Commissioners could recommend a person suitable for the office, in case of need, it might be an advantage, as our meeting such a person at once is very uncertain.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 18th instant, relative to the Scariff Union.

The Commissioners rely on the continuance of your exertions to have the rates collected as closely as possible, and to make such arrangements with the contractors and treasurer of the Union as may best enable you to carry on the affairs of the Union till another rate can be made available; the Commissioners will at once apply for authority to guarantee the payment of interest on learning that there is a probability of your being able to obtain an advance from the treasurer, and on being informed of the amount of the advance contemplated, and the rate of interest proposed, which the Commissioners think should not exceed 5 per cent.

With regard to the two collectors whom you refer to as not being satisfactory, the Commissioners wish to be informed whether you consider it desirable that they should be removed. Probably, however, it may not be deemed expedient, so near the close of the collection, to delay its completion by a change of collectors.

The Commissioners have already given directions for the renewal of the authority to give out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act; they trust, however, that as the season advances the numbers requiring relief under that section will be reduced and the rate of expenditure on this head diminished, and that in this way the difficulties of the Union may be in some degree lessened.

The Commissioners much regret the prevalence of sickness in the Union, and under the circumstances they will readily sanction the appointment of an additional medical officer, and also of a resident apothecary; though under ordinary circumstances they would prefer that the apothecary should not reside in the workhouse.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

It is with very deep regret that I have to report that Mr. Shaw, the master of the Moynoe workhouse, died at five o'clock yesterday morning, after an illness of rather more than three weeks' duration. This case at first assumed that of fever, accompanied with cough and spitting of blood; but within the last few days jaundice supervened, and the poor fellow had not sufficient stamina to sustain him through severe illness.

Scariff Union.

Unfortunately the assistant master of the Scariff workhouse is at present laid up with fever, as is also the porter who was in charge of Tomgraney, and other of the attendants. The long-continued cold and damp weather has doubtless chiefly contributed to occasion the great extent of sickness now existing not only within our establishment, but also throughout the Union. I trust, however, that the change of diet and a little fine weather will have a salutary effect upon the health of the paupers. But it is indispensable that an additional medical officer should be appointed, and also a resident apothecary; for, with scattered establishments containing 2,000 inmates, it is utterly impossible for one medical man to duly attend to all the sick. A young man whom Dr. Egan engaged as an assistant is laid up with fever.

The inhabitants generally of this Union have sustained a most severe loss in the recent death of three medical men, Doctors Purdon, Twiss, and Frazer; the two latter of fever; and in this populous but very poor and miserable locality, there is but one medical man (Dr. Egan) resident in a circle of many miles extent.

The collection of poor rates this week amounts but to 419*l.*; this sum would not have been so small had not the collector for Scariff been laid up with fever.

In short, there is so much sickness here that the clerk was obliged to go to Limerick yesterday and bring back an assistant, as otherwise it would be impossible to keep account and other matters square.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

I AM to express the regret of the Commissioners at the prevalence of sickness in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners will readily sanction the appointment of a second medical officer as suggested; and under the peculiar circumstances of the Scariff Union, they will not object to a resident apothecary.

Mr. FISHER, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

WE have not ceased in our exertions to endeavour to have the rate collected as quickly as possible, and use every opportunity to urge the collectors to take proceedings against defaulters. The imperfections of the rate-books make it advisable in many cases to endeavour to collect the rate without resort to the law, as the identity of particular holdings would in many instances be difficult to prove with accuracy.

We are sorry to have to report a very small collection this week:—

Mr. Taylor, collector for the Scariff electoral division, still continues confined to bed with illness.

We think it would be well to commence a new valuation at once, so as to have all ready for making a rate on the 1st of August.

The contracts entered into have appeared on our minutes of 23rd instant. It is satisfactory that we were able to agree with the contractors for Indian meal and milk not to require payment until after the 1st August.

We were not able to conclude the bread contract in consequence of requiring six months' credit, and have, therefore, adjourned our decision until next Wednesday.

day. If we cannot agree for a satisfactory price with four to five months' credit for bread, we propose to get hot-hearths at once erected in the workhouse for baking Indian meal bread, as is done in the Limerick workhouse.

At present the health of the paupers seems to require the use of white bread.

We shall have a communication with the treasurer relative to an advance for the use of the Union, not to exceed 5000*l.*, on security of the rates.

The clerk has received the order for extending out-door relief to the able-bodied for one month, to 24th April. Every exertion shall be made by us to reduce the out-relief lists where it can be done without danger to the lives of the recipients. Some further inspection and control are required over the acts of the relieving officers and the superintendents of labour, which are now liable to much abuse.

We regret much to have to report several deaths among the officers of the Union since last week:—

Mr. Shaw, the master of the Moynoe workhouse.

Mr. Farrell, the assistant master of the Scariff workhouse.

Mr. Michael Kerwick, relieving officer of the Tulla electoral division.

Mr. Magrath, the medical assistant to Dr. Egan.

The first three were most useful, active, and intelligent officers, and are a serious loss to the establishment. Mr. Magrath was not an officer of the Union, but was a young man of promising abilities, and would apparently have been a useful assistant in the medical department.

We shall lose no time in seeking for a medical officer to divide the duties with Dr. Egan, and for an apothecary to reside on the premises, and shall report the result of our inquiries. It is most essential to the lives of the paupers that no unnecessary time should be lost.

In affording medical relief to out-door paupers, we wish to have the opinion of the Commissioners as to the best mode of remunerating the medical attendant; whether it should be by yearly salary, or by so much for each case. Where there are dispensary districts, an arrangement might be made by subscribing a certain amount to the dispensary funds, and authorizing the relieving officer to give tickets to the sick poor, entitling them to medicine and medical attendance. We have a proposal for such an arrangement from Mr. W. H. Blackton, surgeon to the Woodford Dispensary.

P.S.—I regret to have to add to this report that my colleague, Mr. John Christy, is unable to sign it owing to severe illness. He attended as usual on Tuesday last, although then evidently very ill. He was obliged to return home on Thursday and take to his bed. The doctor has pronounced him to be in fever, and I fear he will not be able to attend to his duties for some weeks. I shall be quite able to fulfil all the duties with the kind assistance of Captain Hart.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

THE Commissioners have met with some difficulty and delay which they did not anticipate in the negotiation which they entered into for a new valuation of the Union. They have now, however, so far completed an arrangement with a gentleman who has already valued several Unions for the poor-rate, that they have no doubt that the work will be immediately commenced; and although they do not expect that the entire valuation will be ready by the 1st of August, they have no doubt that it will be completed in many of the electoral divisions either before or soon after that date.

The Commissioners will be glad to hear the result of your application to the treasurer for a loan, in order that they may take the necessary steps to obtain authority to guarantee the payment of interest.

With reference to your observation that some further inspection and control is required over the acts of the relieving officers, the Commissioners request that you will explain your views more specifically on this head. The Commissioners would approve of the appointment of a general overseer of labour, whose duty it would be to act as a check on the local overseers, and the Commissioners wish to know whether you propose any arrangement of the same kind in reference to the relieving officers.

The Commissioners have read with much concern your statement of the deaths among the Union officers; they regret also to learn that Mr. Christy is confined by severe illness, and they have thought it advisable to request Captain Hart to act as Vice-Guardian in conjunction with yourself during Mr. Christy's illness.

Scariff Union.

In regard to your inquiry as to the best mode of remunerating the medical attendant for affording medical relief to out-door poor, the Commissioners desire to state that, except in cases of sudden and urgent necessity, they do not think that medical relief should be given out of the workhouse, unless by a medical officer regularly appointed under the 5th section of the Act. No such appointment has yet been made in the Scariff Union; but the Commissioners will give their best consideration to any proposition you may make to them with the view of obtaining their authority for such an appointment. In the few appointments which have yet been made under the 5th section, the medical officer's remuneration is by a fixed salary, and the Commissioners doubt whether the proposal to subscribe to a dispensary, and to authorize the relieving officers to give tickets to the sick poor entitling them to medicine and medical attendance, would be so desirable as the appointment of a medical officer under the 5th section.

The Commissioners have already addressed the Board of Health with reference to the prevalence of sickness in the Scariff Union, and the Commissioners believe that Board is now making inquiries on the subject; and in considering the propriety of appointing a medical officer under the 5th section of the Act, it should be borne in mind that the Board of Health has full power to make adequate provision for the relief of the sick poor.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HART:—March 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a report from Mr. Fisher, from which they learn with much regret that Mr. Christy is disabled by fever from discharging his duties as Vice-Guardian of Scariff Union.

Mr. Fisher states that, with your assistance, he will be quite able to fulfil all the duties; and the Commissioners have deemed it advisable to appoint you temporarily Vice-Guardian of Scariff Union at a nominal salary; and they will feel much obliged to you if, under the circumstances of the case, you will be so good as to act in conjunction with Mr. Fisher in the capacity of Vice-Guardian during Mr. Christy's illness.

The Commissioners do not anticipate that any material additional labour will be imposed upon you by this appointment, and they trust that the necessity for it will not be of long continuance.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 1, 1848.

I REGRET to have to state that sickness (although apparently on the decline) still exists to a considerable extent; and the loss we have sustained by the recent death of several valuable servants, and by the absence, owing to sickness, of others, is severely felt.

That any one medical man could afford due attendance upon all our numerous sick is an utter impossibility, and I therefore now pass several hours daily in visiting them, and seeing their wants attended to, ordering the diet of some, and administering medicine to others.

We hope during next week to secure the services of a second medical officer and of a resident apothecary, both of which are much needed.

We are also much in want of two or three efficient additional officers, and it is equally necessary that we should get rid of those whom we find unequal to the proper discharge of their duties.

We also wish to have the Commissioners' authority to appoint an officer whose duties would be, to immediately control the relieving officers; to be present at the issue of out-door relief; to visit (and institute inquiry on the spot) such parties as are alleged to be unlawfully receiving relief, and in short to be an effectual check upon the relieving officers. For this duty we should require a person of a superior grade, and we think that a salary of 2*l.* per week would not be too large.

We should likewise wish to appoint a head superintendent of labour, and with these additional officers we shall be enabled to keep the male part of the establishment in good working trim. But as regards the female part of the establishment, much remains to be accomplished, as at present there is no employment for women except washing clothes and cleaning the houses. I should be thankful to receive the Commissioners' instructions as to the steps to be adopted towards providing employment for females.

During the past fortnight the collectors have notified the receipt of 695*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* In numerous cases it will be extremely difficult to collect much of the outstanding poor-rates. On Monday and Tuesday, however, several cases of rescue will be adjudicated upon by the assistant barrister, and I trust that a fresh impetus will be thus given to the collection.

It was with much concern that I read in a communication from the Commissioners to the Vice-Guardians that they could not hold out a prospect of a further donation from the British Relief Association. I sincerely trust that the Commissioners may be induced to give this important question reconsideration; and in expressing this hope, I beg leave to assure the Commissioners that I am duly impressed with the necessity which exists for husbanding the resources of the Association; indeed I have all along considered it as a sacred fund, to be drawn upon only in cases of the most urgent need, and thus it is that I have never applied for a single shilling to provide rations and clothing to school children, because I considered that we should greatly need every farthing which the Association could spare to any one Union for direct poor relief purposes, and that with the best control which our limited means could establish at least three-fourths of the charity would have been misapplied at the schools.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 4, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your report, dated the 1st instant, relative to Scariff Union.

The Commissioners are prepared to sanction the appointment of an officer as proposed by you, to control and act as a check upon the relieving officers. They are also prepared to sanction the appointment of a competent person as head superintendent of labour.

As regards the employment of the female inmates of the several workhouses in the Union, the Commissioners think that, in addition to washing clothes and cleaning the houses, the females may be usefully employed in sewing, knitting, and in making up the clothes required for the use of the workhouse.

With reference to your request that the question of further assistance from the British Relief Association may be re-considered, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they trust that for the present at least the Vice-Guardians will be able to dispense with the need of any assistance from the British Relief Association. At the same time the Commissioners admit that the absence in Scariff Union of any relief to school children from that Association is a point which ought not to be lost sight of in considering their application for direct assistance in aid of the poor rates.

WE have again to report a small collection for the week; the collectors attended on Tuesday, except Mr. Taylor, who had not quite recovered from his illness, but I am glad to state he has been able this day to resume his duties.

The collectors for Tulla, Feakle, Killiman, and Mount Shannon, report that they have several cases of process and of rescue to be tried at the quarter sessions of Killaloe on Tuesday next, on which occasion Captain Hart and I intend to be present. Molony, the collector for Clonrush and Woodford, has seven processes to be tried at Portumna on Monday, the 3rd inst.

The collector for Killaloe electoral division states, that he has 73 warrants to receive from the magistrates against defaulters at the next petty sessions at Killaloe. It appears to be the practice with the magistrates, when parties are summoned before the petty sessions for non-payment of poor rates, to delay issuing the warrants until the next day of sessions, which sometimes does not occur for a fortnight, and by these means much delay and additional trouble is experienced by the collectors, besides giving time to those who are disposed to evade payment to remove their stock or effects out of the way. In one instance it was stated to us by Sullivan, the collector for Tulla electoral division, that by this delay one of the magistrates, who was on the bench when a warrant was ordered against one of his tenants for poor-rates, made use of the interval to seize his tenant's effects for rent, by which means there was no property left to seize when the collector received the magistrate's warrant.

So much delay has taken place in collecting the amounts rated against immediate lessors, that we have been obliged to call on all the collectors by minute to furnish lists of defaulters, that we may consult as to what proceedings it is best to adopt against them.

We have to bear testimony generally to the proper conduct of the farmers in this Union in paying their rates cheerfully and promptly, but, from whatever cause, we do not experience the same readiness on the part of the landed proprietors, with some honourable exceptions.

Mr. Marcus Pattison, whose correspondence with the Commissioners on the subject of the 7s. 6d. rate has been printed in the Fifth Series of Papers, had not paid any part of his rate on Tuesday last, when the collector gave in his report.

We have to complain of the conduct of agents of the properties of absentees in this Union, who frequently refuse to pay the rates of their principals unless the collector attends at their offices in Limerick, Ennis, or wherever they may be, to point out all particulars. We think it ought to be the duty of those gentlemen to come to Scariff and examine the rate-books, so as to satisfy themselves, and not to put the collector to the expense and delay of travelling to a distance out of his district for their convenience. In many cases of absentee proprietors it is difficult to find the agent or to make him pay; we wish to know how to act in cases where the immediate lessor is residing in England or in a foreign country.

Some of these difficulties will be obviated under a new valuation, as we shall have the immediate lessor rated by name in all cases where he can be ascertained. In our present rate-books there is not a single instance where the name of the immediate lessor is inserted.

The amount collected this week is 299*l.* 16*s.* 9½*d.*, particulars as follows:—

	This Week.			Total.			Uncollected.

We are very glad to find that the arrangements for securing the services of a valuator of the Union are so nearly completed, and that the work will be commenced immediately.

We have written to the treasurer, explaining the situation of the Union, stating the security afforded by the rates, and the guarantee we expected to receive for payment of interest, and asking an advance of money from time to time, as required, not to exceed 5000*l.*, at 5 per cent. per annum, and to be paid out of next rate.

We have not been able yet to conclude a satisfactory contract for bread, owing to the high price demanded by those who would be willing to remain six months without payment. The cost of bread for the week, owing to being obliged to use white bread for all the paupers, is about 90*l.* We have an offer to supply white bread of best quality for six months at 6½*d.* per 4 lbs., and brown bread at 5½*d.* per 4 lbs., and no payment to be required until 1st October next. We have another offer to supply white bread at 6½*d.* per 4 lbs. for three months, and payment to be then made.

The cash price of white bread is 6*d.* per 4 lbs. at present, but we have offers to supply it for three months at 5½*d.*, on condition of being paid weekly.

To take a contract for three months at 6½*d.* per 4 lbs., to be then paid, would be equivalent to allowing interest at the rate of 145*l.* 9*s.* per cent. per annum.

To take a contract for six months at 6½d. per lb., to be paid 1st October, would be equivalent to allowing interest at the rate of 90l. 18s. per cent. per annum.

This may give some idea of the high rate of interest paid by the late Board of Guardians on taking supplies for the workhouse on credit at advanced prices, and it is a system we are most anxious not to imitate.

In the contracts for meal and milk, we think the prices agreed for are very reasonable, and not much (if at all) above the ordinary cash prices.

We think it advisable, as soon as possible, to have ovens erected, to enable us to bake Indian meal on the premises, as it is done in Limerick workhouse, but, in the meantime, you will perceive that it would be better for us to pay 10 or 20 per cent. per annum interest for money than to pay a farthing per lb. additional in order to obtain credit.

We have received from the Commissariat at Tarbert, for the second order of the British Association, through Captain Hart:—

15½ tons of Indian meal, at 8l. 8s. per ton	130	4	0
7½ tons of barley meal, at 7l. 14s. per ton	56	5	0
9½ tons of rye meal, at 7l. per ton	66	10	0
3 tons of biscuits, at 13l. per ton	39	0	0
260 sacks, charge at 1s. 11d. each	24	18	4

We have also received from Captain Hart two orders for money from the British Association, amounting to 640l., which have been lodged with the treasurer.

The clothing of the paupers being still very deficient, and much of it out of repair, we have been obliged to order materials to the amount of about 70l.

We have had a visit from the sub-sheriff who presented two writs, one on behalf of Mr. Vance, for 87l. 8s. 11d.; and one on behalf of Mr. Deane, for 51l. 19s. 4d., both dated 31st January, 1848, and returnable the 15th April; unless some arrangements be made before that day, it will be the duty of the sheriff to sell the furniture seized.

At present there appears only one of two courses to pursue, viz., either to allow the sheriff to proceed with the sale, and to become the purchasers ourselves, in which case we think we should obtain the goods at a nominal value, or to pay the full amount of both writs, with costs to the sheriff, and so end the matter.

Not being satisfied that proceedings have been in legal form as against a Board of Guardians, or that the checks were duly presented and protested, for non-payment at the bank, we do not feel inclined to pay the full amount of the writs. It is a question with us whether the issuing of such cheques by the Board of Guardians was legal, and whether Mr. Vance's suit should not have been against those Guardians who signed the cheques. Taking this view of the question, we are rather inclined to allow the sale to proceed.

We continue to be much annoyed in many ways by the operation of the quarter acre clause. It seems almost impossible, in many cases, to determine whether the person who has had land in his possession, has really ceased to occupy. In almost all cases the tenant, who has land and seeks relief attempts a deception.

We have reports every week from the relieving officers, of houses of paupers being thrown down in some cases with the consent of the tenants, who cannot by other means become entitled to relief, and in others by legal process of ejectment enforced by the sheriff.

We are aware that in many instances the landlords are not to blame for endeavouring to get into possession of property for which they are liable to pay heavy rates, but out of which they can obtain no rent.

These processes, however, tend to increase our embarrassment by rapidly increasing the number of paupers.

I have a list of 10 persons who have voluntarily given up their land and houses, in Sheane and Cappabaun, in the electoral division of Scariff, in order, as they say, to entitle them to get into the workhouse, or receive out-door relief.

The houses of these persons were immediately thrown down by the drivers of

Scariff Union.

Thomas Sampson, Esq., who is the agent. The property belongs to John Sampson, a lunatic, the tenants thus dispossessed, owed rent to the amount of 101*l.*, together with poor rate and county cess, and some of them received money for giving peaceable possession.

While this system is going on so extensively around us, it is impossible for us to reduce our relief lists, having besides no workhouse test to offer.

The number of names on the relief lists, is so great, that they are not yet prepared for being posted up in the several electoral divisions, and the relieving officers are by no means quick in their operations, we hope to have them all ready next week.

The inspection we consider necessary to be exercised over the relieving officers would be partly answered by the appointment of an overseer of labour, but we would also desire that the same person should investigate cases of relief, to others than the able-bodied, wherever complaints were made of the relieving officer. We think the appointment of a respectable person at a salary of 2*l.* per week, would be advisable, with a certain allowance for travelling from one electoral division to another, each of which he should visit weekly.

The mortality in the workhouse last week, was very considerable, 37 having died; I thought it necessary to get a special report from the medical officer in consequence. Several of the deaths occurred at Moynoe House, and we think much of the illness there was caused by insufficient clothing, a deficiency of which we have been endeavouring to remedy as quickly as possible. Captain Hart, and I visited Moynoe House on Friday, and inspected it very closely, we were pleased to find the number of invalids much reduced, and the diseases of the children generally not of a malignant type, of the deaths last week ending 25th March, there were in all the houses:—

	Men.	Women.	Boys.	Girls.	Total.
Typhus Fever	..	1	..	1	2
Hectic Fever	..	..	..	2	2
Remittent Fever	..	..	1	1	2
Gastric Fever	..	..	■	..	3
Small-pox	..	..	..	1	1
Diarrhœa after Fever	2	4	..	9	15
Dentition	..	..	3	..	3
Chronic Dysentery	3	2	..	1	6
Wasting of the System	1	..	..	1	2
Organic Disease of Stomach	1	..	..	..	1
Total	7	7	7	16	37

We are satisfied that so much illness is caused by want of proper ventilation, that we are determined at once to adopt the plan suggested in Dr. Collins's pamphlet on the prevention of contagious diseases.

We have a medical officer in view for the workhouse, whose appointment we shall recommend, in addition to Dr. Egan, as heretofore proposed, and at a salary of 70*l.* per annum. We have also heard of a person who would be well suited to act as resident apothecary, but we may not be able to obtain his services for a few weeks.

We think it very desirable to have medical officers appointed in several districts of this Union, either by the Board of Health, or by us under the 5th section of the Act; as there is no more prevalent causes of destitution in this country, than neglected cases of disease, before recommending any individual appointment, we wish to be informed what ought to be the duties of such medical officers, and what scale of salaries would be sanctioned by the Commissioners. The dispensary physicians might be induced to act in their respective districts, both for the purposes of vaccination and general medical relief, and they should also contract for the necessary supply of medicines. We shall await the result of the inquiries now making by the Board of Health.

We have received a communication from the treasurer and medical officer of the temporary fever hospital at Feakle, who attended our Board on Wednesday last, and they state that "in consequence of the frightful increase of fever throughout the country, the number in their hospital has been increased within the last fortnight to 80; but having only bedding for 50, it was necessary to place many of them two in a bed." As they state there is room in the hospital for 80 beds,

I have written to the Board of Health to authorize that number, and we shall then supply the additional quantity of bedding.

Scariff Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners will bring under the notice of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, that part of your report which relates to the practice of the magistrates to delay issuing warrants for recovery of poor rates until the next petty sessions day after conviction, and to the case in which a magistrate who was in the bench when a warrant was ordered against one of his tenants, took advantage of the interval to distrain for rent, thus leaving no effects to be taken under the magistrates' warrant when granted.

The Commissioners learn with satisfaction that the farmers in the Union are paying their rates cheerfully and promptly, but they regret to find that you do not generally experience the same readiness on the part of the landed proprietors. The Commissioners do not doubt that you will continue to use the most vigorous measures to enforce payment by this class as well as every other class of rate-payers in the Union, and they are convinced that you will not hesitate to adopt such legal proceedings against them as may be necessary to compel payment. The law furnishes you with the most ample powers for the enforcement of the rate, and the Commissioners presume that you do not see any reason for making an exception in favour of Mr. Marcus Pattison, to whom you refer as not having yet paid his rates.

The difficulties which you describe as being occasioned by the agents of the properties of absentees who refuse to pay the rates legally due by their principals, unless the collector attends at their offices (which are in some cases out of the Union) to point out all the particulars is much to be regretted, and is, no doubt, very embarrassing; but at the same time as no proceedings can be taken against the agent or against the principals where they reside out of the country, the Commissioners can only advise the Guardians to proceed to recover the rate from the occupiers in such cases, when after every effort they have failed in obtaining payment from the agent; the occupiers will be entitled to deduct the whole amount of rate from his next payment of rent.

With reference to the claims of Messrs. Vance and Deane, the Commissioners do not see, under the circumstances stated by you, how you can avoid paying the debt and costs.

The Commissioners are fully aware of the difficulties which occasionally arise in reference to the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act. The Commissioners, however, trust, that increased vigilance on the part of the relieving officers, together with the publication of the names of persons receiving relief, may have the effect of checking, if not of altogether preventing deception, in regard to the occupation of land. In the case which you mention where the landlord gave a certificate that the tenant had surrendered his land, when in fact he had not done so, and the tenant having obtained relief now persists in retaining the land, the Commissioners presume that the relief was stopped immediately on the facts becoming known to you; the Commissioners, however, do not see that you can take any other step in the matter. It may, perhaps, be advisable in any future case in which there is reason to expect that the surrender is not bonâ fide, that the relief afforded should, if practicable, be given in the workhouse only.

With reference to your question as to the duties to be performed by district medical officers, I am to enclose a copy of an order issued to another Union in which the duties prescribed by the Commissioners are set forth.

You will observe that under this order the cost of medical and surgical appliances is to be paid by the electoral divisions and is not included in the medical officer's salary.

SKIBBEREEN UNION.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that the collectors attended on Wednesday, and had their books checked by the clerk; and from this week's return it will be seen that the rates are coming in freely. The Guardians are now enabled to pay off their outstanding cheques, and a considerable balance is to their credit in the hands of the treasurer.

I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, when the report was received from the Committee appointed to prepare a plan to remedy the defects in the present rate-books, and adopt means to have a revision of them preparatory to another rate being struck. A copy of the report is forwarded with the minutes, and it contains several important suggestions, which when carried into effect, will tend to the regularity of the rate-books in future, and be productive of much benefit to the Union. Tenders were received for clothing, and according to the invitation in the advertisement to industrial societies and private individuals (who have flannel and linen manufactured) to send in samples and tenders. I have much pleasure in reporting that a considerable quantity appeared, and was taken by the Guardians; and in order to afford increased employment in the Union, more will be taken as manufactured, and not purchase a full supply from those at a distance as hitherto. From the increased pressure upon the workhouse, a resolution was adopted to rent a large store in West Skull (about 16 miles from Skibbereen), which will accommodate 600 paupers. It is proposed to have an assistant master and matron for that house, and that certain classes be sent there from the workhouse, by which it is expected sufficient room will be had for all.

The female children have been removed from the workhouse to the store fitted up for their permanent accommodation, which will, I expect, be attended with beneficial effects; this change gives additional day-room for the adult females, which was much wanted.

A resolution was passed in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee appointed at a previous meeting to concentrate the hospitals, and have only five in the Union; but it is proposed that the present hospitals remain open until sufficient accommodation be provided in the several districts named for the reception of the patients to be admitted. I have more fear of the western part of the Union, and that Kilmoe and East Skull would require distinct hospitals at least for three months longer.

A meeting of the Kilmoe Relief Committee will be held to-morrow, at which I purpose attending, to have their opinion with regard to the safety of closing the hospital there, of which I shall report. In some parts of the Union fever and dysentery prevail to some extent, but few deaths occur.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

WITH reference to the proposal of the Guardians to rent a store in West Skull for an auxiliary workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners will readily sanction the renting the store at Skull, if you are of opinion that it is well adapted to the purposes for which it is intended.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, when the several relieving officers attended, and had their books checked and signed; they send them in the day previous to the clerk, by which arrangement the business is more satisfactorily done. The stores in West Skull are being fitted up for the permanent accommodation of paupers to be drafted from the workhouse, and it is proposed to send none but men there, and have the greater part of the house for adult females. It is expected that 300 will be sent on Monday next, and as the arrangements are completed more will be sent; the stores are calculated to contain from 500 to 600; this will relieve the workhouse very materially.

The Guardians have ordered that two sheds be erected in connexion with the probationary wards, according to the plan suggested by Mr. Wilkinson, and I have arranged to have these completed without delay; if necessary, they will afford excellent day-rooms, and should it be found necessary, more stores will be taken, as I anticipate a considerable pressure for the next six weeks, and the Guardians are determined to meet the wants of the Union as far as in their power, and carry out the intentions of the law to the utmost. An additional supply of clothing was taken to-day, and all hands are employed making up as required. A large quantity of flannel and coarse linen has also been purchased from the industrial societies in the Union, and more ordered, which will have a good effect in stimulating the people to industry, and afford employment to many of the females in the Union. The Guardians are determined as far as possible to encourage this useful manufacture. The rates continue to be got in well; over 1900*l.* is this day to the credit of the Union in the hands of the treasurer.

Skibbereen Union.

A meeting of the Kilmore Relief Committee has been held there, and a resolution adopted, that a letter be addressed to the Central Board of Health, stating their decided opinion against closing the hospital, in which I fully concur, at least for the next two months. I am sorry to say there is very little employment in the Union for the labouring population, which increases the pressure upon the workhouse. Were it not for the relief afforded the children at the schools by the British Relief Association, the consequence would be difficult to contemplate, as from the dense population of paupers, the rates could not by any means meet the expense of affording out-door relief to the able-bodied, which would otherwise be inevitable. I am still of opinion that we shall get over the season without having recourse to that which would check all industry and swamp the Union. The accountant selected to arrange the books of the Union is diligently engaged in doing so, he appears to be very competent; no money is to be paid until the whole be completed satisfactorily.

MR. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that 100 of the male paupers were sent to the auxiliary workhouse in West Skull on Monday last, and 300 more will be sent there to-morrow. The two sheds alluded to in my last report in connexion with the probationary wards are nearly finished, one of which will be occupied to-morrow. This will afford much accommodation, and prevent the danger from overcrowding in the probationary wards. There has been a considerable increase in the admission to the workhouse during the week; but when the sheds are finished, and the other arrangements (in progress) completed, I expect sufficient accommodation will be provided for the present, but should it be found necessary, additional buildings will be rented. On sending the male paupers out to the house at West Skull over 100 refused to go, but took their discharge in preference, as I had arranged to send those in the house from the eastern part of the Union to the west.

The clerk having had to attend at Bantry sessions this week upon a prosecution, the collector's books were not checked; about 900*l.* has been lodged since last return. The rates continue to be collected without difficulty. The returns for this week and next shall be forwarded together. The roofs of the several buildings will be examined immediately, and a contractor had to put them in proper repair.

Captain Gordon.

I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, when the relieving officers attended, and had their books and accounts checked. On hearing of the serious illness, I went over to Bantry yesterday, and took Dr. Donovan with me to see him. I regret to say he is dangerously ill in fever. I purpose going there again to-morrow to assist in having the school accounts made up for the last week. Dr. Donovan will accompany me to see Captain Gordon, as he is considered most skilful in fever cases. If sanctioned by the Commissioners, I would go over to Bantry once a-week during Captain Gordon's illness, to assist the Guardians there, and prevent any irregularity in the school accounts.

P.S. I omitted reporting that an assistant master has been appointed, subject to the approval of the Commissioners; he seems a competent person, and highly recommended.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 22, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners are obliged by your offer, and they request that you will have the goodness to proceed to the Bantry Union once in each week, as you propose, until Captain Gordon is able to resume his duties.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 21, 1848.

I HAVE to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that an act of insubordination and plunder was committed at the auxiliary workhouse at West Skull, on Sunday morning last. The paupers there, forced their way into the store in which the provisions were kept, and took what was provided for their dinner and breakfast next day. The assistant master in charge, sent for Mr. Limerick, the magistrate at Skull, and the police, and had the ring-leaders arrested, and they have been sent to Bridewell, in order to have them tried for the offence. I am also sorry to have to report that the paupers returning from the store in Skibbereen (in which they sleep) to the workhouse this morning, attacked a bread cart on its way to the schools, and took a quantity of bread. An example will be made, as such attempt at insubordination must be met at once with firmness, or the consequence would be much destruction. Many of them solicit to be sent to gaol, and do not stop at anything to accomplish this, as they say "they get a better allowance there than in the workhouse." If the gaol allowances were assimilated to that of the workhouse dietary it would have a good effect; otherwise sending them to prison is no punishment, but a boon. If a representation were made to the proper quarter upon this subject it might be attended with good effect.

With reference to the tabular return ordered by the Commissioners of the in-door and out-door relief of the four weeks preceding the 12th instant, I have been urging the clerk to complete it, but find a great difficulty in having it done; in future I shall endeavour to have them sent more regular. I have much pleasure in reporting that Captain Gordon is going on favourably, and hope to be able to report him out of danger in a few days; I shall continue to go over to Bantry as often as I can be spared here during his illness, to assist the Guardians.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON :—February 26, 1848.

(A.) I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant, a copy of a report which they have received from Mr. Marshall, Temporary Poor Law Inspector for the Skibbereen Union; and I am to request the attention of his Excellency to the passage in the report marked (A), relating to the dietary allowed in the county gaol.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 26, 1848.

ON Thursday I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians in Skibbereen, when the relieving officers' books and accounts were examined. Tenders were received for sheeting; and one tender was received, and also accepted, for repairing the roof of the several buildings of the workhouse. More paupers have been sent to the house in West Skull this week. One of the sheds in connexion with the probationary wards has been completed, and is now occupied; the other will be ready for paupers next week. This affords much accommodation, and will prevent danger from overcrowding these wards, and they can afterwards be converted either into day or school rooms. The rates continue to come in freely. Over 2,600*l.* is now in the hands of the treasurer to the credit of the Union. Every exertion is making to cultivate the land, and prepare for the spring crops. A number of persons have been admitted to the workhouse the last week, who acknowledged they have taken small portions of land in the way of conacre, upon which to plant potatoes, and will leave the workhouse to do so next month. A question was raised in the Board on Thursday, whether their having done so disentitles them to relief, but the majority were of opinion, that a person taking conacre for the crop, cannot be considered as holding land; they are not liable for the rates or taxes, but merely pay for the use of the land while the crop is growing. Many would avail themselves of relief through the poor-law, while their potatoes are coming to maturity, and a much greater quantity would be planted if they can be allowed to have it. This is an important consideration, and one upon which the Commissioners may decide.

The sanitary state of the Union continues favourable; very little fever, and few deaths from any cause. Much distress prevails in many localities. The relief afforded at the schools continues to have valuable effects to the Union, and they can now be conducted with more regularity. Over 71,000 children are fed daily. The Committee of Guardians in the eastern part of the Unions meets every Wednesday at Milltown Rosscarberry, and manage the affairs well. The formation of this Committee has been of great advantage to that district. Exertions are making throughout the Union to give employment by manufacturing flannel and linen, and in a short time it is expected that a sufficient quantity will be made to supply the workhouse. I am sorry to report there is very little employment afforded under the Drainage Act. Several applications have been made for loans, but there seems great delay in having the arrangements completed.

Skibbereen Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 4, 1848.

WITH reference to the cases of persons who have been admitted into the workhouse of the Skibbereen Union, and who it appears had previously rented small portions of land, as conacre, with a view to planting potatoes, I am to state that the Commissioners having taken the opinion of Mr. Henn, Q.C., on the subject, he states that he does not consider hiring ground in his way as occupation, within the meaning of the Act 10 Vic. cap. 31.

The Commissioners consider that relief, by way of loan, would meet such cases.

An extract from your report, relating to applications for loans under the Land Improvement Act, has been forwarded to the Board of Works.

MR. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I attended a meeting of the Finance Committee on Wednesday last, when the Aghadown and Kilcoe Hospital accounts were examined and passed. The amount due since the 30th September will be paid by the Guardians. The accounts of Tullagh Hospital were also passed; a balance of 50*l.* remaining in hands of the treasurer, from the sums advanced to the Relief Committee there under the Temporary Relief Act, which should be applied to liquidate the debts of the hospital: but the treasurer refuses to hand it over without orders from the Commissioners. I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians here yesterday, when a resolution was passed to suspend the relieving officer for Ardfield, Rathbarry, and Kilkerranmore, for charges as stated on the minutes; and I would recommend his dismissal, as it is most important that an example be made in his case from the manner he has acted. A resolution was passed to apply to the Commissioners for a sealed order to give out-door relief to the able-bodied, with a view to enable those taking conacre, or holding less than a quarter of an acre of land, to plant potatoes and sow turnips. The Guardians would not think of having recourse to this should the Commissioners not sanction their carrying out the plan proposed, and restrict it to a limited period to those actually engaged in this work on their own account; and that proper arrangements be made to prevent the relief going beyond it, I stated to the Guardians the usual terms upon which the Commissioners granted such order—"that labour by task-work (generally in breaking stones) was insisted upon;" that the Guardians should accompany their application with the particulars of the plan proposed. This will appear on the minutes. No doubt if it be practicable to accede to their application, it would be attended with beneficial effects; and the Guardians would, I have no doubt, endeavour to carry out this mode of relief to the best advantage, as they have, during my experience, shown every disposition to carry the law into effect fairly, and afford every relief to the poor. The amount of rate collected is a strong proof. In your letter of the 4th instant, with reference to persons renting conacre being admitted to the workhouse, Mr. Henn, Q.C., does not consider having ground in this way as occupation within the meaning of the Act 10 Vict.

Skibbereen Union.

cap. 31; that the Commissioners consider relief by way of loan would meet such cases. I would be glad to know in what way this loan is meant—whether any assistance would be given to those out of the workhouse in money or provisions, to enable them to till their gardens.

Mr. Keane, the agriculturist from the Royal Agricultural Society, has arrived, and attended the meeting of the Guardians, when arrangements were at once made to have meetings throughout the Union, for the purpose of his giving instructions to the farmers. I shall attend with him when my duties permit, and afford every assistance in carrying out so desirable an object, to stimulate the people to energy and a better system of cultivation. There appears to be every disposition in this Union to receive information upon this subject.

I am sorry to have to report that dysentery has been on the increase. Arrangements are about being made to have more hospital accommodation at Skull, in order to receive any cases that may arise in the workhouse there. In a former report I stated my fears of the consequence of closing any of the hospitals in the Union before sufficient room be had in the districts proposed, and suggested that all should be kept open to receive fever patients, and bad cases of dysentery, for at least two months longer. I am still of this opinion, and that the Central Board of Health be cautious in rescinding the present appointments of their medical officers, as contemplated, or closing any of the hospitals before that period. The person appointed to arrange the books of the Union will soon have them completed, in order that the audit for the 25th instant, be made in proper time.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

I AM to inform you that relief by way of loan to able-bodied persons can only be given in food, and under the usual conditions.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Health the statement in your report as regards the temporary fever hospitals in the Union.

MR. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 6, 1848.

I ATTENDED a meeting of the district Committee of Guardians at Milltown, Rosscarbery, for the eastern part of the Union on Monday last, when the out-door relief lists were examined, and other business transacted of considerable importance.

A meeting of the Finance Committee was held on Wednesday, to pass the hospital accounts; they are in future to meet weekly for this purpose. In the evening I went to Bantry, and next day proceeded to Castletown Berehaven, with Mr. Clarke, the Vice-Guardian, and on our way inspected the schools; directions had been given to the relieving officers to strike off all children from the out-door relief lists; additional rations were ordered in some cases for the schools, but in general the children had been receiving from both sources. This will lessen the expenditure for out-door relief, which has been much higher than in the Skibbereen Union. At Castletown I accompanied Mr. Clarke to his districts, where he meets the relieving officers and initials the lists as the paupers appear; I inspected the several schools, and gave directions to the superintendents with regard to their proper management, and that those children struck off the out-door relief lists be provided for.

In many of the localities destitution prevails to a great extent; and dysentery is on the increase; there appears to be great exertion to prepare the land for potatoes and other crops. I have great pleasure in reporting Captain Gordon much better, and recovering rapidly.

On my return to Skibbereen, I find by the minutes of last meeting of the Guardians, that notice of a motion has been given for next Thursday to apply to the Commissioners for a sealed order to give out-door relief to the able-bodied for a period not exceeding six weeks, with a view to support those while planting potatoes; but as labour is required in return, by task work, I fear there would be some difficulty in carrying out this, and none in possession of more than a quarter of an acre could be allowed this relief. If the Commissioners would point out any plan by which this could be carried into effect it would be desirable; hitherto I have adopted every means to prevent the necessity of making such an application. It should be confined to those able-bodied labourers while actually employed preparing their gardens for potatoes or other crops on their own account.

I have to report that the probationary sheds have been completed, and are of Skibbereen Union. great advantage. I propose having the sewerage of the workhouse examined and improved, as this is most essential to prevent disease in the house. A wash-house is also about being erected of timber, in connexion with the infirmary, to prevent the clothes of the sick being washed with the others. Dysentery is rather on the increase, but this may be attributed to the severity of the weather.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 18, 1848.

THE attention of the Board of Health has been drawn to the increase of dysentery in the Union.

As regards your observations on the proposed extension of out-door relief to the able-bodied poor in the Union; I am to refer you to the Commissioners' answer to your subsequent report on the subject.

An extract from your report relating to the erection of a wash-house at the infirmary, and the improvement of the sewerage, has been forwarded to the Commissioners' architect.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners, that I went to Bantry on Monday the 13th instant, and proceeded to Castletown with Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Crawford, and Mr. Clarke, when a site for the workhouse there was selected and I gave directions with regard to the schools.

I returned to Bantry next day and inspected the workhouse with Mr. Crawford, and came to Skull in the evening; next day, Wednesday, Mr. Crawford and I inspected the auxiliary workhouse there, and gave orders for the employment of the paupers in that place. We attended a meeting of the Relief Committee in Kilmoë, when Dr. M'Cormick was present, and the allegations contained in his statement to the Board of Health were investigated, but they could not be supported. It was satisfactorily shown that the relieving officer had done his duty and afforded relief to those eligible to receive it. Destitution in that district prevails to a greater extent than in any other we visited.

On Thursday Mr. Crawford returned with me to Skibbereen and attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians and inspected the workhouse.

From the increased number of applicants for relief in Kilmoë, I found it necessary to suggest to the Board to appoint a relieving officer for that electoral division, and divide the present district. The Guardians resolved that the salary of the present relieving officer be reduced to 35*l.*, and that West Skull and Kilmoë have one each at least during the pressure in these divisions. Mr. Crawford concurs in this arrangement, as it is necessary to have every attention given to the western part of the Union to meet the numerous cases who require relief at present. An application has been forwarded to the Board of Works for a supply of tools, in order to keep the able-bodied paupers at Skibbereen and Skull employed.

Insubordination has been evinced in the workhouse; but by making examples of those concerned, this will be checked at once.

I beg to enclose a copy of a notice, to the effect that any pauper committing any depredation be at once discharged—and I hope the Commissioners will sanction this; as being obliged to send the male paupers to sleep in the stores rented for that purpose, they made several attempts on their way to plunder the bread sending to the schools. I have had these notices printed, since when there has not been a repetition of the kind.

With reference to the revision of the rate-books, the revisor has been ordered to divide the Union into districts, and give notice of the days he will attend in each to receive objections, and have the names correctly entered of those liable for the rates, as many changes have taken place within the last year.

A resolution was adopted to have the names of all persons receiving in-door and out-door relief at once printed, and I shall have a copy sent to each landlord in order to show the necessity of employment being given in the Union, to save them from heavy rates and prevent improper persons receiving relief.

Mr. Keane, the agriculturist, has had four meetings in the Union, which were well attended by the farmers, from which I anticipate good results. On my way to and from Castletown I found a very general appearance of exertion among the farmers preparing the land for potatoes.

ENCLOSURE referred to.

Notice.

As frequent depredations have lately been committed by the paupers of the workhouse at Skibbereen and Lowertown, the Board of Guardians are resolved to discharge any pauper from the house at once who may be found committing any such acts or not obeying the orders of those placed over them.

It is to be hoped this notice will have the desired effect of preventing the like occurrence in future, and the Guardians from being obliged to carry this resolution into effect.

Signed by order,

Skibbereen, March 9, 1848.

J. J. O'SULLIVAN, *Clerk to Union.*REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

WITH reference to the mode adopted for punishing paupers guilty of plunder or insubordination, I am to state that the Commissioners prefer that disorderly or refractory paupers should be punished in accordance with the workhouse regulations or the provisions of the 58th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act.

The discharge of persons from a workhouse in a destitute condition may lead to melancholy results, for which the Board of Guardians would not be held to be wholly blameless.

The attention of the Board of Health has been drawn to the statement concerning Dr. M'Cormick, of Kilmoe.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I proceeded to Skull on Saturday last, and inspected the auxiliary workhouse at Lowertown, and found it much improved, and the paupers more amenable to the orders of the assistant-master there.

I also visited Kilmoe, and examined further into some charges brought by Dr. M'Cormick against the relieving officer of that district; but in every case I found no cause of complaint, but that he had done his duty to my satisfaction.

On Monday I went to Bantry, where I found much destitution prevailing in some localities and an increase of dysentery.

In giving directions to the persons appointed to inspect the schools in that Union, I desired, when visiting their districts, that they should report any cases among the adults to the relieving officer that require his immediate attention, by which means relief would be afforded to proper objects; and I have had circulars printed for the guidance of those inspectors, but not in any way to interfere with the duties of the relieving officers, which will have a good effect, and prevent deaths from destitution or neglect.

I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day in Skibbereen, when contracts were entered into for a supply of provisions, &c.; these we had on good terms, owing to the Guardians being in better funds. Contracts for clothing were not taken, as it is proposed to purchase such articles as can be had in the Union, in order to afford as much employment as possible, and encourage home-manufactures.

A resolution was adopted that the Finance Committee shall not receive estimates for the support of more than the five hospitals proposed to be kept open in the Union beyond another fortnight, therefore all the other hospitals must be closed at that period. I shall endeavour to urge the Guardians to provide accommodation for those requiring admission from other districts in proper time. If a few canvas tents were had, such as were sent last summer from the Commissariat stores, they would be of great advantage.

The Guardians have resolved that a relieving officer for Kilmoe shall not at present be appointed, but that the present officer continue to do the duty as hitherto, there and in West Skull: he is most efficient. Should it be found necessary to make another appointment, I shall bring it before the Guardians.

One of the rate collectors (John Kelly) did not attend last day with his books; should he not attend next Board-day, and account satisfactorily for this neglect, I shall recommend his dismissal. I have much pleasure in reporting that the rates continue to be well paid, as will be seen by the amount in the treasurer's hand—over 3200%. The sanitary state of the Union is favourable; few deaths occur, and none from starvation. A considerable number of the able-bodied paupers took their discharge from the workhouse last week: there will be considerable employment for them immediately; and those landed proprietors who have obtained loans under the Land Improvement Act will take all from the workhouse in their locality. As the weather improves I anticipate little pressure. Over 2200 children receive bread at the schools at present through the bounty of the British Association, which is of incalculable benefit to the Union. The rate-payers reap the advantage also, as from the commencement these children receiving this relief were struck off the out-door relief lists, by which the expense to the Union has been saved over 200% a week; and there is another great advantage resulting from this valuable assistance, the great saving of potatoe for seed, which many of the parents would have been obliged to consume to support their children. All are fully sensible of the bounty conferred, and are most grateful.

I have great pleasure in reporting that Captain Gordon is much better; he will soon be able to remove for a short time for change of air. I shall continue to visit Bantry weekly till he is able to resume his duties in that Union.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 30, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners, that having received a letter from Captain Ommanney (the Poor Law Inspector at Kenmare), requesting information with reference to the management of the schools, and being obliged to visit Bantry, I proceeded to Kenmare, and returned to Bantry on Monday last, after visiting some of the schools and the workhouse there. On Tuesday I attended a meeting of the Vice-Guardians in Bantry, after which I went to Drimoleague, at which Mr. Keane, the agriculturist, had a meeting, and delivered a lecture; it was well attended, and I anticipate much good from the information given at these meetings; others will be held throughout the Union. I proceeded to Skull yesterday and attended an inquest held to ascertain the cause of Margaret Driscoll's death, which had been alleged to have been from starvation; but from the doctor's evidence, this does not appear to have been the case. I have forwarded a copy of the evidence and the verdict by this post.

I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, when Mr. Sommerville was re-elected chairman, and Committees of the new Guardians were formed to have the business of the Union conducted with regularity and efficiency. In West Skull the local Guardians had the paupers on the out-door relief lists brought before them on Wednesday last and inspected. This plan is intended to be carried out generally, which will be attended with advantage and correct abuse. The accounts are in a forwarded state of being settled preparatory to an audit. A resolution was adopted to convert the auxiliary workhouse at Lowertown into an hospital for the western division of this Union, and close those at East and West Skull and Kilmore. This building will afford ample accommodation for that district, and is most desirable with reference to situation; and, if necessary, patients can be sent from Skibbereen, who may be removed that distance with safety.

It was also resolved to rent a store at Leap, about six miles from Skibbereen, as an auxiliary workhouse till September next, to supply that of Lowertown, and remove the paupers there immediately. This arrangement, I conceive, will be attended with advantage to the Union, as in order to afford sufficient hospital accommodation in the western district, a considerable expense will have to be incurred, which will be avoided. The Lowertown stores will contain 300 beds if necessary. Means will be taken immediately to concentrate the other hospitals in the Union. Although dysentery prevails to a considerable extent, I expect ample accommodation will be provided. I laid the circular before the Guardians with reference to emigration to Australia; they received it as a boon, and have resolved to adopt means for carrying out the objects. Lists will be prepared of those eligible for free passage out of the workhouse.

I found it necessary to draw up instructions for the persons appointed to inspect the schools in the Union, that the destitute children might be provided for and prevent abuses; and also that they should report any cases among the adults that required immediate attention, to the relieving officers, which will prevent any suffering by neglect. I beg to enclose a printed copy herewith.

ENCLOSURE.

INSTRUCTIONS to INSPECTORS of SCHOOLS in the SKIBBEREEN UNION.

You shall visit the several schools in your district at least twice a week, and see that the roll and register be correctly kept in each, according to the form given; that the children in attendance, and those on the sick list, correspond with the number on the roll receiving rations that day; that no children over 14 be receiving rations, and those only of the destitute class; that those children who were upon the out-door relief lists shall be first provided for, and that the rules shall be strictly attended to by all, a copy of which to be posted in each school. A weekly report of your business transacted shall accompany the returns of the schools in your district, and have all forwarded to the Poor Law Inspector by each Monday as ordered; that you shall, when inspecting the schools in your district, also visit the children who are on the sick list, in order to ascertain whether they be really sick, and if so, that they receive the bread allowed them at home. You shall also obtain as much information as possible, of such cases among the adults as require relief, and are eligible to receive it under the Poor Law, and report at once the names and place of residence to the relieving officer, in writing, that he may examine into them, and thus assist, but not interfere with him in his duty, and prevent deaths by neglect from starvation; should any such cases occur, you will state them in your report to the Poor Law Inspector, and give the particulars, and also report generally as to the state of your district. You will inspect the bread supplied to the schools frequently, and see that it is well baked, and the proper weight, and that it be delivered regularly at the several schools before 1 o'clock each day, in order that the children may eat their ration before leaving the schools.

To Patrick Sullivan,
School Inspector for Kilmoe.

JOHN J. MARSHALL, Poor Law Inspector.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 31, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners that I attended an inquest held at Skull on the 29th instant, upon the body of Margaret Driscoll, said to have died from starvation, and beg to enclose a copy of the evidence taken, and also the statement of the relieving officer connected with the circumstance of the death of Peter Driscoll, from which it appears there is no blame to be attached to the relieving officer.

ENCLOSURES.

I.

Skull, March 13, 1848.

I have to state that on yesterday it was reported at the barrack here that a woman was lying on the road, convenient to the town, dead or dying; when I immediately sent the constable to inquire about the matter; he found her as stated, being then quite exhausted and insensible. He had her removed into a cabin at hand, and on our communicating the matter to the doctor here, he had her conveyed to the hospital, where she shortly afterwards died. Conceiving it to be a case coming under the Circular of 18th ultimo, I have made the inquiries thereby directed, and find from the son of the deceased (whose name was Margaret Driscoll, and over 70 years of age), that till about six weeks ago his father held about 2½ acres of ground at a place called Dunmanus, the most wretched in this district. This the son states was given up to the landlord about the time mentioned, and that then the father applied for out-door relief, and was refused till he should satisfy the relieving officer that the ground had actually been given up as stated. For this purpose, the son states, his father went about a fortnight since to his former landlord to obtain a certificate of the land having been given up, when on his return he became so exhausted (I presume by inanition) that he died on the road, and since the death of his wife I have heard that the certificate required was found on him when discovered.

It is necessary to explain that I did not hear of this case until last night, when inquiring relative to the death of the woman, when the son added that she, too, fell under precisely similar circumstances, having been, he states, repeatedly refused relief till she produced a like certificate as was required of her husband. She undertook the journey for the purpose of obtaining it, part of which the son states he carried her on his back, but finding her exhausted and unable to return, he states he put her into an unoccupied house, from which I presume she removed till found as already stated. I fear I should sooner have stated as directed, that the place where this woman died was in the Skibbereen Union, and townland of Coondarrigan.

By directions of Mr. Limirick, the local magistrate here, I have requested the coroner's attendance, but as he resides in Bandon, 50 miles from here, and understanding that he is not in the habit of attending to requisitions of this description, from this part of his district, it is probable this will form no exception, in which case should the magistrates hold an inquest, the result shall be communicated.

RICHARD W. CLARK, 2nd Sub-Inspector.

II.

Skull, March 13, 1848.

Sub-Inspector Clark reports the death of Margaret Driscoll, in Skull, on the 12th instant, whose husband held about 2½ acres of ground, which he gave up to his landlord, and obtained a certificate, but died on his way from him. Word was brought to the Sub-Inspector that the woman was dying in the streets of Skull, when he had her removed to the poor-house, where she died. The husband repeatedly applied for out-door relief, but was refused until he could produce the landlord's certificate of surrender. Notice has been sent to the coroner, who lives at Bandon, and a copy of the inquest will be communicated. Skibbereen Union.

III.

At an Inquisition held at Skull on the body of Margaret Driscoll, on the 29th March, 1848, before John Limirick, Esq., and Richard B. Hungerford, Esq.

Jeremiah Driscoll, sworn and examined, depose and saith.—Left Dunmanus three days before the death of deceased, to come to relieving officer to get relief, accompanied by deceased, who told deponent that if she (deceased) got a writing from Mr. Swanton, her landlord, to say she gave up her land she would get relief without going to the workhouse. They did proceed to Mr. Swanton's, and got from Mr. Swanton a writing; deceased also got from Mrs. Swanton a pint of meal and one penny; deponent put deceased (his mother) into a house at Gurtnagruah, where he boiled the meal there with a pint of milk he also got from Mrs. Swanton, which pint of meal and milk boiled, he gave to deceased with the exception of three spoonfulls he ate himself; and deponent took the penny himself; deponent after leaving his mother at Gurtnagruah, proceeded to Ardmaud, near Skull, where he slept that night, and next day went to Dunmanus; did not come to look for his mother until the following day, when he saw her carrying by two men on a hand-barrow up to the hospital in Skull; saw marks of violence on her person, but does not know how she could have received them. Deponent swears that his mother did not give up the land.

James Fitzgerald, sworn and examined.—That he recollects a woman being brought into his house by constable Jordon and another man on or about a fortnight ago; after some hesitation he allowed her to remain in his house; Dr. O'Donoghue came in to see her and gave deponent some money to get spirits, and ordered him to boil some water with which he had her bathed, and gave her a small quantity of spirits; in a short time afterwards she was removed to the hospital; did not hear her complain of any injuries.

Dr. Sweetnam, sworn and examined.—On being called on by constable Jordon and another man, had the deceased immediately removed to the hospital, where she very shortly after died; carefully made a post mortem examination; saw external marks of violence, several incisions and contusions on the fore arm, and on the knees, and appeared to have been recently inflicted; examined her throat minutely, there were slight marks on the neck not sufficient to cause death, and a mark on the right eyelid; found in the stomach and intestines sufficient food to support nature, and to warrant the conclusion that she did not die from starvation; consider her death was the result of a combination of circumstances, old age, probable exposures to cold and exhaustion; the injuries of themselves (though severe) were not sufficient to cause death.

Mr. Robert Swanton sworn and examined.—That deceased's son, Jeremiah Driscoll, went to his house, who told him that he would give up his house and land on Dunmanus; deponent told him that he would go to Dunmanus on the next day to take up the possession, but not to take him (deponent) down there, unless he would give him the possession; deponent there said that he would give him one day that he might be prepared before him, but the said Jeremiah Driscoll then said that he had given up the land to his brother. In about a week afterwards the deceased and her son the said Jeremiah Driscoll came to deponent and offered possession of their land, when deponent then gave a ticket to the relieving officer.

Verdict.

At an examination held on the body of Margaret Driscoll, at Skull, in the parish of Skull, and county of Cork, before two of Her Majesty's justices of peace for said county to ascertain the cause of her death; now we, being twelve of the jurors empanelled on the said inquisition, find and present that the deceased Margaret Driscoll came by her death in the following manner, viz.:—From old age, exhaustion, and exposure to cold; and also find deceased's son Jeremiah Driscoll has grossly neglected her two days before her death, and that no evidence came before us as to how she received those wounds which appeared on her person.

STATEMENT of the RELIEVING OFFICER.

Skull, March 29, 1848.

The man named Peter Driscoll did apply to me for out-door relief, which I refused, knowing him to be in possession of a farm of land which he acknowledged to me when he made the application that he did not give up to the landlord, and that he was residing on the land, but that he would at any moment it would be demanded. I then told him that on his producing me a certificate from the landlord of his giving up the possession, that I would give him out-door relief, he being old and infirm. I heard nothing about him after till I heard that he was carried dead to the town of Skull, he having died, as I am informed, on his way to Robert Swanton, Esq., the agent to the property, to surrender the land to him. At the house of Patrick Driscoll, of Ratravane, where he was in the habit of stopping some days occasionally, Patrick Driscoll told me that Driscoll was at his house eight days before he died, and that every care and attention was paid him in food and other necessaries. Patrick Driscoll seems to be a comfortable farmer, and, he tells me, a near relative of the deceased, Driscoll. He also says that he, the deceased, did not go to Mr. Swanton's; I have also learned that a son of both the deceased Driscolls is at present residing with Patrick Driscoll, of Ratravane, where Driscoll died; immediately after Driscoll's death his wife Margaret Driscoll did apply for out-door relief, and told me her husband was dead, and also the circumstances relative to his death. I then inquired if she or he had given up the land, to which she replied, that they did not, but that he went to give it up. I then told her that she could not be relieved either inside or outside the workhouse as long as she held the land. She then requested me to write a note to Mr. Swanton, that she may send it to him, informing him of her destitution, and also of the death of her husband, and that she would give up the land, which I did; during eight or ten days after I heard nothing more about her until her son brought me a note from Mr. Swanton, saying that her son told him that she gave possession to another son a few days previous; I then inquired where Margaret Driscoll was, and he told me at Gurtuagruah, in East Skull, seven miles from West Skull; I was then on my car going to visit other destitute cases by appointment with them.

Mr. Robert Swanton's testimony at the inquest, and also her son's testimony there, will show that the land has not been given up by either the late Margaret Driscoll or her husband; consequently I could not give them relief or place their names on my books as applicants for relief.

The man named Peter Driscoll never went to Mr. Swanton, but went to a friend's house at Ratravane, where he died; he did not die on the road. The above is a portion of his son's testimony at the inquest held at Skull, the 29th March, 1848.

WM. O. D. WILLIAMSON.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—April 11, 1848.

WITH reference to the communication referred to the Commissioners on the 21st ultimo, relating to the death of Margaret and Peter Driscoll in the Skibbereen Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant a copy of a report which they have received from Mr. Marshall, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, on the subject.

I am at the same time to observe as regards the case of Margaret Driscoll, that it does not appear that the Constabulary Inspector's report of the case is borne out by the evidence. Neither does the verdict of the jury state that her death occurred from starvation.

With reference to the case of Peter Driscoll, it appears that he held land which was not given up, and which it would appear he did not cease to occupy.

It is stated that he died in a friend's house where he had been for eight days, and where every care was taken of him.

Mr. MARSHALL to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 7, 1848.

I ATTENDED a meeting of the Finance Committee in Skibbereen on Wednesday, when the accounts of the Tullagh and Caharagh Hospitals were examined and passed.

In the evening I went to Ballydehob and Skull, to examine the schools there, and I was glad to find the people extremely busy in the western part of the Union planting potatoes and preparing the land for crops.

Dysentery prevails in that district to an alarming extent at present, and not confined to the lower classes. Arrangements are made to remove the paupers from the Lowertown store in this week, in order to have that building available for the reception of fever and dysentery patients at once.

CASTLEBAR UNION.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 4, 1848.

WITH reference to your letter of the 27th ultimo, acknowledging the receipt of my report of the 23rd January, relating to the state of the finances of the Castlebar Union, and stating that application had been made to Count Strzelecki for an advance of 300*l.* from the funds of the British Association, to enable the Vice-Guardians to continue the relief afforded to the destitute poor in the Union (which has been duly received in provision from the Commissariat stores, and issued); also desiring to be informed whether I am able to certify that the rate-payers of the Union will not be able to meet their liabilities, and that they are making such exertion as can reasonably be expected from them, and requesting me to report specially on the following points:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor-rates paid in the Castlebar Union since the Vice-Guardians were appointed, and to how many shillings in the pound on the net annual value does it amount?

2ndly. What is the obstacle to the rate being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted, or likely soon to be exhausted; and if so, how is this proved?

I beg to state that I am not able to certify that the rate-payers in the Union will not be able to meet their liabilities, so far as the rate now in course of collection is concerned; but I am of opinion that they will not be able to meet the full weight of the enormous burden of destitution now pressing upon the Union funds; and the consideration of this question I am desirous to keep distinct from the subject of this rate, which I think ought to be exacted, and to meet which I cannot certify that reasonable exertion has been made by the majority of the rate-payers.

The amount of the rate collected, as shown by the collectors' books at the last examination, was 1640*l.* 11*s.* 1½*d.*, or about 7½*d.* in the pound on the net annual value of the Union, but a further sum has been obtained since.

The collectors' books have been a little more than three months in his hands; they were given over at the latter end of the month of October last. Weekly examinations of his accounts have taken place since the 19th November. There has been some negligence on his part in completing detailed accounts, and omissions in technical points, mentioned in my reports; but I believe this has not been wilful. These matters have however contributed to delay the collection, and have given an opportunity to parties anxious to avail themselves of the occasion, to defer payment of the rate.

I am not in a position to say that there has been dishonesty on the part of the rate-payers; but a great disinclination to pay the demand made upon them has been shown by many, rendering a recourse to legal measures necessary for enforcing the collection. A number of cases, as the Commissioners are aware, of defalcation on the part of immediate lessors, are now in the hands of the solicitor of the Union, who is taking the necessary measures to obtain payment; and other parties have been summoned by the collector, and decrees obtained, which sufficiently prove the existence of this disinclination; and I fear that such measures as these must be resorted to throughout, to obtain the portion of the rate now unpaid.

With regard to the causes of this inclination, the complaints on the part of the immediate lessors are, that the rate-books are incorrect, that the lessor has been charged with the rate in cases when the occupier holds under lease, and in some instances when the land is not the property of the individual at all. They have not availed themselves, however, of the remedy pointed out by law, viz., by an appeal to the Quarter Sessions; and the Vice-Guardians have no power to alter the rate-books. The rate-payers (householders) in the town say it is hard they should pay a new rate whilst the arrears of an old one remain uncollected, as they assert. The burden thus falls doubly upon them; and the occupiers in the rural districts plead their utter inability to meet the demand, in consequence of the losses they sustained in the failure of the potato crop. With respect to the grievance alleged by the householders, the arrears of the former rate have been brought forward, and payment enforced, with the collection of the present rate. And with regard to the rural occupiers, there are some undoubtedly who have not the ability to pay the rate; but there are others who take advantage of this fact to urge the same excuse, though fully able to meet the demand.

That the rate-books require a revision cannot be doubted, and it is most desirable that such revision should take place before a new rate is struck; but it is not in the power of the Vice-Guardians to apply a remedy in the present instance, the parties aggrieved having neglected to avail themselves of the course pointed out by law. There is, therefore, no alternative but to enforce the collection by all legal means, and such a course is now in operation.

The rate now in course of collection varies from 3s. 1d. in the pound, in some electoral divisions, to 4s. 7d. and 5s. in others; and supposing that nearly the whole of it is collected—which, under all circumstances, cannot be expected—it would only suffice, after paying off 50 per cent. of the liabilities incurred by the former Board of Guardians, and the debts in full contracted since, to liquidate the expense of establishment, salaries of officers, and maintenance of the inmates of the workhouse, for a few weeks, as detailed in my report of the 23rd ultimo, leaving the cost of the out-door relief unprovided for.

The expenditure of the Union for out-door relief now amounts to about 350l. per week, so that another rate of at least 5s. in the pound would be required to meet this and the balance of former liabilities for the next seven months; leaving still two out of twelve months from the date of the signing of the collector's warrant in October last, of both in-door and out-door relief unprovided for, although for the expenses of ten months, rates varying from 8s. to 10s. in the pound will have been struck; and this without raising one penny to meet the charges on the Union for sums advanced by Government for building, or for advances made under the Temporary Relief Act.

Whilst, therefore, I am of opinion that the rate now in course of collection should be enforced, as the poundage is not so heavy as to cause serious inconvenience, I do not think the district could meet the whole burden of the destitution thrown upon it, if it is to fall altogether on the Union funds.

I am anxious at the same time that it should be understood, that I mean only so far as the Union funds are concerned, because I am satisfied that the Union contains ample room for remunerative and productive employment—by reclamation of waste lands, deepening of rivers, surface drainage, sub-soiling, fencing, improved cultivation—by which the able-bodied could be employed now; and in the event of these capabilities being handled in a judicious manner, permanent good would be obtained, the condition of the lower classes raised, and a recurrence of the periodical distress which, before the present famine raged, was felt in this part of Ireland, prevented.

The majority of the proprietors, however, are not in a position to make these extensive improvements at the present time. Many of the estates are under the Court of Chancery, and others weighed down by debt and incumbrances.

The tradespeople have also been affected by the badness of the times, rendering them less able to meet their burdens; many have left the country for America, and some of the more comfortable class of small farmers have followed their example; and in a district like this, so entirely dependent heretofore upon the potato, it need not be stated that the loss of that crop pressed heavily upon those who remained; and that the revolution in agricultural arrangements caused thereby, is of too recent a date to have yet permitted matters to right themselves by the opening of new channels of production.

Under these circumstances, when after struggling for some weeks to provide the weekly provision orders for out-door relief, without the means of meeting the contractors' bills for the same; with liabilities to the amount of 1500l. (since increased) incurred since the present rate was struck, and the debts of the former Board pressing upon the Vice-Guardians; knowing the efforts they were making for obtaining funds from the rate-payers, and that the legal processes which had been resorted to would be tedious, and that each day was adding to the difficulties of their position—I felt called upon to make an appeal to the Commissioners, and to certify “that the Vice-Guardians having made every effort in working out their arrangements, the extent of the distress really exceeded their powers duly and fully exerted;” conceiving that, concurrent with their efforts for enforcing the collection by all the legal means in their power (which measures had been put in operation, are now going on, and will be continued until the amount of the rate has been obtained), assistance might be given, instead of such aid being deferred until the lapse of some months hence, when an enormous amount of debt would have been accumulated (even if the contractors would have advanced supplies, a matter scarcely to be anticipated), as a considerable period must necessarily elapse before the greater part of the rate can be collected, there being but one collector in the Union, the law proceedings being tedious, and the decrees requiring time for their execution; and I still beg respectfully to submit that such assistance, however limited it might be, would be of infinite value at the present moment, and would not be permitted to act as a clog upon the collection, or an excuse for evading the rate.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

WE have the honour to forward herewith a copy of a letter addressed to our solicitor by the Earl of Lucan; and as some facts of his Lordship's observations can be explained by the letters of Mr. O'Donel, we forward copies of them also. In the matter of Mr. Lynch, of Partry, alluded to by Lord Lucan, if any arbitration has been entered into or acted upon, it has been done without our advice or consent; from the hour the rate-books were signed, we have, whenever objections have been spoken of by rate-payers, clearly and openly disavowed our possessing any authority or privilege of making the slightest alteration in them; and when, on the 22nd ultimo, Mr. Lynch waited on the Board in Ballinrobe, and required the Chairman to adjust some cases of rating objected to by Mr. Lynch, the Chairman stated that that was the first intimation he had received of such a mode of alteration having been agreed on; and as Mr. Lynch had appealed, and even caused his notice of appeal to be printed and circulated through the country, he ought to have abided by the remedy he had chosen; and the Chairman refused to go into any investigation, or being a party in any way to a private adjustment. Dr. Dempster, the Temporary Poor Law Inspector, then said he would adjust the objections in his own office, and retired with Mr. Lynch; and since that time there has not been any further communication with us on the subject. Upon that occasion the Chairman asked Dr. Dempster, had the Commissioners sanctioned his arbitrating so important a matter? He replied that he considered himself authorized; and on being requested to show the authority on which he acted, he said he had written to the Commissioners offering his services in the matter as an arbitrator, and as his offer was not declined, he considered silence gave consent. If, therefore, the collector has received any directions to abate part of the claims on Mr. Lynch, as set forth in his collecting book, such directions have not emanated from us.

See Ballinrobe Union, page 8.

Lord Lucan's observations respecting our having founded the present rating on the valuation, as set forth in the last rate-books, are not very happy. The Union was originally valued by Charles O'Malley and James Lynch: on this valuation a rate was struck; and prior to the second rate, Mr. John Sheridan was appointed to revise the Union, and this is the revision Lord Lucan stigmatizes as so generally incorrect, and so false and fallacious throughout, that it would be found impossible to act upon it; and yet Lord Lucan and the Board of Guardians re-appoint the author of this false and fallacious revision, to mislead them over again, and abuses us for not having done an impossibility—not having acted on a document which was not completed when we demanded it; and when said to be completed, was refused to be delivered to us unless we paid for it, although it was notorious we had not a shilling of the money of the Union at our command.

Castlebar Union.

On the point of Lord Lucan's agents having fruitlessly endeavoured to obtain an inspection of the rate-books, we beg to transmit a report from the clerk, which we believe is correct.

His Lordship's letter is so unnecessarily vituperative and offensive, that we would have declined subjecting you to the annoyance of reading so passionate and indecorous a production, but as in the last paragraph his Lordship states his intention of repeating his offer to refer (we suppose the subject to arbitration), and in the event of its being declined, and the case being brought into a court of justice, defending himself to the last, we feel it our duty to lay it before you. His Lordship's reply to Mr. O'Donel's first letter is already before you.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. O'DONEL to the Earl of LUCAN:—January 12, 1848.

I HAVE received instructions from the paid officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the Castlebar Union to apply to your Lordship for payment of the sum of 692*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*, being the amount of poor-rates claimed to be due by your Lordship to them on foot of the rate-book, the particulars of which have been, as I understand, furnished to your agent. I am further instructed to request your Lordship's earliest attention to this application, as the exigency in which the Guardians find themselves placed by the numerous and urgent pecuniary demands upon them admits of no alternative but to press upon the several persons charged with the rates the necessity of immediate payment.

The urgency in which the paid Guardians find themselves placed is so great, that I am reluctantly obliged, without waiting for your Lordship's answer to this application, to request that if your Lordship feels bound to dispute the legality of their demand, you will be so good as to instruct your solicitor to receive on your Lordship's part, the necessary legal process to bring the dispute to an issue.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's letter of the 15th instant, and beg to state that, in compliance with the directions it contained, I did not fail to forward a copy of your Lordship's letter to the paid Guardians of this Union, who transmitted that copy for the consideration of the Poor Law Commissioners.

It would appear that your Lordship labours under a misconception, as the paid Guardians inform me that the particulars of the rates in question were furnished long since to Mr. Ormsby, your Lordship's agent, who subsequently produced these bills of particulars to the Chairman of the Board.

The Guardians feel that your Lordship must have been aware of the reasons which compelled them to adopt the valuation, &c., contained in the old books which had been previously acted upon by the dissolved Board, of which your Lordship, I believe, was chairman, from the fact that the subject underwent some discussion between your Lordship and the Chairman of the paid Board of Guardians.

Your Lordship, if aggrieved by the rate, not having deemed it prudent or expedient to avail yourself by appeal of the only mode of redress pointed out by the Poor Law Acts, and for which abundant time had been afforded, the paid Guardians feel that they have no course open to them but to proceed to enforce payment of the rates by using the powers given them by the statutes.

In this latter conclusion the Poor Law Commissioners have, by their letter of the 22nd inst., concurred.

May I, therefore, request that your Lordship will be good enough either to direct immediate payment of the amount of rates claimed in my letter of the 12th instant, or refer me to an attorney who may receive legal process.

The Earl of LUCAN to Mr. O'DONEL:—January 29, 1848.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th instant.

Your not considering deserving of notice my proposal to refer all claims against me for poor rate to any arbitrator conversant with the provisions of the Poor Law Act, is no surprise to me, instructed as you are by Mr. Twisleton, who, since his arrival in Ireland, has so consistently evinced the same spirit of litigation. I am told that a reference similar to one now so unceremoniously declined was in the case of Mr. Lynch, of Partry, acted upon certainly with the sanction, if not at the suggestion of the Poor Law Commissioners.

I deny being under any misapprehension respecting the particulars of the rates; I am assured that only very lately a supplemental list has been furnished, but in a perfectly unintelligible shape, and that my agents have hitherto fruitlessly endeavoured to obtain an inspection of the books, to enable them to elucidate it.

I am aware that at my instance a list of objections, prepared with much labour and care by myself, was furnished to Mr. Lecky, who declined to consider or examine it, although that gentleman had assured me that it was his intention to act fairly, and only to press honest and legitimate demands. It is quite true that the paid Guardians, at a private visit they paid to me, did mention the circumstances which had induced them to continue the old valuation, though condemned and discarded by the former Board of Guardians; and I told those gentlemen that I considered it most unfortunate, for they would very soon discover, if it was not already well known to them, that it was so generally incorrect, and so false and fallacious throughout, that it would be found impossible to act upon it. On such an occasion I was not called upon to say more, indeed ordinary civility forbade my doing so; but your observation forces me to state that I consider the paid Guardians, in striking a rate on a valuation notoriously false and fallacious, and one already condemned, acted most arbitrarily, most unjustly, and quite contrary to law. Such a proceeding is unjustifiable; but these gentlemen cannot pretend to an ordinary excuse for conduct so illegal and extraordinary; the revised valuation was, as I am informed, actually offered to them, and without payment, and they rejected it because the valuator had, I think, wrongly insisted upon previous payment only a few days antecedent. In England a rate struck under such circumstances must be instantly quashed; in Ireland it is attempted to extort the most groundless and most extravagant demands under it, and by paid Guardians who are as conversant with the falsity of the valuation as the rest of the public, and who profess and promise to act with fairness and justice.

It is droll to be reminded that the Board of which I was chairman, had acted upon this valuation, when that Board (which by the by I never once attended) was actually dismissed because it refused to do so, because it refused to comply with Mr. Twisleton's mandates, and to enforce by law, against their convictions and against their consciences, rates that they stated they knew to be wrong and improper; and when it is recollected that Mr. Twisleton, most wantonly and most offensively naming me as a great defaulter, though aware that all I fairly owed had been paid, positively charged the Board with corruption in not prosecuting claims against members of its own body which they knew and had declared to be ill-founded. This valuation would long previously have been set aside, but for Mr. Gulston's assuring me that the errors respecting the immediate lessors would be remedied by resorting to the land; and this is the law at the present time, a course just to all parties, but not the less most consistently rejected by Mr. Twisleton.

You with great simplicity call upon me to direct immediate payment of the gross amount of rates claimed by you, and which you, Mr. Twisleton, the paid Guardians, and Captain Farren, who is said to be the principal instigator of these proceedings, know full well I do not owe, or to refer you to an attorney to receive legal process; I shall at the present time adopt neither of these courses. I decline to pay for houses that do not exist, for lands that do not belong to me, or for holdings under 4*l.* value where I am not the immediate lessor. I can as ill afford as the Union wantonly to embark in unnecessary, costly, and disgusting litigation. I deny the right of Mr. Twisleton, through his nominees, citing me to a court of law, in the hope, contrary to all common honesty, of extorting from me moneys which he and they know I do not owe, but trusting to establish their unfounded claims through the accidental omission of some form given for protection and defence. I protest against conduct on the part of gentlemen, the paid servants of the public, so harassing to the individual, and so odious as naturally to excite opposition to a law I am most anxious by precept and example to support.

I shall, at whatever inconvenience to myself, immediately repair to Ireland, and shall endeavour to adjust these claims; if one shilling, contrary to my anxiously repeated injunctions, is accidentally still owing, it shall be at once discharged. I shall repeat my offer to refer. If I am, notwithstanding all my efforts to avoid it, dragged into a court of justice, I must and shall defend myself to the last; if I am robbed according to law, the consequences cannot fail to secure the amendment of a law found to be outrageously unjust and oppressive, although so lately out of the hands of Mr. Twisleton, its author and administrator.

The clerk reports that on Tuesday, the 25th of January last, after leaving his office at the workhouse, where he had been making up his minutes, he went to the Vice-Guardians' house and took with him some letters for the Commissioners, which he took to the post-office and posted, and then went home to breakfast. In some time after Captain Farren, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, called on the clerk at his house, and handed him two bundles of papers containing lists of names of the several persons in some of the electoral divisions of the Union who were receiving out-door relief, and asked him up to the printing offices: that he went with Captain Farren to the "Constitution" newspaper office, where they left some of the lists with directions, and from thence to the "Telegraph" office with other lists, which the clerk, by direction of Captain Farren, left at the "Constitution" office again.

On the following morning (Wednesday), as the clerk was returning from the post-office, he met Mr. William Young (under agent to Lord Lucan), who said that he was coming up from the workhouse where he had been to see the rate books: the clerk said that he was just returning from the post-office and had not then breakfasted; Mr. Young took and looked at his watch, and named an hour he would meet the clerk after his breakfast at the workhouse.

The clerk shortly after went to the workhouse, where he furnished Mr. Young and Mr. Richard Gallagher, Lord Lucan's clerk, with all the rate books which they called for, and they remained until evening taking abstracts. They came the next morning (Thursday), and remained until about 12 o'clock, Mr. Gallagher being obliged to attend the Petty Sessions Court, of which he is the clerk.

They also attended on the next day, Friday, and remained until evening, and also on the Tuesday following, during all which time they were well pleased with the attention and civility of the clerk, who furnished them with pens, ink, &c., and with the old and new rate books, and they expressed themselves well pleased (particularly Mr. Young) when leaving the Board-room on Tuesday, the clerk having expressed his willingness to afford them at any time every attention in producing the books, &c., when required.

February 6, 1848.

PATRICK FLINN,
Clerk of the Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 8, 1848.

YESTERDAY we had the honour of forwarding to you copies of the correspondence which has taken place between our solicitor and the Earl of Lucan, on the subject of the amount of poor rate due by his lordship in this Union. Mr. O'Donel has handed us a copy of his reply to Lord Lucan's last letter, which we think it right to lay before you.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. O'DONEL to the Earl of LUCAN :—February 7, 1848.

YOUR lordship's letter of the 29th ultimo, the receipt of which I have the honour to acknowledge, is written in such a tone of invective, and casts so many serious imputations upon the acts and intentions of the officers connected with the administration of the law for the relief of the poor in this Union, in language as unmeasured as I believe it to be undeserved, that I cannot regret it should form no part of my duty to reply to it in detail.

As the law does not sanction an arbitration such as your lordship desired, the proposal to arbitrate was one which it was not in the power of the Vice-Guardians, or I believe of the Poor Law Commissioners, to accede to, and I think it will be found that in no similar instance has such a course been adopted or sanctioned by them.

Your lordship has been pleased to say that I have demanded payment of a sum "which I, &c., know you did not owe." In answering this charge I have only to observe that, save by the statements contained in the two letters your lordship favoured me with, I know nothing of the injustice of that demand, opposed to which claim to exemption on your part stand the rate books, made out and struck in October last; and although your lordship was here in November, and aware, as you have proclaimed, of the alleged false basis upon which they, as well as the previous rates, were framed; yet your lordship, aware of all this impending injustice, and no doubt also aware of the relief that could be afforded you by appeal to the then following January quarter sessions, did not deem it proper to have recourse to that tribunal for protection and redress.

I have delayed a few days in forwarding this letter in order to ascertain if the Vice-Guardians had any further instructions to give, and not having received any, I have only to inform your lordship that I must proceed for the recovery of the rates remaining unpaid.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners desire to acknowledge the receipt of your reports of the 7th and 8th instant, referring to correspondence between your solicitor, Mr. Manus L. O'Donel, and the Earl of Lucan, with respect to your notice to take legal proceedings for the recovery of poor rates, amounting to 692*l.* 4*s.* 2½*d.*, assessed on his lordship.

The Commissioners are not aware that they are called upon to take any part in the question raised as to the Earl of Lucan's liability. The rates have been assessed by you as Vice-Guardians, and on your application, the Commissioners have consented, in pursuance of Act 6 and 7 Vic. cap. 92, to your proceeding in the superior courts against several immediate lessors named in your list of those whose rates have not been paid, including the Earl of Lucan.

The Commissioners beg to observe that they have not in any case sanctioned an arbitration of claims to rates. In the case referred to in the correspondence, they were informed by a report from Dr. Dempster, Temporary Poor Law Inspector at Ballinrobe, dated 18th December, 1847, that Mr. Lynch, of Partry, had sent notice of appeal to the clerk of the Union, in reference to which Dr. Dempster was informed (as the collectors excused their inactivity by referring to such notices) "that under the 110th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, rates are payable notwithstanding the appeal." However, in the next report from Dr. Dempster, dated 25th December, 1847, he stated that he had arranged with Mr. Lynch to withdraw the appeal, and had undertaken to arbitrate the matter disputed.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 8, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you that the amount of poor rate lodged to our credit by the collector for the last week is 212*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*; and we have paid thereout 212*l.* 10*s.* for meal supplied by contractors for the out-door relief, and for other current expenses.

The quantity of meal required for the ensuing week's distribution to the persons on the out-door relief list is 40 tons 7 cwt. 2 qrs. 8 lbs., and costs 410*l.*, thus adding largely to a debt of about 2000*l.* already incurred for the same purpose; but you will perceive by the letter which we have the honour to enclose, last night received from our contractors, that we cannot expect any further supply from them.

We have been strongly urging the rate collector to increased exertion, and he has informed us that he has obtained decrees which he purposes to have executed this week, and that he is proceeding against a large number of defaulters, upon whom he is serving summonses to the Petty Sessions Courts.

We send you his written reply to the queries contained in your letter, dated the 4th instant, No. 4325, by which it appears that the magistrates in question did not of themselves raise any objections to defeat the cases brought before them. The collector states that he has applied to the receiver for payment of the rates due on Mr. M'Donnell's property, and that he will also call upon Dr. Dillon for payment of his rate.

ENCLOSURES.

Messrs. MALLEY and HYNES to the POOR LAW GUARDIANS:—February 8, 1848.

ALTHOUGH a considerable sum of money is now due to us, as contractors for the above Union, yet viewing (as we wish to do) the great necessity for administering to the destitute poor this week's provision, we beg to say, that notwithstanding the serious injury we sustain by reason of your incapability of paying us the large amount now due, we will supply the several electoral divisions of the said above Union this week; but we protest against any further risk, unless being in the meantime paid a good portion of the debt already due to us.

Mr. MALLEY to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—February 7, 1848.

IN reference to the letter of the Commissioners of the 4th instant, requiring to know whether the magistrates presiding at the Castlebar petty sessions had of themselves dismissed the cases relative to the poor rates, I beg to say, that such was not the case, but because of the notices not having been signed by the collector. One of the magistrates presiding was Dr. Dillon, who has not paid his poor rates.

With respect to the Ballavary petty sessions, but one magistrate presided. Francis Crosbie M'Donnell had not called of himself for evidence of the signature to the warrants of the collector, but was required by the attorney employed by the defendants, contrary to the opinion of the magistrate. I have also to state, that the same magistrate had left the bench and ordered out the police to disfrain, some parties having used threats to the collector in case of attempting to distrain their premises. This magistrate has not paid his poor rates; his property under the courts.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 9, 1848.

I AM to state in reply, for your information, that the Commissioners have made application for a further advance of 350*l.* to you, to assist you in providing for the relief of the destitute poor in the Union.

With regard to the latter part of your report, I am to request that in your next weekly report relating to the collection of the rate in the Castlebar Union, you will have the goodness to state whether the two rates due on account of the property of the two gentlemen to whom you refer have been paid; and if not paid, in what stage the proceedings to enforce payment are.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 8, 1848.

THE amount of rate collected during the week, as shown by the collectors' books examined on Friday, was	£165	2	5½
The total sum now collected is	1805	16	6½
Leaving uncollected	8141	6	4½

The Rate-abstract Books do not, however, show the full amount received by the collector, as he has been in the habit, although repeatedly urged to discontinue the practice, of taking sums on account which he could not enter in the abstracts, as the parties paying would not name the items of the rate for which the payment was made; nearly 2000*l* has therefore been lodged by him. I do not impute any improper motive to the collector, as I have been informed that on one occasion he lodged a sum of money out of his own pocket to meet the expenses of the Union; he has, however, been decisively called upon to put a stop to the practice, and insist upon the rate-payers naming the items of rate for which they pay, in order that the authorized receipts may be given and checked off in the collecting books.

On Friday I attended at the Court of petty sessions at Ballyvarry, when some poor-rate cases—adjourned at the previous sitting of the magistrates, in consequence of an objection made by the attorney for the defendants, who required that the signature of the chairman of the Board of Vice-Guardians to the collector's warrant, should be proved—were disposed of, and decrees made. When the attorney for the defendants saw that the clerk of the Union was present and the collector prepared, he withdrew his objection; but in order to prevent the necessity of the personal attendance of the clerk in future at the Court, he proved the chairman's signature to the warrants, and the fact was noted in the books of the Court. The magistrates present were Mr. Morony, the resident magistrate, and F. C. M'Donnell, Esq.

The collector having issued fresh warrants in lieu of those previously served on rate-payers in this electoral division, the parties will be summoned before the magistrates at petty sessions at this place, on Thursday next. I enclose a memorandum from the collector, of the number, by which it appears that 42 notices have been served; in four cases the rate has been paid, leaving 38, to which summonses must be issued. I have this day ascertained that the summonses have been served. I purpose being present at the Court, and have informed the collector that I shall attend on every occasion on which parties are summoned for non-payment of the rate, for the purpose of giving him all the support in my power.

As it appears that all the names of the immediate lessors who have not paid the rate have not yet been laid before the Board of Vice-Guardians, the collector has been directed to furnish a supplemental return on the next Board-day, containing the names of every immediate lessor, not included in previous returns, who has not paid the rate; he has also been directed to hand in a return of the decrees obtained in cases of persons summoned for non-payment of rate, showing the name of the person, the amount decreed, and the steps taken for enforcing the same: the return to be continued from week to week.

The collector is aware that the resident magistrate will afford every assistance, and that the aid of the military will be available in enforcing the law. They have already been employed on one occasion, as mentioned in my reports.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

Number of applicants on books of relieving officers	1,918
Of which—admitted to workhouse	29
Placed on out-door relief lists	1,411
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	14,287

The following return shows the number of applicants for relief, the number placed on out-door relief lists, and the total number on out-door relief lists, each week, commencing at week ended 4th December last:—

	Board Days, Weeks Ended
	1847				1848

Applicants for Relief	364	1,459	3,270	4,007	2,469	..	3,510	1 41	2,113	1,918
Placed on Out-door Relief Lists . . .	341	1,466	1,382	3,463	180	1,532	3,221	1,465	1,419	1,411

The greatest pressure occurred in the week ended 27th December, when there were 4007 applicants on the books of the relieving officers, and 3463 were passed by the Board of Vice-Guardians.

The number still seeking relief is considerable, and parties are every day qualifying themselves by giving up their land; and in some localities the chief occupation of the people, is looking for the relieving officer, neglecting the cultivation of the land and preparation for a future crop.

I am anxiously expecting the arrival of one of the instructors from the Royal Agricultural Society, whose presence would, I am satisfied, be of much service. If within the province of the Commissioners, I would suggest that a communication be made to the Society, with a view to one of the lecturers being directed to proceed to this Union.

The following is the Labour Return for the Week:—

	Number in Gangs.	Total Days' Work.	Work executed—Boxes of Stone broken.	Number of Labourers struck off for absence or idleness.
Addergoole .	151	341½	303	..	Saturday, snow—Thursday and Friday, wet. Saturday snow.
Balla	78	339	347	..
Ballintubber .	143	517	392	77	Saturday and Monday snow. Working in workhouse grounds.
Ballyhean . .	149	288½	332	54
Breafy	69	218½	153	1
Castlebar . . .	116	365½	61½	7
Drum	211	711½	661½	20
Islandeedy . .	80	204½	176	1
Strade	118	312½	371	16
Turlough . . .	104	338	308½	34
	1,209	3,636½	3,105	210

The books of the overseer of work in the electoral division of Addergoole not being considered satisfactory, he was dismissed by the Board.

210 labourers were struck off for absence or idleness, they and their families thereby losing their rations.

With reference to that part of my report of the preceding week relative to employment on productive works, I have seen a printed report of an engineer of the Board of Works, upon the drainage of lands along certain lakes near this town, called "The Lough Lannagh District," for which work all the requirements of the Drainage Act have been complied with, and final notice to that effect given by the Commissioners of Public Works. The lands to be recovered amount to 2454 acres; the estimated cost of the works is 12,940l.; and the profit is calculated at 8½ per cent. The engineer in his report states, "Of the many advantages which the proposed drainage will confer on the proprietors, there is one I cannot overlook, that is, the great source of employment it will give to the labouring population living near the works." Again, "From the peculiar nature of them (the works), it will take two years for their completion; and I estimate that daily, on an average, employment can be given to 260 labourers, who otherwise will most likely be obliged to seek relief from the workhouse or other sources." The report is dated 1st September, 1847.

A portion of this district lies close to the town of Castlebar; in fact, the river running through the town forms a part of the proposed work, which would be most serviceable for the employment of the poor in the electoral division of Castlebar.

There is also another extensive drainage work, called the Drainage of the Balla District, in the case of which the Commissioners of Public Works have in like manner published a final notice, stating that all the requirements of the Act of Parliament have been complied with. The estimated cost of the work is, I understand, about 16,000*l.*; it will effect the recovery of land bordering on the Manulla river, running through three electoral divisions of this Union, viz., Strade, Balla, and Drum.

These drainage works, called respectively "The Lough Lannagh District" and "The Balla District," would permanently benefit the proprietors of the lands affected, and would be of much value at the present moment in relieving the poor-rates of a portion of the heavy burden of destitution indicated by the foregoing returns. I have, therefore, thought it my duty to bring them to your notice, as that, if deemed fitting, a communication might be made to the Commissioners of Public Works, requesting that they may be commenced at an early period.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 12, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have communicated with the Royal Agricultural Society, with regard to a lecturer being sent by the Society to the Castlebar Union.

With reference to the collection of the poor-rate, I am to state that the Commissioners consider the collector's practice of receiving sums on account of rate, for which he does not issue receipts, to be seriously objectionable, and one which cannot be permitted to continue. They recommend that in every such case ascertained, the full rate assessed be debited to him; and they request that the Vice-Guardians may be moved to pursue that course.

An extract from your report, relating to the drainage of the Lough Lannagh and Balla districts, has been forwarded to the Board of Works.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 13, 1848.

IN compliance with that part of your letter of the 9th instant requesting that on every Saturday the Vice-Guardians and myself will forward an estimate of the amount which will be required for out-door relief to the able-bodied during the ensuing week, I beg to state that there will be about 8095 able-bodied individuals and their families on the out-door relief lists for the week ending 19th February. The quantity of provision required will be about 22 tons 10 cwt., and the value, at 10*l.* per ton, 235*l.*

As the books of six electoral divisions only were examined on Saturday (yesterday), Monday being the day for examination of the remaining four, the calculation for the latter must be considered an approximation; it will, however, I think, be found very near the amount.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 15, 1848.

APPLICATION has been made to Count Strzelecki for a further advance of 235*l.*, to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the wants of the destitute poor in the Union.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians of this Union having been placed in a position of great difficulty yesterday, in consequence of the refusal of the contractors to supply a deficiency of 7 tons 7 cwt. and 2 qrs. of meal, required to complete the supply of provisions to the paupers receiving out-door relief, for the week ending Saturday next, the grant of 350*l.* worth, received from the British Association, being that quantity short of the amount required; and as very serious consequences would ensue if the poor of the Castlebar electoral division (the district unsupplied) were left for a week without food, I have taken upon myself to place at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians a portion of a grant of 200*l.* upon Ballinrobe Commissariat Dépôt, received from Count De Strzelecki for rationing the children attending schools in the Union, upon the understanding that the Vice-Guardians will replace it, viz., 7 tons 7 cwt. and 2 qrs, value 66*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, out of the next grant of provision allotted to them by the British Association.

It was after every effort to procure a supply from the contractors had failed, that I took upon myself the responsibility of this proceeding, and I have taken the earliest opportunity of reporting it to you and the Count De Strzelecki.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 17, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' thanks for the course which you adopted to enable the Vice-Guardians to provide the requisite supply of food required for the maintenance of the poor entitled to out-door relief in the Castlebar Union.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners have made application for a further advance of 500*l.*, to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the relief of the destitute poor in the Castlebar Union.

The Commissioners have requested the Vice-Guardians to make a close scrutiny into the cases of the parties who are receiving out-door relief in the Union, and to press forward vigorously the collection of the poor-rates.

For the future, the course which the Commissioners are prepared for awhile to adopt, is to undertake to make weekly advances for the relief of the able-bodied men out of the workhouse, provided, that the Vice-Guardians will relieve from the poor-rates able-bodied men and their families in the workhouse, and destitute persons entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, out of the workhouse.

The Commissioners have requested the Vice-Guardians to supply them on Saturday in each week with an estimate of the weekly sum which in their opinion will be required in order to preserve from starvation the destitute poor who are entitled to relief in their districts, forming a separate estimate for each of the three following heads:—

1st. Relief in the workhouse.

2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

3rd. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to such relief under the 2nd section of that Act.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

WE have the honour to state that the collector of poor-rate has lodged to our credit in the last week 200*l.*; and we have paid 200*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* on account of the current expenses of the Union.

The number of destitute persons entitled to out-door relief is 14,968, and the quantity of meal required for the week's distribution is 44 tons 17 cwt. 3 qrs., in aid of which we have to acknowledge a grant from the British Association, through Captain Farren, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, of 350*l.* worth of provisions, equivalent to 38 tons 18 cwt. (the carriage and distribution of which will cost about 30*l.*), and is 6 tons short of the requisite supply. This we have been unable to obtain upon any terms short of our own personal security; and after every exertion, till near midnight, to induce some contractor to give it in the usual way, without avail, Captain Farren, at our earnest request, kindly consented to advance it out of provisions at his disposal, upon the undertaking that we will return it to him out of the next order granted to this Union by the British Association.

In reply to your letter dated 9th of February, desiring to be informed what steps have been taken by the collector in the cases of the two magistrates mentioned in our report, the collector states that he has applied to the receiver upon Mr. Crosbie M'Donnell's property for payment, whose reply being that he has no funds, he has been returned in the list already furnished to our solicitor; he also states that he has served Dr. Dillon (the other magistrate alluded to) with a notice, preparatory to a summons to petty sessions.

Castlebar Union.

The minutes of our proceedings will show that we do not consider the collector is using due diligence in the execution of his duty, and our determination to proceed against him as the law directs, if he shall oblige us to take that course.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 17, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have made application for a further advance of 500*l.*, to assist you in providing for the relief of the destitute poor in the Castlebar Union.

I am at the same time to request that you will have the goodness to make a close scrutiny into the cases of the parties who are receiving out-door relief in the Union, and that you will press forward vigorously the collection of the poor-rates.

For the future, the course which the Commissioners are prepared for awhile to adopt is, to undertake to make weekly advances for the relief of the able-bodied men out of the workhouse, provided that you will relieve from the poor-rates able-bodied men and their families in the workhouse, and destitute persons entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, out of the workhouse.

The Commissioners request you to supply them on Saturday in each week with an estimate of the weekly sum which, in your opinion, will be required, in order to preserve from starvation the destitute poor who are entitled to relief in your districts, forming a separate estimate for each of the three following heads:—

1st. Relief in the workhouse.

2nd. Relief out of the workhouse to persons entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

3rd. Relief to able-bodied persons entitled to such relief under the 2nd section of that Act.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 15, 1848.

THE rate collected during the week, as shown by the collectors' books and accounts, was £ 171 16 5½

The total sum collected now amounts to 1977 12 11½

Leaving uncollected 7969 9 11½

On Thursday I attended the Petty Sessions at Castlebar, the collector having summoned parties before the magistrates for non-payment of the rate. Decrees were obtained in every case (34) save one, which had been settled.

None of the decrees yet obtained have been enforced by the collector, who was called upon by a minute of the Vice-Guardians, adopted last week, to produce a list of all the decrees obtained, with observations showing the measures taken for enforcing the same. The list was accordingly handed in yesterday, but it contained only the decrees obtained at Castlebar on Thursday last, although others had been ordered by the magistrates at Ballyvanny Petty Sessions on two previous occasions. The Commissioners will see by the minutes of yesterday, that the Vice-Guardians have informed the collector of their intention to put the 100th section of the 1st and 2nd Vict. chap. 56, in force against him, unless he does his duty.

The lists of immediate lessors not included in former returns, who have not paid the rate, and of the 20 highest occupiers, handed in by the collector on Saturday, not being considered satisfactory, the observations not being sufficiently explicit, the collector has been called upon to give additional information respecting each case, and to furnish the amended returns on the next Board day.

It is to be feared that the collector's duties, as barony cess collector, will interfere with the collection of the poor-rate.

With regard to the cases of defaulting rate-payers placed in the hands of the solicitor of the Union, the solicitor is now in Dublin making the necessary arrangements for filing bills in the superior courts.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

Castlebar Union.

The quantity of provision required to supply this multitude of paupers, amounted to 46 tons; but as the grants allotted by the British Association did not exceed 39 tons—the value of the orders being 350*l.*, and the price of Indian meal per ton at the Commissariat dépôt being 9*l.*—there was a deficiency of about seven tons to be provided for. The contractors when applied to refused to furnish the meal, it was however still hoped, at the rising of the Board at 8 o'clock, P.M., that an arrangement would be made. The relieving officer of the Castlebar electoral division, the district unprovided for, undertook to renew the effort, but late in the evening reported to the Vice-Guardians that he had been unsuccessful. Seeing the painful position in which the Vice-Guardians were placed, and apprehending that very serious consequences would ensue, if the poor of the electoral division of Castlebar were left for a week without food, I took upon myself to place a portion of the grant entrusted to me by the British Relief Association for the relief of the children of the Union, at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians, on the understanding that it would be replaced out of the next grant made to them by the Association, which circumstance I reported specially to you and the Count de Strzelecki by this morning's post.

A deputation from the creditors of the Union waited upon the Board yesterday, and urged the fulfilment of the agreement made with them for the payment of their claims, and submitted that no payment had yet been made, notwithstanding the understanding that 50 per cent. of the rate collected from 1st January should be set aside for the purpose.

The Board admitted the justice of the appeal, and adopted a resolution to set apart all the rate received in future, until the amount collected shall reach a full moiety of the sums received since 1st January last.

This arrangement, which the Board of Vice-Guardians are certainly pledged to carry out, will place them in a most difficult position.

The rate collected and expended since the 1st January last amounted to about 900*l.*, one-half of which, under the agreement alluded to, is claimed by the creditors. Not one penny of the future incomings can therefore be touched until this amount is realized, and 50 per cent. of the collection in future must also be reserved for a like purpose, whilst liabilities to the extent of 2000*l.* incurred since the dissolution of the former Board, a considerable portion for provision, must also be met.

The contractors positively refuse to furnish any further supplies unless their accounts be paid; the contractor for the workhouse excepted, who will comply with the terms of his contract for that establishment.

Although, therefore, the Commissioners have stated in their letter of the 9th instant, that “on the understanding that the Vice-Guardians will maintain the inmates of the workhouse, and all parties receiving out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Act, they will for a while advance means for granting out-door relief in the Union to able-bodied men and their families;” it will not be in the power of the Vice-Guardians to provide food for any of the classes receiving out-door relief, as from the foregoing causes they will have no funds at their disposal for the purpose.

That a great portion of the rate will be ultimately got in I am satisfied; in fact, it must be exacted; but the delays in the law proceedings, want of business habits on the part of the collector, the insufficiency of his staff, his additional duties as barony cess collector, the passive resistance of many of the rate-payers, the inability of others, will render it a work of time.

In the meantime, whilst from these causes the collection has been delayed, former debts and current expenses have anticipated nearly the full amount to be realized by the rate, as shown in my reports of the 23rd January and 3rd February; the difficulties of the Union are consequently becoming every day more burdensome and complicated.

It would not be expedient to strike a new rate at the present moment, with an arrear of 7000*l.*, and law proceedings now commencing in the superior courts against defaulters; moreover, the burden of a new rate would fall heavily and unfairly upon those who have paid the rates of 3*s.*, or 4*s.* 7*d.*, or 5*s.* in the pound. I have, therefore, no alternative, but to recommend the case of the Union to the consideration of the Commissioners, in order that the British Association may be requested to provide funds for the support of all the classes receiving out-door relief; and at the same time continue to urge upon the Board of Vice-Guardians, who I must admit are equally anxious upon the point, to put in force all the powers they possess to compel the collectors to use redoubled energy, and to press proceedings against immediate lessors as far as the law will allow them.

The quantity of provision to be issued this week for out-door relief amounts to 46 tons, value 416*l.*; and should an increase of numbers take place next Board day in the same proportion as heretofore, the quantity for the ensuing week will be 51 tons, the cost of which will be about 459*l.*

The published lists of paupers receiving out-door relief, some of which have been completed by the printer, and are in course of distribution, will, it is hoped, lessen the burden; but the pressure has been so great upon the relieving officers that revision has been almost out of the question. The labour test has enabled the Board to detect a great many cases; no less than 973 labourers having been struck off at various times for absence or idleness, who, with their families, amount to from 5000 to 6000 individuals.

Two of the relieving officers yesterday resigned their appointments, one from ill-health, brought on from over-exertion. It will be difficult to supply their places with efficient persons.

Owing to the difficulties the Vice-Guardians have had to contend with in the distribution of the meal, the system of a daily issue of provision to the able-bodied for the daily task of work has not yet been put in operation. No contractor could be induced to undertake the distribution of the meal received from the Commissariat stores, which duty was therefore unavoidably placed upon the relieving officers.

There are numerous provision dealers who would readily undertake to provide and distribute the food in each electoral division, who, under present circumstances, will have nothing to do with it. If not inconsistent with the arrangements of the British Association, the issue of grants in money, instead of provision orders on the Commissariat depôts, would simplify matters much, and remove many of the embarrassments which affect the present system, and seriously interfere with the Commissioners' rules and instructions, particularly as regards the relieving officers, who urge the extra duties placed upon them as a reason for the non-completion of their books. The check upon the distribution obtained by calling in the aid of a contractor is moreover desirable; the cost and risk of carriage now incurred is another consideration.

I had hoped that the system of issuing rye-bread to the able-bodied and their families on out-door relief daily would have been established this week; and tenders were received from bakers in the electoral divisions for the purpose, but owing to the uncertainty yet on the points above adverted to, and the Vice-Guardians not being in a position to pay for the baking of the bread, if the meal were even provided by the Association, it was found necessary to defer the matter until a reply had been received from you upon this point. I enclose a list of the tenders given in, as it shows in a gratifying manner the progress of the attempt now making to introduce the rye-bread into this district, by means of the relief afforded to the schools by the British Association. At the early part of the month of December last this bread was unknown in the Union; the first loaf was baked in December; nearly 5000 children are now receiving it daily; and on Saturday tenders were made by 18 bakers, some in remote localities of the Union, offering to provide it for the able-bodied paupers and their families receiving out-door relief, at a cost of from $\frac{1}{4}$ d. to $1\frac{1}{4}$ d. per lb.

Before concluding this report, I beg to suggest that the Vice-Guardians may be authorized to appoint a person to superintend generally the working gangs throughout the Union. At present there is no person to visit the work depôts but myself; and a supervision will be most necessary when the duty of issuing the daily ticket to the labourer, authorizing the contractor to issue his rations, will fall upon the steward of the depôt. One superintendent could visit each depôt in the Union once, and probably twice a week; test the measurement of the stewards, and exercise a general supervision over them. The saving to the Union effected by such an officer, in the prevention and detection of abuses, would cover the cost of his salary.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 19, 1848.

Castlebar Union.

I AM to state that under the circumstances mentioned by you, the Commissioners have applied to the British Association for a further advance to Castlebar Union of 500*l.*; but the Commissioners still hope that by redoubled efforts on the part of the Vice-Guardians, it will be possible for them to collect sufficient rates to maintain the inmates of the workhouse, and all paupers receiving out-door relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

It appears from your statement that the uncollected rates amount very nearly to 8000*l.*, that is, to 7969*l.* 9*s.* 11½*d.* Now the Commissioners cannot but be of opinion, that if the collectors and the rate-payers perform their duty in reference to that 7969*l.* 9*s.* 11½*d.*, it will be possible for the Union to depend upon its own resources, except as far as relates to the out-door relief to able-bodied men.

The Commissioners admit that the course pursued by the Vice-Guardians towards their creditors is just; but it will reduce the Union to a state either of bankruptcy or of absolute dependence on the British Association, unless the rates are collected more speedily than has been the case hitherto.

The Commissioners much regret to learn that owing to the difficulties adverted to by you, the system of a daily issue of provisions to the able-bodied for the daily task of work has not yet been put in operation; as independently of other objections, the Commissioners apprehend that if rations for a week are given to the able-bodied paupers, they will sometimes be so improvident as to consume the whole in four or five days, leaving nothing to themselves at the end of the week.

The Commissioners will communicate to the British Association your request, that you may receive supplies of money instead of food; and they will address you again on the subject.

The Commissioners will raise no objection to the appointment by the Vice-Guardians of an assistant relieving officer as a superintendent of the working gangs throughout the Union; but the Commissioners deem it desirable that any proposition of the kind should be inserted by the Vice-Guardians in their weekly minutes.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 16, 1848.

I BEG to enclose a list of tenders for rye-bread, omitted to be forwarded with my report of yesterday's date.

This list is forwarded merely to show the progress made in introducing the rye-bread into the Union as an article of food.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 19, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 16th instant, transmitting a list of tenders for supplying rye-bread in the Castlebar Union, and I am to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the progress made in the introduction of rye-meal into the Castlebar Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

WE have the honour to state, for your information, that the collector of this Union has not lodged any sum on account of the rates collected during the week, nor has he attended the Board to give any explanation.

We have received from Captain Farren, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, orders for 735*l.* worth of provisions, granted by the British Association in aid of the destitute poor; and he has informed us that he holds a further grant of 500*l.* in money from the same source, to be applied to a similar purpose when necessary.

The numbers on the books entitled to out-door relief this week are 16,381, requiring 49 tons 8 cwt. of meal, costing 444*l.* 12*s.* We estimate that about 55 tons 5 cwt. of food will be necessary for the ensuing week's supply for out-door relief.

We have to report that the rate collector is out this day enforcing payment of the rates under the protection of the civil authority in the Ballyhean district, which will account for his absence from the Board, and from which we hope for results favourable to the future collection. We also understand that he is to be in the Strade district to-morrow, similarly supported.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 23, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 21st inst., in which you state that the collector of poor-rate in the Castlebar Union has not lodged any money during the past week, and that he has not attended your Board to give any explanation on the subject.

The latter part of your report, however, seems to show that the collector is now taking active steps in the discharge of his duty, and the Commissioners refrain from making any observation on the subject further than to request that your continued attention may be directed to the collection of the rate in the Union, as the collection hitherto cannot be considered satisfactory.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 22, 1848.

THE amount of rate collected during the week in this Union, as shown by the Collectors' books, was

The total sum now collected amounts to	£ 136 13 4 ³ / ₄
Leaving uncollected	2,114 6 4 ¹ / ₂
	7,832 16 6 ¹ / ₂

The collector not having furnished the additional particulars required in the cases of the immediate lessors and occupiers, whose names were entered in the lists recently handed in by the collector, which lists were returned to him for the purpose, and not having given in a list of the 20 next highest occupiers, which he was called upon to do, or shown the steps taken by him for enforcing decrees ordered by the magistrates in poor rate cases, the Vice-Guardians have directed that he shall be summoned before the magistrates, under the 100th section of the 1 and 2 Vic. cap. 56, for not obeying their orders in these respects.

The collector was sent for in order that he might explain to the Board the causes of their omission, but he was not to be found, and although it was said that he was in the country enforcing the decrees, and in the absence of any reply to the many and pressing communications made to him by direction of the Vice-Guardians, and looking to the small amount of the collection, they felt bound to put their powers in force against him.

The solicitor has moreover again complained that he has not yet obtained from the collector the statements of accounts required by him to carry on legal proceedings against defaulters, whose cases the Vice-Guardians had placed in his hands.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

Three relieving officers were appointed in room of those resigned or displaced in the electoral divisions of Drum, Turlough, and Castlebar.

Number of applicants for relief on the books of the relieving officers	1,091
Of whom admitted to workhouse	49
Placed on out-door relief	955
The total number now receiving out-door relief	16,340
Of which 8,650 are able-bodied men and their families depending upon them.

The grants from the British Association enabled the Vice-Guardians to issue provision orders upon the Commissariat dépôt for the support of the destitute on the out-door relief lists, the contractors, as reported in my letter of the 15th, having refused to furnish any further supplies unless they were paid a portion of the bills.

I am happy to report that tenders for the supply of rye bread to the able-bodied and their families daily in eight electoral divisions of the Union were accepted, and the parties will attend on Saturday next with their sureties to complete the contracts. They will be prepared to issue early next week. The printer is preparing the necessary forms for carrying out the new system, and copies of the instructions to all parties concerned shall be forwarded to you in another communication.

The lists of destitute persons receiving out-door relief in nine electoral divisions have been printed and put in circulation, one only now remains in the printer's hands. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to show the full effect of this measure; some good, however, has already resulted. I enclose one of the lists and a copy of the circular containing the minute of the Vice-Guardians, and form on which objections should be made. In future lists the names will be arranged by townlands, and the "No. of rations" daily will be inserted instead of "No. of lbs."

Since writing the foregoing I have been informed by the clerk of the Union, that the collector having seen the Vice-Guardians and explained to them his proceedings, by which it appeared to them that he had been actively engaged in enforcing the decrees, a considerable quantity of cattle and produce having been taken and brought by him into the town of Castlebar, the Vice-Guardians withdrew their order alluded to in the commencement of this report, and hope to report more favourably of the collector's movements in future. The clerk also adds that the collector has handed over the accounts adverted to, which the clerk has forwarded to the solicitor in Dublin.

ENCLOSURES.

ANTHONY J. FERRICH, Relieving Officer.

SIR,

Castlebar, 1848.

I AM directed by the Board of Vice-Guardians to transmit the subjoined copy of a minute, adopted by the Board on 31st January, 1848; and to forward the enclosed lists of paupers receiving out-door relief, in certain electoral divisions of the Union.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

To _____

Clerk of the Union.

COPY of a MINUTE adopted by the BOARD of VICE-GUARDIANS of the CASTLEBAR UNION, on 31st January, 1848.

THERE being reason to suppose that notwithstanding the inquiries of the relieving officers, and the scrutiny of this Board, parties unqualified, or not in a state of destitution, have obtained out-door relief, and believing that a publication of the names of all parties receiving out door allowances, as paupers, would place the ratepayers of the Union in a position to afford much valuable assistance to the Vice-Guardians, in revising the relief lists, whereby the pressure upon the Union funds would be diminished; the Vice-Guardians have accordingly directed such lists to be printed, and posted in the most public places in the several electoral divisions, and generally distributed, and they earnestly call upon the magistrates, ratepayers, and all well-disposed persons to afford them all the information in their power, respecting any cases of abuse and imposition which may come under their observation from time to time, and to embody the same in a form similar to the subjoined, which it is requested may be forwarded to the clerk of the Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 28, 1848.

WE have the honour to state that the amount lodged to our credit by the rate collector since our last report is 400*l.*, a portion of which he has not had time as yet to return in account to the clerk. We have paid on account of out-door relief 605*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.*, and for the current expenses 224*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.* We have not been able to discharge any part of the old debts; the importunity of contractors who had hitherto supplied the meal for out-door relief being so urgent, we have been again reluctantly obliged to break through our engagement to the old creditors.

The numbers on the out-door relief lists this week are 17,602, and judging from the progressive weekly increase, we estimate in anticipation for the next week that the returns will stand nearly as follows:—

Relief in the workhouse about	.	.	.	.	80	0	0
	Nos.	Tons.		Cost.
Relief under 1st sec.	8,889	25 9 1		£254 12 6
Under 2nd sec.	9,746	27 18 1		279 2 6
	18,365	53 7 2		£533 15 0

Total sum required for relief under the three heads . 603 15 0

We are very anxious to draw your particular attention to the minute on our proceedings relative to the state of the Union accounts, from those of the late clerk and the two last masters not having been closed; to effect this most desirable object, we would earnestly request that a competent person, having experience of Union accounts, may be sent down, as there is not any person here sufficiently conversant with such matters, and we would most respectfully suggest that a clerk from your own office may be selected.

Captain Farren has handed to us 500*l.* in aid of destitution, of which we have applied 168*l.* 6*s.* 9*d.* to this week's distribution, leaving a balance of 331*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* to meet a part of next week's supply.

Castlebar Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that application will be made for a further advance of 300*l.*, to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

As regards the adjustment of the Union accounts, I am to state that a clerk from this office cannot be detached for the purpose in the present pressure of business; but a competent person may be found among the candidates for employment here, whose services could be obtained for 30*s.* a-week, and his travelling expenses.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 29, 1848.

THE amount of rate collected during the week in the Union, as shown by the

	£.	s.	d.
Rate receipt abstract books examined on Friday, was	69	17	0½
Making the total sum now collected	2184	3	5
Leaving uncollected	7762	19	6

The collector, however, reported on Monday, that he had obtained an additional sum of 400*l.*, not then entered in the abstract. He has been pursuing a more vigorous course, and during the week made seizures of property for poor-rates, in the electoral divisions of Ballyhean and Strade, on Friday he was supported in this duty by detachments of cavalry and infantry.

After the cattle had been seized, some of the parties concerned paid the rate. In other cases, the cattle and property have not been released, and when put up to auction no bidders could be found, the collector's bailiff therefore bought them in, and they are on the collector's lands.

There is a determination on the part of the public not to purchase in poor-rate cases, in order that the law may be defeated, and the local papers sympathize in the feeling, and add to it by sending reporters to publish all particulars of these auctions.

As there is but one collector in the Union, and it being impossible for him to perform his duties satisfactorily without assistance, it will be seen by the minutes that the Vice-Guardians have called upon him to appoint at least two respectable persons as deputies, whose aid it is hoped will accelerate the collection. He has also been called upon to serve 15 days' notices upon the immediate lessors residing in the county, whose names are included in a supplemental list handed in by him; and also to serve six days' notices upon certain occupiers included in another list laid before the Board; their names will be found entered on the minutes.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

Number of applicants on books of relieving officers	1,389
Admitted to workhouse	59
Placed on out-door relief lists	846
Discharged from workhouse to out-door relief	7
Total number now receiving out-door relief	17,602

The grants made by the British Association enabled the Vice-Guardians to provide for the parties receiving out-door relief, and a balance of 331*l.* remains available for the ensuing week; but as the estimated amount required for out-door relief for that week will be 533*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.*, there will be a deficiency of 200*l.* The demands of the creditors of the former Board and of the contractors who have furnished provisions upon orders of the present one, being of a very pressing nature, the Board having moreover pledged itself to meet them with the first of future incomings as detailed in my reports, the amount of rate which will be available on the next Board-day will have to be appropriated to the liquidation of these claims; unless therefore assistance be afforded to meet the deficiency, I dread a repetition of the occurrence of last Monday fortnight, when the contractors having refused to supply any more provisions without payment, the poor of some of the electoral divisions would have been left without food had not a portion of a grant given by the British Association for another purpose been temporarily appropriated to meet the emergency. I, therefore, hope the Commissioners will take the case into their consideration, and request a further grant from the British Association.

I am happy to report that the issue of daily rations of rye bread in return for a daily task of work, has this week been brought into operation in some of the electoral divisions of the Union, and will be extended to the other districts as soon as possible. I trust the measure will have a good effect. The details of the system will however press heavily on the Union officers, and the cost of printing forms, tickets, &c., will be considerable; the overseers alone will have to fill up 12,000 tickets in each week. I have considered whether the forms might be simplified and the number reduced, but do not think it advisable, as the effect, as a check, would be lost if the food tickets were not filled and signed daily, and given to the labourers and left as vouchers with the contractor.

Another relieving officer has resigned his situation, alleging as a reason the difficulties of the office.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners regret to perceive that so much opposition exists to the collection of the poor-rate in the Union. The Commissioners approve the arrangement proposed by the Vice-Guardians for enabling the collector more readily to discharge the duties of his office, and they rely upon the Vice-Guardians taking such steps in assisting and advising the collector as will be sufficient to meet and overcome the opposition to which you advert, keeping in view also the ability of the parties rated to pay their rates, and the necessity of providing funds for the relief of the destitute poor of the Union. I am at the same time to draw your attention to the opinion as to the sale of cattle distrained which is put in the collector's manual, and I am to state that the attention of the Government has been called to your report, with a view to the adoption of such measures as the circumstances of the case may seem to require.

The Commissioners have applied for a further advance of 300*l.* to the Vice-Guardians, which will probably be forwarded to-day.

The Commissioners perceive with satisfaction that daily rations in cooked food are issued to persons receiving out-door relief under the 2nd Section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in some of the divisions of the Union; and they trust that the Vice-Guardians will make exertions to have a similar system universally adopted in the Unions under their charge.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 2nd instant, stating that the Commissioners deem it desirable to determine or to suspend on the 18th of March instant, all orders under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men; and wishing to know whether, in my opinion, there could be any decided objection to this course in Castlebar Union, I beg to state that distress prevails so extensively in the Union, and the pressure for relief is still so great, that the consequences of such a suspension of out-door relief would be of a very serious nature.

The number of individuals who received out-door relief during the week just ended was 17,373, and of them 9198 consisted of able-bodied men and their families.

As there are very few persons employed by proprietors under the Land Improvement and Drainage Acts, (I am aware of only one instance in the Union,) and the spring work being generally executed by the smaller holders (who form the mass of agricultural occupiers in this district) with the assistance of their own families, without calling in labourers; and the large occupiers who will employ labourers at money wages, being small in number, their sources even with the assistance afforded by the British Association to the schools, will be totally inadequate to meet the wants of the numerous class now receiving relief under the section in question,

Under these circumstances, as much suffering would be occasioned if the pro-

The sum required for the next week, about 509 2 6

We are sorry to say that our colleague, Mr. Thomas, is confined by illness and unable to attend the Board this day; we hope, however, a few days will restore his health.

IN reference to the non-attendance of the collector of poor-rate and non-payment of any money on account of his collection, I am to state that his collection of county cess and of poor-rate are presumed to proceed simultaneously, and therefore should not prevent the payment of the poor-rate to the Union treasurer. The Commissioners consider his omission of sufficient importance to require your serious notice and attention.

Castlebar Union.

I am at the same time to state, that application has been made to the British Association for a further advance of 500*l.* to assist you in providing for the wants of the destitute poor in the Union.

As regards the employment of a person to arrange the Union accounts, the Commissioners will have a person selected for the purpose and sent to the Union in a few days.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 7, 1848.

THE amount of rate collected during the week in this Union, as shown by the rate receipt abstracts, examined on Friday, was 159*l.* 2*s.* 2½*d.* This, however, is a portion of the additional sum of 400*l.* (mentioned in my report of last week), stated by the collector to have been obtained and not entered when the "accounts" for that week had been examined. It does not therefore appear that any payments have been received since that report was written, or that the full amount of the sum in question has been accounted for by the block receipts or in the Abstract Books.

The total amount now collected, as shown by the Abstract Books and block receipts, is 2343*l.* 5*s.* 7½*d.*, whereas the lodgments in the foregoing seasons exceed this sum. It will be seen by the minutes of yesterday, that as the collector has not complied with a former minute, requiring him to issue receipts for all sums received by him from the rate-payers, the Vice-Guardians have again desired him to do so; otherwise they will call upon the rate-payers, by advertisement, to notify to the clerk of the Union the sums they have paid, in order that receipts may be given, and confusion in the accounts prevented.

No lodgement having been reported to the Vice-Guardians on Saturday or Monday, the collector was required by the Chairman to attend and afford some information respecting the collection; he however neither attended nor gave any explanation.

As the assizes will be held during this week, his duties as barony cess collector, and the preparation of the accounts of that office, have no doubt taken up his time and attention.

The collector has not yet reported the names of persons to act as his deputies; and has only given in one list of 20 highest occupiers who have not paid their rates, since the receipt of the minute which required him to continue such lists from Board-day to-day.

The appointment of deputies is a matter of much importance, and I had an opportunity of urging the point upon the collector during the week; he alleged that a difficulty existed in getting persons in whom he could place confidence, but admitted the necessity of obtaining such assistance. This step will be insisted on.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians. Mr. Otway, Poor Law Inspector, was present a portion of each day.

The numbers applying for relief have not diminished, there were	1,389
Of whom admitted to workhouse	193
Placed on out-door relief lists	488
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	17,717

The publication of the lists of persons receiving relief has not been so successful in procuring information of abuses as could be wished, very few cases having been yet reported to the clerk of the Union. The rate-payers generally have not come forward to afford this information; and without their co-operation in indicating such cases, revision is almost impossible. Letters are written to the local newspapers complaining of frauds, but the parties do not take the course which they have been entreated to do by the Vice-Guardians, viz., to send them the necessary information, in order that the abuses may be inquired into and corrected; however I trust the rate-payers will yet comply with the appeal of the Vice-Guardians, as their local knowledge will be of infinite value in checking the frauds which do exist, and in preventing their recurrence.

A dread of becoming obnoxious to the people, and that their property will suffer in revenge for their being the means of stopping the relief to the parties receiving it, seems to be the foundation of this disinclination to give information of abuses on the part of the well-disposed of the community.

In carrying into effect the system of daily rations of rye bread to the able-bodied some frauds have been discovered. A man who had been receiving meal under the former system presented his ticket to the contractor, but his name not having been returned to the overseer on the change of system, he therefore did not get the ticket for bread, and was refused. He complained to the Board, also stating that a woman who had 11 acres of land was receiving rations. The relieving officer was directed to inquire into the facts, and found that it was the case. She was, of course, cancelled.

The relieving officer who reported this woman's case as a fit object for relief, resigned his situation some weeks since. The necessity for a revision of the lists of parties receiving relief becomes more apparent every day.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' regret at the very unsatisfactory state of the collection of the poor-rate in the Union.

I am at the same time to enclose herewith a list of the immediate lessors who were defaulters referred to in your report to the Commissioners, dated the 6th January last; and I am to request that in your next report you will state the names of those immediate lessors who have since then paid their rates, and that you will return the list, with a note of the stage in which the legal proceedings to compel payment now are in each of the other cases.

The Commissioners also request that you will bring the unsatisfactory state of the collection pointedly before the Vice-Guardians at their next meeting, with a view to such steps being adopted and prosecuted as will enable them to satisfy themselves that the collector is endeavouring to do his duty, or to give such directions and advice as may be requisite to place the collection in a less disastrous condition.

The Commissioners also think it desirable that the attention of the Vice-Guardians should be directed to the expediency of visiting the relief depôts, with a view to the detection of cases of simulated distress, and the due enforcement of the labour test.

It will also be advisable that their attention should be specially directed to the offer of relief in the workhouse as a test of destitution; and the Commissioners are desirous of being informed of the means which have been adopted in the workhouse for carrying strictly into effect the 16th article of the general regulations with regard to the occupation and employment of the inmates.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, referring to my report of the 5th instant, relating to the proposed suspension of the order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men in the Castlebar Union, and requesting me to report whether the provisions of the order to Listowel Union (enclosed in your letter) could be carried into effect in this Union. In reply I beg leave to state that, in my opinion, the provisions of such an order suspending relief to single men and men with only two children, and authorizing the continuance of out-door relief to the other classes of destitute persons, from the 18th instant, could be carried into effect.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 9th instant, stating your opinion that an order suspending out-door relief to single men and men with only two children, and directing the continuance of out-door relief to the other classes, adverted to in the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, could be carried into effect in the Castlebar Union; and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have accordingly given directions for the preparation of an order to that effect.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 14, 1848.

Castlebar Union.

Owing to the causes adverted to in my last report, viz., the collector's time and attention being given to the completion of his accounts for barony cess, for presentation at the assizes now going on in this town, the amount of rate entered in the abstract books as collected during the week, is inconsiderable, viz., 77*l.* 17*s.* 4½*d.*

The total amount of rate now collected is . . .	£2,422	3	0
Leaving uncollected	£7,538	3	11½

It is hopeless to expect exertion from the collector until his accounts of barony cess have been disposed of, which will be at the end of this week. I have been informed that owing to the difficulties of the times a very large arrear of that comparatively popular tax remains outstanding.

The Vice-Guardians have had an interview with one of the collector's sureties upon the subject of the state of the collection, and urged the appointment of deputies to assist the collector in his duties. He saw the necessity of the measure, and stated his determination to exert all his influence with the collector to induce him to redouble his exertions.

The collector asserts that a great portion of the rate will ultimately be got in, and that he has offered the appointment of deputy collector to several respectable persons whom he could depend upon, but they could not be persuaded to undertake the duty; he has been urged to renew the effort.

With reference to the list of immediate lessors who had not paid their rates, forwarded to the Commissioners in January last, I enclose a return of the names of the parties who have since paid the rate, and showing the amount paid. (A.)

I have requested the solicitor of the Union to furnish me with his observations as to the stage in which the proceedings for enforcing payment in the other cases in that list now are, but owing to the pressure of business upon him at this moment (the assizes now being held), he has not yet furnished me with this information; as soon as I obtain it I will report specially upon the subject.

The case of defalcation on the part of the late rate collector was heard in the Record Court here yesterday, and a verdict given in favour of the Vice-Guardians; the collector's sureties being required to pay the balance of the last collection not accounted for, less the amount of poundage due to the collector.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

The number of applicants on the books of the relieving officers had increased one-half, as compared with the returns of the three preceding weeks.

Number of applicants	1,702
Of which placed on out-door relief list	1,201
Admissions to workhouse	52
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	18,954

The Vice-Guardians are fully impressed with the value of the workhouse as a test; and the return of last week, when vacancies existed in that establishment, shows its efficacy, one-third only of the number of applicants having been placed on the out-door relief lists, whilst on the last Board-day, when the vacancies were but few, the proportionate number ordered out-door relief was double, viz., two-thirds. Every effort will be made to render as many vacancies as possible available in the workhouse each week for the application of this test.

Two hundred and sixty-nine individuals were struck off the relief lists in Castlebar electoral division, upon the report of the relieving officers, as not destitute, or cases of fraud; and at the examination of the labour books of the Union, 64 labourers were cancelled for absence from the different work depôts.

With regard to the occupation of the inmates of the workhouse, the female paupers are employed in making articles of wearing apparel most required in the house, and the men at stone-breaking. Inconvenience is felt from the want of a house-steward to superintend the labour department; a man was appointed, but he resigned. Notice of the vacancy has been published, with the view to other parties offering themselves for the situation.

The Vice-Guardians labour under great difficulty in obtaining fit persons for the different offices of the Union; it is almost impossible to procure properly qualified individuals.

WILLIAM MALLEY, Collector.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 20, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you that the rate collector of this Union has not made any lodgment on account of his collection with the treasurer since our last report, nor has he, as will be seen by reference to the minutes of our proceedings, complied with the orders made at previous Boards. The reason he has assigned is his having been for the last fortnight engaged at the assizes as collector of grand jury cess, and he has promised to devote himself in the most strenuous manner to the collection of the poor rates henceforward.

Our position has become extremely embarrassing both by the non-collection of the rates, and that a considerable portion of the rates already collected have been applied to out-door relief, as well as that a large sum is still due to contractors who supplied food previous to grants being made by the British Association to aid us in providing for the persons on out-door relief. We have no funds to pay the contractors for the carriage and distribution of the meal drawn from the Commissariat depôts, and we fear that all the contractors will stop the supplies for the house, and that none will come forward to enter into new contracts from the 25th instant.

There are now 20,051 persons on the relieving officers' lists, 1016 having been added this week, from such numbers of applicants, having qualified themselves by a tender of a portion of their holdings, reserving the house and quarter-acre, and being reported destitute; but as those entitled to relief will be very considerably lessened in consequence of the order to discontinue it to certain classes, we do not estimate that more than 400*l.* will be required for the week ending the 1st of April.

The relieving officers' books having been ruled on Saturday, and the order issued for the provision, we were unable to put your sealed order, dated on the 18th instant, and this day laid before the Board, in force further than to direct the relieving officers not to issue rations to the able-bodied men of 18 years and above, and to be prepared to strike off the married not having more than two children dependent upon them, at the next Board day.

Captain Farren handed in two orders, each for 250*l.* worth of provisions, granted by the British Association to assist us in providing for the destitute poor, and we have issued orders on the depôt at Ballina for 207*l.* worth, and on that at Ballinrobe for 239*l.* 15*s.* worth.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners desire to state, that under the circumstances mentioned in your report of the 20th instant, they will make application for the further advance of 400*l.* required to provide for the exigencies of Castlebar Union in the week ending the 1st proximo.

The Commissioners observe that the collector has promised you to devote himself strenuously henceforward to the collection of the rates outstanding; and they rely on your keeping him to his duty by requiring cause to be shown from time to time for the non-collection of every sum of considerable amount which shall appear to be unpaid.

In reference to your expression of an expectation that the number of persons to be relieved will now be reduced by the order limiting the able-bodied classes that may be relieved, the Commissioners feel it necessary to request that their order may not be considered as requiring relief to be given to all persons of the classes referred to in it, but only as enabling the Vice-Guardians to relieve persons of such classes who, on inquiry, appear to be actually destitute.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 21, 1848.

THE amount of rate collected during the past week, as shown by the Rate Abstract Receipt Books, was very trifling, viz. £29 9 11½
The total amount of rate now collected is 2,408 18 11½
Leaving uncollected 7,508 14 0

The collector, who attended at the meeting of the Board yesterday, stated in explanation, that he was occupied during the assizes with the arrangement of his accounts, as barony cess collector, and that he found it impossible under such circumstances to give his attention to the poor-rate, but that the assizes being now over, he would devote himself to the latter duty.

The progress of the collection for some time past has been unsatisfactory, and the measures taken by the Vice-Guardians, with the view of assisting the collector in his duties, as well as to enforce the collection, have, in consequence of the collector's non-compliance with their instructions, been unsuccessful; thus, the directions the collector received from the Vice-Guardians to serve notices upon certain parties whose names were returned as defaulters in supplemental lists, furnished by the collector after having been repeatedly called for, have not been carried out; and he has not yet appointed deputies to assist him in the collection. It will be seen by the minutes that the Vice-Guardians have again called his attention to these points, urging him to seek for persons properly qualified to assist him as deputies; and with respect to the notices, informing him that unless they are served before the next Board-day, the 100th section of the Poor Law Act must be put in force against him.

With regard to the immediate lessors whose names were included in the list of defaulters handed over to the solicitor of the Union, with the sanction of the Commissioners, in January last, to be proceeded against in the superior Courts, I now enclose the return of their names, &c., containing the observations of the solicitor as to the stage in which the proceedings in each case now are.

In a few instances the parties have paid the rate since the original list was furnished in January: their names were stated in my report of the 14th instant.

In the others, the solicitor has taken the measures necessary for obtaining decrees in the approaching term.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

The applications for relief were still very numerous, viz.	1359
Of which admitted to workhouse	39
Placed on out-door relief lists	822
Number rejected	498
Persons discharged from workhouse to out-door relief	15

The sealed order suspending out-door relief to able-bodied single men above 18 years of age, and to able-bodied married men having only two children, reached the clerk on Sunday, and as the books of the relieving officers, with one exception, were ruled on Saturday, it was found impracticable to bring the order into full effect this week. The relieving officers have been, however, instructed to issue no rations to the able-bodied single men above 18 years; and to warn the other class alluded to, viz., the able-bodied married men having only two children, that in future they must depend on their own resources.

I have visited the workhouse frequently during the week; considerable improvement in the industrial departments of the establishment has taken place; arrangements have been carried into effect, by which the clothing required both for the male and female paupers is made up in the house, principally by the women, for whose use the school-room formerly occupied by the girls, now located in the auxiliary workhouse, has been appropriated as a workroom. Some of the boys, under the superintendence of a tailor, are also employed in making up the clothing, and others in shoemaking. The able-bodied male paupers are occupied in breaking stones for the pathways.

The contractors' bonds for the erection of the fever hospital have been signed, and the workmen are now employed on that edifice.

Castebar, March 21, 1848.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners desire to observe that explanatory statements of the solicitor, as to his proceedings against each of the immediate lessors, is so far satisfactory; and they recommend that as the period for each stage of his proceedings shall arrive, care shall be taken that they are carried on.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you, that the rate collector has lodged 130*l.* on account of his collection since our last report. He has been examined on oath by Captain Farren, and complains that he is delayed in enforcing payment by distress, from his being unable to take that course without the protection of the civil power which he cannot at all times obtain in consequence of the resident magistrate being so pressed by business in the Westport Union and other parts of his very extensive district. He also stated that on Thursday last he attended the petty sessions at Castlebar, to which he had several persons summoned for poor-rates, and that on his arrival at the Court-house shortly after 12 o'clock, the magistrate, Dr. Dillon, who had signed the summonses, told him he had adjourned the Court, as there was only one magistrate in attendance. The collector states, he remonstrated with the magistrate, told him one had the power to decide poor-rate cases, and that if he then refused to go into the inquiry, the rates would be lost, as the parties were carrying away their property; but Dr. Dillon still refused to re-open the Court.

Under such circumstances it is most desirable that a resident magistrate shall be stationed for some short time at Castlebar, both to protect the collector in his collection, and to secure the hearing of poor-rate cases brought before the petty sessions' Court.

There have been 1520 able-bodied married men, including those dependent upon them, and 548 able-bodied single men struck off, making a total of 2068 persons; and leaving 17,036 to be provided for to Saturday, the 1st of April; 510 new applicants were added to the out-door relief lists this week, and in consequence of the present pressure we estimate that 600*l.* will be required for the week ending the 8th of April.

We have received from Captain Farren, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, 400*l.* granted by the British Association, to assist in the maintenance of the poor in this Union; and we have issued orders on the depôt at Ballina for 47*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.* worth of provisions, on the depôt at Ballinrobe for 171*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* worth, and have purchased from Charles Malley, contractor, 202*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.* worth, to be supplied and distributed by him; the cost of carriage and distribution from Ballina and Ballinrobe being about 15*l.*

We have paid for the current expenses 140*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.*, and on account of the out-door relief, 44*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 600*l.* to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners have communicated with Her Majesty's Government with regard to the non-attendance of magistrates at Castlebar petty sessions, and your suggestion to have a resident magistrate stationed at Castlebar.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 28, 1848.

ALTHOUGH on examining the rate receipt abstract books and the block receipts on Friday last, it appeared that the amount entered therein, as collected during the week, was trifling (viz., 45*l.* 18*s.* 7½*d.*); there has been some improvement in the collector's progress, he having attended at the Board-room yesterday, and stated that he had obtained the sum of 130*l.*, which would be lodged with the treasurer the next day.

The following return shows the state of the collection to the date of the examination of the accounts, Friday last:—

Of the latter, 2903*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* is due by immediate lessors whose cases are in the hands of the solicitor of the Union. The stage in which the proceedings now are in each case, was stated in the list which accompanied my report of last week. As the period for each stage of the solicitor's proceedings shall arrive, care will be taken that they are carried on.

With regard to the other cases. In my last report I informed the Commissioners that the directions the collector had received from the Vice-Guardians, to serve notices upon parties whose names were returned as defaulters in supplemental lists, furnished by the collector after having been repeatedly called for, had not been complied with; and that he had been accordingly informed that if this were not done by the next Board-day, the 100th section of the Poor Law Act would be enforced against him. This measure, I have now to state, had the desired effect, so far as the six-day notices upon occupiers were concerned;—these notices having been served upon the parties in question (with one or two exceptions, which were explained to the Vice-Guardians; and in these excepted cases, the notices will be served this week), some of the parties have paid; summonses will be issued against those who have not, in due course. In the cases of the immediate lessors, upon whom fifteen-day notices were ordered to be served, the collector gave as an excuse that he had none of the forms; they were immediately ordered, and handed over to him yesterday.

The Commissioners will not infer that these instructions of the Board are intended to supersede the collector's powers of distraint without notice, as he has been constantly urged to follow that course whenever it will serve the collection; but specific orders have been given him in particular cases, when the Board could obtain the lists from him, in order that he might have no excuse for not enforcing the collection, and moreover, that such orders might be the means of supporting him in his duties.

The Commissioners have already been informed of the instructions given to the collector to obtain deputies, and of the reasons stated by him for his non-compliance with their wishes in this respect, viz., the impossibility of obtaining properly qualified persons in whom he could place confidence; he was urged to renew his efforts to procure such persons—but none have been yet appointed. With such a large arrear of rate to collect, and such an extensive district, (the entire Union), the assistance appears to be indispensable. I regret that it does not appear that the Vice-Guardians have the power to compel the collector to make such appointments. The collector's books have been in his hands nearly five months; and the arrears now outstanding amount to two-thirds of the whole rate. It is true that nearly 3000*l.* has been taken out of his hands, and unavoidably remains in abeyance until term commences, viz., the middle of the next month, when I trust the solicitor will carry the cases through the superior courts and obtain decrees; but upwards of 4000*l.* of arrears still remains which will require much energy and perseverance to collect. The appointment of deputies, therefore, is a matter of much importance, as their assistance would advance the collection. The Vice-Guardians continue to urge the matter; but unless a penalty can be enforced for non-compliance, or the influence of the Commissioners be brought to bear upon the collector, I fear it will not be done.

In the meantime the collector finds other difficulties. Having yesterday complained, "That he could not attempt to distrain without the protection of an armed force, which must be accompanied by a magistrate; and that he had applied to the resident magistrate at Westport, who has attended several times when his other duties would permit; but in consequence of the extent of the district under his (the resident magistrate's) charge, comprising parts of the Ballina and Westport Unions, as well as that of Castlebar, he is unable to attend sufficiently often; and that the progress of the collection is consequently delayed." Further, "That on Saturday morning last, he applied to the resident magistrate, by letter, to accompany him with the usual escort on Monday or Tuesday; and that at that hour, 6 o'clock, P.M., he had received no reply." I thought it right to take down his deposition to that effect, and now enclose it for the information of the Commissioners (marked A), not with the view of urging any complaint against the resident magistrate, who, the collector states, he has found most anxious to give assistance, and to which I can also willingly testify; but in order that, should the Commissioners deem fitting, the Government may be requested to secure such assistance continuously to the collector, by the appointment of a resident magistrate, to reside at Castlebar, as the extent of the district allotted to Mr. Morony, who resides at Westport, renders it impossible for him to meet the pressing demands made upon him from this and the adjacent Unions, for his presence in enforcing the Poor Law.

I beg also to enclose another deposition (marked B.), which I took down yesterday, in which the collector complains that he attended on Thursday, the 23rd instant, at the court-house, Castlebar, for the purpose of proceeding against certain parties who had been summoned to appear before the magistrate at petty sessions for that day, for non-payment of poor rate; that he went into the judge's-room, adjoining the bench, and met the magistrate, Dr. Dillon, of this town, who told him the court was adjourned (it then not being half-past 12 o'clock); that he (the collector) informed Dr. Dillon that one magistrate could act in the cases in which he (the collector) was concerned, viz., poor-rate cases; and that it was necessary for him to do so, as the parties were taking away their property, and about to leave the country; but that he replied, the court was adjourned, and that he (Dr. Dillon) would not go back again. The collector adds, that 12 o'clock is the hour fixed for the opening of the court of petty sessions, but the magistrates usually do not meet until about 1 o'clock; and that Dr. Dillon was the magistrate who signed the summonses.

This statement I conceive it my duty to forward for your information. At the same time it is to be regretted that the collector did not attend at 12 o'clock, when there could have been no excuse for an adjournment, as, although two magistrates are required to constitute a bench in ordinary cases, one can adjudicate in those arising out of the Poor Law Act. I also regret that the collector did not notify to me that he had cases to be brought before the magistrates on that day, as I should have made it my business to have attended, in order to afford him all the countenance in my power, I have frequently requested, that he will always let me know when he has such cases, in order that I might be present; being most anxious for many reasons, as I have repeatedly informed him, to attend the petty sessions on such occasions.

Whilst writing, a note has been handed to me, which the collector has received from Mr. Morony (the resident magistrate), in which he states that he has appointments for every day this week, and cannot possibly give the collector a day until next week, and wishes him accordingly to name a day next week for the purpose. This will at once show the Commissioners the almost impracticability of enforcing the collection under existing circumstances.

I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians on Saturday and Monday, and I may add on Sunday also; these days, to a late hour last night, having been occupied with the business of the Union, a complete revision of the Application Books being necessary to carry the provisions of the sealed order, suspending out-door relief to able-bodied single men above 18 years of age, and married men, able-bodied, having only two children, into effect.

After much labour the whole was completed, every case being duly ruled and initialed.

The following table shows the number of the classes in question cancelled in each electoral division:—

By which it appears that the number of individuals suspended under the first column was 1520

And under the second, viz., able-bodied single men above 18 years 569

And that the total number suspended under the sealed order was 2089

This order has caused considerable excitement in the rural districts, as might naturally be expected from the lower classes having thrown themselves so completely upon the Poor Law for support. I must, however, state, that I have since seen a greater number of individuals engaged in agricultural operations than for a considerable period; and as measures have been taken for admitting to the workhouse such individuals of these classes as may apply for relief on the grounds of not being able to obtain work, the salutary effect of the order will not, I trust, be marred by any distressing consequences.

ENCLOSURES.

A.

William Malley, sworn, states,—I am collector of the poor-rate in the Castlebar Union. In many of the districts the Union, where considerable rates are now due and might be enforced, I cannot attempt to distrain without the protection of an armed force. I have applied to the resident magistrate at Westport, who has attended several times when his other duties would permit; but in consequence of the extent of the district under his charge, comprising parts of the Ballina and Westport Unions as well as that of Castlebar, he is unable to attend sufficiently often, and the progress of the collection is consequently delayed. On Saturday morning last I applied to him by letter, to accompany me with the usual escort on Monday (this day) or Tuesday; and to this hour, 6 o'clock, P.M., have received no reply. I am, therefore, in doubt whether the duty will be carried out or not. I do not make this as a complaint against the resident magistrate, who, on the contrary, I have found most anxious to give his assistance; but state, that without such assistance being continuously afforded me, the collection of the rates must be considerably delayed if not defeated.

B.

William Malley, sworn, states,—I am collector of the poor-rate in the Castlebar Union. On Thursday morning last, the 23rd instant, I attended at the Court-house at Castlebar, for the purpose of proceeding against certain parties who had been summoned to appear before the magistrates at petty sessions for that day, for non-payment of poor-rate. I went into the judge's room, adjoining the bench, and met the magistrate, Dr. Dillon, of this town (Castlebar), who told me the Court was adjourned (it then not being half-past 12 o'clock); I gave him to understand that one magistrate could act in the cases in which I was concerned, viz., poor-rate cases; and that it was necessary for him to do so, as the parties were taking away their property and about to leave the country. He said the Court was adjourned, and that he would not go back again. Twelve o'clock is the hour fixed for the opening of the Court of petty sessions, but the magistrates usually do not meet until about one o'clock. Dr. Dillon was the magistrate who signed the summonses.

WILLIAM MALLEY.

R. T. FARREN, Captain 47th Regt.
Temporary Poor Law Inspector.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

I AM to state, that an extract from your report, relative to the proposed appointment of a resident magistrate at Castlebar to aid in the collection of the poor-rates, has been forwarded to the Government.

I am at the same time to state, that it is very much to be regretted that the poor-rate collector was not punctual in his attendance at the petty sessions.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 4, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you that Mr. Malley, the rate-collector, has not reported to us any lodgments of rates made by him during the past week, neither has he attended the sittings of the Board on either Saturday or Monday, though requested to do so, nor has he submitted his weekly abstract to the clerk; however we are aware that he has been engaged with the civil and military forces in various parts of the Union ever since Thursday, enforcing the payment of the rates, and has also received the full amount of those due on the estate of Sir Roger Palmer in this Union. It is most disagreeable to be obliged to make this report of Mr. Malley's conduct, but still he appears to be much more zealous in the fulfilment of his other duties and to devote his entire time and attention to their discharge.

Castlebar Union.

We are sorry to inform you that the applications for admission to the work-house and for out-door relief appear to be rather on the increase, as a very large number of persons presented themselves before us at our two sittings, but having provided 80 vacancies in the house, we were enabled to administer what has always proved the most effectual test of destitution—admission to the house,—and consequently great numbers declined relief in that way; those ruled on the relieving officers' books for out-door relief were 445 adults, and 131 children; but in some respects to balance this increase, a number of persons with their families have been cancelled for non-attendance at work.

Captain Farren, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, has handed us two orders from the British Association on the Commissariat depôts of Ballinrobe and Ballina, each for 300*l.* worth of provisions, of which we have appropriated about 242*l.* worth from the former, and 217*l.* worth from the latter, leaving a balance of 141*l.* worth to meet the next week's distribution, for which present appearances leave us a hope about 400*l.* will be sufficient.

It is satisfactory to be able to inform you that a considerable progress is being made in the tillage and cropping of the land, since the commencement of last week, the weather which had been most unfavourable, has assumed a settled character, and a pretty general appearance of industry and employment is manifested.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 6, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 400*l.* to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

CLONMEL UNION.

Captain HILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 24, 1848.

HAVING, in accordance with instructions received at your office, left Dublin on the evening of the 15th instant, I have now the honour to report my arrival here the following morning, and that I attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians on that day.

The chair, in the absence of Colonel Phipps, (the regularly appointed chairman), was taken by Mr. Smith. No business of much apparent importance beyond the usual routine took place, excepting the perusal of a communication from Colonel Phipps, intimating his intention of declining to act as chairman after the 25th, if chosen by the new Board. This determination, I fear, will be attended with considerable inconvenience, more particularly as at the late nomination of Guardians for the ensuing year, some of the most active and useful now in office were omitted; and as part of those there named have since objected to act, I think it advisable to subjoin a list of the remainder with their electoral divisions, by which it will be seen that seven of the ten will not be represented, and that but one-third of the proper number of elective Guardians will be available.

Mr. C. Bianconi, for Clonmel,
Mr. Joseph Kenny, Clonmel,
Mr. Alderman Quinn, Clonmel,
Mr. William Mahony, Clonmel,
Mr. Thomas Prendergast, Clonmel,
Mr. Patrick Wall, Lisronagh,
Mr. James Henneberry, Rathgormack.

Total, Seven.

From conversations with Colonel Phipps and others, it appears that but few, if any, of the ex-officio Guardians regularly attend, and that the attendance of the elected has been, with few exceptions, irregular also. I therefore am disposed to think that a paid Board will eventually become necessary.

In the course of the past week I have visited the three houses of the establishment, and though my inspections were not so minute as I intend them to be in future, the general cleanly appearance and management of them I consider creditable to the officers of the different departments.

I attended the meetings of the Board on Monday, the 20th, and yesterday. The following shows the state of the houses taken collectively on both days:—

The practice in the Union has been to give each person above 15 years of age one pound of Indian meal, and half to those under that age, per diem; if, therefore, we suppose half of the above number to be under 15, and the price of the meal to be 1*d.* per pound, the weekly cost will be 100*l.* 13*s.* 4½*d.*, or about 5½*d.* for each individual. This, added to the cost of the inmates of the houses, will produce a total (exclusive of other expenses) of 239*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.* per week.

To meet this expenditure there remains in the hands of the treasurer about 3000*l.*, or sufficient to last 12 weeks, supposing it continues as at present, and as will be seen by the following table, 2654*l.* 17*s.* 9*d.*, or rather such portion of it as may be collected, which remains due from the rate-payers out of 19,389*l.*, the amount of the rates struck on the 25th March last:—

The collectors have been directed to submit to the Board on the 25th instant, lists of the rate-payers who have not paid their rates, with the reason assigned opposite the name of each as given by himself, or such other causes of non-payment as may be applicable with the view of taking more decided steps towards recovery.

The Guardians, at their meeting yesterday, decided on trying the bread referred to in Mr. Stanley's letter of the 11th instant, of Indian and rye-meal in equal proportions, for which purpose, tenders for the supply of the latter were directed to be advertised for.

They also entered a minute on their proceedings to the effect that application be made for permission to continue out-door relief to destitute able-bodied men in return for labour, having wives, and more than two children under 15 years, or able-bodied widowers, with a similar number of children dependent on them. Such persons to be considered destitute, though in possession of trifling articles of furniture. The principal reason assigned was, that if all able-bodied persons are struck off the lists on the 1st April, according to the order of the 18th instant, work will not, it is supposed, be procurable for them, and a greater number of cases will arise for relief in the workhouses than can be provided, and as the accommodation at present disposable in them is said to be but for 169, I beg respectfully to recommend that the application be acceded to; in addition to this, as the cost of maintenance in the workhouse is so much greater than out of doors, economy may perhaps be also pleaded. The reason for recommending that such persons as may be possessed of trifling articles of furniture may not be excluded is, that if they are, they will be reduced to the necessity of selling or pawning them (if unable to procure work), and thus will have nothing to induce them to keep out of the workhouse; whereas experience proves they now frequently refuse the offer of admission, stating that their little cabins and property will not be taken care of.

With respect to the labour required from paupers receiving out-door relief, I have arranged for the employment of about 150 in the course of next week, being as many as the Turnpike Board can now find work for (viz., stone-breaking), and shall use every exertion in my power to increase the number.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 24th instant, on the present constitution of the Board of Guardians of Clonmel Union, the state of the workhouse, the funds for relief, and the application of the Board for an extension of the out-door relief order, which will expire on the 1st proximo.

The Commissioners desire to refer you to the provisions of the Acts 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 56, and 6 and 7 Vic., cap. 92, which may be made available for the election of Guardians for those divisions in which you state that no step for that object has been taken under the general election order, in the present year.

As it appears that so very large a proportion of the rates uncollected are due in Clonmel electoral division, the Commissioners request you will make a very strict examination of the collectors' books, and require that prompt exertions shall be made for the collection of the amount outstanding, as far as recoverable. It is desirable that in all the electoral divisions the collectors should press for the rates still due, so that their books may be closed, and the arrears transferred to the new rate, which ought now to be in preparation.

The Commissioners are not prepared on the information at present before them, to extend beyond the 1st proximo, the present out-door relief order, which was issued to Clonmel Union on the 18th instant. They agree with you that out-door relief to a given number of destitute persons is less in cost than the in-door maintenance of a like number; but it must be recollected that the applicants for the former will always be found much more numerous than those willing to accept the latter; and this, therefore, occasions an important diminution of the total relief expenditure, while it fully provides for the wants of the classes requiring relief. Keeping this in view, the Commissioners request you to press on the Guardians the importance of having in-door accommodation reserved for the families of able-bodied persons; and if this be no longer practicable, either by transferring to the out-door relief lists, the infirm classes, of which 353 are now inmates of the workhouse, or by obtaining an additional building; out-door labour, at stone-breaking, should be immediately provided at work stations to be formed throughout the Union.

The Commissioners observe that you propose to have 150 men employed this week on a turnpike-road, in breaking stones for the trustees; but it cannot be considered proper that the rate-payers should have to provide and support labourers for the turnpike trustees, who, if requiring labour, should hire it in the ordinary course. However, if it be intended only that the stones are to be broken for the Board of Guardians, and that the trustees shall pay for them the price of the district according to measurement, there is no objection to such sale of the stone; but this appears to present no advantage to the trustees equal to the hiring of labourers in the ordinary way.

As so little time remains for the duration of the present out-door relief order to able-bodied persons, the Commissioners request you to confer immediately with rate-payers who possess experience in the affairs of the Union, on whose judgment you can rely, and report whether it be really indispensable that the order should be renewed, and if so, for what number of days.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to state that there are few Unions in Ireland in which the Board of Guardians has hitherto been found so efficient as in Clonmel Union. And the Commissioners trust, therefore, that you will give no encouragement to the idea of its becoming necessary to dissolve it.

Captain HILL to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 31, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of Mr. Stanley's letter received this morning, directing me immediately to confer with rate-payers possessing experience in the affairs of the Union, on whose judgment reliance can be placed, as to whether it be really indispensable to continue out-door relief to the able-bodied paupers as requested by the minute of the Guardians on the 23rd instant, I have the honour to report that I have consulted with Messrs. Davis, Smith, Quinn, and some of the relieving officers. The former is of opinion that it should be for a month, and the others at least a fortnight. They affirm that they are averse to preventing the people from relying on their own energies, by affording them any inducement to depend on relief from the rates, but they consider that the employment as yet to be had in the country, is inadequate to provide means of support to all who have only their labour to depend on; and although the Guardians intend to apply the work-house test as far as possible, by offering to discharge the infirm to make room for others, they have, from the reports of the relieving officers, reason to expect that so many already struck off the lists will request admission to the house on the next Board day, that their accommodation will, if those with large families are also discontinued, be impracticable.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 1, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order for one week, until the Guardians have time to meet and consider whether an order may not be substituted, limiting relief to widows with one child, to orphans whose parents are both dead, and to men, one of whose family is sick.

NEWCASTLE UNION.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 2, 1848.

AT the weekly meeting of the Guardians of this Union, held yesterday, 1st February, I pointed out to them that the collection of rates for the last week had fallen off 316 $\frac{1}{2}$ l., instead of improving, as I anticipated; that their expenditure had exceeded the collection by a sum of 323 $\frac{1}{2}$ l., and that they were in debt to their contractor for meal in the large sum of 3,429 $\frac{1}{2}$ l.; and I also read them the communication of 21st January, from Commissioners to the collectors.

The vice-chairman informed me, that he was aware that the collectors were making the utmost exertions in the discharge of their duty; that the most stringent measures were in progress against all defaulters; that several decrees had been obtained; and on the day previous, the 31st January, a sum of 445 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. in addition had been lodged in bank by the collectors. The bank receipts were shown me. I called on the Board to reconsider the subject of taking the house in Ballingarry for an extra workhouse, and read the observations of the Commissioners on the subject. I pointed out that the Commissioners might sanction the schoolmaster and mistress with the whole of the children, and a few able women for household purposes, being located there. This would save the salary of a master and matron, and make room for about 400 persons in the workhouse. The Board came to the determination to take the house at once; and a Committee was named, consisting of the ex-officio Guardians and Electoral Guardians of Ballingarry, Castletown, and Kilmeedy electoral divisions, to carry this measure out. The only difficulty will be in obtaining the attendance of this Committee; two of the ex-officio Guardians who live close by having stated, "that they had plenty to attend to besides."

The contractor for raising the idiot wards and completing them, having totally broken faith with the Guardians, and left his work in an unfinished state, orders were given to proceed at law against his securities.

A report was read and adopted on the subject of taking some land close outside the walls of the workhouse; and a special meeting was named for Thursday, the 3rd instant, to take that subject into consideration.

On examining the relieving officer's book, the lately-elected Guardian for Rathronan stated, that "he warned the relieving officer not to give relief to a girl who refused to take a servant's situation in his house; and notwithstanding, he gave her a ticket of admission to the workhouse;" it appears there was not room for her, and on Saturday last the Guardian saw her receive rations at the food depôt.

On remonstrating with the distributor (who is a brother of Mr. Hartnett, the relieving officer) he (the Distributor) replied, "that he did not care whether the Guardian liked it or not, he was justified in giving relief to her." Relieving Officer says, that her name is not on the out-door relief books, and that if she got rations it was without his knowledge.

My opinion on this is, that the relieving officer ought to be dismissed, and the distributor also. The former is a person I have no confidence in; he is a weak, intimidated, popularity-seeking person. In my opinion the system of the Guardians providing for their relatives and friends, by appointing them relieving officers, and distributors, and superintendents, is the source of every kind of jobbing and abuse. On calling on the relieving officers, I find that the wetting of the meal has been properly carried out except in one electoral division (the same Rathronan), where the Guardian informs me the distributor merely sprinkled a little water on the meal with his hand.

I warned all the relieving officers to observe the greatest vigilance on this subject, and at once report any neglect or imposition on the part of the distributors; and I held them strictly responsible for the carrying out of the Commissioners' orders on this subject, as well as on the stone-breaking.

In two electoral divisions, Castletown and Kilmeedy, under one relieving officer (Mr. Minahan), in spite of weather, 48 and 50 persons have been set to work; and when there was a difficulty in procuring stones, he made the labourers collect them off the fields. Two persons called on by him did not go to work, and have been struck off the lists. In the other divisions, 37, 20, 20, 24, 25, have been put to work, but the names of non-attendants have not been struck off, "owing to the severity of the weather." In four electoral divisions it has as yet been found impossible to procure quarries; in one, "Ardagh," the men were prevented entering a quarry by the occupying tenants armed with pitchforks, &c., although leave to work there had been granted by the landlord.

I informed the relieving officers that I would admit of no excuse in future for non-attendance, except in case of sickness or very severe weather, and held up to them the activity and determination of Mr. Minahan as an example to follow.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 7, 1848.

I AM to express the great regret of the Commissioners at the unsatisfactory state of the collection, and to state that the Commissioners rely on your inspecting the collectors' books, and on your stimulating them to greater exertion by your personal admonitions.

The Commissioners are glad to learn that the Guardians are now willing to take a house at Ballingarry; and the Commissioners will readily give their sanction to the hiring it and fitting it up properly for a workhouse. A visiting Committee should be appointed, whose special duty it should be to inspect it and report upon it to the Guardians once every week.

In reference to the relieving officer referred to in your letter, the Commissioners have called upon him for an explanation. With regard to the distributor, the Commissioners would recommend you to bring his conduct under the notice of the Board of Guardians. He is not an officer of the Union, and therefore the Commissioners cannot precisely remove him from his situation.

The COMMISSIONERS to the RELIEVING OFFICER:—February 7, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed extract from a report which the Commissioners have received from Mr. Maxwell, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, in which it is stated that relief was afforded to a girl in Newcastle Union who refused to take a servant's situation; and I am to request that you will furnish the Commissioners with an explanation in regard to this statement.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848.

At the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday I read the communication of the Commissioners regretting the unsatisfactory state of the collection in the Union, and pointed out to them the increase of their difficulties. They had exceeded their weekly collection for the article of food alone in the sum of 83*l.* 4*s.*, and their debt to their contractors was about 3700*l.* I produced a return of the 10 highest rate-payers in each division, and I called on them to make their solicitor take the most unsparing steps against these persons, among whom there appear three members of the Board (who were present). Lord Muskerri, a defaulter in 75*l.*, stated that he had been absent from home for a considerable time, and had only just returned, but would pay his rate without loss of time. The Vice-Chairman, also a defaulter in 10*l.* 10*s.*, also sent word to the collector that he would pay immediately.

An order was made by the Board that their solicitor be instructed to proceed, without further delay, against all the highest defaulters.

Additional time was given to the collectors to close their collection until the new Rate Book were made out; and I informed the Board that I should conceive it my duty to report the collectors as inefficient, if the collection was not in a most satisfactory state at that time.

In consequence of my representing that I had visited one of the stone-breaking depôts at 3 o'clock (in fine weather), and had found the workmen leaving their work for the day, the Board made an order that the superintendents strike off the lists, all who do not work for eight hours per day, or perform their task.

On reading to the Guardians the letter from the Commissioners, expressing their satisfaction that the Board were now willing to take the house at Ballin-garry, I was informed by the Vice-Chairman that, since last meeting, he had made inquiries, and had reason to state that this house and property were in the Court of Chancery, that Major O'Dell had no right to let it, and the receiver had stated that he would distrain for debt any property he found on the premises.

William Cox, Esq., then proposed to inquire about another house at Ballin-garry, and report at next meeting.

On bringing under the notice of the Board the conduct of the distributor in Abbeyfeale, in compliance with your letter, it was resolved to reprimand him, this being his first offence. But Mr. Woulfe, the Guardian, having brought forward another charge against him, for opposing him, and using language tending to inflame the people against him, the Board, by a large majority, agreed to write to Mr. O'Donnell, the contractor, to dismiss him.

I then called attention to the report and letter from the Commissioners' architect, upon which the securities for the contractor came forward and took the matter into their own hands, and promised to complete the building within the time named by the assistant-architect.

The Board determined to employ the clerk of works recommended, if his terms were moderate.

On considering the letter of the Commissioners to the Guardians, "suggesting that the rates in Ardagh, Newcastle, and Abbeyfeale electoral divisions be raised to the same level as the other divisions," a long series of resolutions come to by a Relief Committee in Abbeyfeale were read, and it was ordered to forward them to the Commissioners for their opinion and sanction.

The object of this Committee is (in my opinion) simply this: they are anxious to employ a sum of 200*l.*, remaining in their hands, in taking con-acre land, and seeding it for the paupers in that district, and thereby restore the potato cultivation, which has succeeded so well on a small scale, this year in this county; and this Committee want (in my opinion) to bind the Guardians to continue out-door relief to those persons until the potatoes are fit for food.

The Guardian for Ardagh complained loudly "at the rate being raised to 3*s.* in his electoral division, inasmuch as the original estimate of the clerk for all expenses for six months was only 2*s.* 6*d.*"

The Board came to the resolution of adopting the suggestions of the Commissioners.

This electoral division has been well and closely attended to by the rate-payers, Guardians, and relieving officers; imposition has been checked, and its expenses are consequently low. I therefore venture to suggest to the Commissioners that their sanctioning the 2*s.* 6*d.*, or a less rate, would be attended with good, and set a useful example in the Union. The rates have also been well paid in Ardagh electoral division.

I called the attention of the Board of Guardians to a fact that had come to my knowledge, viz., that one of their relieving officers, Mr. Hallinan, was at present under arrest for debt. This man has been absent from his duty for the last four or five weeks from ill health. He is a person perfectly unfit for his situation, in my opinion, from age and broken constitution. I have received many complaints of his conduct, including charges of drunkenness; but I have not yet been able to investigate into them, owing to his continued illness.

I ordered the relieving officers to put to work 50 more men from their lists in each electoral division.

The Board adjourned till next Thursday, the 10th instant.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 14, 1848.

WITH reference to your suggestion, that a rate of 2*s.* 6*d.*, or less, should be sanctioned in Ardagh electoral division, I am to state that, as the Guardians have resolved to strike a rate of 3*s.* in the pound on Ardagh division, the Commissioners cannot act on your suggestion to sanction a 2*s.* 6*d.* rate in that division. Moreover, you will see, in reference to the enclosed copy of a letter addressed to the Guardians this day in regard to Abbeyfeale division, that a 3s. rate will be required in reference to the repayment of advances under the Temporary Relief Act.

Newcastle Union.

With reference to the statement that Mr. Hallinan, one of the relieving officers, is under arrest for debt, and that he has been absent from his duties for the last four or five weeks, I am directed to inform you that the Commissioners have called on this relieving officer to resign.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the GUARDIANS:—February 14, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had their attention drawn by Mr. Maxwell, to the resolutions of the Abbeyfeale Relief Committee, relative to the Commissioner's suggestion to raise the rate in Abbeyfeale electoral division to 3s. in the pound; they have also had before them the Guardians' minutes, in which reference is made to those resolutions, and to which a copy of them is attached.

The Commissioners, however, see nothing in the resolutions of the Abbeyfeale Relief Committee to induce the Guardians to strike a lower rate in Abbeyfeale electoral division than 3s. in the pound.

The Guardians will perceive, on referring to the Commissioners' letter of the 31st ultimo, that the Commissioners made therein the suggestion respecting a rate of 3s. in the pound in the Abbeyfeale electoral division, in reference to the repayment of advances under the Temporary Relief Act.

It is on account of such repayment that the Commissioners now again request the Guardians to strike a rate of at least 3s. in the pound in Abbeyfeale electoral division.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

I BEG to state that I examined the collectors' books minutely, and informed them that they had now about 10 or 12 days to complete their collection; and that if I found at the end of that time an unsatisfactory account of the rates due, I should consider it my duty to report them as inefficient, to the Poor Law Commissioners.

They inform me that there are warrants or decrees against every defaulter who is "at all able" to pay his rates; and they promised me that, on or before Saturday, the 19th instant, their collection would be completed.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

IN this electoral division (Newcastle) I find that out of 138 persons ordered to break stones, 73 have refused, and in consequence have been struck off the relief lists.

I am informed that most of these persons are tradesmen and artizans in this town. They say, "they would rather die than break stones;" and many of them intend to demand admission to the workhouse on Tuesday next. I presume the Guardians will be justified in refusing their application.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that the Guardians are by no means obliged to give relief in the workhouse, even if there is room in it, for the accommodation of the applicants; and that the Guardians would be fully justified in refusing relief altogether to the able-bodied applicants, if they refused to break stones.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 16, 1848.

AT a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday I informed them that I had urged the collectors by every means in my power to increased exertion in the execution of their duty; and I now regretted to find that the collection this week only amounted to 263*l.* (the smallest collection made since my taking charge of the Union), whereas their expenditure for food alone amounted to 780*l.*, and their debts had increased to about 4000*l.*

The vice-chairman informed me that he believed the collectors were doing all that men could do to collect the rates.

Mr. Moylan, the only collector in attendance, being called in, informed me that he had exerted himself to the utmost the last week; that he had cattle impounded to the amount of 150*l.*, and had that morning sent into the Bank 200*l.*

I submitted to the Board a letter I had received from William Cox, Esq., on the subject of a house in Ballingarry.

The feeling of the Board was that the rent was too high, and that they did not feel justified in taking any house for a term of years. The subject was postponed, in order to communicate further with the proprietor.

I called upon the relieving officers to extend the labour system to the whole of the able-bodied males in each district.

In one part of the Union, Knockaderry, the Guardians have been refused every quarry hitherto; further application is to be made to a proprietor.

I am informed by the relieving officers that a considerable number of persons have been struck off the relief lists, in consequence of their having refused to work.

During the sitting of the Board, the persons belonging to Newcastle electoral division who were employed at the stone-breaking depôt, came in a body to the workhouse, and sent in a letter protesting against the hardship of their being forced to labour eight hours per day for one pound of meal.

Having called on the Board to resist anything like intimidation, and do their duty firmly, I sent for two of the most intelligent of the applicants, and I read to them "the able-bodied out-door relief order," and the Commissioners' communication of the 14th instant, stating "that the Guardians are fully justified in refusing relief altogether to the able-bodied applicants, if they refuse to break stones." They then retired.

I called on the relieving officers to make me a return of the number of persons who refused to work in each electoral division. This I shall forward for the information of the Commissioners.

A road contractor in Abbeyfeale electoral division came before the Board and offered to provide stones, and to pay the Guardians 3*d.* per ton for the breaking them. This was accepted.

On the order being made to advertise for a relieving officer to supply the place of Mr. Hallinan, resigned, the vice-chairman called on the members of the Board not to pledge themselves to support any one, but to come to the Board unbiassed, and prepared to select the persons best qualified, thereby doing their duty by the rate-payers of the Union. I also advised them to be very particular in their selection, as I would never hesitate in reporting any relieving officer whom I considered unfit for the situation.

I have to express my satisfaction at the cleanliness of the interior of the workhouse, and I find both master and matron most active in keeping the able-bodied inmates constantly employed.

Orders have been made to provide flax, wool, and spinning-wheels, &c.

I hope soon to have the bread made and baked in the workhouse. This will cause a saving of sixpence per week per inmate.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 21, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report which relates to the collection of the rate, I am to enclose for your information a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have this day addressed to the Board of Guardians on the subject; and I am to request you will be so good as to report in detail the reasons why the collection of the rates is in such a backward state.

The Commissioners regard the present financial condition of the Union with the most serious apprehension, as, unless greater efficiency is manifested by the Board of Guardians and the collectors in the collection of the rates, the Union will inevitably become bankrupt.

The Commissioners request you to give your special consideration to the question of whether there is a reasonable prospect that the finances of the Union will be relieved without a dissolution of the Newcastle Board of Guardians.

Newcastle Union.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS:—February 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners are desirous of calling the serious attention of the Newcastle Board of Guardians to the unsatisfactory progress of the collection of the rates in Newcastle Union.

The weekly expenditure during the week ended February the 12th cannot have been less than 800*l.*, while the rates collected did not exceed 263*l.* And it appears that the net debts of the Union on the 31st ultimo, after deducting money in the collectors' hands, amounted to 4565*l.*

It further appears that during each of the three months of November, December, and January, the expenses of the Guardians exceeded their receipts; the excess in November having been 661*l.*, in December 530*l.*, and in January 784*l.*; so that during the three months of the year which may perhaps be considered the most favourable for the collection of the rates, the Newcastle Board of Guardians, instead of reducing their existing debt, added to that debt a sum only a very little short of 2000*l.*

The Commissioners therefore urgently call upon the Guardians to take decisive measures for enforcing the payment of the outstanding rates, and of their bringing the new rate into collection with the least possible delay; and the Commissioners would suggest that the collectors should be peremptorily instructed to distrain under their general warrant, the goods and chattels found on premises the rates upon which are in arrear, and that legal proceedings should be at once instituted by the Guardians against immediate lessors who have not yet paid their rates.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

At the weekly meeting of the Guardians yesterday I beg to state I called their serious attention to the very alarming state of their finances. Their expenditure in food alone having exceeded the collection by 376*l.* 19*s.* 1*d.*, and their debts amounting to upwards of 4500*l.* I read your letter of the 21st February, and called on them to take final and decisive measures against all defaulters; upon which the collectors were ordered to make a return of all the defaulters on Tuesday next, the 29th instant, specifying those who can and those who can never pay.

I pressed the adoption of expensive legal measures against some defaulters in the rank of gentlemen, but this was not attended to.

After a great opposition it was carried that the Board of Guardians take the house at Ballingarry belonging to the Rev. Mr. Gubbins, subject to the sanction of the Commissioners, and the children under the schoolmaster and mistress be sent there. The only disadvantage I see to this is the distance—eight miles. The Guardians are much averse to sending others than the children, as it would entail the expense of staff.

The subject of the rate in Abbeyfeale electoral division being raised to an uniform rate of 3*s.* in the pound, was considered and carried, after a most violent and intemperate opposition of the Guardian of that electoral division, who stated that employment would be put a stop to, and the whole of the pauper population would be thrown on the rates. I pointed out to him that it was for the purpose of paying a just debt that the rate was raised to that amount.

Mr. O'Connor was elected relieving officer almost unanimously. This young man has been acting for the last four or five weeks in lieu of Mr. Hallinan, who resigned in consequence of being arrested for debt. One of the unsuccessful candidates was son of the man who had him arrested. O'Connor is son-in-law to Hallinan.

The relieving officers have not exerted themselves sufficiently to bring the labour system into full operation, except in one instance. In this district, Castletown and Kilmeedy electoral divisions, the relieving officer reports 600 persons at work on Monday, the 21st.

On Saturday, the 19th, 33 persons had been struck off the lists for refusing to work.

In the other divisions the numbers at work vary from 150 to 45; but the proper returns have not been sent to me. I have cautioned the relieving officers against neglect in future.

The amount of work done has been small, and the overseers complain of the severity of the weather, the badness of the tools, &c.; but I attribute it chiefly to the vicious and perverse habits of idleness of the people.

No less than 19 men, 21 women, and 46 children left the workhouse last week, in consequence of their being obliged to work. I made the master give their names, &c., to each relieving officer, and cautioned them against submitting them on their books for out-door relief. Newcastle Union.

In consequence of the almost impossibility of obtaining a quarry in Knockaderry district, I request the sanction of the Commissioners to the paupers being put to break stones that were quarried under the Board of Works in the neighbourhood of an unfinished road.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of WORKS:—February 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you, to be laid before the Board of Works, the accompanying extract from a report which the Commissioners have received from Captain Maxwell, the Inspector in charge of Newcastle Union, relative to the employment of paupers in breaking stones quarried under the Board of Works; and I am to request that the Board will be so good as to allow the stones to be broken as requested.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

IN compliance with your request, conveyed in communication of 21st February, I beg to state that the chief reasons, in my opinion, why the collection is in such a backward state, are, the lately very disturbed state of the country, the intimidation under which the collectors have been labouring, and the want of support given them by the civil power previous to the 26th January.

Previous to October last, I am informed that the people were urged by persons having the greatest influence over them not to pay any rates, and the feeling prevailed among them that by such means the Government would be compelled to renew the operations of the Temporary Relief Act. I may say the collection of the rate struck on the 10th June last only commenced in earnest in October last. The chief arrears of this (modified to 3s. in the pound), are in Mr. Moylan's district. The electoral divisions of Castletown, Kilmeedy, and Ballingarry, are the chief defaulters, and there exists the most abject poverty. Numbers of rate-payers have been ejected or have run away from their holdings; there is no stock on the land to seize, or any means to get at. There remains uncollected of the rate 1086*l.*, of which the collector states not more than 200*l.* can be got, and that not immediately.

Mr. Hannigan has collected all the 3s. rate in his district, except 311*l.* He has executed 55 warrants, and has 20 more; he has been repeatedly opposed in the execution of his duty. He states that "the cattle are all housed now, and he cannot get at them; but when they are turned out in May, when there will be no more house-feeding left, he will be able to collect the arrear, and he hopes the new rate also."

Mr. Leahy "has only about 120*l.* uncollected in his district, and is afraid there is about one-half of that sum that never can be collected, from mistakes in the books, property changing hands, and there being either no stock on the land or its being locked up." He states, "that a system has been lately adopted, viz., of no one bidding for the distrained cattle, and applies that the master of the workhouse be sent to bid at the public sale."

I beg to state that I have heard but one opinion with regard to the collectors, viz., that they are honest and trustworthy. This I believe; but like every one in this country, they have been intimidated.

As to the rate-payers, there are many of the defaulters who are able to pay, and I pointed out by name a justice of the peace and deputy lieutenant living in the county Clare, a clergyman, the Inspector of Drainage under the Board of Works, a landed proprietor, a farmer rated at 62*l.* per annum, and the Board's milk contractor, as defaulters without excuse. I called on the Board to take proceedings in the higher Courts, and take out writs against their persons; but that suggestion was not attended to. In my opinion they have been stern enough with the higher classes.

Newcastle Union.

As to the administration of the funds of the Union, I consider that the reckless manner in which out-door relief was given in October without sanction, and has been continued since with scarce a check, at an expense far exceeding the collection, speaks most forcibly for their want of economy or forethought in the manner of managing their finances.

But very few instances on the part of individual Guardians to check abuse have come under my notice; and in my presence it was stated by one of themselves that they all, and every farmer in the country, were trying to get or getting out-door relief for their cottier, or herdsmen, or occasional labourers.

They have as yet shown anything but economical management in their work-house, the average cost of a pauper being 2s. 1½d.; whereas in the neighbouring Union of Rathkeale it is only 1s. 6d. This, however, will soon be corrected.

With regard to this subject, there are many of the ex-officio Guardians and respectable part of the Board who wish, beyond measure, for the appointment of Vice-Guardians; but the rest are most anxious to preserve the patronage and influence of the situation.

I am certain that the affairs of the Union would have been far better managed by Vice-Guardians; and I would have expressed my opinion on the subject before, but that I was informed it was not considered necessary by the Commissioners that such should be appointed.

The vice-chairman expressed himself yesterday at the Board, "that if there had been a paid Board of Guardians, they would have struck a 7s. rate instead of a 3s. one." He at the same time informed me that he was convinced the 3s. rate sanctioned by the Commissioners, and now ready for signature, would be collected, but that nothing higher would be possible.

I much fear that the reduction in the expenditure will not be commensurate with the state of finances of the Union, and that no contractor will be found to supply them with Indian meal for the next month.

I annex a letter from one of the collectors.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. LEAHY, Collector, to Captain MAXWELL:—February 23, 1848.

I BEG leave to inform you that I have on yesterday applied to Sub-Inspector Coppinger, of Newcastle, for the protection of a few police to go about a mile out of Newcastle, on the resident magistrate's general requisition. He said on account of the short distance I had to go he would not refuse me then, but for the future he would give no protection without a fresh requisition for every day, and for every particular townland, and giving him two or three days' previous notice; and also that he would send his instructions to every police-station in his district to the same effect.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians:—February 28, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their serious consideration the present embarrassed state of the finances of Newcastle Union, in connexion with the resolution passed by the Newcastle Board of Guardians on the 2nd of November last, expressing an opinion that a paid Board of Guardians should be appointed who could devote their whole and undivided attention to the affairs of this Union.

Looking to the comparative wealth of Newcastle Union, and to the great number of individuals of rank and station who have property within it, the Commissioners were in the highest degree unwilling to supersede the functions of the representatives of the rate-payers, by the appointment of paid officers, and they accordingly declined to act in accordance with the resolution of the Board of Guardians. Although the debts of the Union were of a considerable amount, the Commissioners entertained the hope that the existing emergency would call forth extraordinary exertions, and that the Guardians would not fail to collect sufficient rates to pay off their debts and to place the finances of the Union on a satisfactory foundation.

In this hope the Commissioners regret to state that they have been wholly disappointed. Notwithstanding the representations of their Inspector, Captain Maxwell, the Guardians have not in any one of the last three months collected sufficient rates to defray even their actual expenses. The precise amount of their debts on the 31st of October was 3015l.; but in November the Guardians incurred an additional debt of 661*l.*, in December 530*l.*, and in January 784*l.* so that on the 31st ultimo the total debts of the Guardians amounted to 4990*l.*, while the money to their credit was merely 575*l.*; and in each of the weeks of the present month the collection has fallen so far short of the expenses that the Commissioners cannot estimate the present debts of the Union at less than 5600*l.*

The Commissioners are unable to avoid the conclusion that this state of the finances of Newcastle Union is owing in a great measure to the default of the Board of Guardians in the collection of the rates, and they desire on this head to refer to the example of the adjoining Union of Kanturk.

Newcastle Union appears to be on the whole more wealthy in reference to its population than Kanturk, the population of Newcastle Union being 60,007, and the net annual value of its property under the Poor Law valuation being 109,499*l.*; while the population of Kanturk Union is 85,861, and the net annual value of its property is 106,114*l.*

On the 30th of last November the debts of Kanturk Union amounted to 6680*l.*, and the embarrassed state of its finances was one of the reasons which influenced the Commissioners in appointing Vice-Guardians to manage its affairs. The Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 16th of November; they made a rate of 16,837*l.* on the 27th; and the collectors' warrants were signed on the 30th of the same month. They then pressed forward the collection with such vigour and success that they collected during December 5677*l.*, during January 5948*l.*, and during less than three weeks of February 2945*l.*, sums amounting on the whole to 14,570*l.* By these means the Kanturk Guardians, instead of adding to their debt, raised as much as 8000*l.* more than the actual expenses, from the 30th of November to the present time.

Now, when the Commissioners consider the collectors' warrants in Newcastle Union were all signed either in June, or the first week of July, and that the amount put in collection was 15,149*l.* (the collection of which ought undoubtedly to have been closed by the end of last December at the very latest), it appears to the Commissioners evident that there has been a default of duty in the Newcastle Board of Guardians, in reference to that very important part of their functions, the levying of rates.

Under these circumstances, in order to prevent the Union from becoming involved in inextricable financial difficulties, the Commissioners deem it advisable to supersede the present system of management by the appointment of paid Guardians. The Commissioners have, accordingly, given directions for the preparation of an order dissolving the Newcastle Board of Guardians; the order will be formally issued by to-morrow evening's post, and the Commissioners will proceed with the least possible delay to appoint Vice-Guardians to manage the affairs of the Union.

RESOLUTION of the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the 2nd November, 1847, referred to in the foregoing Letter.

THE following resolution was proposed by Thomas Locke, Esq., and seconded by Captain Shelton:—"That from no willingness to abdicate our functions, but with the most anxious desire to discharge our duties as Poor Law Guardians to the utmost of our ability and exertions for the benefit and interest of all classes, we are under the strongest impression, that taking into account the constant and vigilant attention indispensably and daily necessary to the increasing and arduous duties of this Board, and the honest performance of our duties as members thereof, we are of opinion that it will be for the benefit of this Union, and the interest of the destitute poor and of the rate-payers, that a paid Board of Guardians be appointed, who could devote their whole and undivided attention to the affairs of this Union.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 24, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners, that leave to work in a quarry at Knockaderry having been at length obtained, 269 persons were ordered to go to work.

On assembling this morning they threatened the owner of the quarry and the overseer, and most of them refused to work—one man calling out that "they would rather be transported than break stones." The relieving officer and the overseer immediately reported the circumstance to me, I have struck off altogether four men, the ringleaders, and have stopped a week's relief from the others. I have also sent them word that if they did not immediately go to work they and their families would be deprived of out-door relief. I have reason to believe that in the Knockaderry district there has been a systematic combination to oppose the labour test. The whole country is studded with quarries; and every one of them, with one exception, have been refused to the Guardians, two or three by landed gentlemen.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 1, 1848.

ADVERTING to your letter of the 24th ultimo, in which you state that a number of persons receiving out-door relief in Newcastle Union had refused to break stones, and that you had suspended relief to some of them, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they are of opinion that, under the circumstances stated in your letter, you were justified in assuming that the parties who refused to break the stones were not really destitute.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 1, 1848.

AFTER the letter from the Commissioners dissolving the Board of Guardians had been read yesterday, I begged of them to remain and transact the business of the day. This request was cheerfully complied with, and a wish was expressed that a limited number of their body might be sanctioned to give their assistance to the Vice-Guardians.

The state of the finances of the Union is now as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Collection, week to 26th February	392	15	3
Expenditure in food alone	751	19	2
Amount of debt to Contractors	5,165	0	0

It was ordered that the collection be closed, and the arrears brought forward.

Each collector handed in a return of the whole of the defaulters on his books. I transmit them for the information of the Commissioners. Mr. Leahy, poor rate collector, stated that he would have collected a larger amount of rates last week, but that he was refused the assistance of the police; in consequence the seizures made by him and his bailiffs were on several occasions rescued from them.

Two contracts for Indian meal were offered to the Board: one from the present contractor, Mr. O'Donnel, at 10*l.* 15*s.* per ton, including all expenses; the other at 8*l.* 18*s.* 10*d.*, with the same conditions. The latter was accepted, and the day named for Mr. Russell to commence the supply.

The Board decided on causing a total revision of the Union, for the purpose of correcting the errors in the present rating.

A petition to Parliament, sent by a committee of Irish members to the vice-chairman, praying for an amendment of the Irish Poor Law, &c., was signed by all the members of the Board.

The Board recommended that an assistant to the master be appointed, and also a person to superintend the baking, and the industrial operations on the female side of the house. This latter appointment I think will be necessary. A number of masons, &c., are now employed in building a story over the idiot wards on the female side, and on that account the assistant or steward is obliged to attend constantly in the yard; but when the building is finished, and this man can resume his ordinary duties, I think there will be no necessity for an assistant to the master. The workhouse is clean and in good order, and I think there will be no difficulty in keeping it so with the present staff.

A letter was read from the farmers of one electoral division (Rathronan) proposing to give employment to the persons who are now breaking stones, for their out-door relief, and to give them their dinner daily in lieu of wages, provided neither they nor their families be struck off the relief lists, and continue to receive rations. I begged of the Guardian of that division to explain to those farmers that such a proposal was contrary to every principle of justice, and could not be entertained for one moment.

The labour system has been extended further this week, but the amount of work done appears small. The weather has been very severe, and several of the quarries are filled with water.

The persons from Knockaderry district who last week opposed the overseer and refused to break stones have since come quietly to work. There exists a general underhand combination against the labour system. Several of the owners of quarries are withdrawing their permission to work in them, or charging enormous compensation for "trespass." In one case the broken stone has been seized by the owner of the quarry; it is evident this is caused by the labourers themselves.

I investigated into the loss of two blankets, a sheet, and a rug at the Church-town house; when it appeared that the schoolmaster neglected to count the bedding handed over to him by Wardmaster Collins; and the Board were of opinion that he should replace them at his own expense.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 4, 1848.

As a few days are likely to elapse before the permanent appointment of Vice-Guardians can be completed, the Commissioners have appointed you as Vice-Guardian temporarily, and they request that you will be so good as to act provisionally as Vice-Guardians of Newcastle Union until the permanent Vice-Guardians arrive.

The Commissioners have requested Mr. Briscoe, Vice-Guardian of Kanturk Union, to act conjointly with you in like manner, in the beginning of next week.

The Commissioners have great confidence in Mr. Briscoe, whose efficiency as a Vice-Guardian has been proved in Kanturk Union; and they trust that you will be able to take decisive steps next Tuesday in carrying out the Commissioners' instructions respecting the administration of relief. For example, the Commissioners observe that in Newcastle workhouse there are 147 aged and infirm men, and 145 aged and infirm women, all (or at least almost all) of whom should receive out-door allowances. Other points will readily occur to you; but on this head the Commissioners think that no time should be lost in making such arrangements as will make the workhouse far more available than at present, as a test for the destitution of able-bodied men and their wives.

Further Letter from the COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—
March 6, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 1st instant, relative to the Newcastle Union; and with reference to the statement that Mr. Leahy, one of the collectors, would have collected a large amount of rates, but that he was refused the assistance of the police, I am to inform you that the Commissioners will bring this matter under the notice of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

The other points adverted to in your report should be brought under the notice of the Vice-Guardians, and their views ascertained.

The lists of arrears transmitted by you are herewith returned for the purpose of being laid before the Vice-Guardians.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

REFERRING to your communication of the 2nd March, 1848, I beg to state that, in my opinion, there is no objection to suspend the order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men in this Union on the 10th instant; my intention was not to have applied for a renewal of it after the 15th March.

Newcastle Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 6, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 4th instant, in which you state that you know of no objection to the suspension of the order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in Newcastle Union, and that you did not intend to apply for a renewal of it.

The Commissioners infer from this report that you do not think it necessary that the order should be renewed, and accordingly out-door relief to the able-bodied in Newcastle Union will not be legal after the 15th instant.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 8, 1848.

REFERRING to my report on the subject of the out-door relief order to the able-bodied I beg to state that, on consulting Mr. Briscoe, I find that his opinion is that the order ought to be extended to the 1st April. Since I made that report a vast deal of rain has fallen. The greater part of this Union is low and flat, and excessively wet and swampy from the long continuance of rain; and general employment cannot begin until the weather sets in fine and the land dried.

Under the circumstances, and in deference to Mr. Briscoe's opinion, I beg now to request the Commissioners to extend the order to the above-named period.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 11, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the order will be issued as you request.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 14, 1848.

WE have the honour to report for the week ended the 11th instant, that, in obedience to your instructions, we took temporary charge of this Union as Vice-Guardians upon Tuesday, 7th March instant.

Our first attention was directed to the financial department. We found that a rate varying from 1s. 10d. to 4s. 11d. in the pound was struck on the 8th June, 1847, and that on the 12th October only 1006l. 1s. 3½d. had been collected out of a rate of 18,698l. 1s. 3½d., and 1970l. due to the treasurer.

That the rate so struck was modified by the Guardians to 3s. as a maximum; but the whole of such rate was absolutely necessary, as the amount of debt due by the Union upon our appointment was 6448l. 13s. 1d.

It appearing that a new rate of 3s. in the pound upon the whole Union having been decided upon by the late Board of Guardians upon the 25th day of January, 1848, we considered it necessary to close the collector's accounts previous to striking such rate, which rate we have signed this day.

We find uncollected of the 8th of June rate, reduced to 3s. in the pound, a sum of 1189l. 6s. 5d.

This, with a balance of 3805l. 14s. 9½d. of the original rate, would make a sum of 4995l. 1s. 2½d., which would have considerably lessened the liabilities of the Union upon our appointment; and we intend to collect such sum of 4995l. 1s. 2½d. in addition to the new rate we have struck.

That were it not for the financial difficulties in which we found the Union, owing so large a sum as 6448l., a balance with treasurer of only 173l. 14s. 8d., and a weekly expenditure of 830l., we would not have decided upon striking the rate of 3s. upon each of the electoral divisions of the Union, as resolved by the late Board, but the alteration would have caused delay.

By referring to the abstract of the Union accounts (form 5 B) for the half-year ending September 29th last, the equal rating upon each of the electoral divisions of the Union we consider at variance with the 62nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 56.

We find that the first out-door relief was ordered by the late Guardians to section 1, for the week ended the 9th October last: 389 persons were relieved at a cost of 10l. 11s. 1d.

The next week, ending 16th October, 3699 persons, sec. 1, and 10,950, sec. 2, were relieved by order of the Board of Guardians at their meeting of the 12th October, William Smith O'Brien, Esq., in the chair, (minutes of proceedings subsequently signed by M. Leahy, Esq.) The cost of the above amounted to 516*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*

The next week, ended the 23rd October, 4901, sec. 1, and 14,638 persons, sec. 2, were relieved at a cost of 678*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.*

The next week, ended 30th October, 4928, sec. 1, and 15,000, sec. 2, received out-door relief at a cost of 729*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* The order signed by J. P. Kennedy, Esq.

The relief to this period (30th October) was, previous to the order of the Commissioners of the 1st November, sanctioning out-door relief to the able-bodied.

The indiscriminate manner in which the relieving officers received application for out-door relief is evident from 5104 names in one day, and 2310 on another day, having been entered on their Application and Report Books.

On the 7th of March instant, when we took charge of this Union, 5302, sec. 1, and 17,215, sec. 2, total 22,517, were receiving out-door relief at a cost of 646*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* for week ended the 4th March instant, and this large number of persons not having been examined by the Board of Guardians.

To meet which weekly expenditure for out-door relief, the support of the house, officers, &c., and a debt of 6448*l.*, there was in the hands of the treasurer a sum of 173*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*

These persons were relieved solely on the recommendation of the relieving officers—22,517 out of a population of 60,007 (Census 1841), 2515 more than one-third of the whole population of that period.

We consider the dietary of the house upon too expensive a scale, and not in accordance with the spirit of the Poor Law Acts on that head.

We intend to propose a new dietary, and have no doubt but that we shall be enabled to effect a saving under this head alone of 1330*l.* 11*s.* yearly to the Union.

We find that contracts have been taken at much too high a rate, one instance that of milk; the contract for the winter months, January, February, and March of 1847, was at the rate of 8*d.* a gallon, and we find the same contractor has now a contract for the whole year at 9*d.*

This latter contract we find could easily have been obtained at 7*d.* per gallon, making a difference to the Union of 257*l.* yearly.

We find that the lowest tenders have not been accepted, as may appear on reference to unaccepted tenders. We may instance one article, soap, contracted for at 35*s.*, when another tender was in for 29*s.* 6*d.*

The last entry in the Visiting Committee's Book we find dated 25th November, 1846.

The labour test has been partially successful only, the superintendents cannot do their duty from intimidation and the violence of the people, who by mobs and clamour have always carried every point in this Union.

The state of the house is satisfactory; the ventilation under the superintendence of the medical officer excellent; the clothing of the inmates good.

The workhouse grounds are in a most unprotected state, a low wall round three sides, and before the house no wall or gate. It is perfectly exposed.

We have given directions that the aged and infirm not bed-ridden, shall leave the house to receive out-door relief, in order to afford room to allow the workhouse test to be applied to the able-bodied applicants for relief.

The master applied to us for an assistant "to keep his books;" and on our refusal to make such appointment, he tendered his resignation, which we have accepted.

We consider it advisable to reduce the salaries of the wardsmen, steward, and wardswoman: each received 21*l.* 9*s.* yearly and rations; now they are each to receive 10*l.* yearly and rations.

We intend taking into consideration the industrial training of the children, and have ordered to be repaired the spinning implements that had been laid aside. We have ordered additional wheels and reels.

The house at Ballingarry intended to have been taken by the late Board (we have visited) as a school-house, and we are of opinion that it is much too small, and totally unfit for the purpose; it would be impossible to keep a classification in it. The Commissioners will have the goodness to sanction the Vice-Guardians in not making use of it.

Newcastle Union.

We consider that an immediate revision by personal examination of every person on the out-door relief list, both in section 1 and section 2, absolutely necessary.

The description of persons that have applied to us for out-door relief, respectable farmers and persons of a higher grade, who have made application to us to have their servants and labourers relieved, fully justify us in supposing that on the out-door relief list there are thousands that ought not to come within the operations of the Irish Poor Relief Act.

The late Board entered into a contract with the Messrs. Russell, of Limerick, for Indian meal, and one of the conditions was to pay weekly.

Not having funds to meet such condition if insisted upon, and not expecting at present much from our collectors, we submit for the Commissioners' consideration the affording us pecuniary assistance in the event of our treasurer, the Provincial Bank, Limerick, not agreeing to make us advances, which if they do you will be pleased to give consent to our paying them interest on such advances.

During the short time we have been in charge we have endeavoured, as far as time and personal exertion permitted, to give our best attention to the complicated affairs of this Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report of the 14th instant, relative to Newcastle Union, and desire to express their thanks to you for the information contained in that report.

The Commissioners understand from your statement that you found remaining uncollected of the 3s. instalment of the last rate a sum of 1189*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.*, that the amount of the last rate, which was not put in course of collection (being the difference between the amount of the 3s. instalment and the total amount of the rate), was 3805*l.* 14*s.* 9½*d.*, and that these two sums, making together 4995*l.* 1*s.* 2½*d.*, have been carried forward as arrear into the New Rate Books, and will be collected as such with the new rate.

The Commissioners fully approve of your having adopted the 3s. rate on all the electoral divisions, as agreed to by the late Board of Guardians, not only because any other course would have occasioned delay, but also because they believe from the statements before them that there is no electoral division in the Union in which a smaller sum is required; and on this latter ground, and having regard to the provisions of the Temporary Relief Act in reference to the repayment of advances, the Commissioners are of opinion that no objection to an equal rate of 3s. in the pound on all the electoral divisions could in this case be sustained on the ground of such equal rate being at variance with the 62nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, to which you refer.

With reference to that part of your report which relates to the administration of out-door relief to the able-bodied before the Commissioners' order, under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, was issued, I am to acquaint you that the Commissioners have already directed the attention of the auditor to the subject, and they will now forward to him an extract from your report.

With respect to the house at Ballingarry, which was intended to be taken as a school-house, but which you consider is unsuitable, the Commissioners are willing to leave this matter in your hands. The Commissioners approve generally of the steps taken by you as detailed in your report, and they have no doubt that the measures which you state you have in contemplation will be productive of much benefit to the Union. The Commissioners are of opinion, from your statements, that a revision of the relief lists is a matter of the most pressing and immediate importance, and should not be delayed a day longer than can possibly be avoided.

With reference to your request for pecuniary assistance, or the consent of the Commissioners to pay interest to the treasurer, I am to state that the Commissioners trust that they may be in a position to guarantee the payment of interest for money borrowed from the treasurer.

If the treasurer will advance no money, the Commissioners will endeavour to assist the Vice-Guardians in their difficulties until the new rate is actually in progress of collection.

Newcastle Union.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

I BEG to state that I have just received information from a most respectable source, that a great meeting of the labouring classes is to be held on the 17th instant in this town, and that the intention is to attack and destroy the Union workhouse.

The stipendiary magistrate and the two local justices of the peace are absent at the assizes in Limerick.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your communication to the Under-Secretary.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that everything passed off perfectly quiet yesterday. There was a meeting in the town at which not more than 300 or 400 persons, including women and children, were present.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain REDINGTON:—March 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the enclosed copy of a report which they have received from Mr. Maxwell, the Temporary Inspector in charge of Newcastle Union, relative to the state of the Union on the 17th instant, with reference to the anticipated attack on the workhouse.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that on the 16th instant, one of the relieving officers of this Union, Mr. Fitzgibbon, was waylaid and severely beaten by three men, one of whom he is able to identify. I had given him directions to swear informations before a magistrate as soon as he is able, and I have directed his brother to do his duty until he is recovered.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—March 23, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have transmitted a copy of your report to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant for his information; and I am to state that the Commissioners approve of the steps taken by you in the matter.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that this day, while the Vice-Guardians were sitting in the Board-room revising the relieving officers' books, a mob of some 200 or 300 persons attacked the workhouse. The outer door was burst in, and a few of them got as far as the Board-room door, which they broke, but they did not succeed in getting into the room. The constabulary were sent for, and they have arrested the ringleader and most violent of them. On the matter being reported to me, I called on the officer commanding the troops, who ordered the men under arms, but there was no magistrate, I was informed, in the vicinity to take charge. I immediately proceeded to the workhouse, and on the way was met by the mob, who threatened my life, and uttered the most violent denunciations against me and the Vice-Guardians, but did not personally molest me. I beg to state, that I am decidedly of opinion that it will be necessary to have a strong body of police actually stationed in the house for its protection, and I also think that a stipendiary magistrate ought to reside in this town.

Newcastle Union.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that a large concourse of people have again assembled at the workhouse, and are holding most threatening language. I beg to state that it will be perfectly impossible for the Vice-Guardians to revise the relief lists, or do the duties of their office as long as this violence continues; and I consider it perfectly unsafe for them to attend at the workhouse until the most ample protection is afforded them by the civil and military power.

I have advised them not to attend at the Board this day, as I have good reason to believe they will meet with personal violence.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—March 25, 1848.

I AM to express the concern of the Commissioners that any attempt should have been made to intimidate you, or the Vice-Guardians, in the discharge of your duty.

The Commissioners have forwarded your two letters to Mr. Redington, and the Commissioners do not doubt that due protection will be afforded to you and the Vice-Guardians by Her Majesty's Government.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

IN consequence of the very heavy rain that has fallen, the country is still quite unfit for cultivation; I, therefore, suggest to the Commissioners the advisability of extending the out-door relief to able-bodied class for eight days, from the 1st April next.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 25, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have given directions for the preparation of an order in accordance with your request.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

I BEG to report that Messrs. Bell and Brehon arrived here on Saturday last, and at once entered on their duties. I have made them acquainted with every circumstance connected with this Union, particularly the manner in which the Poor Law has been administered; and I have pointed out the numerous abuses to remedy and correct. I am most happy to find in both these gentlemen persons of great experience in the working of the Poor Law, and men of judgment and ability. Under their management I doubt not the circumstances of this Union will be retrieved and things placed on a wholesome footing.

During the last fortnight I have put the workhouse test to a considerable number of able-bodied single men with universal success; some of them remained in the workhouse one day; and I am convinced that if the house contained 400 or 500 more, out-door relief to the able-bodied might be dispensed with altogether.

The last warrants for the collection of the new rate were signed by Captain Bell and myself yesterday, but the collectors are delayed until the receipt-books are printed; they are to be ready on Saturday next.

I have recommended to the Vice-Guardians a change in the dietary of the workhouse, with a view of lessening the expenditure. The great outlay has been in the best white bread and sweet milk. I have suggested that both should be done away with, and that bread of maize and whole meal, with cocoa, be substistituted. This the Vice-Guardians have ordered, and it will be carried out immediately. Newcastle Union.

I beg to suggest to the Commissioners the great saving that would accrue, if by an order the whole of the contracts, except the one for Indian corn meal, were at once broken and fresh ones entered into. Almost every article is at too high a price.

One of the relieving officers, Mr. Hannigan, tendered his resignation yesterday, in consequence of my receiving sworn evidence of his allowing two gross cases of abuse to exist in his district. I have ordered the clerk to charge him with the amount of illegal relief he dispensed in these two cases.

I regret to state that I am receiving constant accounts of the increase of fever and other sickness in the electoral division of Ballingarry, and frequent applications are made to me for relief in money for these people.

I explained to the collectors the great embarrassment of the finances of the Union, and pointed out to them how necessary it was to make the most strenuous exertions to get in the rates without loss of time; and I warned them, that if I did not find them at once commence with the immediate lessors and make them pay, I would report the matter to the Commissioners with a view to their removal.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 27, 1848.

WITH reference to the change in the workhouse dietary, which you have suggested to the Vice-Guardians, I am to inquire whether the medical officer of the workhouse has been consulted on the proposed change.

As regards the contracts for workhouse supplies, I am to state that the Commissioners entertain no objection to the contracts being broken, if the terms of the contracts admit of its being done.

With respect to the relieving officer who has resigned in consequence of two cases of abuse in his district having been proved, the Commissioners will call the attention of the auditor to the subject. The salary of the relieving officer should not be paid until his accounts have been audited.

The Commissioners have written to the Board of Health on the subject of the prevalence of sickness in Ballingarry.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

WE have the honour to annex our report for the week ending 25th instant.

On Monday, according to your instructions, we took charge of this Union, and proceeded by personal inspection to ascertain the state of the workhouse and its auxiliary branches; we found in the houses 663, leaving room for about 120.

Captain Maxwell's and Mr. Briscoe's able report to you of the general state and finances of this Union is before us, which has our entire concurrence, we therefore think it useless to go over the same ground.

From the lawless state of this Union, and the attempt last Wednesday (as reported by Captain Maxwell) to intimidate us in the execution of our duty, we consider it necessary for the protection of the property of the Union in the workhouse that police should be stationed in it. You have been informed that on the day above alluded to, they smashed the panels of the Board-room door which we had barricaded with the tables in the room, as we were afraid, even supposing personal violence would not have been used, that the records would have been destroyed, as everything seems hitherto to have been conducted by intimidation and mob-law. We are determined, as far as the dietary of the workhouse is concerned, to try and make a change, by acting with firmness and prudence. We have had up to this time police daily at the workhouse, and continue to revise the lists, notwithstanding our having been warned not to do so until we get a stronger body of police stationed at the workhouse, wishing to show that we will not yield to intimidation.

We are anxious, as far as possible, to make the workhouse the test of destitution; but it being so small, and the utter impossibility of getting additional houses, cripples us much; although we had only room for 120 last week, we gave tickets for admission for 600, to those under section 2, receiving out-door relief, that from information and personal investigation we conceived could get employment, or had other means of support; only 36 availed themselves of the admission tickets.

We have had the rate collectors before us; they have all received their warrants save one, Mr. Lynch, whose appointment waits your approval. We have impressed on them the necessity of rapidly collecting the rates, and of our determination to make them do their duty.

We found that Captain Maxwell applied to the treasurer of the Union, the Provincial Bank, to advance 2000*l.*; this has been declined; if it had been acceded we did not intend to avail ourselves of it, trusting to our getting in the rates.

We commenced getting bread baked in the house, composed, one-half of whole meal, ground by the paupers, the other half Indian meal, and giving it to the able-bodied of six years and upwards, instead of white bread, by which we expect to make a considerable saving. In a short time we propose to substitute skimmed milk for sweet, this will reduce the cost of the dietary also considerably; the medical doctor approves of the alteration.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the energetic measures adopted by you to resist and put down attempts to intimidate you in the discharge of your duty. In order to insure due relief to the really destitute, and to prevent the idle and worthless from exhausting the resources of the Union, the Commissioners deem it absolutely essential that you should be unfettered in the exercise of your judgment within the limits permitted by the law. The Commissioners have received a report from Mr. Maxwell, the Temporary Inspector in charge of the Union, reporting a tumultuous assemblage at the workhouse, and threats held out to him and you, and having forwarded a copy of that report to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, they have been informed that the attention of the constabulary has been called to the subject.

The Commissioners fully approve of the spirit in which you propose to meet the financial difficulties of the Union, by enforcing payment of the poor-rates; and they trust that the rate-payers will cheerfully discharge their liabilities when they see that the preservation of the destitute poor from starvation depends upon such payment, and that the money raised in the Union will be economically and judiciously expended for the objects contemplated by the Legislature in the Irish Poor Relief Acts.

DONEGAL UNION.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 5, 1848.

I do myself the honour to acquaint you in anticipation of my weekly report, and to save the post, that the Union workhouse is now full—553 inmates, including the temporary fever sheds.

The Board of Guardians met on Thursday, again this day, Saturday, and have further adjourned to Monday, with the view to scrutinize the lists, and by discharging all who come under classes Nos. 1, 2, and 3, afford accommodation for the able-bodied applicants. In furtherance of these arrangements, lists were commenced of those entitled legally to out-door relief, and the following scale of relief was ordered, viz:—

To every adult, 6lbs. of Indian meal per week.
 „ child, 3½ lbs. „ „

With 4*d.* per week in money to heads of families without a cabin, for lodging money. Great dissatisfaction however was found to exist among the paupers to accept the proffered relief, and a decided preference shown to remain in the house.

The Board of Guardians, in doubt as to their powers to compel the paupers to quit, have authorized me to consult the Commissioners, and their early reply will be valuable.

Measures will be adopted on Monday to remove the willing paupers of the three classes specified, and on the scale of relief, determined on.

I acknowledge with great thankfulness the attention paid to my remark on the property of Mr. Brooke of Lough Eask, for he has received his first instalment, and is in the market for labourers.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 8, 1848.

IN reply to your inquiry as to the power of the Guardians to compel paupers who are legally relievable out of the workhouse, to quit the workhouse on out-door allowances, I am to state that the Commissioners have no doubt that the Guardians have such power, inasmuch as the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act expressly provides, “that it shall be lawful for the “said Guardians to relieve such poor persons being destitute as aforesaid either “in the workhouse or out of the workhouse, as to them shall appear fitting “and expedient in each individual case;” at the same time it should be observed that the Guardians are bound to take care that the allowances are sufficient to provide for all the necessities of the paupers so discharged, whether in food, clothing, fuel, or lodging, and that they shall be such as to prevent the possibility of severe suffering from either cold or hunger.

In regard to the scale of allowances agreed to by the Guardians, the Commissioners desire to state that although the Guardians may properly lay down a scale for their own guidance, such scale ought not to be undeviatingly adhered to, but each case should be considered and decided on, and the amount of the allowances determined, according to the wants of the individuals to be relieved.

In regard to the particular scale adopted by the Donegal Guardians, the Commissioners cannot doubt that you have acquainted the Guardians with your opinion as to whether 4*d.* per week is sufficient to supply a family which has been hitherto in the workhouse, with lodging, fuel, and clothing; the Commissioners presume that the Guardians would in no case propose to give such an allowance, unless they were convinced that the family had legitimate means of subsistence from other sources.

The Commissioners forward for your information a copy of a circular which they have recently issued on the subject of discharging paupers on out-door allowances.

Donegal Union.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 6, 1848.

I HAVE to state that the workhouse, built for 500, with a fever shed for 50, is now full, having 553 inmates.

The Board of Guardians have adjourned their meeting to Monday, with the view of scrutinizing the list, and of sending classes Nos. 1, 2, and 3, out of the house, with out-door relief in their several electoral divisions, and thus afford increased accommodation for able-bodied applicants.

My letter of yesterday will have brought to your attention the disinclination manifested by many of the paupers to quit the workhouse, with the relief proffered at their own homes, and the doubts the Guardians entertain of their powers to compel the unwilling ones to be removed. I shall hope for the guidance of the Commissioners on this subject at their earliest convenience.

The new rate-books and warrants for seven electoral divisions were signed yesterday, and prompt measures will now be taken to collect the rates. The sad negligence displayed in collecting the old rate induced me to urge upon the Guardians the propriety of fixing a limit to the present collection. Bonds and securities are accordingly to be passed to have the rates collected by the 1st day of May next.

The rate-books for the electoral divisions of Mount Charles, Inver, Dunkineely, and of Gleneny, were obliged to be postponed, owing to the continued disobedience on the part of Mr. Griffith, the collector, in not producing the old rate-books, as requested.

The Board of Guardians have given directions for his being summoned before the magistrates at the next petty sessions, and as his returns show a sum of 290*l.* still uncollected from a rate struck in April last, it may hereafter be deemed expedient to adopt legal measures against his securities.

I have every reason to believe the Guardians have now selected an efficient staff of new collectors, and Mr. Hoey, the former collector for four electoral divisions, has had his services retained for two divisions only.

The Commissioners will not deem me as travelling out of the line of my duties as their Inspector when I bring to their notice the case of Mr. Murray, a minor, a ward in Chancery in England, and a very large landed proprietor in this Union. Mr. Murray's estates would immediately afford highly profitable employment to a large number of tenants and of labourers, could the property be permitted to avail itself of loans of money under the "Land Improvement Act;" these tenants and labourers are now on the very verge of destitution, and if this case could be brought to the attention of the Lord Chancellor of England, his Lordship's comprehensive mind would readily suggest some practicable remedy, and save this property from being greatly deteriorated by heavy poor-rates.

Our weekly market still continues to be fairly supplied with grain and with excellent Swedish turnips, these latter furnishing the only food many of the rural population can command.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

IN regard to sending paupers out of the workhouse on out-door allowances, for the purpose of affording additional accommodation to the able-bodied, I am to refer you to the Commissioners' letter of the 8th instant, as affording an explanation of the Commissioners' views on this head.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners approve of the steps taken against collector Griffith, for the purpose of compelling him to produce the old rate-books, and which they trust will have the desired effect.

In regard to your statement relative to the estates of Mr. Murray (a minor and a ward in Chancery in England), I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with the names and addresses of the guardians of Mr. Murray.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 14, 1848.

MEASURES having been adopted to remove classes Nos. 1, 2, and 3 from the workhouse, 84 persons were discharged, and other destitute persons having been admitted, there yet remain 30 vacancies.

From this period out-door relief, under section 1 of 10 Vic., c. 31, may be stated to have commenced in the Union of Donegal; but as the Board of Guardians are fully impressed with the necessity of constituting the workhouse as a test of destitution, I entertain sanguine hopes that section 2 of the Irish Poor Relief Act will not be called into operation for some time to come.

The rate-books and warrants, which were not completed last week for the under-mentioned electoral divisions—

Mountcharles, Inver,
Dunkineely, and Gleneny,

having been signed at the last meeting, all the several collectors throughout the Union will commence their duties forthwith; and I see no reason to anticipate difficulties in the collection of the rates, being persuaded that judgment, combined with firmness, will surmount all obstacles.

The weekly market continues to show a fair display of grain and Swedish turnips; these latter at 13*d.* per cwt.

The Commissioners will be gratified to learn, the Guardians have contracted for the supply of excellent Indian meal for three months at 9*l.* 5*s.* per ton, which alone affords good evidence of the improved condition of this part of Ireland as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 21, 1848.

OUT-DOOR relief has been extended to a large portion of persons who had been tested in the workhouse, and who came under section 1 of the 10th Vict., cap. 31; but an erroneous impression having been thereby produced that out-door relief was to come into general operation, a crush of applicants for relief presented themselves at the last ordinary day of meeting at the workhouse.

Temporary arrangements had, however, been made to receive all applicants into the house; and by the firmness of the Guardians in constituting this entry as the test of destitution, several, after a minute inquiry into their cases, quitted rather than accept the relief offered.

The experience of every day convinces me more and more of the necessity of the test of the workhouse being carried out with undeviating impartiality, exception alone being made in favour of the very aged and infirm.

The workhouse, built for 550, including the temporary fever shed, has now 582 inmates.

Every endeavour on the part of the Guardians to find a house suited to receive the children paupers having proved unavailing, their attention has been necessarily directed to making increased accommodation in the workhouse; and plans for such accommodation having been submitted to the Commissioners for approval, the Guardians are anxiously waiting the decision.

The Visiting Committee have also suggested making further accommodation in the dormitories of the children of both sexes, by temporary erections of a second half-floor or tier in each room; and I cannot convey to you the idea of the proposed arrangement without a plan better than stating it is like the berthing of troop-ships or steam-packets, one continuous tier at bottom, with a second tier six feet above. By this arrangement the dormitory accommodation for the children would be increased twofold, and, with the completion of the plans now under consideration of the Commissioners, would render the house available for 700 inmates.

During the three months I have been located in Donegal the weekly market has never been better supplied with grain and with turnips than was the last market; good Indian meal is retailed here at one penny per pound.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

IN reference to your remarks regarding the additional accommodation in the dormitories of the workhouse, I am to forward for your information the enclosed copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Vice-

Donegal Union.

Donegal Union.

Chairman of the Board of Guardians, in reply to a letter received from him on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. HAMILTON:—February 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, in which you request the Commissioners' approbation of a plan to obtain additional workhouse accommodation by putting up a floor of planks in the attic story of the men's and women's dormitories.

In reference thereto I am to state that the Commissioners regret that they cannot give their sanction to the proposed arrangement, because where it has been adopted it is found to interfere with the ventilation and health of the inmates, as it is found to overcrowd the dormitories; and even if the galleries are erected the Guardians will have to provide additional day-rooms, the present day-room not being more than just sufficient for the number the workhouse was originally built to accommodate. The Commissioners would therefore much prefer that the Guardians should obtain some old suitable building to be used as an auxiliary workhouse for one class of the inmates, the male children, or the aged men or women, whichever it may be found most desirable to remove.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

I HAVE to state that a great pressure of applicants for relief occurred at the workhouse on the 24th instant, which, under the timely assistance of Mr. Otway was successfully treated by out-door relief being generally granted to those who came under the 1st section of 10 Vic., c. 31. Much of the evil of this accumulation of paupers at the workhouse door had originated from the erroneous impressions on the part of the relieving officers, which being now explained will, I trust, avoid a similar recurrence.

The number of paupers now in the house is 596, with accommodation for 550; which leads to the necessity of all our energies hereafter being directed to the means of finding increased accommodation in every practicable way; and this subject I shall not fail to urge on the attention of the Guardians.

Destitution, which has hitherto been kept at bay, seems now to be much increased in those electoral divisions where little or no employment has been found for the able-bodied labourers. The paupers from the divisions of Mountcharles, of Inver, and of Dunkineely, form the principal portion of the inmates of the workhouse, as well as those receiving out-door relief under section 1; and the last rate struck of 3s. in the pound, now in the course of collection, will soon be expended in these three electorates.

I have much satisfaction in reporting that the market continues well supplied with grain and turnips, at prices fairly remunerative to the growers, and advantageous to the consumers.

I have also to report that a notice has been given to the effect of the Commissariat stores at Killybegs being opened for sale to the public.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners request you will be so good as to inform them what was the nature of the erroneous impressions on the part of the relieving officers, to which you allude as having caused the accumulation of paupers at the workhouse, and whence that impression was derived.

As regards the number in the workhouse, the Commissioners contemplate the issue of a sealed order limiting the number to be received into the workhouse; and they will communicate with their architect with that view.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 6, 1848.

THE relieving officers in the gradual acquirement of knowledge of their duties are proceeding more efficiently; and although the applicants for relief in some of the districts were very numerous, they were all successfully arranged, and the decision of the Board of Guardians was communicated to the several paupers in their own localities.

The Board of Guardians having failed in their endeavours to find any old building suitable to receive either the women or the children as an auxiliary workhouse, have turned their attention to the expediency of erecting a temporary shed against the wall in the women's yard, of a size to afford accommodation for 30 beds, and a day-room for 50 women.

Proposals to erect this shed are to be received at the ensuing Board day.

By this temporary shed, and the completion of the rooms for the boys already sanctioned by the Commissioners, the house will accommodate 650.

The number of paupers now in the house, including infirmary and fever shed, is 516.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

THE Board of Guardians at their last meeting have accepted the proposal to build a temporary shed against the wall in the women's yard, of a size to afford accommodation for 30 beds, and a day-room for 50 women, at a cost under 90*l*. As this temporary shed is to be completed by the middle of April, I entertain sanguine hopes that the Union will then be in a condition to check the gross deception now daily attempted to be practised by persons seeking relief on the plea of destitution, and declining the accommodation of the workhouse when offered.

At the last Board day, out of 217 applicants for relief, all represented themselves as subjects of destitution, no more than 60 have availed themselves of the accommodation offered in the workhouse.

In proportion as my experience increases in the administration of the Poor Laws, my conviction is strengthened that we are in a condition fully equal to grapple with the real destitution in the Union; and whilst possessing the means to master the falsehood and deception daily practised, by offering the workhouse as the test, so long shall we be secure from affording relief to section 2, 10th Vict., cap. 31.

Under these impressions I urge continually upon the attention of the Guardians, the necessity of increasing the workhouse accommodation by every practicable means.

The number of inmates, including the infirmary and fever sheds, is now 509, with ample accommodation for 600.

As an act of justice due to the British Relief Association, I have to record that by their liberal bounty of feeding every day 5200 children at school, the improved condition of these children is very apparent, and testifies in a strong manner the beneficial results of such plans. Sickness too, so prevalent at this time of the year, is comparatively trifling.

The Commissioners will be gratified to learn that a few days of spring weather during the past week, showed a strong muster of people about the soil, making preparations for sowing on a scale much more extended than as compared to last year.

The population of this Union continues as orderly and peaceable as ever.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

IN reference to your letter of the 7th instant, on the subject of emigration to South Australia, I do myself the honour to state, that the Board of Guardians thankfully accept the offer made by the Government, and have unanimously voted the sum of 200*l*., to bear the cost of outfit and expense of conveyance to the place of embarkation, of 35 to 40 females, young, eligible, and willing to emigrate, who are now in the Union workhouse, and who will be ready for examination by any agent authorized to make the final selection.

THE COMMISSIONERS to the COMMISSIONERS of COLONIAL LAND and EMIGRATION, London:—
March 22, 1848.

WITH reference to the correspondence which has taken place on the subject of the proposed emigration of young persons who are at present inmates of workhouses in Ireland, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a communication which had been received from Captain Herbert, the Temporary Inspector in charge of Donegal Union, on the subject.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners propose from time to time to forward similar letters for your information.

Donegal Union.

The Commissioners will feel obliged if you will be so good as to acquaint them with the proportion of males to females which you would deem desirable among the 4000 emigrants whom it is proposed to send from the Irish workhouses.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with the statement of the name and age of each of the orphans adverted to in your letter.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 20, 1848.

THE poor-rates in steady course of collection, realized last week a sum of 362*l.* 19*s.*, and the rate collectors seem fully sensible of the exertions required to have the whole collected by the 1st May, according to their terms of agreement.

The applicants for relief at the last Board-day, were very numerous, but out of 212 who were offered the workhouse accommodation, no less than 103 have declined.

The number in the workhouse is 561, with accommodation for 600.

The weekly market continues to be well supplied with grain and turnips; but in my visit of inspection, I perceive the haggards are daily becoming "small by degrees and lamentably less."

I have the pleasing duty to report to the Commissioners, that notice has been given me of 500 suits of boys' clothing being on their way from the British Relief Association for distribution among the school children in this Union.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

By the unremitted attention of the Board of Guardians to their arrangements for relief of the poor, under section 1 of the 10 Vict., cap. 31, and by their firmness in constituting the workhouse as a test of destitution for all applicants of a doubtful condition, no less than 53 persons voluntarily quitted the house during the week, expressing their feelings by stating, "they would not have entered the workhouse but in the expectation of being immediately discharged on the out-door relief list."

I have already ventured to express my opinion, that this Union is in a condition to grapple with its real destitution, and that so long as the workhouse is made to offer its accommodation to the imaginary pauper and the able-bodied, we shall be carrying out the operations of the poor law with a merciful consideration to the poor themselves, and with strict justice to the rate-payers.

The number in the workhouse, including infirmary and temporary fever sheds, is now 543 persons.

The weekly market was well supplied with grain and Swede turnips of an excellent quality, selling at remunerative prices to the grower, and fair charges to the consumer.

Five hundred suits of boys' clothing, the munificent gift of the British Relief Association to this Union, is in course of being distributed to the several schools, affording joyous exultation to a number of juveniles, who have never been so well clothed before. The issue of daily bread to 5400 children, collected in 81 schools, has been the source of incalculable benefit.

It is particularly gratifying to report, the Union is comparatively free from sickness.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 22nd instant, I have the honour to forward you the accompanying paper, containing a statement of the name and age of each of the female orphans in the workhouse, volunteers to emigrate to Australia:—

GEORGE F. HERBERT,
Inspector of Poor Laws for the Union of Donegal.

Donegal, 27th March, 1848.

The COMMISSIONERS to the COMMISSIONERS of COLONIAL LAND and EMIGRATION,
London:—March 29, 1848.

WITH reference to the Commissioners' letter of the 22nd instant, relative to the proposed emigration of a certain number of inmates of the workhouse of Donegal Union, I am directed by the Poor Law Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a communication which they have received from Captain Herbert, the Temporary Inspector in charge of Donegal Union, transmitting a list of female orphans who are willing to emigrate, a copy of which list is also enclosed.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 3, 1848.

CONSIDERABLE employment having been found during the last fortnight for the able-bodied labourer, in the preparation of the land for seed, only 29 persons out of 143 have accepted the accommodation of the workhouse as offered to them when claiming relief on the plea of destitution.

The authority from the Commissioners to extend out-door relief to widows with one child, and to orphans with both parents dead, was read at the last meeting of the Board of Guardians, but the powers therein granted have not yet been called into operation; armed, however, with such authority, the workhouse test will continue to be applied, no less to the imaginary destitute than to the able-bodied pauper.

The number of paupers in the house, including the infirmary and temporary fever shed, is 550.

The poor rates are in steady course of collection, the collectors having attended very regularly with their books for my inspection, show a sum of 520*l.* 16*s.* to have been gathered during the last two weeks, but I have every reason to expect a better collection hereafter.

Donegal Union.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 8, 1848.

My letter of the 18th ultimo will have acquainted you that the Board of Guardians had thankfully accepted the offer made by the Government on the subject of emigration to Australia, and had unanimously voted the sum of 200*l.* to bear the cost of outfit and expense of conveyance to the port of embarkation of 35 to 40 females, young, eligible and willing to emigrate to Australia, and now in the workhouse of this Union.

My subsequent communication will have placed the Commissioners in possession of the names and ages of these young persons.

It becomes my duty now to state that a meeting of the Board of Guardians, held yesterday and numerously attended by summons to take the question of emigration into consideration, it was resolved by a large majority, as noted in the minutes of the proceedings, that—

“Under the present state of the finances of the Union, it would be highly “imprudent that any of the rates should be appropriated for purposes of emigration.”

As this resolution vitiates the former vote of 200*l.*, it may be necessary for the Commissioners to consider whether it is now required for an emigration agent to be sent to Donegal for the purpose of making the final selection of these young persons, and whether any further steps may be deemed requisite.

At this moment there are 248 children under 15 years of age in the workhouse, and 120 of them are represented as being orphans.

It will be gratifying to the Commissioners to be assured that during the last week considerable progress has been made in cropping the land, and to a much greater extent than at the corresponding time of last year.

The weekly market has been well supplied with food, finding many purchasers; and a very considerable quantity of potatoes has been displayed, selling at prices varying between 8*d.* and 11*d.* per stone weight.

The total number of inmates at the workhouse, capable of accommodating 600, has fallen down to 536.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners have informed the Emigration Commissioners of the resolution of the Board of Guardians not to incur the expense of the contemplated emigration.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 17, 1848.

THE collection of the poor rates continues in steady progress, but not at that accelerated rate I could wish; for the collectors' books, at the fortnightly audit on Wednesday last, showed only the sum of 328*l.* 15*s.* to have been gathered.

I shall not fail, by every means in my power, to stimulate the several collectors to use increased exertions in their duties.

The Commissioners will perceive, by the minutes of proceedings of the Guardians at their last meeting, that a notice has been given to reconsider the portion of the resolution of the former meeting, “that the rates should not be appropriated “for purposes of emigration to Australia, with the view of its being rescinded.”

It is a very pleasing part of my duty to be enabled to report, that during the week of fine spring weather, a considerable number of the rural population was busily employed in preparations for sowing the land; and in all directions ploughs, harrows, and spade husbandry, were in active operation.

The workhouse, capable of containing 600 paupers, has this day 594 inmates, the temporary fever shed and infirmary both included.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 22, 1848.

EMPLOYMENT in preparing the land for seed having been generally found throughout the Union, the number of applicants for relief during the week has considerably diminished

I consider it still to be sound policy on the part of the Guardians, to keep the workhouse in a state of accommodation suited to afford its test to all able-bodied applicants; and under this impression my letter requesting the sealed order of the Commissioners authorizing out-door relief to certain classes of destitute persons, might be extended from the 25th April to the 25th June next, was forwarded.

The Vagrant Acts have become so intimately blended with the correct operation of the Poor Laws in its administration of out-door relief, that the Guardians have entered a resolution in minutes of their proceedings at the last Board-day, to the effect of "seeking the authority of the Commissioners to appropriate a small sum of the poor rates, from 6s. to 7s. per week, in payment of the wages of a person to assist in carrying out the Vagrant Acts, to be armed with authority similar to that exercised by parish beables in England." I consider the appointment of such a person as deserving the experiment in the electoral division of Donegal, at least for a few months; for although all the recipients of out-door relief are particularly cautioned from committing acts of vagrancy, experience daily shows that mendicancy is still practised, notwithstanding all the precautions adopted by the constabulary force, ably superintended by the vigilance of the resident magistrate, Sir Thomas Blake.

The changes of inmates at the workhouse have diminished the numbers from 594 to 543, including the temporary fever shed and infirmary.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 25, 1848.

WITH reference to the proposal of the Guardians to pay a person to assist in carrying out the Vagrant Acts, I am directed to state that the Commissioners are not aware of any legal authority under which such a payment could be legally made from the poor rates, neither are the Commissioners aware of any legal power to invest such person with authority similar to that exercised by parish beables in England.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—May 1, 1848.

THE collection of the rates continues in steady progress, the rate receipt-books of the several collectors at the fortnightly examination having shown a sum of 477*l.* to have been received, 96 defaulters of poor-rates having been summoned before the petty sessions holden at Ballintra last week. I made my appearance with the collector, to countenance and stimulate him in his duties, and I was delighted to find 93 had paid their rate before the Court assembled, one, in the Court, and only two remained to be proceeded against. These two defaulters have since paid their rates.

At the ordinary meeting of the Guardians during the week, an unanimous resolution was recorded in the minutes of their proceedings for rescinding a former resolution of the 6th instant, to the effect "that under the present state of the finances of the Union, it would be highly imprudent that any of the rates should be appropriated for purposes of emigration;" and as this amended resolution places the Union in a condition to avail itself of the offer of the Government, for female orphans, now in the workhouse, to emigrate to South Australia, the names of such young females who have volunteered, noting their ages, will be forwarded by the clerk of the Union to the Commissioners.

The employment generally offered to every able-bodied person in the preparation of the land for seed, has reduced the number of the inmates of the workhouse, capable of holding 600, to 553. The sealed order of the Commissioners prolonging the extension of out-door relief to certain classes of destitute persons, being widows with one child, or children whose parents are both dead, from the 25th April to the 25th June, was read at the Board, and will have beneficial effects throughout the Union in proportion, as the bread hitherto supplied to the children by the munificent bounty of the British Relief Association is gradually reduced, preparatory to its cessation.

It is gratifying to be enabled to state, that the workhouse is comparatively free from sickness, and that all hands have been actively engaged during the week in putting down large crops of cabbage plants, and have by spade husbandry prepared two acres of the land recently procured, and it has been sown with barley. Other portions of the newly acquired ground are to be prepared for potatoes and turnips.

REPLY to the foregoing :—May 4, 1848.

THE Commissioners have forwarded to the Commissioners of Colonial Lands and Emigration a copy of that part of your report in which you state that the Guardians have rescinded their previous resolution on the subject of emigration, and are now in a position to avail themselves of the offer of Government for the emigration of female orphans out of the workhouse.

TIPPERARY UNION.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 27, 1848.

First Weekly Report.

I HAVE to report for the information of the Commissioners that my inspection for the week ending this day has been principally confined to the examination of the poorhouse and its several departments of finance, regulation, work, &c.; also taking cognizance of the minutes and resolutions of the Board of Guardians.

It is gratifying to be enabled to state that I find the house particularly well ordered, clean, and healthy, and in my opinion reflects great credit on the Guardians for their judicious arrangements, and on the master and other officers for the correct manner in which these arrangements are carried out. A very little is required to make it a model to all other Unions.

By the Commissioners' seal the number of inmates for the house is at present limited to 1,100, including the infant in arms and extreme age; I think this number might be augmented without inconvenience; and as it appears most desirable at this moment to offer the house test to the daily increasing able-bodied applicants for relief, I beg to suggest to the Commissioners the propriety of augmenting the number to 1,300, for which accommodation can be obtained.

I have strongly urged the Board of Guardians to look for, and if possible, hire without delay, some large house or store into which the schools both of boys and girls might be removed; this arrangement would be beneficial to the children and leave in the house further accommodation for 250 able-bodied paupers.

The school-rooms are much too confined for the number of children at present in them; and the work-rooms attached, are totally inadequate to the increasing desire of the boys and girls to be taught the trades of shoemakers, tailors, sempstresses, &c.; were there sufficient accommodation, the entire clothing of the inmates might be made by these children.

The financial department appears to be conducted with praiseworthy economy, yet on a scale sufficiently liberal. With the concurrence of the medical officer* I have recommended to the Board that one-third rice be mixed with Indian meal forming the general dietary of the house; this suggestion the Guardians have adopted.

The drainage and sewerage of the house are at present very defective; with a view to the immediate rectification of this great evil, plans and estimates have been made, and will be shortly submitted to the Commissioners by the Board of Guardians.

With reference to the out-door relief I am sorry to report that it is daily on the increase, the number at present exceeding 15,000, entailing a vast expenditure on the Union. The adults receive one pound of raw meal per diem, and the children half that quantity. The custom is at present to give one week's rations at a time, from the depôts of the several contractors, the whole cost being a fraction over one penny per pound.

In accordance with the directions of the Commissioners I have brought under the notice of the Guardians the numerous advantages attendant on the issue of cooked food to the out-door recipients, and have used my best endeavours to convince them of the ultimate benefits likely to accrue to the country by the adoption of this system, both on the score of the people's health and economy to the rate-payers; but the Guardians generally appear to entertain strong prejudices against the system.

During the operation of the Temporary Relief Bill of last year it should seem, that notwithstanding the united exertions of the Government Inspector and Committees, the issue of cooked food was only partially established in a few electoral divisions, where it was soon discontinued in consequence of the numerous frauds committed by the people employed in the kitchens. The Guardians are alarmed at the outlay which would be required for fitting up these kitchens again, and also at the possibility of a recurrence of the same frauds.

Notwithstanding these and various other objections to the measure, I have so far succeeded as to induce the Board to direct the Town Guardians to confer with me during the week, with a view to establish a kitchen, if practicable, and give it a fair trial; this fairly set to work, I entertain hopes of establishing many more in the large villages at least, if not in the rural districts.

I have visited only two districts this week, having been called there on special business; I took occasion to inspect the relieving officer's books, and his method of fulfilling the duties of his situation. I shall reserve my remarks on these topics for my next report, but may here state I have seen enough to convince me that the strictest surveillance over these officers will become the most important part of an Inspector's duty.

It affords me much gratification to be enabled to report that the Union generally is in a very healthy state; there are but few cases of fever left in the hospitals, and the most of these are in a convalescent state. Some few cases of dysentery have made their appearance in the house during the last week, but I trust they will quickly disappear under the influence of the new dietary, viz., "stirabout," composed of two parts Indian meal, and one part rice.

In conclusion, I have every reason to anticipate that when we shall have the labour test in full operation, conjointly with that of the house and the cooked food, a very sensible diminution of the present number of applicants for relief will take place, as then only shall we be enabled to distinguish the truly destitute from the fraudulent recipient.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

WITH reference to your suggestion to increase the number to be accommodated in the workhouse from 1,100 to 1,300 I am directed to state that the Commissioners have received your separate report on this subject, and they are now in communication with their architect thereon.

The number receiving relief appears to the Commissioners very high, and the Commissioners cannot but apprehend that persons not really destitute may be receiving relief. The Commissioners are very desirous that you should give a full report on the state of the Union, in order to explain how 15,000 individuals, out of a population of 79,516 can be dependant on the poor rates for their subsistence.

The Commissioners rely on your insisting upon the introduction of the system of cooked food; the experience of last year has shown that the difficulties which are supposed to prevent its adoption are for the most part imaginary, and are at any rate such as may be met by energy and method on the part of the Guardians. The number of persons receiving relief in the Union is so great that no practicable safeguard against abuses should be omitted in the administration of relief by the Guardians.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 3, 1848.

I BEG to inform you, for the information of the Commissioners, that on Wednesday last, the 1st instant, I held a long conference with the Guardians of the town on the subject of immediately commencing the system of cooked food to the able-bodied in the district.

I enumerated all the advantages of the system, not only as to the health of the people, but also as the surest test of real destitution, and used my best endeavours to impress upon them (in the interests of the rate-payers) the necessity of its immediate adoption.

They went through the same round of objections as at the general meeting, and were unanimous in declaring the subject should be postponed until the test of breaking stones had been tried; which, they insist, will diminish the applications for relief to a much greater extent than any other test save that of the workhouse.

I need not add that the objections are frivolous, and were easily refuted; but it is evident they have made up their minds on the subject, and I must conclude, that unless some stringent order be issued either by his Excellency the Lord

Lieutenant or the Commissioners (supposing they have the power), it will be impossible to introduce the system in this Union.

Tipperary Union.

I shall, however, again bring it under the notice of the Board at their meeting to-morrow (Saturday), and the Commissioners may rest satisfied that no exertions on my part shall be wanting to carry out their views which so fully accord with my own on the subject.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

I BEG to inform you, for the information of the Commissioners, that in compliance with their wishes I brought the subject of cooked food once more under the Guardians' notice, at their meeting of yesterday, and after considerable discussion, and being put to the vote, it was carried only by a majority of two, that it should be adopted as soon as the present contracts expire, viz., on the 25th instant.

They have promised in the interim to occupy themselves with preparing the kitchens and completing the organization; but I am apprehensive (such is their deep-rooted prejudices against the measure) that this is only said to gain time, in the hope, when the period arrives, it may no longer be required.

I shall, however, use my best exertions for the furtherance of the measure.

With reference to the suggestion of Doctors Nugent and Phelan, touching the treatment and accommodation of lunatics and idiots, I beg to state I have, in conjunction with the medical officer of the workhouse, inspected minutely the cells, and find the ventilation would be much improved by small gratings in the doors: in other and all respects they appear to be well attended to, and as there are but nine idiots—none under constraint, and no lunatics—the ordinary diet and clothing, with a constant change of beds when required, appear to offer no inconvenience.

The Guardians have ordered the gratings in the doors to be immediately placed.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

The Commissioners have had under consideration your reports dated respectively the 3rd and 5th instant, relative to the administration of relief in cooked food to the able bodied in Tipperary Union.

The Commissioners observe, with satisfaction, that the Guardians have at length yielded to your representations on this subject, and have consented to commence the necessary preparations at once, with the view of issuing relief in cooked food immediately upon the expiration of the present contracts. The Commissioners trust that the proceedings of the Guardians in this matter are bonâ fide, and that your apprehension that they have only made the promise for the purpose of gaining time will prove to be unfounded, as the Commissioners believe that in every instance where the system has been fairly tried, it has been advantageous both to the rate-payers and to the recipients of relief; its tendency being on the one hand to check fraudulent applications for relief by those who are not really destitute—cooked food not being so saleable, and therefore not so much an object of attraction—while, on the other hand, it is much better calculated than uncooked food to supply the need of those who are really destitute and in absolute want of food.

If, however, you should have reason to believe, from the omission of the Guardians to make preparations, or otherwise, that the Guardians have no real intention of carrying out the cooked food system, it will be proper for you to explain to them that the power of regulating the kind of relief to be afforded out of the workhouse is by the Irish Extension Act vested exclusively in the Commissioners, and that the Guardians and their officers are expressly required by the Act to administer such relief, subject to the rules and regulations made by the Commissioners; that, acting in accordance with this power, the Commissioners have, by their order authorizing out-door relief in Tipperary Union to persons not being of the classes described in the first section of the Act, made the following regulation, viz., “ Every person relieved under the authority of this order shall be relieved in food only, and such food shall, as far as practicable, be cooked food ;” and that it follows therefore that relief in uncooked food would be illegal, and liable to be disallowed by the auditor, and charged against the parties administering it, unless it should appear that it was not practicable to issue the food in a cooked state.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 5, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners, that I have during the past week visited most of the districts in the Union, but for want of time (being much occupied in attendance on the meetings of the Board of Guardians), my inspection has been cursory. I have seen enough, however, to convince me that very great destitution prevails throughout the Union, which may partly be attributed to the following causes :—

First. Vast numbers have surrendered their small holdings (upon which they had no crop), in order to render themselves entitled to relief.

Second. The potato seed being beyond their means last year, they could not plant any, and consequently had no provision for the winter.

Thirdly. The want of employment preventing them from earning a sufficiency to support themselves and families, notwithstanding the very low price of provisions generally.

But the chief cause appears to me to be, the evident disinclination on the part of the farmers and landlords to employ the people unless on their own terms.

Several instances have already come under my notice where farmers have asked me, "if a man refusing work was entitled to relief?" Upon inquiry I have found that the wages offered the man varied from 1s. to 1s. 2d. per week, in addition to his own living of two meals a day.

The above requires but little comment. It is quite clear that 1s. 2d. per week is insufficient to support the man's wife and family, consisting on an average of from five to six persons; he therefore refuses, and throws himself on the poor-rates, where he and his family are at least preserved from starvation, without the trouble of working. I have taken occasion to address the Guardians on this baneful state of things, pointing out the cruelty of taking advantage of the destitute state of the peasant, as well as the folly of not offering them a fair day's wages for a fair day's work. They plead their inability to meet the burden of taxation and the dues of the landlord.

I have in vain pointed out to them that this line of conduct only increases the burden of taxation, and have strongly urged them to call a public meeting of landlords and tenants for the purpose of devising some practical means of employing the people, and thereby diminish the rates of which they so loudly and constantly complain, but am apprehensive my recommendation will prove of little avail.

There are now 15,000 persons receiving out-door relief in this Union, out of a population of 79,516; and although there are, doubtless, many fraudulent recipients, I have every reason to believe (from my own observation and the information obtained from credible persons), that the greater part are really destitute.

When it is considered that for its extent this Union is by no means over-populated, and that it possesses the richest soil in Ireland, together with an extensive trade in bacon and butter with England, the amount of pauperism is altogether incredible, and can only be accounted for by that want of union between landlord and tenant which alone can render a country prosperous, and the existence of the peasant bearable.

It is my duty to state that a proposition was lately made by the elected Guardians (i. e. chiefly farmers), to meet the landlords for the purpose of considering the best means of giving employment to the people. This was not responded to, and this important subject fell to the ground.

I hear many complaints of the relieving officers for neglect of duty, but, on inquiry, find they arise, some from ignorance and many from the impossibility of fulfilling the most important part of their instructions, viz., the visiting the dwelling and making themselves acquainted with the circumstances of all applicants for relief. This arose from the great extent of their districts, the necessary attendance at the Board of Guardians for the regulation of their books, two days out of the week, another day occupied in attending the distribution of the meal, together with taking down the increasing applications, little time was left for visiting.

The Commissioners having sanctioned the appointment of an additional number of these officers, sufficient to carry out the law to its fullest extent, there will be no excuse for their future conduct; and as I shall make it a prominent part of my duty to see that they comply with their instructions to the letter, I entertain hopes I shall hear no more complaints.

I fully anticipate that the various tests (of the workhouse, breaking stones out of doors, the publication of lists of persons receiving relief, cooked food), when in operation, will considerably diminish the present list; but as real destitution exists to an enormous extent, no sensible diminution of the rates can be looked for until the able-bodied peasantry are employed by the farmers and landlords at a fair rate of wages.

If in describing the state of this Union, as it appears to me, I may have travelled out of the strict line of my duty, I beg the Commissioners to impute it wholly to my anxious desire to render service to the country.

This report will, I trust, serve as an answer to the Commissioners' circular of 2nd March, requiring my opinion as to the discontinuance of out-door relief to the able-bodied on the 18th instant. Such a measure would, undoubtedly, be attended with the most disastrous results from the causes above stated.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 8, 1848.

WITH regard to your remarks as to the consequences of the withdrawal of out-door relief to the able-bodied on the 18th instant, I am to request that you will inform the Commissioners whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed that under that order single men, and men with only two children, would be thrown on their own resources.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

I BEG to inform you, for the information of the Commissioners, that in compliance with their directions I have inquired into the circumstances of the case of Michael Mulcahey, residing in the district of Pallasgreen, and find the following result:—

It appears certain that Mulcahey did apply to the relieving officer on several occasions, stating the situation of his family; that he was refused relief by the relieving officer, on the ground that he had been told he was in the actual possession of more than one acre of land. Mulcahey invited the officer to visit his hut, and convince himself he did not hold any land; this the officer never did, on the plea he had not time.

Mr. O'Grady, whose presence I had requested, made a number of strong assertions tending to accuse the chairman of the Board of Guardians, Mr. Bolton, of having used illegal influence over the relieving officer to prevent Mulcahey receiving relief, though legally entitled.

Upon my asking Mr. O'Grady if he was prepared to substantiate those charges by witnesses, he said he was not, and again continued his accusations against Mr. Bolton. After again saying I was ready to examine himself and witnesses on oath, at his own convenience, touching those charges, he again declined, in presence of the police force there assembled.

I am, therefore, led to conclude, that Mr. O'Grady has taken up this matter purely from personal pique to Mr. Bolton, and that the relieving officer is highly blameable for not having made himself acquainted with the circumstances of Mulcahey's exact situation by visiting his dwelling.

For the last fortnight this man and his family have been receiving out-door relief.

The relieving officer's name is Crowe, who lately resigned his situation, but has since been re-elected to the division of Doon.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

WITH reference to your report of the 5th instant, relative to the case of Michael Mulcahey, whose family was refused out-door relief in Tipperary Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to enclose, for your information, a copy of a letter which has been addressed to Mr. O'Grady on the subject ; and I am to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners your opinion as to the fitness of Mr. Crowe for the office of relieving officer.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. O'GRADY :—March 9, 1848.

WITH reference to the correspondence that has taken place relative to the claim of Michael Mulcahey, of Pallasgreen, to out-door relief, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have received a report from Captain Haymes on the subject, in which he makes the following statement :—

"It appears certain that Mulcahey did apply to the relieving officer on several occasions, stating the situation of his family ; that he was refused relief by the relieving officer, on the ground that he had been told he was in actual possession of more than one acre of land. Mulcahey invited the officer to visit his hut and convince himself he did not hold any land ; this the officer never did, on the plea he had not time."

In reference to the relieving officer's plea that he had not time to inquire into the case, the Commissioners desire to observe that it is borne out by the fact, that he recently tendered his resignation, on the ground that from the great extent of his district he found himself unable singly to discharge the duties of relieving officer without committing mistakes ; that his resignation was accepted, and the district subsequently reduced in size. The Commissioners do not consider this a justification of the relieving officer, but it is certainly an extenuation of his offence.

The Commissioners understand that Mr. Crowe has been elected by the Guardians to one of the smaller districts ; and the Commissioners will not fail to bear this circumstance in mind before determining whether it will be proper to approve his re-appointment or not.

Captain Haymes informs the Commissioners that Mulcahey and his family have been receiving out-door relief for the last fortnight.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 7, 1848.

I BEG to forward copy of a letter just received by the Board of Guardians, and to request you will move the Commissioners for an early decision on the subject it contains.

It appears to me important that the paupers should be usefully employed in any manner, at least until the implements for breaking stones are received from the Board of Works.

ENCLOSURE.

SIR,

Tipperary, March 7, 1848.

I AM directed by the Town Commissioners to state that at a meeting held on the 6th instant it was resolved that the Board of Guardians be requested to give the use of twelve able-bodied paupers to assist in cleansing the town and suburbs.

I am further directed to state that from the state of the funds at the disposal of the Commissioners they are unable to employ more than two persons during the week, which they intend continuing, but are quite inadequate to cleanse the town in a proper manner.

By the Board of Guardians complying with the above resolution, the Commissioners will feel much obliged.

To the Chairman of the Board of Guardians.

By order of the Commissioners,
(Signed) JOHN LAMPHIER, Clerk.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 10, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 7th instant, enclosing a communication from the Town Commissioners of Tipperary, in which they request the Board of Guardians to give the use of twelve able-bodied paupers to assist in cleaning the town and suburbs, the funds at the disposal of the Town Commissioners not being sufficient to enable them to employ a sufficient number of persons to cleanse the town in a proper manner, and you request the decision of the Commissioners on the subject.

In reference thereto I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they think the Town Commissioners must in this case be considered merely in the light of private employers of labour, and the objections which on general principles apply to the employment of pauper labour on the property of private individuals, appear to apply to a certain extent to the present proposition, and the Commissioners must decline, therefore, to give their consent to the labour of the able-bodied paupers in Tipperary Union being given in aid of the rates which should be made for cleansing the town of Tipperary.

A copy of a letter addressed to another Union, in which the views of the Commissioners as to the employment of pauper labour by private individuals are stated, is herewith enclosed for your information.

Tipperary Union.

The Commissioners have again caused a communication to be made to the Board of Works as to the supply of implements required for employing the able-bodied paupers in Tipperary Union, and they have no doubt that the implements required will be placed at the disposal of the Board of Guardians without further delay.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 10, 1848.

I BEG to inform you for the information of the Commissioners, that several district roads in this Union (the cuttings and repairs of which were begun but left unfinished by the Board of Works last year), are now (in consequence of the continued rains), almost impassable.

As there are no contractors for these roads, and as the material is on the spot, requiring but the breaking and placing in the holes, I shall be glad to learn from the Commissioners, whether the able-bodied recipients of out-door relief may not be employed in this manner.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 10th instant in which you request to be informed whether the able-bodied recipients of out-door relief can be employed on the cuttings and repairs of the several district roads left unfinished by the Board of Works.

In reply I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they are unwilling to sanction the employment of paupers on the unfinished roads until the system of stone-breaking has been fairly and fully tried, and as the implements required have now been forwarded by the Board of Works, the Commissioners think that the stone-breaking system should now be put in operation without delay.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 10, 1848.

I BEG to enclose for the information of the Commissioners, a letter received from one of the collectors of this Union.

It appears he has great difficulty in discharging his duties after distraint has been made, for want of an auctioneer to sell the goods.

The nearest resident auctioneer is in Tipperary, who refuses to go that distance, 14 or 15 miles, for frequently a very trifling remuneration.

Query.—Could not the collector be authorized to sell in such cases?

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. O'DONNELL to Captain HAYMES :—March 9, 1848.

I BEG leave to call your attention to a very great inconvenience which I labour under in the discharge of my duty as collector of poor rate in the electoral divisions of Grean, Doon, Ulla, and Kilteely, which is, the want of an auctioneer to sell effects distrained by me from time to time. At present I am obliged to send a distance of 14 miles for an auctioneer, and often disappointed. I apprized the Commissioners of this inconvenience before, and had no reply. I expect you will call their attention again to it.

P.S. If I could be qualified myself as auctioneer, it would be more convenient.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 11, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 10th instant, enclosing a communication from one of the collectors, in which he states the difficulty he labours under in discharging his duties after distraint, for want of an auctioneer to sell the goods.

In reference thereto I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that a similar difficulty having been felt in another Union, the Board of Guardians proposed to take out an auctioneer's licence for some confidential person to enable him to sell the goods distrained for poor rate. The Commissioners acceded to this proposition, on the understanding that the use of the licence was to be carefully reserved for the purposes of the Guardians, and they see no objection to a similar course being adopted in Tipperary Union.

The duty should be paid only for the period unexpired.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 10, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 8th instant, enclosing a copy of an order to the Listowel Union, relative to discontinuance of out-door relief to able-bodied paupers above 18 years of age, whether married, with two children, or single, on the 18th instant, I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that having visited most parts of the Union, and having questioned both farmers and labourers, I find there is no work whatever going on in the country at present.

This may be attributed partly to the state of the weather, which still retards the spring tillage, but chiefly to the inability of the farmers (as they state) to give employment to the labourer. When the fine weather does set in, it is to be feared the small amount of labour that may be offered to the people, will be at such prices as to be totally inadequate to maintain the labourer's family.

In the poorer districts the people cannot obtain employment even for their keep, whilst, in the better, the maximum of wages hitherto offered appears to be 1s. 4d. per week.

Under these circumstances, I am of opinion, that the discontinuance of relief (even to those persons designated in the order) on the 18th instant would be attended with most disastrous effects.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I BEG to report for the information of the Commissioners, that having visited the most part of the rural districts of this Union, and interrogated several farmers, relieving officers, and able-bodied recipients of out-door relief, I am led to conclude, that the wide-spread destitution now existing, arises wholly from the want of employment for the people.

The inclemency of the season has doubtless retarded the spring tillage; but from what I can learn, it is to be apprehended that a very small amount of labour will be offered to the people, even when the weather may admit of farming operations.

Without doubt there are some parties receiving out-door relief who are not justly entitled to it, and my utmost vigilance, together with that of the relieving officer, are insufficient to detect all such cases; but the several tests of the workhouse, the publication of lists, the labour test; above all, the cooked food, will soon rectify these abuses, which, I am glad to say, are far from numerous.

Many instances have been brought to my notice and decision, of peasants offering to surrender their small holdings, with the exception of their cottage and garden, and the landlord's refusal to take the land without the said appendages. In all such cases I have been guided by the legal opinion of Mr. Henn, and directed such persons to be relieved, with a notice that if a spade was put into any part of the land (so offered), the parties would become liable to prosecution for fraud.

Notwithstanding the obstacles thrown in the way to the adoption of the system of cooked food by some few of the Guardians, I do not despair of ultimately carrying it into effect, and am persuaded it will prove of the utmost benefit, both to the ratepayers and the really destitute.

I have received various complaints from the people, of the relieving officers unjustly debarring them from relief. I have made it my duty to give a patient inquiry to all such cases, and am happy to report I find the greater part frivolous and unfounded; in a very few contrary instances, the error of the relieving officers has proceeded more from the ignorance of the law, than any desire to deprive the pauper of relief.

Much benefit has been derived by the Union from the district fever hospitals, of which there are three. They have hitherto been supported by the surplus funds arising out of the "Temporary Relief Bill" of last year; these funds are now exhausted, and the Guardians are providing means for their continued support, being fully alive to their great utility.

Tipperary Union.

I am gratified in being enabled to report, that as far as my observation has gone, the people appear to receive the relief given them with much gratitude; and there is no doubt that already it has saved the lives of thousands, who without it must inevitably have perished from positive starvation.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HAYMES:—March 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to call your attention to the fact, that the Commissioners' order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied poor in Tipperary Union will expire on the 1st proximo, and I am to request that you will be so good as to report specially to the Commissioners as to the necessity of continuing the authority to administer out-door relief in the Union under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

If you are of opinion that it is necessary to continue such authority, I am to request that you will state, whether it might not, in your opinion, be more limited than at present, and whether certain classes (such, for instance, as single able-bodied men, and married men not having more than two children,) might not be excluded from out-door relief.

The Commissioners will renew the order on the 1st April if you deem it absolutely necessary; but still the Commissioners are anxious to break through the habit of dependence on the poor-rates at a time when the labour of able-bodied men is required for the cultivation of the land.

Your report should reach this office by Friday morning next at latest.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have visited several districts during the past week, and found the relieving officers (generally) attentive to their duties, and their books in good order.

I am sorry to report that destitution is much on the increase, the number of out-door recipients amounting to above 16,000.

This increase may be attributed to the inclemency of the weather and to the other causes I had the honour to state in my last week's report.

I have, however, heard of some instances of farmers promising work as soon as the weather admits of out-door operations; this, with the breaking stones, will, I trust, sensibly diminish the number now on the lists.

I have detected some attempts at fraud on the part of contractors issuing inferior qualities of meal to the people whilst the Guardians were paying the highest price for best quality. In all such cases the Guardians have dismissed the contractor.

Part of the tools from the Board of Works have been received and distributed to the districts. Arrangements have been made for the able-bodied to begin work to-morrow, Monday, 20th instant.

Having submitted to the Board of Guardians Captain Wynne's plan of baking bread in the workhouse, together with my proposals for carrying it out in this Union for the daily supply of all paupers, it was unanimously adopted. As the subject is one of great import, I beg to refer the Commissioners to my special report of this day's date on the occasion.

The workhouse continues to be well conducted; and it is gratifying to be enabled to state that, from the judicious treatment of the medical officer, Doctor Evans, the general health of the inmates is most satisfactory.

I am sorry to add that dysentery appears to be spreading to a great extent in the rural districts, the average number of deaths for the last two or three weeks being 80 per week. This, in a great measure, may be attributed to the people eating the Indian meal improperly cooked, the want of clothing, and exposure to the cold and wet weather which has so long prevailed.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

WITH regard to your observations relative to the frauds of the meal contractors, I am to request that you will be so good as to report the specific facts of each case, and to consider whether they come within the provisions of the 8th section of the Bakers' Act, 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 28, a copy of which is herewith enclosed for your information.

Tipperary Union.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

ON the receipt of the Commissioners' letter, containing extracts from Captain Wynne's report, relative to making bread of Indian and rye meal in the workhouse, it immediately occurred to me that, if by any possibility the system could be practically carried into effect in this Union, where so large a number as 16,000 recipients were to be supplied daily, the advantages would be incalculable.

After giving much thought to the subject, and consulting the clerk of the Works, together with Mr. Massey, the chairman of the Board, I was enabled to place the whole matter in such a practical shape before a very full meeting of Guardians yesterday, when they unanimously resolved to adopt the system with as little delay as possible.

You will have received the resolution, together with the plan of the proposed bakehouse, by last night's post. The cost of this building will not exceed 150*l.*; and this sum may be saved in three weeks, having calculated there will be at least that sum, 50*l.*, weekly difference in the present system of relief and that proposed.

It is intended that the proposed bakehouse should be a permanent building, to be erected in the yard attached to the female wards, so as to correspond in appearance and situation with the shed in the men's yard.

When out-door relief shall no longer be required, the hot plates can be easily removed, and the building used as increased accommodation for paupers; or if, in years to come, out-door relief should be again found necessary, the building, by merely replacing the hot plates, is immediately available for its original purpose.

The system proposed appears to be extremely popular with both Guardians and rate-payers; and although I am not of opinion the bread thus made of rye and Indian corn meal would act as a prevention to dysentery in the same proportion as the stirabout composed of Indian meal and rice, yet, having consulted the medical officer, who is of opinion that this bread, being solid and particularly nutritious, it would ultimately produce the same effect, and the other advantages attendant on the adoption of this system being so evident and numerous, I do not hesitate to recommend it in the strongest manner for the sanction of the Commissioners.

The greatest benefit (in my estimation) likely to be derived from the proposed system is the utter impossibility of fraud, the whole operation being carried on within the house, under the control and inspection of the master and matron.

I have made calculations, and find the outlay for Robinson's steaming apparatus, together with materials for fitting up kitchens in the several electoral divisions, for the purpose of cooking stirabout, would far exceed the sum required for the proposed bakehouse, without reference to the difference in price of rations.

If a detail of the organization for a constant supply of this bread to so large a number of persons be deemed necessary by the Commissioners, I shall be happy to furnish it. In the mean time I beg to urge their sanction to the immediate adoption of the system, and shall be happy to take on myself all the responsibility of the details in carrying it into effect.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement, that it is the intention of the Guardians to adopt Captain Wynne's plan of baking bread, to be distributed in out-door relief, and to request that the Commissioners will at once sanction the adoption of the plan, I am to enclose, for your information, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Board of Guardians on the subject of the plan for hot plates proposed by them for the purpose of baking the bread.

When the plan is in operation, the Commissioners would be glad to receive from you a detail of the organization for distributing the food.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 26, 1848.

Tipperary Union.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that during the past week the able-bodied recipients of out-door relief have been employed breaking stones; and from the number of absentees at "roll-call," I am led to conclude, this test will have the effect of considerably reducing the lists.

The weather, for the last few days, having proved more favourable, the farmers are taking advantage of it throughout the Union. The spring operations are proceeding with vigour.

Up to the present, but little employment has been offered to the labourer; whenever it is, even at a very reduced rate of wages, the people appear ready and willing to accept it.

Much inconvenience and abuse arises from the present system of distributing raw meal for the whole week. In order to put an end to it as speedily as possible, I trust the Commissioners' architect will transmit the specification for proposed bakehouse without delay.

Under the impression that one pound of meal is insufficient for an able-bodied man exposed to all weathers, and breaking stones for eight hours a-day, I yesterday proposed to the Board of Guardians, that the men so working, should be allowed 20 ounces in lieu of 16 per diem. They, however, demurred to this proposition on the plea, that it would tend to reconcile the men to the work.

Whatever truth may be attached to the above plea, my conviction is, that the men, already reduced by destitution and sickness, will, in a short time, from sheer exhaustion, become wholly unfitted for field works of any kind.

The workhouse continues to be conducted in a very orderly manner, every one of the inmates being employed—men and boys breaking stones, women and girls spinning and knitting stockings, &c. I am also happy to add, the health of the house is in a most satisfactory state.

Much difficulty is experienced in procuring a suitable building into which the schools, both of boys and girls, could be removed. As this step is of great importance, not only as regards the children themselves, but also of affording increased accommodation in the house for the able-bodied paupers, I am strongly of opinion that a detached building on the workhouse grounds would be the most advisable plan.

The collectors appear to be duly exerting themselves—their weekly returns to the treasurer averaging between 400*l.* and 500*l.* I have every reason to anticipate the whole amount of old rate (with the exception of bad debts) will be collected ere a new rate becomes necessary.

Some few instances have come to my knowledge of stock being found on the lands liable for rate driven and sold by the collector, such stock being the property of persons not liable. One of these cases appearing of peculiar hardship to the individual, I have made it the subject of a separate report for the decision of the Commissioners.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 7, 1848.

ADVERTING to your report of the 26th instant, in which you express a doubt as to the sufficiency of the present scale of rations allowed in Tipperary Union to support men employed at stone-breaking, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you, that they have received a communication from the Central Board of Health, in which it is stated that the scale of rations referred to in the letter to the Relief Commissioners on the 10th March, 1848, is not, in the opinion of that Board, sufficient for able-bodied men who are required to work.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 28, 1848.

I BEG to draw the attention of the Commissioners to their sealed order, authorizing out-door relief, which expires on Saturday next, 1st April.

As great destitution prevails throughout the Union, and but a very small portion of labour to be obtained by the people, I have to request the Commissioners will be pleased to extend their seal for a longer period.

Tipperary Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 30, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to refer you to the letter addressed to you on the 28th instant, as to a modification of the order; and I am at the same time to request that when you receive this (if you have not already replied) you will be so good as to send your reply by return of post.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

IN reply to your communication of yesterday's date, in reference to the necessity of continuing out-door relief after the 1st of April, I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that destitution throughout the Union appears to be on the increase, as many applications for relief are admitted weekly by the Guardians.

Although the weather has set in comparatively fine, and the farming operations commenced, I cannot learn that the farmers are giving the least employment.

I, therefore, think the continuance of out-door relief to the able-bodied is of absolute necessity, and have to request the Commissioners will be pleased to order the same.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 31, 1848.

I AM directed to inform you that the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order for a period of one month.

Captain HAYMES to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners, that during the past week I have visited many quarries in the various districts of the Union, in which I have found the really destitute able-bodied men honestly performing their daily task of breaking stones.

This test is (as I anticipated) beginning to have the desired effect, that of diminishing the lists, not to any great extent it is true, but sufficient to distinguish the fraudulent from the really destitute recipients.

There are many absentees from sickness, all of which are authenticated either from personal visitation or medical certificate, all those at work complain of the insufficiency of the food allowed them when working for eight hours per diem.

The spring tillage is proceeding, but it is principally performed by the farmers and their families, very little work can be obtained by the labourer. In some districts, single men have offered themselves at 2d. per diem and their food, without being able to obtain employment.

I am in justice bound to add that the people bear their great destitution in the most peaceable and exemplary manner.

The health of the inmates of the workhouse, I am happy to report, continues most satisfactory. The deaths that have occurred during the last week arising wholly from people being admitted in a dying state, their relations having no means to bury them.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 13, 1848.

WITH regard to the complaints of the insufficiency of the ration for working men, I am to request that you will be so good as to report specially to the Commissioners, after conferring with the Guardians on the subject of the amount of the ration to be allowed to an able-bodied man required to work, should the Guardians after such conference, still adhere to their previous views.

ENNIS UNION.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I arrived here on Monday, the 7th instant.

I have since then been occupied in collecting information respecting the general state of the Union.

I find instances of irregularity on all sides.

Imperfect out-door relief register, owing to neglect and inefficiency of the relieving officers; and this kind of relief afforded in some instances without the signature of the Chairman of the Board of Guardians, or counter-signature of clerk.

No stone-breaking test in operation, but employment of the able-bodied in repairing fences, altering of highways, water-courses, &c.; eight hours' labour nominally exacted, but not the fair complement of work done.

The workhouse test unapplied from want of room, and many names on out-door relief lists of persons suspected of being holders of more than a quarter of a statute acre.

Cost of out-door relief last week above 600*l*.

Cost of house same time, including staff, 91*l*. 1*s*. 7½*d*.

The Guardians at their Board this day, which I had the first opportunity of attending, and at which Mr. Owen Lloyd was also present by appointment, have consented to make trial of the stone-breaking test enjoined by the Commissioners, and urged by me, in those electoral divisions in which the requisite material is to be found; but there are three electoral divisions, viz.,

	Acres.	Population.
Inagh	21,141	3,895
Kilmaley	23,883	4,998
Clondagad. . . .	16,928	5,088

in which there is no lime-stone, as I am informed; I therefore request the Commissioners will advise what description of labour shall be required in these divisions.

It has been also this day resolved to inspect to-morrow, with a view to hiring them, two stores, by occupying which, considerable accommodation to test the destitute able-bodied will be afforded in the workhouse, and the lists it is hoped thereby reduced.

I have advised that the collectors shall be required to furnish by next Board day a list of all rate-payers in arrear, with a view to publicity of their names, classifying them by townlands, and have expressed my determination to report any collector or relieving officer neglectful of his duty.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 14, 1848.

WITH reference to the statement contained in your report that there are three electoral divisions in the Union in which there is no lime-stone to be found, and that consequently those receiving out-door relief cannot be put to stone-breaking, and to your request for the Commissioners' advice as to what kind of labour should be required in those electoral divisions, I am directed to state that the Commissioners would wish to know how far stones would have to be brought from other electoral divisions, before they can answer your question specifically.

The Commissioners believe that no mode of employment is so well adapted for able-bodied paupers as stone-breaking. If, however, this is really impracticable, the Commissioners would wish to know whether there are any unfinished roads in those electoral divisions.

The Commissioners would not in the last resort absolutely object to the paupers being employed on any work of a public nature; but they would under no circumstances sanction the employment of paupers on private farms.

In deciding between different kinds of employment of a public nature, that mode of employment should have the preference which is the least attractive to applicants, and which admits most easily of effective superintendence.

Ennis Union.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 17, 1848.

I HAVE to report that there being on the Ennis Board a considerable majority of elected, over ex-officio Guardians, owing to the death and resignation of eight of the latter, and the consequent impossibility of preventing the elected members from carrying any motion they choose; and further, that the said elected members are nearly all related or connected, or bound by common interest, I directed the clerk to write to the eight justices of the peace who are highest rated, requesting to know if they would act as ex-officio Guardians. The clerk stated that he had already done so, but had received no reply. I therefore request the Commissioners will inform me whether application may be made to the eight justices who stand next those in scale of rating, and whether in the event of their assenting, they may act at the Board previous to the 29th September next.

The relieving officers having stated their inability—owing to the extent of their several districts, the number of applications, and the other duties required of them—to comply with that part of their instructions which requires them to visit the house, and inquire into the circumstances of each applicant for outdoor relief; and it being impossible, in consequence of intimidation, to get the ratepayers of the districts to give individual information of names that ought to be removed from the lists, I resolved on calling a meeting of the whole of the ratepayers of one district, in which there appeared, from the numbers on the books, to have been great abuse; when aided by two ex-officio and the elected Guardians, and assisted by the farmers, (who thus assembled together, felt no restraint), abuse to a considerable amount was detected, and a large number of illegal recipients removed from the lists. I gave the result of this investigation to the Board of Guardians yesterday; and they have passed a resolution, and acted on it, to form in each district a Committee of investigation, consisting of the ex-officio and elected Guardians, and three highest ratepayers, and holding a full meeting of the rate-paying farmers before the next Board day, thoroughly revise and correct their books and lists.

In compliance with the directions of the Commissioners stated by me at the Board of the 9th instant, stone-breaking has been in general operation in each district during the past week; and in several instances has proved a test of destitution, as shown by the overseers' lists.

The state of the interior of the workhouse is very satisfactory as respects its cleanliness, order, and regularity. The master and matron are very efficient. I regret to say that dysentery is prevalent, especially amongst the junior inmates.

In consequence of the access, during the recent bad weather, of the contractor's carts, workmen, &c., employed on the new buildings, the approach, yards, &c., are not in as neat order as they might and shall be. I have drawn the workhouse master's attention to the subject.

I regret to report that unavoidable delay is occurring in the application of this most efficacious test, by reason of the difficulty of obtaining a suitable building wherein to place the schools. The contractor's work has been greatly retarded by the unfavourable weather, which made it unsafe to hurry the building. In about a week more, however, there will be additional room in the house for 90 able-bodied men.

I have recommended the Guardians to receive tenders for hot-hearths and iron baking-plates, and to have bread made of Indian corn meal, baked in the house. This food alternating with that constantly used, would in the opinion of the medical officer, assist in arresting dysentery, which he ascribes in some measure to sourness of diet; whilst instruction in the art of baking would be most useful to the able-bodied female paupers, and a considerable saving effected in point of expense.

Much difficulty arises in cases of persons who offer to surrender their land. The landlord, or his agent, frequently refuses to accept it, unless the house be thrown down. When this is complied with, there is no legal asylum provided for these houseless paupers, the workhouse being full; and they then invariably flock into the town of Ennis, which has occasioned much dissatisfaction to the inhabitants and ratepayers of the town.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 22, 1848.

Ennis Union.

I AM to state that before the next rated Justices are called on, a notice should go to the others requesting them to state their willingness, or otherwise, by a certain day, or that they would be considered as declining. I am to request that you will be so good as to cause the result of such further notice to be communicated to the Commissioners. With reference to your remarks respecting difficulty in the relief of persons who offer to surrender their land, but which is refused unless the house be thrown down, I am to enclose for your information, a copy of a circular letter recently issued by the Commissioners on the subject.

Page 9, 5th Series.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 24, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that I attended the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday, and regret to say that much of the business which I had hoped, from the resolutions passed at the previous meeting of the Board, would have been transacted, remains just as it was, much to the injury of the affairs of the Union.

With the exception of the vice-chairman of the Board (James Blake Butler, Esq., J.P.), and perhaps one or two other members, there is an apathetic indifference exhibited by the Guardians generally, which impedes the Union business, and to a great extent renders the Irish Poor Law Act inoperative.

It is the custom of the Guardians on each Board day, to assemble in respectable numbers, as the Commissioners will have observed in the copies of the minutes forwarded to them; but so soon as the particular object for which each member has come, is disposed of, he goes away, and the onerous duties of the Board, with the entire and serious amount of responsibility attached to them, are left upon the vice-chairman, who has hitherto discharged them at much personal inconvenience, remaining at the Board-room until a late hour in the evening, &c.

It is matter of much regret that additional workhouse accommodation cannot be procured here, as this efficacious test is much wanted in this Union.

Such of the able-bodied paupers as have hammers have been required to work at stone-breaking, or forfeit their rations. In several instances they have absented themselves from the work. When supplied with the requisite implements from the depôt of the Board of Works, this description of work shall in every available instance be enforced.

There has been a falling off in the collection of last week, to the amount of 620 $\frac{1}{2}$.

In compliance with the resolution of the Board of the 9th instant, lists of defaulters were handed in by the several rate collectors, on which appear the names of several persons whose rate should not be now unpaid. I have called upon the Collectors, on pain of being reported to the Commissioners, to use every exertion to collect those rates by the next Board day, and have urged on the Board to give orders to their solicitor to take proceedings against the several parties in the event of non-payment.

The exterior of the workhouse, the yards, walks, gardens, &c., are improved since my last inspection of them, and promise soon to be in complete order.

The interior exhibits its usual cleanliness and regularity. The inmates are kept constantly employed. There are, however, only seven able-bodied men, who with the adult boys are usually employed at stone-breaking.

On examination of the pupils, male and female, I regret to be obliged to report both schoolmaster and mistress as far from efficient. The boys read fairly, and have made a little progress in arithmetic. Their writing too is pretty good, but they read without understanding, or being instructed so as to explain the meaning of what they read. The girls read indifferently, and evince few evidences of instruction.

The last visit of the Visiting Committee reported in the book, is dated August, 1847.

Looking at the state of affairs in this Union, and the indisposition on the part of the Guardians to work them out effectively; considering that the quantity of business to be transacted would require a meeting of the Board twice, and I really think three times a week (at least during the continuance of out-door relief), and the impossibility of procuring its attendance oftener than every Wednesday; it is my opinion that unless the just remonstrance of the vice-chairman, again repeated yesterday, accompanied by a reiteration of his determination to resign his position on the next Board day, be productive of an increase of zeal and co-operation on the part of the other members, the affairs of the Ennis Union will not be conducted with justice to the ratepayers, or satisfaction to the Commissioners, by the present Board of Guardians.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 28, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement as to the manner in which the duties of the Board of Guardians are performed, and your opinion that unless the remonstrance of the vice-chairman (who has threatened to resign) be productive of an increase of zeal and co-operation on the part of the other members of the Board of Guardians, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they would be unwilling, except under circumstances of absolute necessity, to supersede the functions of the Ennis Board of Guardians, by the appointment of paid officers; and the Commissioners trust that Mr. Butler, vice-chairman of the Board, will continue to give the Union the benefit of his valuable services, and will be duly supported by the other Guardians.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. CRONYN:—February 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them a resolution of the Board of Guardians of Ennis Union, on the 16th instant, calling attention to the Commissioners' order of the 4th ultimo, (which will expire on the 4th proximo,) authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, with a view to its renewal; and I am directed by the Commissioners to forward to you a copy of the order in question, and to request that you will be so good as to report specially to the Commissioners after the meeting of the Board of Guardians on to-morrow, as to the necessity of renewing the order for any and what period, or of issuing any modification of the present order.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—March 1, 1848.

I BEG to say it will be necessary to renew said order for two months, and respectfully request the renewed permission may be in the possession of the clerk of the Union on the 4th instant.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM directed to state that the order remains in force until the 4th instant inclusive; and an order will be issued by to-morrow's post authorizing out-door relief for a further period, to expire on the 18th instant.

The Commissioners await your reply to their circular letter of yesterday's date on this subject.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS.

I HAVE the honour to forward, for information of the Commissioners, a letter from Dr. Cullinan, medical officer of the Ennis workhouse, in answer to inquiries from me, as to whether he would sanction the admission to the house of 200 paupers more than it now contains.

It is the opinion of the master, an intelligent, careful, and experienced officer, that this additional number of inmates might safely be admitted. Several of the members of the Board of Guardians hold a similar opinion; and my own examination of the capabilities of the house leads me also to think, that no danger would be incurred by increasing the number of inmates from the present 800 to the amount proposed, viz. 1000.

I am most anxious that the amount of pauperism in the Ennis Union shall be tested by every possible means, and particularly by those of the workhouse, before the period arrives for estimating the expenditure of the Union for the next six months; and I therefore respectfully request the Commissioners will inform me whether they will sanction the admission of 200 more paupers to the workhouse.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. CULLINAN to Mr. CRONYN:—February 29, 1848.

I HAVE already expressed my concurrence in the opinion entertained by our Board of Guardians, to which your inquiries refer, viz., that a greater amount of evil will arise from the indiscriminate and absolute exclusion of all applicants for admission to the workhouse beyond 800, than would result from the temporary admission of 1000 inmates. When I stated to the Commissioners that injury to the health of the paupers would arise from overcrowding, my observation was not specially applicable to the circumstances of this workhouse; on the contrary, the facilities enjoyed by us for the immediate removal of all cases of acute disease or fever, would justify the straining to the very utmost limits which from experience the Commissioners find to be consistent with safety, the accommodation afforded by this workhouse. The great attention to cleanliness and proper ventilation enforced by the master and his subordinates, would render any trial on this subject less dangerous than if such care was not adopted.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that the propriety of admitting a greater number than 800 into the workhouse has been considered by the Commissioners on several occasions, the Guardians having several times brought the subject before them; and the Commissioners enclose for your information a copy of a letter which they addressed to the Board of Guardians on the 29th January last, in which their deliberate views on the subject are expressed.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS:—January 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration a resolution contained in minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of Ennis Union on the 19th instant, requesting the Commissioners to extend the admissions to the workhouse to 1000, and stating that this may be safely done according to the testimony of the medical officer in his report of 1st December.

In reference to this resolution I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they have again referred to the medical officer's report of the 1st December. That report merely states, that on a pressing emergency the admission of paupers may be extended to 1000, without serious risk of propagating disease; and that assuming the crowding of the house would be only temporary, he considers the inconvenience and injury likely to result therefrom will be much less than the total exclusion of all applicants from admission. Now, as the medical officer in this report evidently contemplates some inconvenience and injury as likely to result from extending the number of admissions, and as the Guardians have full power under the Commissioners' order of the 4th instant, to administer out-door relief to all classes of destitute poor persons in the Union, the Commissioners would not feel themselves warranted in acceding to the wishes of the Guardians in this respect.

The Commissioners desire to add, that on the 6th December (subsequently to the date of the report above referred to) they received a communication from the medical officer, in which he stated in reply to an inquiry made by the Commissioners, that in his opinion 1000 inmates might be received into the workhouse temporarily, and under the pressure of a great emergency, without danger of propagating or creating dangerous contagious or infectious diseases, but certainly not without material detriment to the health of the inmates generally.

The opinion here expressed is in accordance with, and borne out by, the general experience of the Commissioners; and they trust that the Guardians will see that in again declining to extend the number that may be admitted into the workhouse, the Commissioners are actuated solely by a consideration of what they believe to be their duty in the matter; and they desire to assure the Guardians that could they satisfy themselves that the extension desired could be made without injury to the inmates of the workhouse, it would afford them much pleasure to comply with the Guardians' request.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 2, 1848.

I ATTENDED the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, at which there was a full attendance, and a disposition evinced to carry out more zealously than heretofore the instructions of the Commissioners, and the letter of the Irish Poor Laws; some of the Guardians remaining with the chairman and me until eight o'clock, P.M., for the purpose of leaving no business unfinished.

Ennis Union.

I read the Commissioners' letter of the 28th ultimo, and Mr. Blake Butler, vice-chairman, and most of the other Guardians present, expressed their willingness to continue, for a time at least, to exercise their functions at the Board.

The workhouse is kept in a cleanly and regular manner. There are numerous though not increasing cases of dysentery; and as yet the check to it intended through the agency of Indian corn meal bread has not been tried. No tenders for supplying metal baking plates and the other requisite apparatus having been sent in, though advertised for, the Board have ordered another advertisement to be inserted in a more widely circulating newspaper.

The new shed, which when available will give additional workhouse accommodation for 90 inmates, I inspected accompanied by the architect and contractor, and they have assured me that it will be ready for use in a week from this time.

I have succeeded after much argument in inducing the Board to support out of the workhouse 90 of the present inmates who could be best discharged, and the room thus obtained will prove, I confidently expect, an effective means of thinning the out-door relief lists.

Much difficulty exists in applying the stone-breaking test vigorously. The stewards are quite afraid, in this Union at least, to exact the due return of labour, and excuses have been made that the implements expected from the Board of Works have not yet been supplied. Wherever the stewards have done their duty the test has proved a good one.

I have used every exertion to induce the Guardians to adopt the system of cooked food; read to them the Commissioners' circular and Mr. Bromley's report on the subject, as well as stated to them the result of my own experience of its benefits as a nutriment, and efficacy as a test, under the Temporary Relief Act, but the Guardians are resolutely opposed to it, on the ground of the difficulty attending its working in so thickly-peopled a Union as this; the insecurity to which the porridge kitchens would be liable, and the increase of expense of additional staff.

Finding that the Guardians and rate-payers of the several districts will not of themselves revise the lists, and strike off the names of parties not entitled to be recipients of out-door relief; I have notified my intention of going to the different districts in turn, and inviting the rate-payers to meet me and assist me in thinning the lists—a plan I successfully adopted already in two electoral districts.

There is an evidence of an increase of activity on the part of the relieving officers generally; some of them, however, I have had occasion to censure and threaten to report; and one I have already represented to the Commissioners as quite unfit to be continued in his situation, viz., Daniel Hastings, relieving officer of Clonlea electoral district.

Some of the rate collectors are using fair exertions to get the rate collected. Three of them have not been sufficiently active, and have shown a disposition to favouritism. The near approach of the time, however, for making a new rate, makes it advisable not to remove them before the 25th instant, but insist upon their making good the collection, and then coming on their securities for the balance uncollected.

I have already reported the necessity for a two months' renewal of the Commissioners' sealed order, which will expire on the 4th instant.

Much difficulty exists in cases where two or more members of a family are the joint occupiers of a farm. It frequently happens that one of them offers to surrender his portion to the landlord, which is of course refused unless they all surrender. The person so rejected then applies for out-door relief, which, according to the law as explained by J. Henn, Esq., Q.C., he would appear to be entitled to; his portion of the land meantime is worked by the other members of the family, joint occupiers with him, for their individual or mutual benefit.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 7, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement, that the Guardians are resolutely opposed to the introduction of cooked food, the Commissioners desire to state that they rely upon your again pressing upon the Guardians the advantages of the system, as proved by experience wherever it has been fairly tried, and upon your endeavouring to convince the Guardians that the difficulties which they anticipate are not so great as they imagine, and may be surmounted in this case as they have in other cases by energy and determination. It will be proper also to explain to the Board of Guardians that the Commissioners are required by the 3rd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act to regulate and determine the kind of relief to be given out of the workhouse; and that the Guardians and their officers shall administer such relief subject to the rules and regulations of the Commissioners; that one of the regulations prescribed by the Commissioners in regard to the administration of relief to the able-bodied is, that such relief shall, as far as practicable, be given in cooked food; and that it follows therefore that relief given to the able-bodied otherwise than in cooked food will be absolutely illegal, unless it can be shown that it was impracticable to administer it in that shape. The Commissioners do not however prohibit the administration of relief in uncooked food until the arrangements for issuing the food in a cooked shape are made, but they trust that the Guardians will see, from the above statement, that it is their duty to take immediate steps for carrying out the Commissioners' regulation in this respect.

The Commissioners are not aware of the numbers on the out-door relief lists, the clerk having omitted to supply them with the usual statistical information (to which omission the Commissioners have called his attention), but they think that the circumstance that the cooked food system has not hitherto been adopted, and that the workhouse has not (as appears from your statement, that you have with difficulty prevailed upon the Guardians to discharge 90 of the present inmates) been made so extensively available as it might be for the relief of the able-bodied, should be taken into account in considering whether it will be necessary to continue the present out-door relief order for any further period beyond the 18th instant. The neglect to revise the relief lists should also be considered with the same view.

With reference to the difficulty in the application of the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act in cases of joint occupancy, I am to state that the case referred to by you would seem to involve a question of fact, and would be a proper subject for the decision of the Guardians. As far as the Commissioners can form an opinion respecting the facts as detailed by you, it seems to them that in this particular instance the joint tenant has not ceased bonâ fide to occupy the land.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

I ARRIVED here late last night from Ennistymon, for the purpose of attending the Ennis Board of Guardians this day, and I have been engaged in transacting the business of the Board in company with James Blake Butler, Esq., J.P., Vice-Chairman, who remained with me, after all the other Guardians had left, until 8 o'clock, P.M.

The motion of Mr. Singleton, for dissolving the Board and requesting the Commissioners to appoint Vice-Guardians instead, was brought forward by that gentleman, and considerable difference of opinion on the subject stated. On my impressing on the Guardians the unwillingness of the Commissioners to supersede their functions, the confidence the Commissioners had in them, and the hope they expressed that Mr. Butler would continue to give his valuable services to the Union, assisted by the zealous co-operations of his fellow-Guardians, an amendment to the motion was carried by a large majority, that the question of dissolution be postponed until the second meeting of the newly-elected Board of Guardians, and that in the meantime increased exertions be made by the different members of the Board to carry out effectively the provisions of the Poor Law in this Union. Mr. Blake Butler, however, to whose most efficient services and untiring zeal the Union is so much indebted, declared the intention of which he had previously given notice, that he should not again occupy the chair, finding it impossible, consistently with his other avocations, to devote the time to the business of the Union which he considers to be necessary to the careful discharge of it, but promising to give the Board all the assistance in his power.

The retirement of Mr. Butler from the chair of this Board is, in my opinion, a death-blow to its efficiency.

With reference to the Commissioners' letter, dated the 7th instant, in reply to my report on the refusal of the Guardians to introduce cooked food, I have to state that I again this day pressed on the Board the advantage of this description of relief, and the illegality, as pointed out by the Commissioners under the 3rd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, of continuing to give any other kind. The Guardians expressed their willingness to conform in every way to the strict letter of the law and instructions of the Commissioners, but still maintained that "wetted meal" or "cooked food," with the present staff of relieving officers, would, in so large and populous a Union as this, be impracticable; at the same time they declared their readiness to adopt cooked food provided the Commissioners would sanction the appointment of a relieving officer to each electoral division.

Ennis Union.

I cannot report this week any perceptible good arising from the stone-breaking test: whether it be that the stewards, owing to intimidation, do not exact the due amount of labour of this kind, I cannot say, but certainly the lists have not been much thinned thereby this week.

I have resolutely refused to permit any other kind of work, though much importuned by several Guardians, ex-officio and elected, to permit the unfinished roads, commenced under the Labour Rate Act, to be put in useful order.

The workhouse test has proved most effective. Room for 90 inmates being last week made, offers of admission to that number of able-bodied were tendered, and only 24 accepted.

I have no doubt that next week a much larger reduction will be obtained by this means.

I have remonstrated more than once with the clerk of the Union on his want of activity in obtaining the returns necessary for filling the different forms required by the Commissioners within a reasonable time. I have more particularly found fault with him for not being in a position to use the new form of minutes, which he promises shall not occur again. He complains of the difficulty of getting the particulars often required from relieving officers and rate collectors, whose inattention has been more apparent during my absence from the office this last week, whilst on temporary duty at Ennistymon.

I much regret to say that the prospects of cultivation in this part of the country are not of a cheering kind. There has been very little wheat sown, and as yet but very limited preparation for an oat crop. There is a general disposition to try the potato largely again; and I am informed, by competent authority, that a good breadth of the soil will be this season occupied with it. Still much land, from which a pauper tenantry has been ejected, will lie untilled and useless.

I shall proceed to-morrow morning to resume my duties as Temporary Vice-Guardian of Ennistymon Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

WITH reference to the introduction of the cooked food system in administering out-door relief to the able-bodied in Ennis Union, and to the expressed willingness of the Guardians to adopt that system, provided the Commissioners would sanction the appointment of a relieving officer to each electoral division, I am to state that the Commissioners will sanction the appointment of such a staff as in your opinion is absolutely necessary for carrying out the system of cooked food, and requiring at least eight hours' labour every day from each able-bodied pauper as a condition of relief.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

THE amount of unquestionable distress in the Ennis Union will require the continuance of out-door relief beyond the 18th instant, although I have every reason to believe to a much less extent than at present.

A considerable number of able-bodied men hitherto recipients of out-door relief, have been struck off during the last week, having refused the asylum offered them in the workhouse.

By the arrangement reported by me as having been made at the meeting of the Guardians on the 1st instant, whereby workhouse accommodation for 90 able-bodied men was placed at the disposal of the Board, a very satisfactory test of destitution was applied, only 24 of those to whom the provision in the house was offered having accepted thereof.

The continued wetness of the season, and consequent backwardness of spring culture, will, when the weather permits, cause labour to be of course in good demand; still the result of every inquiry I have made leads me to think that a good deal of able-bodied destitution will be found to exist even at the time that it would be reasonable to expect all such to be absorbed by the ordinary agricultural business.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed, that under that order, single men, and men with only two children, would be thrown on their own resources.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 14, 1848.

IN reply to the Commissioners' letter of the 11th instant, I have to state that from the amount of able-bodied labour in this Union, for which there is as yet no demand, owing to the interruption of the usual spring business, caused by the continued wetness of the season; and from the existence of considerable distress in the Union, I am of opinion (concurring in by some of the best informed of the ex-officio Guardians, including the late Vice-Chairman, Mr. B. Butler,) that the refusing of out-door relief, after the 18th instant, to able-bodied single men and able-bodied men with only two children, would be premature.

I would, at the same time, respectfully suggest to the Commissioners to issue their sealed order for the continuance, as at present in this Union, of out-door relief until the 25th instant; and in the meantime the most strenuous exertions shall be made for removing (as far as it may be possible) from off the relief lists, persons belonging to the two classes whom the Commissioners propose should be thrown on their own resources.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners have directed that the order for out door relief be renewed until the 25th instant, as you recommend.

I am at the same time to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners, if possible, by the post of the 22nd instant, (the next day of meeting of the Guardians), stating what further order you recommend, if any.

The Commissioners trust that by the time the renewed order has expired, the Guardians will be prepared to receive an order similar to that issued to Listowel, or a still further modification of the existing order.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 16, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, for information of the Commissioners, that I yesterday attended the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians, of whom (with the exception of those ex-officio) there was as usual at the commencement of the proceedings a good number present; Doctor Healy, an elected Guardian, in the chair.

The Board is unanimously of opinion that the necessity exists for continuing out-door relief to the able-bodied in this Union for the present.

For the last fortnight every exertion has been used to detect imposition—the labour and workhouse tests in many instances successfully applied; still in the face of these facts, the numbers on the out-door relief lists are increasing; the new applications in most districts exceeding the number of able-bodied removed from them, and the weekly cost of external relief.

On the 26th February, viz., ...	£599 15 7
Compared with that on 4th March	623 1 3

I again impressed on the attention of the Board, the necessity of compliance with the directions of the Commissioners on the subject of issuing cooked food, and read the Commissioners' letter setting forth the illegality of any other.

The Guardians are anxious to carry out the Commissioners' instructions.

On a full consideration and discussion of the subject, it was the conviction of all present, that in order to issue even steeped meal, it would be necessary to appoint a relieving officer to each electoral division, and in that of Ennis a "cooked food or wetted meal distributor."

At present each relieving officer (three excepted) has under his charge a district comprising two electoral divisions. In these there are not less than two, sometimes three, food depots.

The number of recipients is so large that it takes a whole day at each of these to issue the supply of meal for one week. Thus, in every instance, two days, and in some three, are occupied in distributing a week's rations.

The relieving officer requires one day in the week for making up his accounts. He is obliged to attend at the workhouse on two days in each week, for the purpose of having his accounts examined and checked by the clerk, and of submitting them to, and receiving his instructions from, the Board of Guardians at their weekly meeting. Thus five, and in some cases six, days are accounted for. The officer has, therefore, no time to devote to what is not the least important part of his duty, viz., visiting the homes, and making himself acquainted with the circumstances of the several applicants. Therefore, in order to apply the cooked food or wetted meal test, a relieving officer for each electoral division would, in my opinion, be necessary.

I have obtained permission of the Board of Guardians to introduce cocoa as an article of diet in the house. Besides the advantages arising on the score of health, from variety of diet, a considerable saving is expected in the article of milk, a commodity always expensive at this time of year.

Orders have been given to Messrs. Harrison and Lee, of Limerick, for fitting up hot plates for baking; when completed, Indian meal bread and cocoa will constitute one meal for the paupers.

I brought before the Guardians the necessity which I believe to exist for further workhouse accommodation for this Union. There is no fever hospital attached to the workhouse. All fever patients are sent to the county hospital, situated outside this town.

This has been frequently made subject of complaint by the grand jury, and at the last assizes a question was proposed requiring that payment should be demanded for the admission of each workhouse patient, which question was thrown out by a small majority. Whenever a workhouse patient is dismissed from the hospital, a strong feeling exists against his immediate re-admission to the workhouse, fears being entertained of his still bearing about with him infection. In such cases the master has found the greatest difficulty in procuring a lodging for the pauper; so great is the apprehension the lower orders have of fever.

There are, adjoining the workhouse buildings, about eight statute acres of good land at present out of lease, and now occupied by two or three cottiers as tenants at will.

If the Commissioners would permit the Guardians to rent this land, a house of recovery for fever patients might, at no great expense, be erected, and further workhouse accommodation if approved of. There is an excellent quarry on the spot, and other materials easily procurable. Besides these advantages, from five to seven acres might be cultivated for the benefit of the house, the employment of the able-bodied inmates, and the instruction of the youths in husbandry.

Nothing can be better performed than the duties of master and matron, assistant master and assistant matron, in the government and cleanly maintenance of this establishment.

The schoolmaster and schoolmistress are alone inefficient.

The implements lent by the Board of Public Works, are now in the hands of the several working gangs, and stone-quarrying, barrowing, and breaking, in general operation in the Union.

The rate-books still exhibit names of parties whose rate should not be now unpaid, and amongst them some elected Guardians, notwithstanding that lists of defaulters have been made public.

The collectors last week did not make the anticipated amount of lodgments. Some of them have used fair exertion, and two were severely beaten in attempting to resist a rescue of cattle they had seized.

Looking at the existing amount of destitution in the Ennis Union, I much fear that in some of the poorer electoral divisions, the exigencies of the next six months will require the imposition of a very heavy rate.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

WITH reference to the necessity for continuing the authority to administer out-door relief under the 2nd section, the Commissioners await your report after the meeting of the Guardians to-morrow, and if it should still appear to the Guardians and to yourself that it is necessary to continue the present order, the Commissioners will be prepared to renew it for a short period, in the hope that at the expiration of such further period, it may be found practicable to modify it with a view to its subsequent suspension.

The Commissioners are anxious to meet the views of the Guardians as far as possible, and to afford them every facility for administering relief in cooked food, and they will therefore sanction the appointment of a relieving officer for each electoral division as proposed, on the understanding that the system is to be at once effectually carried into operation; and the Commissioners feel convinced that notwithstanding the additional expense which may be entailed upon the Union by the increased staff, it will be found in the long run that the system is more economical than that which has hitherto been acted on in Ennis Union, by rendering the relief less attractive, and therefore less likely to be fraudulently sought after by those who are not really destitute.

At the same time, as the number of relieving officers will now be very large, and the districts small (the average population of the districts being very little more than 4000), the Commissioners think that the Guardians should make their arrangements with a view to a future consolidation of some of the districts, and a reduction in the number of the relieving officers by removing such of them as shall have been found least efficient, when the out-door relief to able-bodied is discontinued, and the pressure of destitution is not so great as at present.

You will be so good as to confer with the Board of Guardians as to the salaries to be allowed to the relieving officers under the new arrangement, and in doing so you will bear in mind the general views stated in the Commissioners' Circular Letter of the 16th July last, (a copy of which is enclosed).

Fourth Series, p. 7.

The Commissioners will readily co-operate with the Board of Guardians in obtaining additional workhouse accommodation, and a fever hospital as you propose; and they would not object to additional land being taken for the purpose; such land, however, must be conveyed to the Commissioners, and they will require in the first instance that the title be examined by their legal adviser. The Commissioners do not encourage the taking of land for the purpose of employing the able-bodied paupers in cultivating it, experience having shown that such a course is inadvisable. It is very desirable, however, that arrangements should be made to enable the pauper children to receive instruction in field labour, and the Commissioners will readily co-operate in the purchase or hiring of land to be occupied with the workhouse for this purpose.

The Commissioners request you will again urge upon the Guardians the great importance of appointing a Visiting Committee who will act.

The Commissioners presume that the collectors, who you state were beaten in attempting to resist a rescue of cattle seized for poor-rate, have sworn the necessary informations before the magistrates with a view to proceedings being taken against the parties concerned in the rescue.

The Commissioners will feel obliged by your procuring and forwarding to them a list of the Guardians who you state have not paid their rates; and they desire to add, that however unwilling the Commissioners may be to supersede the Ennis Board of Guardians, the fact of any considerable number of their body having been allowed to remain in arrear with their poor-rates, coupled with the want of attention to the other ordinary duties of the Board, which the Commissioners regret to find has to some extent existed in Ennis Union, would, in the opinion of the Commissioners, form sufficient ground to justify them in adopting that course. As, however, a new election of Guardians is now about to take place, the Commissioners trust that the new Board will enter upon the discharge of their important duties in such a spirit as will tend to the benefit both of the rate-payers and the destitute poor, and will render a resort to the extreme measure of dissolving the new Board unnecessary.

Ennis Union;

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, in reply to the Commissioners' letter of the 16th instant, that I have this instant had a conference with the Board of Guardians, who are still sitting on the subject of the application to this Union of the sealed order issued to the Listowel Union; and the Guardians are of opinion, in which I concur, that the result of the operation of the workhouse test during the last 10 days upon the two classes alluded to therein, will fully justify the application of a similar order to this Union.

The Guardians are of opinion, in which I concur, that it will be necessary to continue the order in this modified form for one month longer; and the Guardians have commissioned me to state that in the meantime they will adopt the most strenuous exertions to render the order then no longer necessary, or at all events in a very greatly modified form.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 23, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the order for the continuance of out-door relief will be issued in accordance with the request of the Guardians.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 23, 1848.

I ATTENDED the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, at which there was a full attendance of members, ex-officio and elected, notwithstanding that the day was very unfavourable, and many had to come a long distance. I attribute this to the interest all had in considering the question of the new rate, which it was known was to occupy the attention of the Board.

Considerable discussion as to what amount of new rate should be declared took place. An estimate calculated by the clerk as to the probable expenditure of the next six months was submitted to the Board, and was found to have embraced every consideration necessary in computing such a calculation. From this document it appeared that in some electoral divisions the required rate would be 15s. in the pound; in others, 10s.; in others, 7s. 6d.; and in none less than 5s., with the exception of three electoral divisions. The majority, and certainly the most intelligent portion of the Guardians, held, that to declare such rates as those named would have a most injurious effect, and would defeat altogether the object of the Poor Law.

The better class of farmers (they alleged) now able with difficulty to pay the present rate, would, on hearing of such a rate as 15s. being declared, at once surrender their holdings and give up all idea of tilling; arguing that such a rate, in addition to the other demands on them, would deprive them of all return for their labour.

I strongly urged compliance with the Commissioners' instructions as conveyed in their circular, No. 239, accompanying the form to which it applies. I pointed out the error they would commit by withholding from the Commissioners the true state of the finances of their Union; its exigencies for the next six months, as nearly as they might be estimated, and the false position in which their affairs would be placed if they did not comply with the instructions given. The Guardians finally resolved on calculating the six months' expenditure in the manner prescribed by the Commissioners, setting forth the several particulars required by the form alluded to, but declaring for each electoral division in the Union a rate of 2s. 11d. in the pound.

This they admit will be quite inadequate, but for the reasons before stated they would prefer striking another rate on this one being expended, to declaring now a rate adequate as to amount, but which they declare would never be collected, and would besides exercise a most injurious influence in the Union.

I had the honour of stating in a former report that having induced the Guardians to make room in the workhouse for 90, which by further judicious selections on the part of the master was increased to room for 180 able-bodied persons, the officers of the Union were in a position to apply effectively the workhouse test.

Anticipating the Commissioners' proposition relative to the single able-bodied and married able-bodied with not more than two children, I on the 8th instant issued instructions to the several relieving officers to refuse rations to those two classes, and instead thereof to offer them admissions to the workhouse. The result was that of the 180 vacancies not more than 92 were at any one time filled, that those who came into the house at night generally left it the next day or the following one, and that yesterday morning there were but 40 of the 180 on the master's roll.

Being Board-day, it was of course to be expected that the applications would be unusually numerous, and accordingly before night 50 names were added to it.

I beg to lay before the Commissioners the result numerically of the application of this test.

Number on the out-door relief lists:—

	Hheads of Families.	Number of Recipients of Rations.
4th March . . .	8,408	19,820
11th March . . .	7,725	19,129
Decrease . . .	683	691

The nomination of additional relieving officers yesterday will enable me to put the cooked food test in operation without further delay.

Several cases have been stated to me of bartering the dry meal for tea, tobacco, &c., which will thus be prevented.

I have, when not expected, visited some of the gangs of paupers employed in stone-breaking. I found the amount of work done almost invariably insufficient. The men are in almost every instance at work on some one of the roads left unfinished by the Board of Public Works. They are divided generally into three parties, one quarrying the material, another conveying it to be broken, and another breaking it. I found in one or two instances some persons employed in completing the road-fencing on those unfinished roads which were for want of this almost impassable; and I beg the Commissioners will inform me if the occasional employment of some of the able-bodied in this description of work be sanctioned by them.

I regret to report a considerable amount of uncollected rate, a large portion of which will, I fear, have to be carried forward as arrears.

One of the collectors being very ill in fever, has made the uncollected sum larger than it would otherwise have been. The illness of this collector, too, occasions a great difficulty in the preparation of the new rate-books for the district in which he collects.

The Union house requires nothing but painting to be in a state of the most perfect cleanly and efficient order.

I beg to say that I conferred with Mr. Leary, agent to the proprietor of the land adjoining the workhouse, relative to the possibility of the Commissioners' sanctioning its being taken for the purpose of building, &c.

Mr. Leary is an elected Guardian, and most anxious to afford every assistance in his capacity of agent in furthering the wishes of the Board of Guardians; but he states that there would be considerable difficulty in getting possession just now of the land from the present cottier holders, but that at an advanced period of the year he has no doubt they can be got rid of without the attendance of unpleasant circumstances.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 27, 1848.

WITH regard to that part of your report in which you request to be informed whether the occasional employment of some of the able-bodied paupers in completing road-fencing would be sanctioned by the Commissioners, I am to state that the Commissioners are desirous that stone-breaking only should in the first instance be carried out to the utmost practicable extent. If, however, the work done by the paupers is as stated by you "almost invariably insufficient," this defect should be remedied with the least possible delay. It would seem to be certain that there must have been some default of duty on the part either of the Board of Guardians or of the overseers of labour, and it will be necessary to ascertain with whom the fault really lies. If the Board of Guardians have directed the overseers to require merely the performance of a task of work which is insufficient, the Commissioners request that you will bring the subject pointedly under the notice of the Board of Guardians, with a view to their issuing fresh instructions on the point. If, on the other hand, the overseers of labour have not carried out the instructions of the Guardians, the Commissioners would suggest that you should make a formal report on their conduct to the Commissioners.

Ennis Union.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 30, 1848.

I ATTENDED the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians on Saturday the 25th instant, and its regular weekly meeting on yesterday.

At the former I regret to say the principal object for which the adjournment took place, viz, the signing the rate-books, was defeated, owing to the books not being ready, notwithstanding that additional assistance had been accorded at the meeting of the Board on the 22nd, for the purpose of insuring their completion.

I think the clerk, by no means an active officer, is not blameable in this case, he having to my knowledge brought the subject of the new rate and its requisite preparations before the notice of the Board more than a month ago. It would appear that the valuator has not exercised diligence, and that the backward state of the books is chiefly owing to his supineness. But he in his turn throws the blame on the collectors, whom he states he was unable to get to attend him, for the purpose of giving him the necessary information in reference to their books; they alleging that their time was quite occupied in collecting. Much dissatisfaction is felt by all occupying tenants, whose gale day is the 25th March, at the rate not being made before that date, as they will have to lie out of their money for nearly six months.

The Board have adopted the suggestion of the Commissioners with reference to publishing the names of all persons (heads of families), stating also the number in family, who are receiving out-door relief; and I hope it will be as useful here in detecting imposition, as I understand it to have been in the neighbouring Union of Kilrush.

Additional relieving officers having been sanctioned by the Commissioners, the distributing of meal in a wetted state has been already commenced, this being the first day. The distribution is necessarily not as effectively done as it will be in a few days, when the relieving officers and the contractor's men acquire a little practice, and when the depôts shall have been provided with the necessary vessels for delivering the meal expeditiously.

I trust it may prove an effective test. Of one thing I am certain, that already it is said to be very much objected to.

The few reductions from the lists attributable to the stone-breaking test, and my own observation of the want of activity on the part of the stewards, whenever I have visited any of the gangs, led me to advise that as the number of stewards might be now reduced by reason of the striking off the lists considerable numbers of the able-bodied, and a large saving effected by such reduction, a head overseer should be appointed at a liberal rate of pay, whose entire time should be occupied in inspecting the different working parties, and the overseer in charge, measuring the work done, and reporting weekly to the Board, the result of his inspection. Thus I think the test may be accomplished, but I am sure it has not been hitherto sufficiently actively enforced.

Knowing that the Guardians could know little of the qualifications of the person required for this situation, and fearing that favouritism, or individual interest might accomplish an election which would produce nothing but disappointment, I proposed to the Board that, declining to take tenders for the situation, and laying aside in this case the form of election, they should apply to Mr. Hill, the county surveyor, to recommend them a person of character and ability. This Mr. Hill has very kindly done, and a man named Rowan has, on his recommendation, been appointed at a salary of 30s. per week. It is required of him that he shall keep a horse for the purpose of enabling him the better to visit the different working parties; that he report such as he shall have visited during the week on the Wednesday meeting; and that every gang in the Union shall have been inspected by him, and their work measured, within a fortnight. The form of report to be used by him is a modified form of that used in the Ballina Union.

The new building called a shed, intended hereafter for a spinning-house, has been converted into a very comfortable school-room for the female children, and their ordinary school-room into a dormitory capable of accommodating 90 individuals. The consequence of this extension of room will be seen in the reduction of numbers on the out-door relief lists, by the application thus afforded of the workhouse test:—

Date.	Heads of Families.	Total of Recipients.
18th March	7,885	20,221
25th March	7,682	19,382

Independently of the reductions here stated, there have been a large number of new applications, many of which have been admitted to the lists. Of the additions which have been made to the wings of the main building, one is now available as a day-room for the increased numbers admitted to the house, and the other will be ready in a week or ten days. The dormitories afforded by these additions will be available within three weeks.

The Board of Guardians will resume the long-neglected system of visiting Committees on the next day of their meeting when the new Board will assemble.

I regret much not to be able to report more satisfactorily of the state of the collection, which is becoming less each week. This to a certain extent must be expected in the case of the end of an old rate and the eve of a new collection; still when the increasing weekly expenditure is placed in juxtaposition with a decreasing exchequer, it occasions just ground for some anxiety.

I beg to subjoin a statement of the amount of collection on the 18th and 25th March, with a comparison of the excess of expenditure above receipts on those weeks:—

Date.	Collection.			Excess of Expenditure over Receipts.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
18th March	282	2	0	411	0	8½
25th March	209	14	10	417	5	5½

I have every hope that the new Board of Guardians will enter upon their duties with the zeal so strongly impressed on them by the Commissioners' letter of the 21st instant.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 4, 1848.

THE Commissioners will feel obliged to you to report to them more fully as to the circumstances which prevented the signing of the rate books on the 25th ult., stating who, in your opinion, is the party really responsible for the delay. It appears from your report that the supineness of the valuator was the cause of the delay, but you do not state whether there is any ground for his excuse, that he could not obtain the necessary information from the collectors.

The Commissioners observe that the old rate continues in course of collection; that a sum of 248*l.* was collected last week, and that a sum of 305*l.* was uncollected at the close of the week. The Commissioners presume you are aware that it will be necessary, before the new rate books are signed, to close the present collection, and bring forward all the outstanding rate into the new books as arrear. If this were not done, there would, on the signing of the new books, be two rates in force in the Union at the same time, and this would be illegal.

The Commissioners approve the appointment of a head overseer, at a salary of 30s. per week, as proposed by you to the Guardians, under the circumstances stated in your report.

Ennis Union.

The Commissioners regret to find that the collection of the rate is not proceeding more satisfactorily; they rely upon your urging the collectors to increased activity, and impressing upon them the importance of proceeding energetically, and adopting every means which the law enables them to do, to enforce payment during the time that the present collecting books remain in their possession, in order that the arrear to be carried forward to the new books may be as small as possible. The collectors might also be informed that their continuance in office to collect the new rate will, to some extent, depend upon the manner in which they close the present rate.

The small collection and large expenditure form strong reasons for putting the new rate into collection as speedily as possible; and if it should be found necessary to carry forward any considerable amount of arrear, care should be taken that those ratepayers from whom the arrear is due should be called upon for the arrear, and the new rate at the earliest possible period; and, if necessary, proceedings should be taken to compel the payment without delay.

The Commissioners rely upon your using every exertion to stimulate both the Guardians and the collectors to an energetic discharge of their duty, so that, on the one hand, the adoption of vigorous measures may ensure the rates being speedily and satisfactorily collected; and on the other, a vigilant supervision, and a judicious economy in all departments of the Union, both in regard to in-door and out-door relief, may reduce the expenditure without depriving the destitute poor of that due and sufficient relief to which the law entitles them.

I BEG leave to bring to the notice of the Commissioners a case which has been reported to me by Mr. Charles Lysaght, relieving officer of Kilmaley electoral division, which is unhappily true, and which presents features of unnatural cruelty, such as, I trust, are not often to be found.

Michael Kearney, a lad 15 years old, presented himself to claim relief for himself and his little sister, whom he stated to be unable to attend from weakness. His father died, he said, of starvation about 10 days ago.

He lives with his mother and eldest brother (a young man). They own three cows, two heifers, and one calf, and have land.

On inquiring into the circumstances of this family the relieving officer ascertained the melancholy fact (which the Guardian of the division has corroborated), that the wife and eldest son refused the father any share of the food which they possessed. That he was completely intimidated by them, and that they literally allowed him to starve.

In like manner they have refused, with incredible cruelty, to give more food to the boy and child before alluded to, than is sufficient to inflict on them a lingering death, intending that their distressing appearance should move the relieving officer to include them amongst the recipients of out-door relief.

Mr. Lysaght, an intelligent, active, and trustworthy officer, reports their appearance to have been so distressing as to appal even one so accustomed as he is to look upon wretchedness.

He of course humanely supplied their necessities provisionally; and I beg the Commissioners will instruct me as to what course should be promptly adopted in this case, and will inform me if any and what steps can be taken to punish a parent and brother who have acted so culpably.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report dated the 31st ultimo, in which you bring under the notice of the Commissioners the case of a boy named Michael Kearney, aged 15, who applied for relief for himself and his little sister, the latter being unable to attend from weakness. It appears from your statement that the father had recently died; and it is alleged that the mother and eldest brother (who own three cows, two heifers, one calf, and have land) refused the father any share of the food which they possessed, and allowed him to starve, and that they have now refused to give more food to the boy and child alluded to than is sufficient to inflict on them a lingering death.

In reference to your request for instructions as to the course to be adopted and what steps can be taken to punish the parent and brother, I am to state, that the boy being 15 years of age should receive such relief as the necessity of his case requires; the child should also be relieved, but in her case, the mother being liable for her support, proceedings should be taken against her under the 2nd section of the Irish Vagrant Act (10 and 11 Vict. cap. 84), which provides that every person who shall wilfully neglect to maintain his wife or any child whom he may be liable to maintain, so that such wife or child shall become destitute, and be relieved in or out of the workhouse of any Union in Ireland, shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace be committed to the common gaol or house of correction, there to be kept to hard labour for any time not exceeding three calendar months.

The Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your communication to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS—(without date).

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter, dated 3rd instant, in answer to mine, dated 31st ultimo, and conveying to me the Commissioners' instructions relative to the course to be pursued in the case of the Kearneys detailed therein.

I beg to state, for information of the Commissioners, that two of the family of Mrs. Kearney were yesterday received into the workhouse, viz., Michael Kearney, aged 15 years, and James his brother, aged, apparently, about nine years.

Their sister, mentioned in my report dated the 31st ultimo, was not sent with them, and I have not had an opportunity of inquiring of the relieving officer why she was not; I shall see him this day, and shall direct him to see the child, and if her appearance be similar to that of her two brothers, I shall direct him to bring her also to the workhouse.

The Commissioners' instructions to proceed against the unnatural mother under the 2nd section of the Irish Vagrant Act (10 and 11 Vict. cap. 84) shall be duly carried out.

I beg to transmit herewith a letter forwarded to me from the relieving officer of Killmaley electoral division in reference to the two male children sent to the workhouse.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. LYSAGHT to Mr. CRONYN:—April 3, 1848.

I FOUND James Kearney nearly dead on the road side; he is brother to Michael Kearney, which you took notes of his mother's treatment to him; I also send Michael, as I fear he would die, as no person would allow him one night's lodging from his sickly appearance; his mother has six cows and corn and land.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 10, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your report, and of the letter from the relieving officer which accompanied it, to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 6, 1848.

I AM glad to state that there appeared to be on the part of the newly-elected Guardians a strong disposition to devote their time and best exertions in carrying out the administration of the Irish Poor Law.

One of the first questions which occupied the attention of the new Board was the impossibility under the present pressure to transact the business of the Union at a one day a week attendance, and they have very satisfactorily resolved on devoting a second day to the affairs of the Union, disposing on the usual Wednesday meeting of routine and other matters requiring the attendance of relieving officers, and reserving for the second day's Board such business as is least pressing, and such as will not require the presence of a relieving officer to transact.

I am happy to report that the new Board have attended to the Commissioners' instructions in appointing a Visiting Committee of four, two ex-officio and two elected Guardians, to be succeeded each week by another Committee similarly formed, and I have no doubt the affairs of the workhouse will be materially served thereby, although I cannot but reiterate my former reports in reference to it, viz., that no establishment of the kind can, as far as appertains to the master and matron's department, be better managed.

Throughout the Union rations are now issued in the form of steeped meal, and the issue hitherto, once, is now made three times a-week. As was, of course, to be expected, the change from dry to wetted meal has occasioned universal dissatisfaction in the recipients, thus showing that it cannot but be a useful test of real destitution.

On Monday last a considerable mob of persons of both sexes in Ennis, and belonging to the Ennis electoral division, beset my lodgings, and on my going out to proceed to the workhouse collected round me; at length interrupting my further progress. They were loud in their denunciations of all concerned in the distribution of relief, the Commissioners, myself, the relieving officer, and the Board of Guardians.

I explained to them that what they received was an act of charity, for which they gave no value, without which they and their families would perish, and that it therefore became them to receive it with gratitude and obedience, and that their putting into execution any of their threats would be the cause of an immediate stoppage of all relief, in any form, and an unpleasant recourse to the law in putting down turbulence or riotous conduct.

This had the effect of ridding me of their annoyance, but not apparently of removing their dissatisfaction.

I communicated to the Board the Commissioners' instructions as contained in their letter, dated the 3rd instant, in reference to the improper conduct of the mother of the children (Kearneys), since admitted to the workhouse, and the Board have accordingly directed that she be proceeded against under the "2nd section of the Irish Vagrant Act."

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 20, 1848.

I ARRIVED from Dublin on Tuesday evening, the 18th instant, and attended the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians on yesterday.

I reminded the Guardians that the order for administering out-door relief would expire on the 25th instant, (their next Board day), and conferred with them on the necessity for its modification or renewal.

The Guardians would not admit that the present order could be at present altered, and wished that a renewal of it for another month should be applied for.

To this I opposed strenuous objections, reminding them that if they (the Guardians) did not, in the busy month of May, throw the able-bodied on their own resources, it would be vain to attempt a reduction of their lists before the harvest, and that the expense of such an omission on their part, would, in my opinion, constitute an enormous abuse of the Union funds.

I stated that I thought it could not be right that, in the labour-absorbing month of May, 18,610 persons should be fed by public charity, and I strongly recommended the Board to ask for no more than a ten-day's renewal of the Commissioners' sealed order, firmly resolving at the expiration of that time to refuse out-door relief altogether to able-bodied persons.

In order to be prepared to maintain this resolve, I recommended the Board to hire at any reasonable cost, a store in this town, which, with the additions recently completed at the workhouse, and the temporary accommodation obtained by applying the female school-room to dormitory use will enable us to offer the workhouse test to about 400 able-bodied. The Guardians adopted my advice, and have named a committee (of whom I am one) to treat with the proprietor for the temporary use of the store above named.

From the very large reductions already made by means of the workhouse test, I have very little doubt that we shall get rid of the able-bodied class entirely on the 5th of May, if we shall be by means of this store, in a position to offer it to all applicants. Should we be so fortunate as to procure it, I shall use the best exertions to have it ready by the date above named.

In the case of Halloran, who died in the infirmary, and whose death a coroner's jury found had been by the "want of the necessaries of life," I examined the wife and two sons of the deceased on oath; as, however, there was further evidence which Francis Tamplin, the relieving officer, wished to be examined, the further investigation of the case was adjourned to the 26th instant, the additional evidence being summoned in the interim.

I inspected the workhouse this morning, and found it in its customary state of cleanliness and order. Ventilation is strictly attended to, and the constant employment of the paupers never relaxed. The inmates are healthy. The rate-books and every necessary preparation for striking the new rate will be ready on Wednesday, the 26th, and the rate be in course of collection immediately afterwards; application being first made to those whose rate shall have been carried forward as arrears, and steps taken to enforce, where necessary, its payment. I beg to subjoin a synopsis of the comparative income and expenditure of the Union for the weeks ended April 8th and 15th.

Date.	Number of Recipients of Out-door Relief.	Cost of Out-door Relief.	Cost of In-door Relief.	Excess of Expenditure above Receipts.
April 8. .	18,185	590 0 0	82 19 10	544 10 8
April 15 .	18,610	517 15 10	85 16 2	398 2 1

The apparent discrepancy, viz., that a larger number of recipients of out-door relief on the 15th April should have been fed at a less expense than the smaller number on the 8th is accounted for by the fact, that at that time the old contract for meal, at 11*l.* per ton, was superseded by the new one at 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* The collectors have during the past week been exerting themselves, as appears by the following comparative lodgments on the 8th and 15th:—

	£. s. d.
8th April	128 9 8
15th April	205 10 0

They have promised by Saturday next to lodge a considerable sum in the hands of the treasurer, when their accounts will be closed, and the uncollected balance carried forward as arrear.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners fully approve of the exertions made by you to dispense with out-door relief to the able-bodied on the 5th May next, and the steps suggested by you with a view to providing additional workhouse accommodation appears to be judicious.

In regard, however, to the appropriation of the female school for dormitory accommodation, the Commissioners presume that adequate provision is made elsewhere for the children, and the Commissioners wish to call your particular attention to their circular letter of the 6th December last, a copy of which is enclosed, as to the importance of having an amount of day-room accommodation available, proportioned to the amount of sleeping accommodation.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 27, 1848.

I ATTENDED yesterday the weekly Board meeting of the Guardians of this Union, of whom there was a good attendance as to members.

I communicated to them the Commissioners' approval of their exertions to take such steps as may enable them to discontinue out-door relief to the able-bodied after the 5th of May.

There was, however, a place suggested to the Board in every respect appropriate, viz., an old brewery with yard, detached residence for master and matron, shed, boiler, and other conveniences, and perfectly secured.

The rent agreed on is 100*l.* per annum, with a clause of surrender at any time by six months' previous notice.

These premises have hitherto been occupied as a depôt by the Board of Public Works, but the proprietor stated his ability to give us possession on the 1st of

Ennis Union.

May, and that meantime preparations necessary to our occupancy of them might be carried on.

The examination adjourned from last Board-day, into the circumstances attending the death in the infirmary of Jeremiah Halloran, was resumed, by the taking of additional evidence, and the inquiry would have been concluded, had John Richil, the principal witness in accusation, attended the summons which was duly served on him.

His non-attendance and positive refusal to give evidence has obliged me to have him summoned under the 20th Section of the Irish Poor Relief Administration Act, before the magistrates. His attendance being thus secured, the examination of this case will then be terminated.

The head overseer reported to the Board the progress made since last week in stone-breaking, when it appeared, that in those gangs which were kept constantly to eight hours' work, there were several stoppages of rations on account of absence.

His report also contained the names of those stewards whom he found to be inattentive and absent from their posts.

In these cases, the Guardians have stopped their week's pay, and intimated that a repetition of the charge will cause their dismissal.

The rate-books were signed, and the time required to elapse by the Act being passed, the collection of the new rate will be vigorously proceeded with.

The arrear to be carried forward appears considerable, but there are circumstances attending the collection of the last rate, which I would beg leave to call the Commissioners' attention to.

It will be remembered that the whole of the money collected was obtained in a district notorious for its dangerous and lawless character, and that it was only since the proclamation of it, and since the effect of the special commission has been felt that a collector could feel safe in the performance of his duty.

Meantime, I fear some inconvenience will be felt by reason of the funds being exhausted.

	£.	s.	d.
The whole amount of the collectors' lodgments for the week ended 22nd April, being	103	10	0
Sums lodged subsequently to the making of the treasurer's account	59	0	0
Excess of expenditure above receipts	425	1	1½

Leaving a very small balance to the credit of the Union in the treasurer's hands.

The relieving officers being called on to explain the reason why, with a decrease in the number of cases there should be an increase in the number of recipients of out-door relief, stated in explanation that it was occasioned by the very numerous recent evictions as well as voluntary surrender of houses and lands, each case almost being that of a man with a family.

In consequence of a separate workhouse establishment being formed, an increase of staff will be of course unavoidable.

Additional medical attendance will then, I presume, be required, and I should feel obliged by having the Commissioners' views on the subject, as to which would be preferable, the appointment of a second medical officer, at a salary equal to that of the present one, or the allowance of an assistant to Dr. Cullenan, the present officer, with an increase of salary to him.

REPLY to the foregoing:—May 2, 1848.

IN reference to your statement, that the rate-books were signed, and the time required to elapse by the Act being passed, the collection of the new rate will be vigorously proceeded with, the Commissioners desire to observe that the rate is collectable immediately on the publication of the notice required by the 70th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, and the 11th section of the Temporary Relief Act.

The Commissioners desire to express their satisfaction at the introduction of the cooked food system in the administration of relief, as they are convinced that it will be found, if fully and fairly carried out, to be beneficial both in an economical point of view as regards the rate-payers, and in a sanitary point of view, as regards the poor recipients.

With regard to the necessity of additional attendance, in consequence of a second workhouse having been established, the Commissioners desire to state, that in most instances where temporary auxiliary workhouses have been obtained, the course adopted has been to remove an entire class or classes of inmates from the original workhouse to the additional workhouse, and to remove back again to the infirmary of the workhouse any members of such classes as may become sick, and require medical attendance. If the Guardians adopt this plan, the appointment of a second medical officer would appear to be wholly unnecessary.

The classes usually removed are the school children, and as the schoolmaster and schoolmistress are removed with them, no additional staff would appear to be required, and such assistance as the schoolmaster and schoolmistress may find necessary, could probably be given by trustworthy adult paupers selected from the workhouse for that purpose.

In reference to the person summoned before the magistrates for refusing to attend and give evidence, the Commissioners request you to observe that the offence is a misdemeanour, and punishable not on summary process, but by indictment.

Mr. CRONYN to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 28, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for information of the Commissioners, that in reference to the case of Mrs. Kearney, whose children, now in the workhouse, were found in a state of destitution, bordering on starvation, though it was proved she was in circumstances to have afforded them sustenance, the presiding magistrate, Captain Lyne, has this day sent her to prison for one month, with hard labour, for the maintenance of her children in the poor-house; she shall also be held accountable.

COOTEHILL UNION.

The Rev. S. ROBERTS, Curate of Killeshandray, and the Rev. M. M'QUAID, P.P., to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 8, 1848.

WE, the Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen of the parish of Killeshandray, which includes the divisions of Tullyvin, Ashfield, and part of Cootehill electoral division, request that you will kindly lay the following statement before the Poor Law Commissioners.

We beg to say that no persons can know or do know more accurately the state of the poor of this parish than we do, being constantly resident amongst them, and by our callings, necessitated to witness their varied circumstances in life; and, therefore, we the more confidently lay before you their state. The poorhouse, as you are aware, is full to overflowing. The number of able-bodied paupers and their families in the parish exceed 1000 souls, deserted women and children more than 100 souls, exclusive of the aged and infirm. We, therefore, earnestly request your honourable Board, as the poorhouse of Cootehill is full—as there is no employment in drainage or otherwise, going on in the parish—as typhus fever is very prevalent indeed, owing in a great degree to the destitution—and as the number of destitute persons is daily increasing by the eviction of small farmers for non-payment of rent or otherwise—we earnestly request that you will, as soon as possible, afford relief to the above classes, lest the consequences of starvation, namely, pestilence and death, disgrace the Cootehill Union, as it did that of Cavan recently; for we beg to assure your honourable Board, that there is not a poorer district than the parish of Kill, in this part of the kingdom.

We further respectfully suggest, that a second station for issuing relief be opened in the Ashfield division at Kill, as owing to the great extent of said division, it extending nine miles in length, and the relieving officer residing in the lower end, many of the aged and infirm have, at this inclement season of the year, to walk five or six miles for their scanty relief, and very many of them are nearly naked.

We know that one house where the out-door relief was dispensed last summer, can be gotten at Kill for a very small annual rent; and this station would reduce the distance that these poor naked creatures have to travel, three miles at least.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have directed a communication to be addressed to the Board of Guardians on the subject.

EXTRACT FROM MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS OF GUARDIANS:—January 14, 1848.

READ letter “from the Poor Law Commissioners, 11th January, accompanying a copy of a letter from the Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen of the parish of Killeshandray, relative to the prevalence of distress, &c., in that parish, and calling the attention of the Guardians to the subject. Ordered, to be referred to the Guardians of the Ashfield division, and that they be requested to make inquiry relative to the statements therein contained, and report the result of their inquiries to the Board on next day of meeting.”

EXTRACT FROM MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS OF GUARDIANS:—January 7, 1848.

“A LETTER from the treasurer was read, stating that the first instalment of 750*l.*, amounting to 250*l.*, together with interest at 5 per cent., amounting to 37*l.* 10*s.*, advanced by the Bank for the erection of a fever hospital, becomes due to-morrow, and requesting a cheque on the Guardians' account for the amount. Ordered, that the clerk be directed to inform the treasurer that when funds sufficient shall be placed in his hands to meet the demand, a cheque will be drawn for the amount.”

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. BARRON, Inspector, on the foregoing :—
January 19, 1848.

Cootehill Union.

It appears that in consequence of this letter, the treasurer has impounded the balance in favour of the Guardians, amounting to 225*l.*, as part payment of his demand, and by this means, has left the Guardians without the means of giving out-door relief during this week. I purpose attending the Board on Friday, and if the Guardians do not raise funds for the purpose of relieving the destitute, and enforce the collection of the rate forthwith, the Commissioners must have recourse to the 18th section of the Act.

The Rev. S. ROBERTS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

I WILL thank you to lay the following particulars before the Commissioners for their serious and immediate attention.

It is not only with much pain, but with extreme reluctance, that I intrude on the valuable time of the Commissioners; but as the case is most urgent, a deep sense of duty to the poor compels me thus to act, for while I write hundreds are starving around me. For the last three weeks no relief has been afforded in the Tullyvin division of the Cootehill Union, or to any of those entitled to it under Section 1 of the New Poor Law. There was no money, neither was any relief afforded in the Ashfield division this week to the same class; the relieving officer of Ashfield had to borrow money last week on his own responsibility for that purpose. But Tullyvin division is, if possible, more destitute than Ashfield, as the property is under the Court of Chancery. I do not blame any party for this state of things; but I make this statement to your honourable Board, in order that you may at once rectify it, for every hour that relief is withheld is an hour of intense suffering to the starving poor. One poor little child, named Gulshenan, died of hunger in Tullyvin division on Saturday last. There is no employment in this parish for the labouring class, and, therefore, the distress is most urgent. Can, supposing that is granted, 8*d.* per week provide food, clothing, fire, and lodging for adults?—and this, you are aware, is the miserable allowance for adults, and these adults aged and infirm. I do not believe that the collectors are doing their duty; they were not recently. I know one most respectable rate-payer who in my presence gave a list of rate-payers to a Guardian as being fully competent to pay their rates, who were returned by the collector insolvent.

I am, alas! fully aware of the difficulties of carrying out the New Poor Law in such distressed districts as this is; but let all due exertion be used, and let not the New Poor Law be a solemn mockery. I am quite sure that each poor-house could nearly support itself. I am quite sure that, except the poor-houses become workhouses, where the youth of both sexes shall be trained to habits of self-denying industry, the Poor Law system will ere long become an intolerable burden. I am sure that if Count De Rumford's plan, as adopted by him at Munich, were earnestly carried out in our poor-houses, the aspect of the country would soon be altered; but then we must have pains-taking, energetic, business-like men to do this—men who, while they feel that their all is at stake, feel also an anxious desire to elevate their poor fellow-creatures in the scale of being; and idleness will not do that.

I would also beg respectfully to suggest to your honourable Board, that the Guardians, the wardens, and the relieving officer of each division, should meet at a given place weekly in the division, and form a sub-committee to investigate all applications for relief, and make their weekly report to the Board of Guardians at their sitting: thus much time would be saved the Board, who have many other things to attend to, as well as considering applications for relief; the rate-payers would be protected, and the really destitute poor would be relieved.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—January 20, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to transmit herewith, to be laid before the Board of Guardians of Cootehill Union, an extract from a further letter which the Commissioners have this day received from the Rev. Samuel

Cootehill Union.

Roberts, relative to the state of Tullyvin and Ashfield divisions of Cootehill Union; and the Commissioners request the attention of the Guardians to the statements therein, from which it would appear that effectual relief is by no means afforded to the destitute poor in the divisions referred to.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. BARRON:—January 20, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to transmit to you herewith a further communication which they have this day received from the Rev. Samuel Roberts, relating to the state of the destitute poor in Tullyvin and Ashfield divisions of Cootehill Union, together with the previous communication from Mr. Roberts and the Rev. M. M'Quaid, relating to the same divisions, which has been already referred to you; and the Commissioners request that you will report generally on the condition of Cootehill Union, and regarding the best course to ensure effectual relief to the destitute poor.

The Rev. S. ROBERTS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 21, 1848.

I BEG to forward to you, for the consideration of the Poor Law Commissioners, the following resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board of Health for the Tullyvin and Ashfield divisions.

"That a letter be written to the Commissioners to know whether in the case of persons leaving the hospital, the relieving officer is empowered and required to afford such persons relief of a temporary kind, and at an higher rate than that afforded to more healthy parties (who are on out-door relief), as some have been known to relapse from want of that temporary aid.

"JOHN MARSDEN in Chair.

"Board-room, Vicar's Hill,
January 19, 1848."

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 25, 1848.

PROVIDED the parties can legally receive out-door relief, the Guardians may order such relief as the necessity of the case requires out of the work-house.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—January 25, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to transmit herewith, to be laid before the Guardians of Cootehill Union, a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Rev. Samuel Roberts, relative to the relief of sick persons after leaving hospital, together with a copy of the Commissioners' reply.

EXTRACTS FROM GUARDIANS' MINUTES of 21st January, 1848.

READ letter from the Poor Law Commissioners, 20th January, accompanying an abstract from a letter from the Rev. Samuel Roberts, relative to the state of the Tullyvin and Ashfield divisions, and requesting the attention of the Guardians to the statements therein.

The Guardians of the Ashfield division to whom Mr. Roberts' letter was referred on last day of meeting, suggested that a second depôt should be opened in the Ashfield division, at Kill, for the distribution of relief, which was unanimously agreed to, and the relieving officer was directed to attend there for that purpose till 1st April next.

The Rev. S. ROBERTS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 1, 1848.

I BEG that you will lay the following particulars before the Poor Law Commissioners for their serious consideration. I had hoped that my last letter of the 18th January, would have altogether rectified the fearful and melancholy state of things in the Union of Cootehill generally, but in the divisions of Ashfield and Tullyvin, as also in that part of Cootehill division lying in Kill parish, particularly with the state of which latter divisions, I am, alas! so intimately acquainted, for the following reasons:—by my being the resident clergyman for 12 years, and in being the chairman of the Tullyvin, and very generally the chairman of the Ashfield Relief Committees during the trying season of last year, together with being a constantly attendant member of the baronial committee of the Public Works last winter and spring. For four weeks there has not been any out-door relief administered in Tullyvin Division to any class; in Ashfield, the relief is afforded very irregularly; in Cootehill division, the poor on the out-door relief list had to pay the relieving officer of that district $\frac{1}{2}d.$ in their $8d.$ discount, as the relieving officer had to borrow the money himself!! I send attached to this letter a list of poor in the Tullyvin and Ashfield divisions, who have been hitherto refused relief by the Cootehill Board of Guardians or their relieving officers. From a letter from the clerk of the Board of Guardians, dated January 17, 1848, I send the following extract: "With reference to the poor widow alluded to in your letter, she is "not qualified to receive out-door relief except she has two or more legitimate "children actually dependent on her, if she is not permanently disabled by old "age and infirmity." This extract refers to a poor widow, named Sarah Mullen,* whose state you will see in the appended list. It appears to me a strange thing, that a widow without any children, or a widow with two or more children, should be competent for relief, but a widow with one child is to be allowed to starve. I now come to a class which I think ought to be regarded with particular attention, I mean deserted women and their children, for truly theirs is a most aggravated case, and they are suffered as yet to starve also. I now come to the able-bodied cottier: In this district there is no public or private work for such; no drainage; no employment, as the farms are generally so small, and the occupiers so poor, that whatever work is to be done, is done in 19 cases out of 20, by the occupier himself. Is this class therefore to continue to starve also? for their wretchedness is nearly intolerable; and were it not for the persevering activity of our worthy parish priest, Mr. M'Quaid, many outrages would long ere this have been perpetrated. In fact, gentlemen, the state of the poor in this parish and in the neighbouring parishes is heartrending in the extreme. Why has not the 3s. rate that was apportioned in October, now three months ago—why has it not been collected yet? Will it become easier of collection as the season advances? No. From my long experience of public matters in Ireland, a period of 25 years, I am fully convinced that none but paid Guardians will be found fit to carry out the law in its integrity in Ireland; for it is contrary to human nature as a rule, to expect that men, whether proprietors or farmers, and of these our Boards of Guardians are constituted, who are heavily encumbered, will carry out that relief for the poor, which is to come out of their own pockets. Another death has occurred in the Tullyvin division since I last wrote to your honourable Board, the little boy of an able-bodied cottier, named Mulligan. How long, gentlemen, are these evils to go on? How long are the poor to starve when there is a law for their provision? How long, when the haggard wretch goes to the relieving officer for relief, is he to be put off with a ticket to the poor-house, when the officer knows in his heart he cannot be admitted there? Your order, which is broken through every week, forbidding more people to be admitted as the house is overcrowded. How long is $8d.$ per week to be the stipend for providing clothing, lodging, fuel, and food for our aged and infirm, as well (when they get it) as for our able-bodied poor; $8d.$ per week outside, $17d.$ per week inside? I trust your honourable Board will this week amend these things, for if you do not, the death of many will be reasonably laid at your door; that is, if you have the power, and neglect to exercise it. Before paid Guardians were appointed in Cavan, the Union was heavily in debt, now they have 4000*l.* in hands; thus the poor are relieved, and contracts kept down. I trust you will excuse me for this letter, nothing but stern duty compels me, but it is the duty of my office, firmly, calmly, and perseveringly, to advocate the cause of my poor, poor people; and I will do so.

Cootehill Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners are in communication with their Inspector, Mr. Barron, on the state of Cootehill Union, and regarding the course which may be best calculated to ensure effectual relief to the destitute poor therein; and the Commissioners are in daily expectation of a report from Mr. Barron on the subject.

The COMMISSIONERS to MR. BARRON:—February 2, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to transmit to you herewith a further communication which the Commissioners have this day received from the Rev. S. Roberts, relating to the distress in parts of Cootehill Union, together with the draft of the Commissioners' reply, and I am to call your attention to the letter addressed to you on the 20th ultimo, instructing you to report on the subject; and am to request that you will furnish the Commissioners with your report with the least possible delay.

The Rev. S. ROBERTS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

As I should be very sorry that any misstatement should be made by me in my communications to your honourable Board, I beg to say, that it was for three weeks no out-door relief was afforded, and not for four as I stated in my letter yesterday, in Tullyvin. It has also been stated to me that the reason Sarah Mullen did not get relief from the Guardians was, that she was a servant of mine, and that such statement was made to your Inspector by some person in the Board-room. Nothing has less foundation for truth in it than such a statement. I have her little daughter as a servant, but that is all, and her wages is but sufficient for her decent clothing. I think, Sir, with all respect for the Commissioners, that the answer of the Guardians should be always furnished to any party making a charge against them. There is no elected Guardian for Tullyvin, he resigned. The two Guardians for Ashfield live, the one at the old bridge of Cootehill, or Clementstown, the other at Killacurry : what can they know of the state of the poor in my parish ?

Cootehill Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the Rev. S. ROBERTS :—February 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd instant, and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have referred your letter to their Inspector, Mr. Barron, with reference to the inquiry and report, which he has already been instructed to make on this subject.

Mr. BARRON to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 6, 1848.

ACCORDING to your directions I attended this Board, with the view of investigating the allegations contained in the letters of the Rev. Mr. Roberts, with reference to the destitute state of the Tullyvin and Ashfield electoral division in this Union. Considerable distress no doubt prevails in these divisions, but not to the extent stated in the different communications to the Commissioners. It appears that one of the persons particularly alluded to by the Rev. Mr. Roberts, the widow Mullen, was offered a ticket of admission into the workhouse on several occasions, which she refused ; and that the daughter of the said Mary Mullen is in his service. With respect to the other persons mentioned by the Rev. Mr. Roberts and the Rev. Mr. M'Quaid, I have made inquiries as to the facts from the relieving officers, and I annex a statement relative to each individual case.

The Commissioners, however, having requested of me to report generally on the state of the Cootehill Union, I beg to state that considerable distress prevails throughout the entire district ; that, with the exception of Lord Cremorne, Mr. Charles Boyle, and Mr. Lucas Clements, who are really anxious to relieve the wants of the poor, none of the landed proprietors of this district are giving employment. The farms are wretchedly small, and the farmers generally very poor. In this state of things it is difficult to provide for the wants of the destitute poor from want of funds ; the farmers being unable (in several divisions) to pay the poor-rate.

The out-door relief to persons relievable under the 1st section of the Act was discontinued by the Guardians in consequence of the want of funds ; and from the manner in which the rate is collected, the number of persons applying for relief, the liabilities of the Union, and its impoverished state, I apprehend that it will be utterly impossible for the Guardians to conduct the affairs of the Union unless they obtain a considerable sum of money for that purpose from their treasurer : this they cannot obtain unless the most influential portion of the Guardians give their own personal security, which they will not do. Under these circumstances, looking at the condition in which the Union is at present, its liabilities, the unfavourable contracts which the Guardians have entered into from want of funds, the small progress that has been made in the collection of the rates, the difficulty of collecting them, and the increasing destitution in the district, I consider that the Commissioners have no alternative but to dissolve the Board.

I cannot close my report without bearing testimony to the generous support I have received in the discharge of my duty from Lord Cremorne, Mr. Charles Boyle, and Mr. Lucas Clements ; and, but for the very embarrassed state in which I found the finances of the Union in taking charge of it, and the reduced state in which the farmers of the district are in this year, from various causes, I have no doubt whatever but that with their assistance, I should have been able to have brought the affairs of the Union to a healthy and satisfactory state.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—February 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their most serious consideration the recent correspondence with the Guardians of Cootehill Union, relating to the distress and destitution represented as prevailing in many parts of the Union, especially in the electoral divisions of Tullyvin and Ashfield.

The Commissioners observe with satisfaction that at the last meeting of the Guardians, exertions appear to have been made to relieve the existing distress, and that funds were placed in the hands of the relieving officers for this purpose, to the extent of 95*l.* 10*s.*; while the number of persons reported on the minutes as receiving out-door relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act during the previous week were, 3367.

The Commissioners are bound at the same time to remark, that relief on this extended scale should, in their opinion, have commenced at an earlier period in Cootehill Union, whereby great suffering on the part of many of the labouring classes would have been alleviated by more timely aid, and some fatal consequences perhaps prevented. The Commissioners are far from supposing that indifference existed on the part of the Guardians to the sufferings of the destitute poor, but they feel at the same time that due exertion has not been made by the Board and its officers to make and collect sufficient rates to meet a contingency, of the certain approach of which, warning has long been given. Thus it appears that in January, 1847, a rate of 5044*l.* was made, the collection of which lasted during the entire year, leaving an arrear of 835*l.* on the 31st December; while the larger rate agreed to by the Guardians in September last, remained in abeyance until nearly the close of the year; the rate-books for a part only of the Union having been signed on the 17th December, and the rates for some of the electoral divisions not having even yet been made.

The debts of the Guardians on the 31st December, 1847, were 2346*l.*, and the Commissioners observe a resolution on the last minute to apply to the treasurer for a loan of 1200*l.*

The consequence of this financial embarrassment is, that notwithstanding the present disposition of the Guardians to afford effectual relief to the destitute poor, they are by no means in a situation to do so; and the Commissioners derive from the past but little confidence in the future exertions of the Guardians and their officers, to realize the rates necessary to discharge their debts, and to provide for the requirements of the Union during the present emergency.

The Commissioners, therefore, while acknowledging the personal exertions of individual members of the Board, feel it their duty to provide for the effectual relief of the poor in Cootehill Union during the present season of difficulty and distress, by dissolving the Board of Guardians, and appointing paid officers to act in the execution of their duties. Coutehill Union.

A copy of the order dissolving the Board of Guardians is enclosed herewith.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of Proceedings of Guardians :—January 28, 1848.

Resolved,—That the Poor Law Commissioners be applied to, to sanction out-door relief to widows with one child, and women with families deserted by their husbands previous to January, 1848; also to orphans, and convalescents able to be sent out of hospital.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION :—February 19, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration minutes of proceedings of the late Board of Guardians of Coutehill Union on the 28th ultimo, in which they requested that an order might be issued to authorize out-door relief to certain classes of destitute poor not included in section 1 of 10 Vic., c. 31; and having communicated with their Inspector, Mr. Barron, on the subject, the Commissioners have resolved to issue an order to authorize out-door relief to widows with one child or more, to women whose husbands are in confinement or absent from Ireland, and who have a child or children, and to orphans.

WE have the honour to submit to you, for the information of the Commissioners, our report of the state of this Union.

On our arrival we found 1121 paupers in the workhouse, built only to contain 840: the consequence was, from its overcrowded state, that fever and other sickness were increasing to an alarming degree; there were 73 cases of fever; other sickness, 138; total, 211: the number of deaths during the previous three months amounted to 74. This overcrowding of the workhouse was continued by the late Board of Guardians contrary to the repeated exhortation of the medical officer, and against the order of the Commissioners; and the only measure adopted by the Guardians was hiring two houses in the town as dormitories for the children, who were brought back every morning to the workhouse.

The applicants for out-door relief amounted to upwards of 6000; the elected Guardians, at all times willing to increase this list, although taking no steps to obtain funds to meet the expenses; and the relief given by the relieving officers was open to many objections on the part of the ratepayers, being in money, and not in food, and given, as was alleged, with a great deal of favouritism.

There were no funds in the hands of the treasurer to meet the demands for the relief of the destitute poor, daily increasing in numbers, with a rate struck on only six electoral divisions, being but one-half of the Union, the collectors of which were totally regardless of their duty; and no measures were adopted by the late Board to enforce the collection; the consequence was, that a heavy debt of nearly 3000*l.* was incurred, with which we had to contend, along with many other evils, on our taking charge of the Union. Two of the late collectors were defaulters; one of them, named Mohan, having absconded with his collecting books, and an arrear of rate amounting to 300*l.*; the other collector, McCabe, having likewise in his hands a sum of upwards of 50*l.*

The late Board had taken no decisive steps to bring those parties to justice, or to make their sureties available. The collectors' accounts were delayed being brought to a final adjustment, in consequence of the majority of elected Guardians outvoting the few of the Board who were inclined to propose any measure for a satisfactory arrangement of the accounts. The rate struck, as heretofore mentioned, amounted only to the sum of 6747*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*, to meet the large debt due by the Union, and to support the expenses of the foregoing immense number of recipients of in-door and applicants for out-door relief. We also discovered that considerable jobbing had taken place by contractors; it was difficult in consequence to induce respectable parties to offer supplies. The accounts of the late master, imperfectly and fraudulently made up, in order to rob the Union, and prevent a correct view of the real balance, of either provisions or clothing, properly chargeable to him. We have now, after a searching and troublesome examination of his books, ascertained the correct balance, and directed proceedings to be taken against his sureties for the amount. The clothing department totally inefficient in supply to meet the changes requisite for the health of the inmates.

No trades or other useful occupation are encouraged or in progress, with the view of employment in the workhouse. The reports of the medical officer are most alarming; and the temporary fever hospital in connexion not at all sufficient to receive that class of destitution.

The majority of the ratepayers discontented with the want of a scrutiny of the valuation or a yearly revision, to meet the many changes daily taking place in the holdings of the Union. Such are a portion of the difficulties we had to encounter; and we shall now proceed to detail the measures we have adopted to overcome them, and to place the affairs of the Union in a better position.

We, immediately after our arrival, made inquiries with the view of renting a house in the Union, and thus to decrease the numbers in the workhouse, and to enable us to apply the test to the many able-bodied applicants for out-door relief. We failed in obtaining one suitable until the last week. We are now in treaty for an extensive concern, formerly used as a mill, situate near Aughamullen, about four miles from Cootehill, capable of holding upwards of 400. We have been offered this house at a rent of 35*l.* per annum; the roof and lofts are in good repair; and we propose, should the Commissioners sanction the proceeding, to send all the children of both sexes there, with the schoolmaster and schoolmistress and two female wardens; this arrangement will prevent the necessity of a second staff of officers, and thus prevent a considerable expense to the Union. The outlay on this concern will be but trifling, and can be made without much delay. This will be a great relief to the workhouse, and enable us to make use of the temporary dormitories rented in Cootehill for the reception of those afflicted with fever, and thus remove from the workhouse all contagious disease.

We have carefully examined into the books of the relieving officers, and made arrangements to give out-door relief in food, and not as heretofore in money. We invited the inspection of the ratepayers thereto; and we trust in a short time, by constantly revising them, to check the favouritism and fraud, and to give relief to those really deserving. With this view, we have requested and obtained the co-operation of many of the Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen of the Union, who visited us on our arrival, cheerfully offering their services in that duty, as well as giving their assistance and advice towards a speedy collection of the poor-rate. In this latter and important part of our duty we had much and valuable assistance from the Right Rev. Dr. Browne, the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese, who tendered to us all the aid his clergy might be able to give. The consequence has been, the rates are now speedily being collected; and we anticipate that in course of another fortnight we shall have the debt of 3000*l.* paid off, and a balance in the hands of our treasurer.

The collection of the rate has occupied our most anxious and serious consideration; only one-half the electoral divisions being, as before detailed, in course of collection, we have struck a rate on the remaining half; appointed collectors; and we trust that now the entire Union is being made available for that purpose, our funds will shortly be increased, our credit strengthened, and the tenders, now advertised for to be received next week, taken on more advantageous terms by one-half than heretofore.

We have adopted the most summary proceedings, under the advice of the solicitor of the Union, to compel the two defaulting collectors or their sureties to pay in the large balance in their hands; and we have every reason to believe, from the last report of that gentleman, that no loss will take place in this respect. We have taken steps to assure contractors that the system of unjust contracts, given heretofore by reason of friendship at the Board, will be now entirely discontinued; for that purpose we have had a box prepared, standing in the hall, to receive tenders up to the hour of the day for opening them, when each person proposing is invited to be present—thus seeing that no unjust preference to any person is given; and we offer cash payments hereafter, the result of which we are confident will be an enormous saving to the Union.

By weekly checking the collectors' accounts, and summoning them before the petty sessions, we have at length shown them that they must do their duty, and by this means a sum of 3027*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.* has been collected of the present rate up to last Friday, and this only collectable on half of the Union; the rate on the other half, struck on the 11th instant, amounts to 4461*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.*, and which we have bound the collectors to pay in within two months, will enable us in a great measure to overcome the financial difficulties.

We regret to be obliged to state that many of the large proprietors are most backward in paying their rates; one landlord, being the largest in the Union, totally refuses to give his unfortunate tenantry one shilling of their legal allowance, threatening, in case they proceed to enforce it, to eject them, and for that purpose has heretofore had notice to quit served on several of them; even the rate due on his own immediate occupation had to be enforced under the threat of seizure of his cattle, and would not have been paid till our collector was proceeding to seize and drive his stock. This hardship and annoyance on a poor occupying tenantry has been a means of making the "Poor Law" very unpopular with the ratepayers; and it would tend much to the advantage of the Union, if the Legislature would devise some means by which, in the first instance, the rates should be paid by the landlord, and thus protect the occupier from the oppression alluded to.

We have advertised for a competent person to undertake the duties of revising valuator, at an annual salary of 30*l.*, whose duties will be to receive all objections as to the equality of the valuation and change of occupation, and who in short will be accountable that the rate-books are properly made out, so as to enable the Vice-Guardians legally and equitably to declare a rate which can give no just cause of complaint.

We here deem it our duty to submit to the Commissioners the fact of the want of employment to the able-bodied, on the part of the landlords and larger occupiers.

This Union contains 107,699 acres, valued at 73,490*l.* 4*s.*, with a population of 67,178. From every inquiry we have been able to make, we cannot ascertain that any proprietor at this moment has more than ten workmen in his employment; and this class of employers is very small indeed. From such an absence of employment it is easy to imagine the poverty that at present prevails; and it would have been an imperative duty on us to have submitted to your Board the propriety of issuing an order, under the 2nd section of the Extension Act, for out-door relief to the able-bodied, were it not at this period of the year the landed proprietors and farmers must offer speedy employment to till their land and put in the crop. Should this take place to the full extent even of other seasons, we cannot conceal from ourselves that such will be but for a short period; and in the absence of all public works, the destitution that is likely to take place during part of the summer months, will be a source of great anxiety to us, and well worthy the humane consideration of your Board. The gentry of this Union are far from being a wealthy class; and the prospect of employment from them is not to be looked to for the support of this very destitute Union. Unless they immediately come forward to give their assistance, which we regret to state they have not as yet done, or that some public work, assisted by emigration, is brought into practice, the destitution and consequent misery will entail the necessity of that which we have as yet struggled to avoid, namely, out-door relief to the able-bodied.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 27, 1848.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the course which you are taking, with a view to bring the Union into a better state.

The Commissioners approve of your taking the room from Mr. Deane, under the premises rented from Mr. Mitchell.

The Commissioners also approve of the hiring of the mill at Greenvale, near Aughnamullen, and the course which you propose to pursue in sending the children there under the schoolmaster and schoolmistress and two wards-women.

The Commissioners will be glad to be informed of the result of your advertisements for contracts, when the tenders have been received and the contracts made.

The Commissioners approve of the proposed appointment of a revisor, at a salary of 30*l.* per annum.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 3, 1848.

WE beg leave to forward you the annexed report from the clerk of the Union in reference to proceedings against collectors, under section 100 of 1st and 2nd Vict., cap. 56, from which you will perceive it is impossible to punish those officers in consequence of the non-attendance of magistrates, whereby an efficient collection of the rates is greatly retarded, and much inconvenience is likely to arise to the Union.

The petty sessions day at Rockcurry is Wednesday each fortnight, the next day for that purpose should be Wednesday the 12th instant; we must again prepare and have served fresh notices on the collectors, summon them for that day in case of default, but we apprehend no good result therefrom unless Government shall direct a stipendiary magistrate to attend on that day.

You will also perceive that at the petty sessions at Cootehill no conviction was obtained, we therefore take leave to suggest to the Commissioners for the Relief of the Poor in Ireland that a stipendiary magistrate be directed to attend at Cootehill on Saturday the 8th instant, when we shall have the business again brought before the Court.

We apprehend no better result than that hereinbefore detailed at Newbliss, Monaghan, (see Clerk's report,) on next Wednesday the 5th, unless a similar order is made for that place.

ENCLOSURE.

The CLERK of the UNION to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—April 3, 1848.

I BEG leave to report, that in pursuance of your directions I attended at Rockcurry on Wednesday last, the 29th ultimo, to prosecute a collector, Richard Nesbitt, for disobedience of your order, calling upon him to collect and lodge in the branch of the Provincial Bank in Cootehill, a sum of not less than 500*l.* on or before the 23rd March last; and having waited till late in the evening no magistrate attended, I was informed by the clerk of the petty sessions that no petty session was held there for the last six weeks in consequence of the non-attendance of magistrates.

I also attended at Cootehill on Saturday last to prosecute another collector, named Edward Reilly, for a similar offence; the magistrates adjourned the case till next Saturday, in order to give the collector an opportunity to produce his collecting books to show that he had used due diligence, stating, at the same time, that they were not in a position to state whether the order was a reasonable one or not.

I purpose attending at Newbliss on Wednesday next to prosecute the other collector, Joseph Wright, as the petty sessions are only held there every alternate Wednesday, as also in Rockcurry.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 7, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 3rd instant, relative to certain proceedings against collectors of poor rate in the Cootehill Union, and suggesting that a stipendiary magistrate should be directed to attend at Cootehill on the 8th instant, and at Rockcurry on the 12th instant; and I am to state that the Commissioners have recommended the proposal for the favourable consideration of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

WESTPORT UNION.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that I attended the meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians both yesterday and to-day. The number of applicants for relief still continues very large, and as there is but little doubt as to the destitution of those who apply, the Vice-Guardians have been obliged to add 2652 to the out-door relief list, the workhouse being quite full. The expenditure is thus increased—the quantity of Indian meal required for this week being over 46 tons, value 440*l.*, to this is to be added the ordinary expenses of the workhouse, as well as the payment of the officers, making the weekly outlay very nearly 600*l.*, while the amount of rate paid in since this day week, does not exceed 112*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.*

Both the collectors attended at the Board-room this day. Sir Richard O'Donnell reports that there are but two individuals in his three electoral divisions whose rate amounts to 5*l.*, who have not paid, and against these two persons he has commenced legal proceedings in the local courts, as well as against a very large number of others owing smaller amounts.

Mr. Loudon handed in a list of defaulters for very large sums, amounting altogether to nearly 2400*l.*, and including all the principal proprietors in the Union; but from his own statement he does not appear to have taken any steps to enforce payment. In no case has he done more than serve the legal notice of 6 or 15 days, and in several instances he has not even done this. It is quite clear if greater exertion is not used on his part, the rate will not be collected, for I find that out of the 2000*l.* paid in by him he has received nearly 1200*l.* from the Marquis of Sligo, and his lordship still owes nearly 800*l.*, if the list submitted by Mr. Loudon be correct. But to enable the Commissioners to judge of the manner in which he has acted, I beg to enclose his own document, and shall feel obliged by receiving their instructions as to what I should do.

I am sorry to be obliged to report that the funds of the Union are not equal to the present demand on the Vice-Guardians; and notwithstanding the liberal contributions of the British Association, I find they are now in debt over 1500*l.*, and towards the payment of this debt they have but half the incoming rate, the other half being allocated to the liquidation of the debts of the late Board; 1244*l.* of this debt has been incurred for Indian meal, to supply the out-door relief, on which the Vice-Guardians did not calculate when they struck the rate, the total cost being 2044*l.*, from which is to be deducted the sum of 800*l.*, received in three remittances from the British Association.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848.

Westport Union.

IN reply to your letter of the 4th instant, we have to state that we this day questioned Sir Richard O'Donnell as to what steps he had taken against Mr. Hilles, the magistrate mentioned in our last report, to compel payment of the rates due by him; and he has informed us that he had previously served a six days' notice, and yesterday gave a summons to that gentleman, who immediately paid a part, but will be proceeded against if the remainder is not paid against the next petty sessions' day. Sir Richard succeeded in obtaining decrees yesterday against 200 persons for poor-rates. He states there are but two whose rates amount to five pounds; and that he has no doubt he will enforce payment of the entire rate in his district, without the intervention of the superior Courts. We have very seriously urged the other collector, Mr. Loudon, to more active exertions. He laid before us a list of persons subject to the largest amount of rate in his district; but as it was not sufficiently explicit respecting the means he had taken to enforce payment, we have left it with Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, to obtain additional information on that point, as we did not consider that we could ask your sanction to sue the parties in the superior Courts, till it could be shown that the collector had taken proper measures to enforce payment.

The poor-rates collected and lodged to our credit in this Union during the last week amount to 112*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; and we have received from Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, 200*l.*, granted by the British Association, in aid of the relief of the destitute poor in this Union. We have paid in part discharge of the out-door relief and the other current expenses 312*l.* 7*s.* 6½*d.*

The quantity of meal required for distribution to the destitute poor on the relieving officers' books for the ensuing week is 46 tons 11 cwts. 0 qrs. 24½ lbs., a large portion of which we have been enabled to contract for at 9*l.* per ton, distributed; the contract to continue for two months.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 9th instant, and have observed with much surprise that Mr. Loudon, one of your collectors of rates, has been allowed to remain nearly inactive. They have, therefore, apprised him, that if he does not give an explanation which is satisfactory to the Commissioners, they are prepared to issue a sealed order for his removal from office.

The Commissioners request that you will have his books closely examined, to ascertain the steps which he has taken already, and to direct the proceedings which should be resorted to where the rates shall not be paid within the time appointed after service of notice.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 16, 1848.

WE have the honour to state that the amount to our credit in the Bank this day was 177*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.*, of which 51*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* was lodged by Mr. Loudon, rate-collector, during the last week; and we have paid for out-door relief and other current expenses 177*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.*

There are over 20,000 persons now on the relieving officers' books entitled to receive relief; and the quantity of Indian-meal required for this week's distribution is 52 tons 17 cwt. 0 qrs. 3½ lbs. This we have been unable to provide, not having any funds for that purpose; and all the contractors have declined to supply any more till some portion of the money at present due to them for the meal already furnished is paid.

Upon our own personal responsibility, and with the advice of Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, we have procured the quantity required for a week's food for the people of Clare and Boffin Islands, as should the weather become rough, the inhabitants would be cut off from all communication, and deaths might ensue if left without any provision.

One of our body will attend at Westport on Saturday next, and be prepared to issue the necessary orders, if you shall determine to place funds at our disposal to pay for the week's supply.

Westport Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—February 19, 1848.

IN connexion with the letter which the Commissioners have addressed to you by this day's post on the subject of the collection of the poor-rates in Castlebar, Westport, and Ballinrobe Unions, the Commissioners desire to state that they applied yesterday to the British Association for an advance to Westport Union of 530*l.* and the Commissioners trust that this sum has been received by the Vice-Guardians.

At the same time the Commissioners deem it right to state, that they have felt the greatest possible reluctance in making an application for so large a sum in an Union wherein the uncollected rates amounted on the 9th instant to no less a sum than 6,101*l.*

After making due allowance for the just demands of the creditors, a sufficient sum should be collected weekly, to defray the expenses of in-door relief, and of out-door relief to persons entitled to it under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act; and the Commissioners urgently request you to enforce the collection of the rates in Westport Union, in order to supersede the necessity of such large advances, which if continued, will tend to exhaust the funds of the British Association, and will be otherwise attended with disastrous consequences.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 16, 1848.

THE number of applicants for relief still continues to increase, and the Vice-Guardians were this day obliged to add 2172 persons to the out-door relief list, leaving the total number, after deducting those who were struck off for non-attendance at the work, &c., 20,338; and to provide these people with food for this week, it would require 52 tons 17 cwt. of Indian-meal, value nearly 500*l.*, while the amount of rate collected since my last report is but 51*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*; and as the Vice-Guardians had no other means at their disposal, the contractors refused to supply any further quantity till they were paid some portion of the amount already due to them; the Vice-Guardians therefore adjourned their meeting till Saturday next, by which time they hope to be put in funds through the interference of the Poor Law Commissioners. I beg to refer to my report of the 9th instant, in which I alluded to the embarrassed state of the funds of the Union, from which it was quite clear that the Vice-Guardians could not continue to pay the ordinary expenses of the workhouse, and support the multitude of persons on the out-door relief, unless they received considerable assistance in addition to the incoming rate of the Union.

The immediate attention of the Commissioners should be directed to the lamentable condition of these 20,000 poor persons, who are now solely dependent on what they receive from the Union for their very existence; and I cannot contemplate the delay of even one or two days without the most serious apprehension; and so great was the danger of delaying the supply for the islands of Clare Island, Boffin, and Innisturk, that I prevailed on the Vice-Guardians to become personally responsible for the quantity required for those islands.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners have made application to Count Strzelecki for a further advance of 530*l.*, to enable the Vice-Guardians to provide for the maintenance of the destitute poor during the ensuing week; and the Commissioners will address the Vice-Guardians on the subject by to-morrow's post.

Mr. LECKEY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN compliance with the minute of the proceedings of the Board of Vice-Guardians held here on Wednesday last, I attended this day for the purpose of receiving your instructions relative to the supply of provisions to the destitute poor on the out-door relief lists; and received from Mr Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, an order from the Agent of the British Association for 530*l.* worth of provisions, on the Commissariat stores at Ballinrobe, to be applied to that purpose. But on consideration of the urgent destitute condition of the great bulk of the people, crowds of whom had assembled in the town, and were clamorous for food, and dreading that fatal results might occur by awaiting the transport of the food from Ballinrobe to the various localities of this extended Union, which must occupy several days, I thought myself called on to induce Mr. Lynch to join me in a personal engagement to the contractors (who had previously refused the Board any further supplies of food on credit), to guarantee payment to them, if they would distribute the necessary quantity of meal for the week.

I am happy to say Mr. Lynch promptly co-operated with me in this arrangement; and on application to the town contractors they acceded to our written request, and I trust the rural contractors, to whom we have also written, will do so likewise. The quantity of meal I have ordered amounts to 494*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.*; and as the probable lodgments by the rate collectors in the ensuing week will be required to meet the current expenses of the Union, I do not entertain a hope of the Board being in a position from the rates, to liquidate so heavy an expenditure, agreeable to the prospect we have held out to the contractors. I trust you will see the necessity of placing funds at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians sufficient for the purpose.

Under ordinary circumstances, and without the concurrence of the Board, I should not have felt authorized to have adopted this extreme course; but from the reports of the relieving officers, and the wretched appearance of the people assembled in the town, I dreaded the most disastrous consequences might result from delay.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, stating that the Commissioners had made application to Count Strzelecki for a further advance of 530*l.* to enable the Vice-Guardians to provide for the maintenance of the destitute poor for the ensuing week; the same post brought me a letter from the Count Strzelecki, enclosing an order on the Commissariat dépôt, Ballinrobe, for provisions to the amount of 530*l.*, but as it was quite impossible to make this order available for the present week's distribution, and as the poor people were waiting in the town for their weekly supply of meal, and as Mr. Lecky and I felt convinced that any disappointment might be attended with the most serious consequences to the vast multitude who are now entirely dependent for food on what they receive from the Union, we were compelled to give our personal security to the contractors for the amount of the meal required for this week's supply, amounting to nearly 500*l.* The contractors in Westport at once agreed to issue the meal on our guarantee, and I trust the country contractors will do the same. I enclose a copy of the letter of guarantee addressed to each contractor.

I beg you will assure the Commissioners, that nothing but the most urgent necessity could have induced me to have thus interfered between the contractors and the Vice-Guardians; but from the statements made to me by the relieving officers, and from the wretched and miserable appearance of the poor people who came into town yesterday and to-day (Fridays and Saturdays are the regular days of distribution), I felt I would be wanting in my duty if I did not make every exertion in my power to have them relieved.

I trust, therefore, the Commissioners will approve of the course which has been adopted, and that they will place sufficient funds at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians, to enable them to pay off this heavy liability, for I am sorry to be obliged to say there is little hope of their being enabled to do so out of the incoming rates, which are barely sufficient to sustain the workhouse, and pay off a portion of the debts of the late Board, to which the Vice-Guardians are pledged to allocate one-half of the present rate, till they have discharged 50 per cent. on the old debts.

Arrangements shall be made to convey the 530*l.* worth of meal from the Commissariat dépôt, Ballinrobe, to supply the several districts in this Union during the ensuing week.

Westport Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS and Mr. LYNCH respectively :—
February 21, 1848.

THE sum of 530*l.* will be remitted to-morrow to assist you in providing for the wants of the destitute poor in the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. LYNCH :—February 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them the minutes of proceedings of the Vice-Guardians of the Westport Union on the 16th instant, when the Guardians directed the clerk of the Union to examine Collector Loudon's books, with a view to ascertaining the course which he was adopting in enforcing payment of the rates.

The Commissioners think that the collection of the rates at the present time is a matter of great importance; and that it would have been very desirable that the Vice-Guardians should themselves have examined Mr. Loudon's books.

An examination of the collector's books by the Vice-Guardians would enable them to detect, and at once to give definite instructions in cases in which it should appear requisite to require the collector to make greater exertions; and the Commissioners request that you will have the goodness to communicate with the Vice-Guardians accordingly.

The Commissioners also think it would be desirable that the attention of the Vice-Guardians should be directed to the duty of more strictly scrutinizing the out-door relief lists.

For this purpose one of them might attend at the depôts and see the paupers, and examine into their circumstances; and it would probably be in your power to give him the benefit of your advice on some of these occasions.

I am, at the same time, to draw your attention to the case of Charles Malone, referred to in the minutes of the Vice-Guardians' proceedings on the 16th instant. It appears desirable that the circumstances of the case should be considered by the Vice-Guardians, with a view to his being punished for the fraud which he seems to have committed.

With regard to the sale of the stones broken by the able-bodied poor receiving out-door relief, I am to state that they should not be sold under the market price.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant. I have also received a bank letter of credit from the Commissary-General's office for 530*l.*, which I have handed over to the Vice-Guardians, to provide for the wants of the destitute poor in this Union.

By this remittance the Vice-Guardians have been enabled to pay off the several contractors for the meal delivered for the week ending the 19th instant, and they have issued orders on the Commissariat depôt in Ballinrobe for the amount of the grant made in my favour on the 18th instant by Count de Strzelecki for 530*l.* In addition to this, they will be obliged to draw on the contractors for a small balance, and they will also have to provide for the cost of carriage and distribution, which, on the 530*l.* worth of meal, will amount to about 60*l.*

The rates continue to come in very slowly; since my last report Mr. Loudon has lodged but 164*l.* 17*s.* 10*d.* It appears to me that a great part of his time is occupied in the collection of the grand jury cess in the barony of Murrisk, as he is bound to settle his account on the 8th or 9th March, the day on which the grand jury meet at Castlebar. The clerk has called on both the collectors to assist him in making out the lists of all defaulters rated at or over 10*l.*, to be made out on the printed forms furnished from the Poor Law Commissioners' office; and as this return will require a statement of the proceedings taken to enforce payment, it will, I trust, have a good effect in exposing the collectors, if they have been guilty of any negligence.

I attended the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians both yesterday and to-day, and was much surprised to find that the number of applicants for relief continues fully as large as it was during the last month; and on inquiry I find the majority are persons who are represented to have offered the possession of their land to their landlords or to their agents, who have refused to accept the surrender of the land unless accompanied by the surrender of the house; and in many cases I fear this course is resorted to for the purpose of evading the 10th section of the Act. The Vice-Guardians admitted this day 16 into the workhouse; they added 2282 to the out-door relief list, and the entire number now amounts to 22,640. Had the recipients of relief been limited to the persons not holding more than a quarter acre of land, the number in this Union could not have exceeded 18,000 or 20,000; but if the practice of giving up, or offering to give up possession continues as heretofore, I fear we shall have to provide for more than half the entire population.

I found it my duty to bring the state of the workhouse under the special notice of the Vice-Guardians. The new master does not appear to me to be possessed of sufficient determination to enforce the rules of the Commissioners; the paupers do not appear to have that respect for him which is so essential to secure obedience. The house and yards are not kept in that clean and orderly manner so absolutely necessary to preserve the health of the inmates. The Vice-Guardians pointed all this out to Mr. Johnston, and intimated to him that if there was not a very considerable change for the better they would feel obliged to recommend his removal.

Much inconvenience is experienced by the clerk by the irregular manner in which the out-door relief accounts are kept by the relieving officers. The consequence is, that he is unable to furnish the Commissioners with the information called for from time to time. I have frequently called the attention of the relieving officers to this part of their duty, but have not been enabled to induce more than three of them to keep their "relief list" regularly written up.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 23rd instant, relating to the Westport Union, and I am to state that the Commissioners have made application for a further advance of 600*l.* to enable the Vice-Guardians to provide for the relief of the destitute poor of the Union during the ensuing week.

The Commissioners regret to find that so small an amount of rates has been collected during the past week, and they request your attention to their letter of yesterday's date regarding the examination of the collectors' accounts. The Commissioners have to-day received a letter from Mr. Loudon, dated the 22nd instant, expressing his hope to have a large sum collected in the course of a week; and he states that he has furnished lists of their rates to the immediate lessors who are defaulters, and has served them with the 15 days' notice. This should be followed up by immediate proceedings in cases of non-payment. And the Commissioners are desirous that you should keep the special attention of the Vice-Guardians directed to the subject, with a view to their taking the necessary steps to have the collection of the rate effected, and to stimulate the collectors to the prompt and energetic discharge of their duties.

With respect to the pressure of applicants for relief, I am to draw your attention to the Commissioners' letter of yesterday with regard to the checking and examination of the relief lists; and I am to request that you will direct the attention of the Vice-Guardians to the necessity for a strict application of the labour test, and that you will report specially to the Commissioners on the present operation of that test in the Westport Union, and the number of persons to which it is applied. The Commissioners desire at the same time to observe, that in every case wherein the Guardians have reasonable cause to believe that there is any collusion in reference to the supposed ceasing to occupy more than a quarter of an acre of land, the applicant should be rigidly refused all relief.

The Commissioners think that it may also be necessary to direct the attention of the Vice-Guardians to this point as regards the workhouse inmates, and they wish that the Vice-Guardians should report to them in their next weekly report as to the description and extent of work which is required from the several classes of inmates.

As regards the master of the workhouse and the relieving officers to whom you refer, I am to state that the Commissioners are prepared at once to remove any inefficient or negligent officers; and the Vice-Guardians should proceed promptly in any such case in accordance with the 41st article of the General Regulations.

You will have the goodness to report the names of those relieving officers who do not keep their books properly.

Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 15th instant, enclosing an extract from the report of the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union, relating to the employment of the poor persons receiving out-door relief.

I have carefully read and considered the instructions issued by the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union to their relieving officers, storekeepers, and overseers, and am of opinion that the system laid down, though very good in theory, is not adapted to the class of persons to be found in the west of Ireland to undertake the duties of relieving officers, storekeepers, and overseers, particularly if applied to Unions having from 20,000 to 30,000 paupers receiving out-door relief.

For this Union I would suggest the continuance of a weekly distribution of uncooked food, requiring in return the entire labour of the male able-bodied; such labour to be applied to some useful public work, and in a district where there are so many really useful new roads in an unfinished state, I would strongly recommend the Poor Law Commissioners to have a selection made of those roads already commenced, and in so forward a state as not to require the assistance of professional men to enable the overseers to have them properly completed. There are many such roads in the Union of Westport, and without much difficulty two or three might be selected in each electoral division; more than half the paupers should be kept to stone-breaking for the use of these roads, while the remainder executed the other portions of the work. Such an arrangement would, I have no doubt, enable the Vice-Guardians to keep the paupers more regularly at work, would give much greater satisfaction to the rate-payers, and would confer some benefit to the public in return for the large sums which are necessarily being expended on the out-door relief.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 26th instant, in which you recommend the issue of weekly allowances of uncooked food in return for the labour of able-bodied paupers, one-half of whom you think should be employed in breaking stones to lay down on the unfinished roads, and the other half in preparing the roads for the stone.

The Commissioners are of opinion that great efforts should be made to introduce the system of giving rations in cooked food daily.

The Commissioners have reason to believe that where rations of meal have been issued weekly, they have sometimes been entirely consumed during three or four days of the week, to the great detriment of the paupers during the remaining days.

The great point to be borne in mind is the due relief of destitution in the manner which is at the same time the most effectual and the most economical. The Commissioners think that in reference to the improvidence which has been found to exist, this end can be best secured by daily rations of cooked food.

The Commissioners consider stone-breaking as the best labour to be provided; but they do not preclude themselves from entertaining any recommendation which shall be made for giving employment in completing an unfinished road, for which there is not a contract, and the state and object of which shall be fully reported.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 1, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you that neither of the collectors have lodged any sum on account of poor rates during the past week. Mr. Loudon states that he had relied on promises to pay made to him by persons owing large amounts of rate, but had been disappointed; he, however, produced a letter from the agent of one of the largest rate-payers, who says he will pay him at the assizes at Castlebar on the 6th instant. From Sir Richard O'Donnell we have not had any account.

The number of vacancies at present in the workhouse has enabled us to offer it as a test to a large number of applicants for out-door relief with the best effect, very few having consented to accept it. We have commenced a scrutiny of the out-door relief lists, and for the last two weeks have struck off the lists several who had in the first instance imposed on the relieving officers; and now that the great pressure from applicants has very considerably abated, we hope to purge the lists completely by offering admission to the workhouse in all doubtful cases we find on them.

Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, has handed us 600*l.*, granted by the British Association in aid of destitution. We have paid 595*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* on account of out-door relief, and in part payment of carriage and distribution 41*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*; we have also paid 33*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.* for the current expenses.

The numbers now on the out-door relief lists are 22,795, being 568 over the week ending the 26th of February; and we estimate that 600*l.* will be sufficient to supply the food required for the week ending on Saturday, the 11th instant, as we do not calculate upon an increase of numbers to any great extent.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 1st instant, relating to the Westport Union, and stating that no sum had been lodged on account of poor rates during the past week; and I am to state that the Commissioners regard with the greatest dissatisfaction the fact that no poor rates were collected in Westport Union during the last week.

The Commissioners cannot believe that this would have been the case if the collectors had done their duty, and the Commissioners are inclined to believe that Westport Union is the only Union in Ireland in which no poor rates were collected during that week.

The Commissioners request that each of the collectors may be admonished by you on this subject, and should be made to understand that the Commissioners cannot but be of opinion that there has been an absence on their part of that energy and perseverance in collecting rates which the circumstances of the Union so imperatively demand.

At the same time the Commissioners request to know your opinion as to whether you think that there is a reasonable prospect of the poor rates being properly collected by the present collectors.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 1, 1848.

SINCE my last weekly report I have visited several electoral divisions in this Union, and I regret to be obliged to say that the attendance on the part of the paupers receiving the out-door relief is very irregular, and the amount of labour executed falls far short of what might be reasonably expected from the large number of able-bodied paupers on the lists. I annex a copy of a statement which I laid before the Board of Vice-Guardians yesterday morning; the great difficulty appears to be in procuring proper persons to act as stewards. I have strongly recommended the Vice-Guardians to direct the paupers to be brought closer together, and to have an overseer constantly over each detachment, and thus to enforce a regular attendance for 10 hours each day.

The Vice-Guardians have selected Mr. Dominick O'Malley as a supervisor over the stewards employed in the six southern divisions of the Union, and contemplate making a similar appointment for the other four electoral divisions; these arrangements, with the immediate striking off of all paupers found absent from the work, will I trust have the effect of securing a more regular attendance.

The circumstances connected with the distribution of the meal to the poor people in Kilmaclasser and Islandady were fully investigated this day, and the Vice-Guardians were so fully convinced of the fraud practised that they called on Mr. Thomas Burke, the relieving officer, to send in his resignation; and I have directed a summons to be served on his brother, Mr. William Burke, with a view of having him severely punished by the magistrates for using an illegal beam.

The Vice-Guardians have removed Mr. Kerrigan, the steward over the male inmates of the workhouse, and have appointed Mr. Charles Costello to take his place; I look to a favourable result from this change. Mr. Johnston, the new master, appears to be better acquainted with his duties, and I trust he may be able to discharge them with more efficiency.

Westport Union.

I looked this day into the accounts of the relieving officers, and find them tolerably regular, except those of Mr. Thomas Burke, resigned, and Mr. Martin Hynes, of Newport, who has been only lately appointed, and who will, I have no doubt, be able to have all his books posted up by this day week. Mr. Ward, the newly-appointed relieving officer, of Clare Island, has never attended the Board since the day of his appointment: the communication between the islands and the mainland is very uncertain and difficult in stormy weather.

Mr. Loudon attended this day, and stated to the Board that he was disappointed by several ratepayers who promised to come in and settle by this day; neither he nor Sir Richard O'Donnell have lodged any money since my last report, and from the confused lists which Mr. Loudon has handed in of the defaulters, it is difficult to say where the fault lies. The clerk is actively employed making out the lists of all those who are rated at or over 10*l.*, as directed in the Commissioners' communication of the 19th February.

I received from the Commissary-General's office 600*l.*, which I handed over to the Vice-Guardians; they paid off the greater portion of the sums due to the several contractors for out-door relief, and issued fresh orders on them for this week's supply.

The number of applicants for relief was not so numerous as usual, neither were they of so destitute a class, and having so many vacancies in the house the Vice-Guardians offered in-door relief to several hundreds, who refused to accept it; not more than 62 were admitted, while 568 were placed on the out-door list; but the relieving officers having discovered several cases of fraud, and the Vice-Guardians having struck off many of those who did not regularly attend at the work, the total number to be relieved this week is fully 2000 less than the last.

ENCLOSURE.

Newport Electoral Division.

I was in this division on Thursday, the 24th, and though it was only a little after three o'clock I did not find a single pauper at work. I sent to the house of Nixon, the steward; he had not returned from Westport. Roland, the newly-appointed steward, had not received either book or list. I could not see Mr. Hynes, the relieving officer.

Kilmaclasser Division.

Here I found the paupers at work breaking stones; I did not meet the steward, Kirkpatrick, therefore could not call over the roll. I heard numerous complaints from the poor people in this district that they did not receive the full allowance of meal allowed by the Vice-Guardians.

Islandeady Division.

I went through this division on the 25th; I found that the newly-appointed steward, Fahey, did not visit any of the labourers on Thursday last. He stated to me that he was taking applications for the relieving officer. He also stated that Thursday, the 24th, was too wet a day for the men to work, but on inquiry I found, from the police, that several of the paupers were at work. The labourers in this district are too much scattered, and appear to have been very badly looked after.

Aughagower Division.

On Saturday, the 26th, I called the roll at the two principal places of work in this division, viz., Knockcruisky and Moyhasten, and though it was early in the day, fully four-fifths were absent; and on my return from Landkill to-day I found the paupers at Moyhasten had quit work before four o'clock.

Frauds in the distribution of the Meal.

On Saturday last I visited the three stores in Westport, where the meal was being given out for the electoral divisions of Westport, Aughagower, and Islandeady; in the two first everything appeared very regular, but at William Burke's, who is brother to Thomas Burke, the relieving officer, I found the beam tied up with a piece of cord, so as always to show "standing beam," no matter what quantity or weights were in the scales; it was in this place the poor people of Kilmaclasser were served the day before; and the people of Islandeady were unanimous in their complaints of short weight. I returned to this store in the evening, and took Mr. Egan, the clerk, with me; the person attending informed me that all the people were served; I then called on him for his books, and asked what quantity of meal remained; after a great deal of difficulty I found there were seven commissariat bags untouched, two and a half cwt. each, besides a half bag and some loose meal. These circumstances should be rigidly examined into, as I apprehend gross fraud.

State of the Workhouse.

I have frequently called the attention of the Vice-Guardians to the state of the workhouse, and though there is an improvement in the state of cleanliness, in other respects I regret to say things are not at all satisfactory. Order and system, so essential to the proper management of a large institution, are quite overlooked; the clothing of the paupers is disgraceful to the Union; and the insubordination existing amongst the male inmates, if not properly and immediately checked, may be productive of the most serious consequences; when I called at the workhouse this evening they were in a state of the greatest confusion. I directed a roll to be made out of each class of inmates, and upon comparing these rolls with the numbers appearing on the books I find a difference of nearly 150; the number really in the house being but 851, while the books show nearly 1000. These matters call for the serious attention of the Vice-Guardians.

Westport Union.

(Signed)

RICHARD M. LYNCH.

February 28, 1848.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 6, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 1st inst., relating to the Westport Union, and I am to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 400*l.*, to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

I am at the same time to request your special attention to a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Vice-Guardians, relative to the collection of the poor-rates, as the Commissioners regard the present state of the collection of poor-rates in Westport Union with the greatest dissatisfaction and displeasure.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 4, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have received from Sir R. A. O'Donnell, in which he states that employment had been offered by him to a number of persons who are in the receipt of out-door relief in the Union, who declined to work on the terms proposed.

I am at the same time to forward a copy of the Commissioners' reply.

ENCLOSURES.

Sir R. A. O'DONNELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 2, 1848.

My object in writing to you is to benefit the rate-payers and poor of my electoral division. Having received a loan under the Land Improvement Act, I am anxious to employ, as far as lies in my power, the able-bodied poor of my district.

The Vice-Guardians have directed the relieving officer to give me a list of 50 able-bodied men receiving relief, residing in the neighbourhood of two farms upon which I am anxious to carry on improvements. A portion of these 50 persons attended once at the works at Deradda farm, and informed my agriculturist that they would not work by task, but that if I gave them one shilling per day they would work for me. My agriculturist is well known in the district as a humane, honest man, that understands the value of labour well, and he assures me that if the men were only inclined to work they could make at his prices one shilling per day.

My works at Deradda farm are stopped for want of labourers, although we have, I am informed, more than 6000 persons receiving the out-door relief in this unfortunate electoral division; and my works at other farms are going on in an unsatisfactory way from the same cause.

I am prepared to give employment to 600 men a-day, and to take them from the out-door relief list; and if the other landed proprietors of this district will do the same according to the extent of their properties, the rate-payers will be relieved and the poor saved.

Gentlemen, you have shown energy and determination in collecting poor-rates, I now call upon you respectfully to save our country by protecting the rate-payers with the same energy, &c., and using your influence in the administration of the Poor Laws to raise the poor of Ireland out of their lazy habits of dependence upon others, with all the immoral results arising therefrom.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 4, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd inst., informing the Commissioners that the Vice-Guardians of the Westport Union had ordered 50 of the able-bodied men who are in receipt of out-door relief in the Union to proceed to two farms upon which you were anxious to carry on some improvements, and that the men refused to work unless paid at the rate of one shilling per day for their labour.

In reply, I am to state that the proper course to be pursued in this case appears to the Commissioners to admit of no reasonable doubt; and the Commissioners cannot presume otherwise than that it has been adopted by the Vice-Guardians as a matter of course.

Westport Union.

If any able-bodied pauper refuses employment which is offered to him at wages adequate to preserve him from starvation, he ought, as an ordinary matter of routine, to be struck off the relieving officer's books.

The Commissioners will forward a copy of your letter, together with a copy of the Commissioners' answer, to the Vice-Guardians of the Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 8, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 3rd and 6th March, in reference to the collection of the rates in this Union, and in accordance with your directions, I wrote to both the collectors to admonish them, and communicated to them the surprise expressed by the Commissioners. Sir Richard O'Donnell has since paid in a sum of 177*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*, which added to the former sums paid by him, makes over 800*l.* collected, the rates on his three electoral divisions being 1605*l.*; so that within three months he has paid in half the entire sum entrusted to him for collection, and I am of opinion that the greater portion of the balance will be collected within the next three months. Mr. John Loudon has not made any lodgment since my last report; he did not attend at the Board either on yesterday or to-day, and sent no reply to my letter dated the 4th instant. The only way in which I can account for this seeming neglect is, that being deputy to the collector of Grand Jury Cess, his time has been entirely devoted to this collection, which must be arranged by the barony constable on the assembling of the grand jury in Castlebar on this day. I trust for the future he will be enabled to devote his entire time to the collection of the poor-rate, and thus make amends for the time hitherto lost.

The Vice-Guardians had before them the lists of defaulters in Mr. Loudon's seven electoral divisions, as well as in the division of Newport (the lists for Achill and Ballycroy are not as yet completed); there appear very large sums due principally by immediate lessors, and the Vice-Guardians have selected the names of the parties against whom they consider it necessary to obtain the sanction of the Commissioners to take proceedings in the upper courts, and in many cases, I trust, an intimation from their solicitor that such sanction has been obtained will have the effect of causing immediate payment.

The number on the out-door relief list remains pretty nearly the same as last week, for while 275 persons were added, 769 were struck off. The applicants were very numerous, but having a considerable number of vacancies in the work-house, many of these people were offered admittance, which they refused; the total number admitted was 132. The house is now quite full (1000).

I received an order on the Commissariat dépôt, Ballinrobe, for 400*l.* worth of provisions from the British Association, which I handed over to the Vice-Guardians. The weekly expense for out-door relief is about 530*l.*, including cost of carriage from Ballinrobe.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 13, 1848.

IN reference to your statement respecting the amount of rate already collected by Sir Richard A. O'Donnell, the Commissioners request you will be so good as to ascertain how much of the arrears in his divisions are due by immediate lessors.

The Commissioners consider Mr. Loudon's collection very unsatisfactory, and they would issue an order for his dismissal, but that so large a portion of the arrears appear to be due by immediate lessors, against whom he could not take any effective proceedings without directions from the Vice-Guardians, which they do not appear to have given.

The Commissioners have addressed a letter to the Vice-Guardians this day, in respect more particularly to the course adopted towards the immediate lessors who owe these very large arrears; and they trust that keeping in view the urgent wants of the Union, more energy will in future be manifested in providing the means which the law has appropriated for meeting such exigencies.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 8, 1848.

WE beg leave to request your sanction to our taking proceedings in one of the superior courts in Dublin against the parties named in the accompanying list.

8th March, 1848.

JOHN EGAN, Clerk Westport Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your letter of the 8th instant, requesting the Commissioners' sanction to your taking proceedings, in pursuance of the 2nd section of 6 and 7 Vict., cap. 92, in the superior courts of record in Dublin against the following persons who are defaulters in the payment of poor-rates in the Westport Union, namely:—

The Most Noble the Marquess of Sligo.	Mrs. Moore.
The Right Hon. the Earl of Lucan.	Mrs. Garvey (Old Head, Louisburgh).
Sir Roger Palmer, Bart.	Rev. Francis Rutledge.
Robert Buchanan, Esq.	Dominick Joseph Bourke, Esq.
John C. Garvey, Esq.	John Knox, Esq.
Courtney Kenny, Esq.	Sir Richard A. O'Donnell, Bart.
Mr. Robert Ekins.	Walter Bourke, Esq.
Mrs. Garvey (Tully, Louisburgh).	Charles M'Donnell, Esq.
William Sharpe Brabazon, Esq.	John M'Loughlin, Esq.
Sir Samuel O'Malley, Bart.

and the Commissioners hereby signify their consent to your bringing an action in any one of the superior courts of record in Dublin against the said—

Most Noble the Marquess of Sligo.	Courtney Kenny, Esq.
Right Hon. the Earl of Lucan.	Mr. Robert Ekins.
Sir Roger Palmer, Bart.	Mrs. Garvey (Tully, Louisburgh).
Robert Buchanan, Esq.	William Sharpe Brabazon, Esq.
John C. Garvey, Esq.	Sir Samuel O'Malley, Bart.

Westport Union.

Mrs. Moore.
 Mrs. Garvey (Old Head, Louisburgh).
 Rev. Francis Rutledge.
 Dominick Joseph Bourke, Esq.
 John Knox, Esq.

Sir Richard A. O'Donnell, Bart.
 Walter Bourke, Esq.
 Charles M'Donnell, Esq.
 John M'Loughlin, Esq.

for the recovery of the arrears of poor-rate made on them respectively as immediate lessors in respect of certain property situated within the Westport Union.

THE COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 13, 1848.

WITH reference to your letter of the 8th instant, and to the Commissioners' letter of this date, relative to the proceedings proposed to be instituted for recovery of the poor-rate due by immediate lessors of property in the Westport Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that while any of the parties referred to are out of Ireland they cannot be sued in the superior courts, and it would therefore be unadvisable to commence the proceedings until such parties return to Ireland. It is therefore for consideration whether in such cases it might not be expedient to serve notice on the occupiers.

The Commissioners also desire to state, in reference to Mr. Sharpe Brabazon, named in the list of persons against whom you propose to institute proceedings, that his property in the Swineford Union is understood to be under control of the Court of Chancery, and that Mr. Oliver Jackson, of Ballina, is the receiver.

The Commissioners observe, that the word occupier is written opposite the name of Mr. Kenny, of Ballinrobe, and they desire to state, that if he also resides in the Westport Union, and the rate is due on a tenement there occupied by him, he cannot be sued in the superior courts for recovery of the amount due, that course being only authorized in case of an immediate lessor.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 8, 1848.

WE have the honour to state that 177*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* has been lodged by Sir R. O'Donnell, rate collector, but Mr. Loudon has not lodged any sum on account of the collection during the past week, nor did he attend the Board. It is evident that as a barony cess collector his whole time and attention have been directed to that duty; however as he will now be discharged from his responsibility on that head by the grand jury, we expect that he will devote all his time and energies to the collection of the rates; and much as he deserves dismissal, yet when we take into consideration the critical state in which such an extreme measure would leave the collection, and the time that must elapse before a successor could be fully in operation (if an eligible person could be found to undertake it), as well as the prejudice that would arise in the public mind, and the persuasion that it was impossible to collect the rates, we do not feel justified in recommending you to adopt such a course.

Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, has handed us an order on the Commissariat store at Ballinrobe for 400*l.* worth of provisions, granted by the British Association in aid of destitution, and we have issued orders on the officer in charge for 393*l.* 15*s.* worth; the quantity required in the electoral divisions of Achill and Ballycroy, being most distant from the dépôt (the former at least 50 miles), we have ordered from Sir R. O'Donnell, the contractor.

The total numbers on the relief list are now 22,525, only 300 being added this week; the beneficial effect of the workhouse test being again apparent, out of 1194 applicants only 141 accepted in-door relief. There have also been a great many struck off for not attending the stone-breaking, owing to the vigilance which the newly appointed supervisor has exercised over his department; and agreeable to the determination we expressed to Sir R. O'Donnell, when he applied some time since to us to take able-bodied labourers off the rates and give them employment, we have struck off all who refused to accept work from him; taking all these circumstances into account, we do not anticipate that a larger sum than 600*l.* will be required to supply the wants of those who will remain on the out-door relief lists for the ensuing week.

Eight out of the ten lists from the electoral divisions of the Union have been laid before us, from which we have selected the names of persons, immediate lessors, to be proceeded against in the superior courts, if you shall determine to sanction that course; and as the 14th of April is the last day upon which such proceedings can be taken for next term, as little delay as possible should occur in letting us know your wishes.

We regret to say that Lord Sligo's name stands at the top of that list, but every precaution has been taken to inform his agent of the state of the case both verbally and by letter, a copy of which we enclose.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. LECKY to Mr. HILDEBRAND:—March 8, 1848.

AFTER the conversation I had with you yesterday I feel at greater liberty to write to you on the subject we then spoke on, and which I assure you has engaged a great deal of our thoughts.

In the exercise of the duties with which we are entrusted by the Commissioners, we are obliged to ascertain and lay before them from time to time the names of all such persons as have not paid their rates, and on the top of the list yesterday made out Lord Sligo's name is entered as owing a large amount, exceeding 1600*l.*

It will be very painful to us, and also, I feel certain, to the Commissioners, by whom his lordship is highly respected, to have the list forwarded under such circumstances, and to have it accompanied by a request for their sanction for instituting proceedings in the superior courts in Dublin against the parties therein named.

We therefore most anxiously hope that you will endeavour to place the matter in such a state as will render it unnecessary for us to take a step so prejudicial and annoying to his lordship.

If you can make it convenient to come to the Board-room this morning, I shall feel obliged.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to inform you that application has been made to the British Association for a further advance of 600*l.* to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners regret to observe by your report of the 8th instant, that in Westport Union, as in Castlebar Union, a collector of rates who is also collector of county cess, has in consequence of the settlement of his accounts and payments in the latter capacity, omitted to send in his books as poor-rate collector pending the assizes, or to make any lodgment on account of the rates which he may have received.

The Commissioners further regret to observe that the rates not yet returned as collected in Westport Union, by the collector referred to, Mr. Loudon, amount to 4536*l.*, and they would have deemed this fact conclusive evidence that Mr. Loudon was unequal to the duties of his office, were it not that as much as 3085*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.* of the arrear of poor-rate in the Union appears to be due from immediate lessors.

The Act which provides for recovery of rates due by immediate lessors, does not enable a collector to proceed without direction from the Board of Guardians, not even to serve the notice preceding a distress; and the Commissioners have not any information to show them whether the Vice-Guardians have given directions to the collector for proceedings which he has neglected to take.

The Commissioners see no ground for the course which the Vice-Guardians appear to have adopted towards the immediate lessors owing arrears. There is no reason for extending indulgence to them, more than to the occupiers; and in the administration of the Poor Law, it is only necessary to apply the provisions, according to their obvious intention to all classes who fail to discharge their legal liabilities.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of circular, dated 2nd March, in reference to the suspension on the 18th instant of the order authorizing outdoor relief to the able-bodied, and expressing the wish of the Commissioners to know whether in my opinion there would be any decided objection to this course in the Union of which I am the Inspector.

In reply I am obliged to report that I am fully convinced that such a course would be attended with the most serious loss of life, for I can state with certainty that the principal portion of the persons now receiving this relief have no other means whatsoever of support for themselves and their families; and though, no doubt, there may be some of the able-bodied labourers required to assist the better class of farmers in the cultivation of the land, still taking into account the peculiar position of this Union, where nine-tenths of the tillage land is held by persons who are themselves labourers, I do not anticipate any very great demand for the labour of the class at present on the out-door relief list. The Vice-Guardians should direct the several relieving officers to reduce the number of the able-bodied paupers on their list as much as possible, but I could not recommend the total suspension of the order under the 2nd section of the Extension Act.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to inform the Commissioners whether the state of the Westport Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed that under that order single men, and men with only two children, would be thrown on their own resources.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that the number of persons applying for relief during the past week, has been much smaller than usual. I attribute this reduction to the large number of applicants in the previous week, who were offered in-door instead of out-door relief. The number on the out-door list is about the same as it was last week, for though the Vice-Guardians added this day 333, there were 265 taken off, independent of those who will be struck off on Friday, for no attendance at work.

There are now a very large number of stout able-bodied men in the workhouse, and they created serious alarm this morning by refusing to go to their ordinary work, alleging that they did not get enough of food; but their real motive was to be put on the out-door relief. I made inquiry and find that these men get two meals in the day, at each of which they are served with half a pound of meal made into stirabout, with a small allowance of either milk or molasses, while those on the out-door relief receive but one pound per day of raw meal.

On being made acquainted with the turbulent state of the house, I directed a list of the most prominent actors to be made out, and from this list I selected 28 who were either single men, or being married, had not more than two persons depending on them, and upon their admitting before me and one of the Vice-Guardians that they refused to work, we had them at once discharged from the house, and having intimated to the other paupers, that the same course would be adopted in every case where the able-bodied refused to work, the other men went most obediently to their work, and order was thus restored.

I fear in taking this course I may have exceeded the authority vested in the Boards of Guardians by the Commissioners' order for "regulating workhouses in Ireland," dated 5th June, 1844; but with so large a number of able-bodied young men; no magistrate in the town; no petty sessions to be held till the 23rd instant, (the magistrates are all attending the assizes at Castlebar,) I felt called on to take the steps I did, and I only did so when requested by the Vice-Guardians to interfere, and assist them in restoring order. I beg to add that the Vice-Guardians fully concurred in the expulsion of those parties, though I see no minute in reference to it on their books.

I received by yesterday's post an order on the Ballinrobe Commissariat dépôt, from the Count de Strzelecki, for 600*l.* worth of provisions which I handed over to the Vice-Guardians to enable them to provide for the current week. I find they will not require more than 500 pounds' worth of meal, though the total expense will be fully 600*l.*

I regret to be obliged again to report that the rates are coming in very slowly. Sir Richard O'Donnell has made no lodgment, and Mr. John Loudon has lodged but 40*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* within the last week, and I have not seen either of the collectors for the last six days; they are, I believe, attending the assizes at Castlebar.

I have carefully examined the accounts of the several relieving officers. The books for seven out of the ten electoral divisions are complete and correct to the 4th March; the remaining three are those in the hands of Mr. Ward, Mr. Hynes, and Mr. Edward Goff, who were only lately appointed, and had to post up the arrears of their predecessors; the two latter will, I have no doubt, have all their books ready by this day week, but I fear Mr. Ward is not competent, and I have recommended the Vice-Guardians to make some change.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners are unable to sanction the course of discharging from the workhouse able-bodied persons who refuse to work or to submit to workhouse rules, there being for such cases an express provision in the Act 1 and 2 Vict. cap. 56, sec. 58.

The Commissioners desire to suggest that in every case of the kind, the directions of the Vice-Guardians should be recorded on their minutes.

Similar instances have frequently occurred in other Unions under ordinary Boards of Guardians, and the Commissioners in all such cases have been in the habit of writing to such Boards, in order to express the Commissioners' disapproval of the course pursued.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th instant, enclosing a copy of the out-door relief order issued on the 7th March, for the Union of Listowel, with a request that I might inform the Commissioners whether the state of the Westport Union is such that the provisions of this order could be carried into effect here; and in reply I have to state for the information of the Commissioners, that I am of opinion that all able-bodied single men, as well as married men not having more than two persons dependent on them, should be excluded from all participation in out-door relief. I substitute the word persons for children, for I fear in many instances it might not be safe to exclude a man having a wife and two grown-up children depending on him, while there would be no objection to exclude the man with a wife and only one child, or the man who had no wife, but who had two children for whose support he was legally accountable.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 15th instant, relating to the proposed modification of the order authorizing out-door relief in the Westport Union, in which you suggest that in the modified order the word "persons" be substituted for "children;" and in reference thereto I am to state that the Commissioners were unwilling to introduce the phraseology of "persons" instead of "children;" but they have substituted the words "wife and one child, or widower having two children," with a view to meet your recommendation.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

WE have the honour to report that Mr. Loudon, rate collector, has lodged 40*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* during the past week on account of his collection. Sir R. O'Donnell has not made any lodgment since our last report. We have paid on account of carriage and distribution of Indian meal for out-door relief 40*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.*, and for the petty expenses 3*l.* 10*s.*

Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, has handed us an order on the Commissariat store at Ballinrobe for 600*l.* worth of provisions, granted in aid of the destitute poor by the British Association; and we have issued orders on the officer in charge there for 525*l.* worth of Indian meal to supply their wants for this week.

There are 21,239 persons now on the out-door relief lists, 185 having been added this week, and we estimate that a sum of 500*l.* will be necessary to provide the food required for the week ending the 25th instant.

The electoral divisions of Achill and Ballycroy are so distant from Ballinrobe (the former about 50 miles), we would beg leave to suggest that any future orders for provisions that may be sent in aid of this Union, may be left so that we can draw such part of the supply as may be necessary for that part of the Union, from the depôt at Achill, and thus save much time and expense.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th March, and in accordance with your request, I beg to inform the Commissioners that the sum due by immediate lessors in the district of Sir Richard O'Donnell, rate collector, amounts to 402*l.* 6*s.* 11½*d.* I annex a list of the persons by whom it is due, and shall take care to draw the particular attention of the collector to the fact, that he is himself the largest defaulter.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 17th instant, forwarding a list of the immediate lessors who are defaulters in the payments of poor rate in the Newport, Achill, and Ballycroy divisions of the Westport Union; and I am to return the list herewith, and to request that you will be so good as to state, against the name of each of the defaulters, the nature of the proceedings which have been taken to compel payment of the rate, and the dates when such proceedings were taken in each case, together with any explanation which can be afforded of the delay which has occurred on the part of the Vice-Guardians in enforcing payment.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners will sanction proceedings being taken in the superior courts of record in Dublin, in any of the cases in question; and they think that it will be desirable, both with a view to saving of legal expenses to the defaulters, as well as with regard to the more speedy realizing of the rates, that proceedings by notice and summons, or by civil bill, should be taken where practicable.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. LYNCH:—March 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to enclose herewith a copy of the list of persons in Collector Loudon's district who have not paid their rates; and I am to request that you will have the goodness to lay the list before the Vice-Guardians, in order that they may insert in the columns ruled for the purpose—
1. The date when they applied for the Commissioners' sanction to take proceedings in the superior courts in each case in which they have made such an application;

2. The reason why proceedings by notice, summons, and distress, or by civil bill, were not taken in each of such cases; 3. The reason for the delay which has taken place in the service of the notice, in each case in which it was served; 4. The reason why some of the parties had not been served at the time when you forwarded the list; 5. And any observations which the Vice-Guardians may wish to make as to the very unsatisfactory state in which the collection of those rates is found to be, for enforcing payment of which, special powers are given to them by the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Amendment Act.

The Commissioners request that you will be good enough to return the enclosed paper, with the requisite observations in each column, at your earliest convenience; and it is the wish of the Commissioners that similar information should be afforded in the case of Sir R. O'Donnell's district.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS of the Ballinrobe, Castlebar, and Westport Unions:—March 22, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration a report which they have received from their Inspector, Mr. R. Bourke, in which he states that relief out of the workhouse is given in the Westport Union in uncooked food, and that to the able-bodied it is still issued weekly, which practices he has always opposed, but found it difficult to induce you to abandon.

The Commissioners consider this matter of so much importance that they desire me to draw your special attention again to the subject. The Commissioners are of opinion, that great efforts should be made to introduce the system of giving rations in cooked food daily.

They have reason to believe, that where rations of meal have been issued weekly, they have sometimes been entirely consumed during three or four days of the week, to the great detriment of the paupers during the remaining days.

The great point to be borne in mind is, the due relief of destitution in the manner which is at the same time the most effectual and the most economical; and the Commissioners think, especially in reference to the improvidence which has been found to exist, that this end can be best secured by daily rations of cooked food.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that I attended yesterday and the day before at the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians. The applicants for relief still continue numerous, but as the relieving officers have now more time to examine into the circumstances of those hitherto put on the list, they are enabled to strike off in each week very nearly as many as the Vice-Guardians are obliged to put on, so that the number actually receiving out-door relief does not exceed 21,000, and to supply this number it takes about 60 tons of Indian meal, which at the present price costs 525*l.*, but to this is to be added cost of carriage from Ballinrobe, and distribution about 1*l.* per ton.

The Vice-Guardians have taken much pains to reserve as much of the accommodation as possible in the workhouse for the able-bodied men with small families, and they find that this has the effect of throwing many of this class on their own resources who would prefer remaining a burden on the rates. During the last week there were 71 taken into the house, and 49 discharged—the greater portion of those discharged were put on the out-door relief list.

I regret to have to report the death of Mr. Geraghty, the schoolmaster; he died of fever on the 21st instant: and Mr. Egan, the clerk of the Union, is also attacked by fever, and consequently unable to attend to the duties of his office. The Vice-Guardians have directed Mr. John Moran to act in his place during Mr. Egan's illness.

Though I have repeatedly spoken to Mr. Loudon, the collector, he is making very little progress in the collection of the rate; he has lodged but 30*l.* within the last week. He has, however, issued several summonses, which are to be heard at the petty sessions this day. He made a seizure a few days since of some cattle, the property of Mr. Burke, of Greenhills, and the cattle were rescued. I directed him to have informations sworn against the parties, and spoke to Mr. Morony, the magistrate, who promised me that he would take out some of the police to protect Mr. Loudon in the execution of his duty, but as yet he has not gone out. It is absolutely necessary that strong measures should be taken to enforce the law, particularly in cases where gentlemen of Mr. Burke's station are concerned.

Sir Richard O'Donnell has made no lodgment since my last report.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 27, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 500*l.* (in provisions,) to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor of the Union.

I am at the same time to inform you that the attention of Government has been drawn to the rescue of the cattle seized by one of the rate collectors for the payment of the rate due on the property of Mr. Burke, of Greenhills.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. LYNCH:—March 25, 1848.

MR. LYNCH is requested to report his opinion as to the time for which a renewal of the order authorizing out-door relief to be administered to certain classes, will be necessary.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

I AM of opinion that the able-bodied men who are not married, as well as the married men with only two persons depending on them, may be safely left to their own resources till the beginning of May, as there will be sufficient demand for their labour, but for all other classes a renewal will be necessary on the expiration of the present order.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 3, 1848.

IN accordance with the suggestions contained in your report of the 27th ultimo, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they have given directions for the renewal of the order authorizing out-door relief in the Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, returning me the enclosed list of defaulters in the district of Sir Richard O'Donnell, collector, requesting of me to state against the name of each the nature of the proceedings which have been taken to compel payment of the rate, &c.; and in reply I beg to inform the Commissioners that Sir Richard O'Donnell attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and informed them that he hoped, in the course of a week or so, to be able to close his collection in the electoral division of Newport; and that the delay in the collection of the rate in Achill and Ballycroy was occasioned by his being obliged to send up his books once a fortnight, as well as on other occasions, by orders of the Vice-Guardians; he further stated, that if allowed to take his own course, he would collect every available shilling of the rate, and that there would be no necessity to call for the sanction of the Commissioners to proceed in the superior Courts.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 13, 1848.

WITH reference to your report of the 29th ultimo, I am directed by the Commissioners to request that they may be informed whether Sir R. O'Donnell has concluded the collection of poor rates in the Newport electoral division of the Westport Union.

I am also to inquire whether the rates due by the immediate lessors named in the list enclosed with your report, including Sir R. O'Donnell himself, have yet been paid.

If not paid the subject should be brought under the special notice of the Vice-Guardians without delay.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to return the list of defaulters in Mr. Loudon's district of the Westport Union, with the several columns filled up as you directed by the Vice-Guardians.

Sir Richard O'Donnell states he will be able to collect all the rates in his district, and will not require the interference of the Vice-Guardians.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 8, 1848.

WITH reference to your communication of the 29th ultimo, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of the list of immediate lessors of property in the Westport Union, against whom the Vice-Guardians propose to institute proceedings for recovery of the rates due by them; and I am to request that you will be good enough to inform the Commissioners whether the usual fifteen days' notice has been served in each case.

I am at the same time to state, that although there may be a doubt as to whether summary proceedings before justices would have proved successful in the cases named in the list, still the Commissioners are of opinion that such a course might have been employed much more generally in the Westport Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 29, 1848.

WE have the honour to state that Sir Richard O'Donnell has lodged 138*l.* and Mr. Loudon 308*l.* on account of the collection of poor-rates, since our last report, and we hope that in our next we may be able to speak of their continued activity. We have paid 187*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* for the current expenses of the Union, and on account of amount due for out-door relief 258*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.*

In compliance with your sealed order, 2117 persons have been removed from the relieving officers' lists, reducing those now to receive food to about 19,000, and taking into account an addition to this number from new applications, we estimate that 500*l.* will be required to maintain them for the week ending the 8th of April.

We have received from R. M. Lynch, Esq., Temporary Poor Law Inspector, an order granted by the British Association on the Commissariat store at Ballinrobe for 500*l.* worth of provisions, and we have drawn on the officer in charge there for 505*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.* worth, having had a balance of last week's order remaining to our credit.

We regret to inform you that attacks were made on Friday and Saturday last, by large parties of people, upon the carriers on their way from Ballinrobe with meal, ordered for the supply of the poor in this Union, and a quantity forcibly carried away. Informations have been sworn, several of the parties identified and warrants issued for their apprehension; part of the meal has also been recovered. We have sent requisitions to Mr. Morony, resident magistrate, stationed here, and Mr. Arabin, resident magistrate at Ballinrobe, to furnish sufficient escorts to protect the meal (this day ordered) from the dépôt to its destination.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 1, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further advance of 500*l.* in provisions, to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Westport Union.

Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 4, 1848.

ADVERTING to a recent letter of the Commissioners, I beg to state that I applied to the clerk of the petty sessions for a list of the persons to whom dismissals were granted by the magistrates on the 23rd of March, and he refused to give me any information, I had therefore to wait till I saw Mr. Loudon this day. I now enclose a list of the names and amounts, and I have instructed the collector to proceed against these parties at the approaching quarter sessions.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 5, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians of this Union held their weekly meetings yesterday and to-day, and though the applicants for relief still continue numerous, yet the amount of food issued has not increased, as the numbers put on do not exceed those struck off.

There were about 60 vacancies in the house which were filled up by a class of persons of whose real destitution there appeared to be some doubt. Of the number admitted last week no less than 86 have since been discharged at their own request; these were principally from the electoral division of Islandeady, where I fear there has been a good deal of fraud and imposition, much of which must be attributed to the several changes which have taken place in the relieving officer.

Though there are still over 50 cases of fever in the hospital, they are of a light description; measles have, I regret to say, made their appearance, there have been over 30 cases and 2 deaths; the medical attendant states that the character of the disease is generally very mild, but I fear it will be likely to spread from the present crowded state of the house. Small-pox has also been introduced into the house, three of the children lately admitted have been severely attacked, and one has died and another continues dangerously ill.

The Vice-Guardians have entered into a contract with a Mr. Kelly for the proper ventilation of the house, and I hope he will have his contract completed before the warm weather sets in, otherwise the most serious consequences may be apprehended.

Mr. Johnson, the master, has tendered his resignation; he was obliged to admit, that after a fair trial he was not equal to the very onerous duty of the office; since his appointment he has conducted himself with the strictest honesty and propriety.

During the week Mr. Loudon has been exerting himself to collect as much rate as possible. Mr. Morony, the resident magistrate, was out with him all day on Saturday last; he served a great number of notices, and he seized five or six head of cattle, three of these were released on payment of the rate, the other two were sold in the town of Westport on last Monday, and realized the sums for which they were seized. Mr. Morony tells me that if it had not been for the presence of the police force, it would have been quite impossible to have brought the cattle from off the land, and that it was with the greatest difficulty the notices were served; they found all the doors closed, and it was through the key holes and under the doors that the papers were put in. Mr. Loudon has lodged 112*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*, but Sir Richard O'Donnell has paid in nothing since my last report.

Westport Union.

From the statement made this day to the Vice-Guardians by Mr. Mears, the supervisor of the working parties, there is reason to apprehend that the labour test in the electoral division of Achill has been altogether overlooked. Mr. Leckey and I have arranged to start to-morrow morning, with a view of putting the whole system on some better footing.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 10, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners rely upon the Vice-Guardians taking every possible precaution to prevent the spread of disease in the work-house, by effectually separating the sick from the healthy inmates.

The Commissioners trust that the collectors will not be permitted to relax their exertions for the recovery of all collectable rates in the Union, and that active steps will be taken in order that a task of work as the condition of receiving out-door relief, may be required from the able-bodied persons relieved.

CALLAN UNION.

Captain MUSTERS, Poor Law Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS:—
February 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state that since my arrival here on the morning of the 16th instant, I have made a careful and minute inspection of the poor-house, of which I am happy to say I can give a very favourable account, finding it very clean, with a few trifling exceptions in good order, and in every department that came under my observation, I consider the rules and regulations have been fairly attended to by both master and matron.

The Visiting Committee appear, however, seldom to attend, only one member of that body having made any report (since last October) in the visiting book kept for that purpose; I am informed that only one elected Guardian resides in the town of Callan, the remainder all residing at a considerable distance from it.

The number of paupers in the house at the present moment is 441, and 56 in fever hospital, making a total of 497; in this number are included about 15 infirm old men, and about double that number of women, the remainder being all able-bodied. This leaves 123 vacancies.

There is an abundance of good clothing in the house, and I consider it will be in the power of the Board of Guardians to apply the workhouse test on the next Board day, not only to those persons then applying for relief, but to many who are now receiving out-door relief.

The lists or returns called for, of the number of destitute poor persons relieved out of the workhouse in each week, from the commencement of out-door relief in this Union, up to the week ended Saturday, 12th instant, will be completed by the next Board day, and then forwarded as directed.

There are two stores taken in the town for the male and female children, in which there are at present 232. The buildings appear to be very old, and the boys' house very much out of repair; they were, however, as clean and orderly as under the circumstances could be expected.

In conclusion, I have only to mention that I also visited the fever sheds, in which there were 118 patients; the medical man informed me that there were two or three bad cases of typhus fever only, the remainder not being of a malignant character.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to request that in your next report you will have the goodness to inform the Commissioners of the steps which have been taken to apply the test of labour to persons in the receipt of out-door relief in the Union.

I am at the same time to request your attention to the Commissioners' circular letter of the 18th ultimo, and I am to state that the parties removed from the workhouse, who come within the meaning of the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, may, in addition to the weekly allowance of food, be provided with allowances for fuel, clothing, and lodging.

Captain MUSTERS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to reply to the instructions I received in your communication, dated Dublin, February 26, 1848, to state, that by order of the Board of Guardians, as shown by the minute of their proceedings of January 5, 1848, all able-bodied paupers are required to work eight hours each day, and to break 1½ cubic yards of lime stone, and one cubic yard of grey stone; and where any deficiency of work appears, the relieving officers are directed to allow rations only in proportion to the work done. This is in operation all over the Union; and though I have not had time at present to visit the different depôts in the Union, I have reason to believe, from the relieving officers' books and statements, that it is properly carried out.

The number receiving out-door relief up to the week ending Saturday, February 26, 1848, was 9812.

The relieving officers have complained that they are unable to put many of the able-bodied to work for want of the necessary tools; and a letter was written by the clerk by order of the Board of Guardians, on Wednesday last, to the Board of Works, requesting an immediate order on the nearest depôt to Callan, and stating that they would pay the carriage of them from that depôt.

With respect to the Commissioners' letter of the 18th of January, 1848, I find that up to the present period no extra allowance has been made by the Guardians to persons discharged from the workhouse under section 1st of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act; but by the master's Discharge-book it appears there was only one case, a widow and two children, removed from the workhouse since the Commissioners' circular of the 18th of January, 1848.

I have visited the workhouse daily since last Board-day (March 1), and found everything regular, clean, and proper: the house well ventilated. The new fever wards are now being aired, and will be ready for reception about the beginning of next month.

The number relieved during the past week in the house was 814; remaining in the house at the present moment, 782; in this number are included 63 in house infirmary, and 41 in fever sheds.

In Ballingarry fever ward, 35.

The deaths during the past week, in workhouse 2 adults; in fever sheds 1 child.

On the last Board-day, March 1, 1848, the numbers admitted into the house were 178, out of which number only 58 came in; the greater part of these, if not all, were taken from the relieving officers' out-door relief lists, and were principally able-bodied paupers.

At the present time there are 98 vacancies.

The last two days I have been engaged investigating charges made by some of the paupers as well as by the master, a report of which I have already forwarded.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

WITH reference to your observation, that only one widow and two children were removed from the workhouse since the Commissioners' circular letter of the 18th January, I am to recommend that room should be made in the workhouse for testing the destitution of applicants for relief, by discharging the classes coming under the 1st section.

I am at the same time to draw your attention to the Commissioners' circular of the 18th January, by which you will more fully perceive the Commissioners' views on the subject.

By each week selecting a certain number of persons from the lists of the relieving officers, and offering them relief in the workhouse, a large number of persons may be brought within the scope of the workhouse test.

Captain MUSTERS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

IN reference to your communication of the 9th instant, I have the honour to state that at the present time there are not more than seven cases in the workhouse coming under section 1, 10 Vic., cap. 31, the rest being either able-bodied, or too infirm to remove. These seven cases will be brought before the Guardians on the next Board-day, when I will recommend their removal, according to the directions contained in the Commissioners' circular of the 18th January, 1848.

The number of all classes relieved out of the workhouse during the week ending Saturday, March 4, 1848, was 8515, showing a decrease of 377 from the former week.

4 S

Callan Union.

The workhouse test was applied to every case coming under section 2, which was brought before the Guardians on Wednesday last by the relieving officers; and 83 applicants for relief under the 2nd section were admitted to the workhouse, out of which number only 11 have up to this date gone in.

The last sealed order for out-door relief to the able-bodied will expire on the 25th of this month; and I have cautioned all the relieving officers to have lists made out and ready to lay before the Guardians at their next meeting, showing every case on their respective relief lists falling under the 2nd section of the Act, for the purpose of at once striking off a certain number, and if possible all, by the 18th instant. But from what I have been able to collect of the state of the distress in this Union, I am inclined to recommend that, with the exception of the two electoral districts of Kells and Burnchurch, Grove and Kilmanagh, the remaining five electoral districts should be allowed the benefit of the last order for relief out of the workhouse till it expires on the 25th instant, there being very great poverty in these districts, particularly in the mining district of Ballingarry. This continuance of wet weather has also greatly retarded the farming and out-door operations of all sorts.

The number relieved in the workhouse during the past week was 802, remaining at the present moment 746, in which number is included 81 infirm patients, 58 fever shed patients, and 240 children, leaving 134 vacancies.

These, with the vacancies that may occur from discharges between this time and the 18th instant, will, I consider, leave about 150 or 170 vacancies at the expiration of the out-door relief to the able-bodied, which I hope (with the assistance of the farming and out-door work, which ought to be in operation by that time) will be found sufficient to meet the distress the discontinuance of that order will necessarily occasion in some of the districts of this Union.

I have visited the workhouse daily, and, with the exception of the infirmary, have found it always clean and regular. The nurse in the latter establishment I do not consider competent to fill the situation, which subject I shall bring before the Guardians on the next day of meeting.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to inform you, that in accordance with your recommendation, the Commissioners do not propose to revoke the order, which will therefore remain in force until the 25th instant.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

MAY I beg leave to call your attention to the following resolution which was entered on the minutes at the meeting of the Board this day. From all I can learn from the gentlemen of the Board, it will be very necessary to continue the out-door relief under the 2nd section for at least another fortnight; and your sanction and reply by the return of post, addressed to Kilkenny, will oblige, &c.

ENCLOSURE.

MR. GODFREY JOHN GREEN moved, seconded by William Conway—That immediate application be made to the Poor Law Commissioners for a further extension of time, say one month from the 25th March instant, for the distribution of out-door relief to the able-bodied poor of the Callan Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

I AM to state, that in accordance with your recommendation, the Commissioners have given directions for the renewal of the order for one fortnight.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain EVANS :—March 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners observe by minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Callan Union, on the 8th instant, that the meeting was adjourned on that day to the 18th instant, and in reference thereto I am directed to state, that Mr. J. Burke, Poor Law Inspector, is of opinion that it is necessary that the Board should meet two or three times each week, otherwise much inconvenience will arise, owing to the large number of persons receiving relief in the Union.

Mr. Burke suggests that it would be desirable that you should prevail on the Board of Guardians to meet on two or three days in each week, as he considers it impossible that the business of the Union can now be transacted in one day.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 2, 1848.

I ATTENDED the Callan Board of Guardians on Wednesday, the 29th March, Lord Desart in the chair, and a large number of the members of the Board were in attendance, and the business of the day was conducted in the most regular and orderly manner. The relieving officers were examined and books revised, and although there were only 135 vacancies in the house, admission to 286 of the able-bodied were offered, and out of that number only 20 entered the house on that day, and three on the 31st; and two out of the 20 admitted on the 29th went out of the house on the 31st. You will see that the workhouse test has been effectually applied, and the names struck off the relief lists; and a greater reduction will take place in the course of next week; but as much distress exists in many parts, more particularly in the Ballingarry electoral division, a colliery district, in the county of Tipperary, and also in Mulnahone, where a Mr. Stephenson, who was decreed in consequence of his not paying his rates, having discharged all his men employed in his quarry.

It was deemed advisable to administer out-door relief till the following Board day.

The paupers, males, in number 98, are well clad and fed, and are employed on the grounds, some in paving the new fever hospital, &c., &c.; and the females, who are equally well clad and fed, 236 in number, in spinning and making clothes, which is superintended by the matron and wardmistress; and with the exception of the male paupers, who, in consequence of hearing that the Kilkenny paupers had made an attempt to oblige the Vice-Guardians (in which they failed) to give them an increase of rations, tried the same experiment, but were checked by the chairman, Lord Desart, who acted in a firm and determined manner; and with this exception there is no complaint.

The collectors have not been so active in the discharge of their duties as they might have been, and have neglected to furnish the lists of the defaulting rate-payers; and it was my intention (with your sanction) to have proceeded against them, under the 102nd section of the Act Vict. 1 and 2, for disobedience of orders and neglect of duty; but at the last meeting of the Board they requested that I would withhold my report till the following meeting, when they would have all their rates collected. I did so, giving them at the same time to understand, that in the event of the rates not being collected in full on the 25th instant, on which day they were by bond bound to complete their collection, I should without hesitation recommend the Guardians at once to proceed against the securities.

I have had no reason to complain of the relieving officers as yet. I visited one of their districts on the 31st, where the able-bodied were employed breaking stones in the Ballintagart quarry, county Tipperary, and found them breaking them too large, which it would appear was an order from some of the Guardians; however I ordered them to be broken smaller, giving them a two-inch ring as a gauge. I find on making inquiries that no man could quarry and break stones for the use of the roads for less than 10d. per ton. The road contractors I hear give 5d. per ton for quarrying and 3d. for breaking, when laid on the side of the road for doing so, which task is performed by old men and boys, and in many instances by women; but the farmers have assured me, that they could not provide the broken stones for the contractors for less than 10*d.* per ton; and only 4*d.* has been offered to the Guardians, which I have requested them not to accept, as they will be able shortly to come to some understanding with the grand jury, to compel the contractors to purchase from their Union, which it will be their interest to do.

The expense of the house is gradually reducing, it being 1*s.* 9½*d.* per head for the week ending the 18th of March, and 1*s.* 8½*d.* for the week ending the 25th; but I anticipate a further reduction when we enter into new contracts.

WATERFORD UNION.

MR. BURKE to the COMMISSIONERS—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians :—
March 17, 1848.

I FORWARD herewith a letter (A) dated 11th instant, with two enclosures (B and C), from Sir Henry Winston Barron, Bart., M.P., relating to the state of the Waterford Union, and impressing the absolute and pressing necessity there exists, of either dissolving the Board of Guardians or appointing an Inspector of the Union. On receipt of this communication I altered my arrangements for this week and proceeded at once to Waterford, and having on Tuesday made an inspection of the workhouse and of the additional wards in connexion with it, I attended the meeting of the Guardians on Thursday and submitted to them the accompanying report (D).

Of the incapacity of the master to conduct the management of the workhouse I have had frequent instances, the laxity of discipline and the idleness prevailing within it render this workhouse no longer a test for the lazy and ill-conducted. At the meeting on Thursday one of the medical officers, Dr. Elliot, made a report (E. 1) on the bad quality of the food and the want of clothing for the children, a sample of the bread in use being produced, it was of a very inferior description, although the person supplying it had tendered to give it of the best quality, and for which he had a fair price—namely, 6d. per 4 lb. loaf; this man has been supplying the workhouse since the 18th February, (E. 2), and Dr. Elliot stated that the bread was generally worse than the sample then produced, yet no report of this fact was ever made by the master; on calling for the contract, it appeared that none had ever been entered into, nor was it the practice to have contracts entered into with parties who supplied the workhouse, the tender being the only evidence of the transaction. With regard to the badness of the broth mentioned in the medical officer's report, the person who supplied the meat had 4½d. per pound, and it was to be of the best quality; instead of which it appeared he supplied shins of beef, which generally consisted of eight pounds of bone and only five pounds of meat. I should say from what came out at the meeting of the Guardians on Thursday, that the testing of every other article supplied to the workhouse is equally neglected.

With respect to the finances of the Union, it appears that of the rate made upwards of seven months since, about one-fourth remains uncollected (F), and there seems to be no trouble taken by the Guardians to have this large arrear got in. You will see from the return that while Collector Gamble has collected ten-elevenths, and Collector Jones nine-tenths of their warrants, Collector Fitzpatrick has collected but three-fourths, and Collectors M'Donald and Cosgrave but little more than two-thirds of their warrants. Collector Cosgrave has the collection of the City of Waterford electoral division, and although I urged most strongly on the Guardians at the time of the making of this rate, that the sum to be collected on this electoral division was too large for one collector, and that two collectors ought to be appointed, yet it was agreed by the Guardians that Collector Cosgrave should have the entire collection of the Waterford electoral division; the consequence is, that of 7308l. 12s. 4d., there remains 2177l. 17s. 6d. uncollected by him; and from a return (G), which I got him to furnish, it would appear that of this sum more than two-fifths are due by 100 persons of a class well able to pay.

About a year since a collector of the name of Phelan was found to be a defaulter for nearly five hundred pounds, and having urged on the Guardians to have this man's bond put in suit, it was done accordingly six months since, but, from what cause I cannot learn, the amount of Phelan's defalcation has not since been recovered, although it is stated his sureties are solvent.

The money now in bank to the credit of the Union is but 106l. 15s. 10d., the liabilities of the Union are about 1640l., and the weekly expenditure about 296l. 16s. 1d. (H), yet with this state of things it appears that little or no progress is being made with regard to the striking of a new rate; the Guardians on Thursday stating as their reason for not preparing for making a rate, that they cannot get the books from the revisors. The Union will thus be unprovided with means to carry it on. At the meeting on Thursday the estimate for the Waterford fever hospital could not be paid for want of funds with the treasurer.

From the return of the attendance of the Guardians (I 1 and 2), it will be seen that at the meetings of the Board for deciding on the applications for relief, but few attend. Mr. Bogan, a Guardian, stated on Thursday, that he had to wait for two hours one day this week, before he could get two other Guardians to form a Board; and while writing this report I received a note (K. 1) from Mr. Hayes, a Guardian, stating that there was "no attendance, and the house surrounded with poor objects shivering in the cold." I immediately advised Mr. Hayes, that although it might not be strictly legal, he ought, assisted by the relieving officers, to hear and decide on the applications for relief (K. 2), and from Mr. Hayes's reply it appears he sat unassisted by any other Guardian until 11 o'clock at night, and decided on cases which included 600 persons (K. 3).

It will be seen by the return (L), that but 10 entries appear in the Visiting Committee Book for the last year, and of these seven have been made by Messrs. Newport and Hayes, who are the only Guardians since June last who inspected the workhouse. Mr. Hayes stated at the Board on Thursday, that he has ceased to make entries in the Visiting Committee Book, as they were never attended to by the Guardians.

It will be seen by the return already referred to (I), that but few of the ex-officio Guardians attend the meetings of the Board, and that the management of the Union had in a great measure devolved on the Guardians of the City of Waterford electoral division, many of whom however well inclined, having their own affairs to attend to, cannot be expected to devote the time which the increased duties now devolving on Boards of Guardians require.

The Guardians, as will be seen by the extract from their minutes of proceedings of the 9th instant (M), expressed their opinion "that the general superintendence of this establishment with its intended auxiliaries as well as the general administration of the Poor Law, requires a much more vigilant and constant daily inspection than the Board of Guardians can conveniently or satisfactorily give," and "they therefore resolve that the Poor Law, as regards the interests of all concerned, and without seeking the dissolution of the constitutional formation of Board of Guardians, would be more efficiently, economically, and satisfactorily administered by the assistance of a resident Inspector or paid Guardians, and beg leave to submit this declaration for the consideration of the Commissioners for administering Relief of the Poor in Ireland."

As the suggestion of having paid Guardians acting with a Board of Guardians as at present constituted is quite out of the question, the only matter for your consideration is whether an Inspector is required, and in viewing this matter it must be borne in mind that no order for out-door relief to the able-bodied has been issued in this Union as in the Unions to which Inspectors have been appointed.

The number on the out-door relief list is not large compared with other Unions, being for the week ending 11th instant, 5959. (N).

There is enough of intelligence and business-like habits amongst the Guardians to manage the affairs of the Union if they had but the inclination and could afford the time, and I think if an Inspector were appointed as they propose, it would not be the means of making such a radical change as is required; the Guardians would retain and exercise all their powers and patronage as at present, attend but seldom to the affairs of the Union or to the management of the workhouse, resting satisfied that any defects which might appear in either could be charged to the responsibility of an officer, who so circumstanced, would have many obstacles to contend with in correcting abuses, and placing the affairs of the Union on a better footing.

ENCLOSURES.

Waterford Union.

A.

DEAR SIR,

85, Harcourt-street, March 11, 1848.

I ENCLOSE you two letters received from Waterford on yesterday.

Allow me to impress on you the absolute and pressing necessity of either dissolving the Board or appointing an inspector. The jobbing and neglect of the relieving officers, and the total inefficiency of the master, together with the negligence and jobbing of a portion of the Guardians, are altogether incredible if not witnessed; and ultimately these matters combined, are fast bringing the law into disrepute, and rendering it most unpopular with all parties. If not speedily remedied by the Commissioners, you will find it impossible to carry out the law much longer in that Union.

Faithfully yours,

H. WINSTON BARRON.

I leave this for London to-night.

B.

MY DEAR SIR HENRY,

John's Hill Villa, 4 o'clock, P.M., March 9, 1848.

I WROTE enclosed in a hurry at Board-room, fearing I should be late for post.

Owen Carroll, and Phelan, the mayor, moved an amendment to my resolution to apply for one Inspector only, but affirming the principle that we do require assistance by a resident Inspector. This was evidently done as a side-wind to try and defeat the original motion; but it was at length decided that the original, with the amended part, in regard to one instead of "one or more," should be sent to the Commissioners. A division for the substitution took place, and the amendment was carried by one majority. It is therefore now in the power of the Board of Commissioners to take the subject into consideration, and I hope ultimately to have the entire management of the concern under their own officers, for we are every day becoming worse in regard to the general state of the establishment.

Yours very truly,

G. NEWPORT.

The clerk then received instructions to send the original motion with the amendment—not a very usual way of doing business; but such has been the case; and in such way the Commissioners must see that the principle of having assistance has been reluctantly affirmed by the party who would prefer matters to remain as they are. Mr. Morris, the chairman, has this day resigned, and who they are to get to act in his place is a puzzle.

I think you had better see Mr. Twisleton on the subject ere you go over; and you can show him that all the landed interest are in favour of some decided step being taken.

C.

THE following notice of motion by Captain Newport is for discussion by the Board of Guardians on Thursday, the 9th of March instant:—

"That although the Guardians of the Waterford Union do not desire to shrink from the performance of their duties to the utmost in their power, yet from experience they cannot avoid expressing their opinion that the general superintendence of this establishment, with its intended auxiliaries, as well as the general administration of the Poor Law, requires a much more vigilant and constant daily inspection than the Board of Guardians can conveniently or satisfactorily give.

"They therefore resolve that the Poor Law, as regards the interests of all concerned, and without seeking the dissolution of the constitutional formation of Board of Guardians, would be more efficiently, economically, and satisfactorily administered by the assistance of one or more resident Inspectors or paid Guardians, and beg leave to submit this declaration for the consideration of the Commissioners for administering Relief to the Poor in Ireland."

By order,

JOHN P. HENEY,

Clerk of the Union.

Board-room, March 2, 1848.

Waterford Union. MY DEAR SIR HENRY,

ANNEXED is the circular for my motion this day :—

Two o'clock—Board-room.

An amendment was adopted that the application to the Commissioners should be for the appointment of one Inspector, to be paid by the Consolidated Fund.

It was then arranged that the original resolution, with the amendment, should be sent up to the Commissioners; therefore it is quite in their power to take very decided steps towards placing this Union under their more immediate control.

Yours truly,
G. NEWPORT.

Thursday, March 16, 1848.

MR. BURKE, Poor Law Inspector, having on Tuesday last inspected the workhouse and the two additional wards in connexion with it, has again to call the attention of the Guardians to the over-crowded state of the day-rooms. In a shed in the men's yard, there was scarcely more than standing room for the men and boys in it, and it would be most desirable for their health's sake, if instead of being allowed to remain in such a fetid atmosphere, these people were employed in the open air at some work on the grounds, however useless it might be. Several of the male inmates had on their own filthy clothes, the master stating that he has not a sufficient supply of house clothing; from this cause, and from the over-crowding of the day-rooms, it is not unlikely, as experience has proved, that disease will be generated to some extent.

The alterations of Grady's store, which are now going on for nearly three months, might reasonably be expected to be done in as many weeks, but the work still lingers on; if the alterations in this store were completed, there would be ample day-room accommodation.

There is a system being pursued of having work done by tradesmen at day's wages, which is objectionable, besides being contrary to the Poor Law Act. The master at present has carpenters at work making 80 bedsteads for the new hospital; the regulations for contracts provide that every contract should be procured by tenders duly advertised for; the system of day's work is open to many objections, and is but justice to the tradesmen of the Union to give all an opportunity of offering for goods or work required for the workhouse, besides by tenders, it is done for a defined sum, when by purchasing materials and paying for day's work it is found very difficult in coming at the real cost; in the same way tradesmen are employed by the master repairing Grady's store. The master of a workhouse has quite enough to attend to without adding to his duties the superintending of tradesmen.

Two of the dormitories in the workhouse are still occupied by the sick, but as the new hospital will be finished in a few days, this irregularity, it is hoped, will be discontinued.

It is a matter of regret, and one which the Guardians should endeavour to remedy, to see the number of young men and boys unemployed; the workhouse has in this, as well as in other respects, ceased to be a test: the male paupers seem to be under no restraint as to going in and out of the workhouse, as they are to be met with in all directions through the town.

The workhouse was not as clean as it should be. Grady's store was in neat order, and the wardmaster there appears to be an efficient officer. White's store was very dirty.

Mr. Burke has again to call the attention of the Guardians to the late Collector Phelan's defalcation of nearly 500*l.*, which as yet remains a debt to the Union, although nearly 12 months have elapsed since this defalcation was ascertained.

E. 1.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of PROCEEDINGS of BOARD of GUARDIANS, on Thursday,
March 16, 1848.

Medical Officer's Report.

DR. ELLIOTT, one of the medical officers of the workhouse, reports that the broth provided for the inmates has been so bad as to prove actually pernicious to many of those who partook of it, especially to the children, so that he and Dr. Burkett have been obliged to interdict its use. The bread is also of very inferior quality, and very frequently disagrees with those who use it. Dr. Elliott also reports that much fatal illness is caused among the female children by want of clothes and shoes, as well as by over-crowding.

Moved by Counsellor Hayes, seconded by D. Holden,—“That the report be adopted and entered on the minutes.”

EXTRACT from MINUTES of PROCEEDINGS of the BOARD of GUARDIANS, on Thursday, March 9, 1848.

MOVED by Captain Newport, seconded by Mr. Christmas—

“ That although the Guardians of the Waterford Union do not desire to shrink from the performance of their duties to the utmost in their power, yet from experience they cannot avoid expressing their opinion that the general superintendence of this establishment, with its intended auxiliaries, as well as the general administration of the Poor Law, requires a much more vigilant and constant daily inspection than the Board of Guardians can conveniently or satisfactorily give.

“ They therefore resolve that the Poor Law, as regards the interests of all concerned, and without seeking the dissolution of the constitutional formation of the Board of Guardians, would be more efficiently, economically, and satisfactorily administered by the assistance of resident Inspectors, or paid Guardians, and beg leave to submit this declaration for the consideration of the Commissioners for administering Relief to the Poor in Ireland.”

The following amendment was moved by Alderman Carroll, seconded by the Mayor—

“ That only one Inspector be appointed, and that he should be paid out of the consolidated fund.”

The amendment was put from the chair, a division took place, and the amendment carried. The numbers of the Guardians present and voting were—

NUMBER on out-door relief for week ended 11th March . . . 5959.

JOHN P. HENEY, Clerk of the Union.

O.

BOARD of GUARDIANS—THURSDAY.

ON this day the usual weekly meeting of the Board took place; Wm. Morris, Esq., J.P., in the chair.

Present—Counsellor Dobbyn, L. J. Lambert, P. Carrigan, Captain Newport, John Coghlan, P. Power, Mr. E. O'Meara, Owen Carroll, John J. Aylward, P. A. Power, his worship the Mayor, John Kelly, J. Ryau, N. A. Power, Belview, W. Christmas, John Bogan, Roger Hayes, J. Rivers, T. F. Strange.

The clerk read over the minutes of the last day's meeting.

Captain Newport inquired how much the out-door relief for the past week was.

The clerk answered, 859*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.* for 14 weeks. It is over one penny in the pound on the whole Union.

Mr. Lambert said, he heard that persons possessed of substantial farms were in receipt of out-door relief.

Waterford Union.

Captain Newport and several Guardians said, very many persons who were in receipt of outdoor relief afterwards begged about the country.

Mr. Grady, the relieving officer, said he thought it necessary to attend the Board, in consequence of the extreme destitution that was now prevailing. He found it quite impossible to attend to all the cases which came before him; he knew it to be as frequent for families to be 24 hours without a particle of food as it was for him to eat three times. The poor people had sold out clothes and furniture, and the applicants were daily, even hourly, increasing on his books. He thought three relieving officers would be required to take cognizance of the distress in his district.

Counsellor Dobbyn thought the poor people belonging to Waterford ought to get the preference.

Captain Newport said it would be of the greatest possible importance if the Corporation would employ some of the able-bodied paupers in draining Lombard's Marsh.

His worship the Mayor said the Harbour Commissioners were obliged to keep their dredge boat idle at the quay for want of funds.

Mr. P. A. Power said the Corporation was limited to 20*l.* per week in their labour outlay, and they were actually exceeding it.

Captain Newport did not intend to find any fault with the management of the Corporation, but he thought if an application were forwarded to the Commissioners under whose surveillance the accounts of the Corporation were, they might consent to have the outlay of the Corporation increased.

The election of porter was then proceeded with, and no less than 12 persons presented themselves for the office.

On the Chairman calling for Captain Newport's notice of motion, and which having been read by the clerk,

Captain Newport said he felt it unnecessary to repeat the several grounds upon which he had on former occasions advocated the necessity of applying to the Commissioners to appoint paid Inspectors to administer the Poor Law in this Union. He had so far altered the terms of his original motion as not to interfere with the present constitutional frame of the Board of Guardians, but simply to ask for the assistance of one or more Inspectors, who would be responsible to the Government for the due and equitable administration of the law as regards the interests of the poor as well as the rate-payer. There were now 28 or 30 Unions under paid Vice-Guardians, and a letter he had received from a large landed proprietor in the Union of Kanturk (which had been in a great state of disorder) mentions that Mr. Briscoe, the Vice-Guardian, had brought it to a very satisfactory state of discipline, and that the expenditure had been considerably checked. He would not trespass further on the time of the Board, as he felt sure every Guardian had duly considered the question, and he did not anticipate any decided objection or opposition to the motion which he now begged leave to move for adoption.

Mr. Christmas said, that although on a former occasion he expressed an unwillingness to resign the powers of the Board of Guardians into other hands, as regards the taxation of the Union; still he was free to say, that on the fullest consideration of the subject, he was not adverse to the motion in its present form, which he thought not only unobjectionable, but advisable; and would, therefore, second the motion.

Counsellor Dobbyn said that every day's experience convinced him more and more of the necessity of having responsible paid officers; in fact, the law would not be rightly administered without them. He should therefore support the motion.

Counsellor Hayes said that not only the various contracts, but especially the quality of the food supplied, required a much closer attention than had latterly been given. He had understood from undoubted authority that the children were dying fast of dysentery, from the unwholesome description of food given them. He saw every necessity for Inspectors as Vice-Guardians.

Mr. Aylward deprecated the idea of stultifying the Board of Guardians by applying for Inspectors to assist them, and to look to the Fanning Institution for an example. He would oppose the motion.

Mr. Strange said he thought enough had been proved to show the necessity of adopting the principle of the resolution, and would therefore vote for it.

Dr. Mackesy felt bound to declare that he knew there were very strong grounds for a more satisfactory system in regard to the food, as well as the general management of the establishment; and though at some inconvenience, he remained thus long at the Board to give his cordial support to the motion.

Mr. S. Phelan (Mayor) proposed, and Mr. Owen Carroll seconded, to alter the words from "one or more Inspectors or Guardians," to "one Inspector, to be paid by consolidated fund."

Upon which a division took place, when the numbers and votes were as follow:—

For Mr. Phelan's amendment—Aldermen Phelan, Carroll; Messrs. Carrigan, P. A. Power, Strange, Lambert, Ryan, P. Power, Kelly, William Morris.

For original as it stood—W. Christmas, Esq., George Meara, N. A. Power, M. Dobbyn, Dr. Mackesy, John Bogan, Roger Hayes, J. Coghlan, S. Newport.

Majority for amendment—one.

Captain Newport replied, that he felt the resolution, even in this amended form, would be productive of good, as the general principle had been affirmed.

The original resolution, with amendment, was then ordered to be transmitted by the clerk to the Commissioners.

Mr. BURKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 20, 1848.

WHEN leaving Waterford at 12 o'clock to-day, I met the assistant-master of the workhouse, who informed me that he was in search of a Guardian to make up a Board, two Guardians only being in attendance, and waiting for a third, to enable them to hear and decide on the applications for relief.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS:—March 22, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration a resolution which was passed by the Waterford Board of Guardians, on the 9th instant, requesting the Commissioners to appoint either a resident Inspector or paid Guardians in Waterford Union; and in connexion with that resolution, the Commissioners have likewise had under consideration a report from their Inspector, Mr. Burke, on the management of the affairs of Waterford Union by the Waterford Board of Guardians.

It appears to be agreed on all hands that the duties of the Waterford Board of Guardians are not at present effectually discharged according to the intentions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts; and the Commissioners, therefore, deem it unnecessary to advert either to a former report of their Inspector, Mr. Lloyd, or to the above-mentioned report of Mr. Burke, for a long and detailed statement on this subject. The only question which admits of any reasonable doubt is, whether the appointment by the Commissioners of a resident Inspector is the appropriate remedy for the evils which are admitted to exist.

On this head the Commissioners have to observe that they are authorized to appoint such an Inspector in those Unions only wherein a sealed order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men has been found necessary. No such order, however, has been requisite in Waterford Union, and the Commissioners deem themselves, therefore, precluded from giving a favourable consideration to this alternative; more especially as the Commissioners are otherwise convinced, from the following circumstances, that its results would fall short of what the exigencies of the Union demand:—

From the return of the attendance of Guardians, it appears that but few Guardians attend at the meetings of the Board, for deciding on the applications for relief. One of the Guardians stated to Mr. Burke that he had to wait during two hours on one day last week before he could get two other Guardians to form a Board; and on the day of writing his report, Mr. Burke received a letter from Mr. Hayes, another Guardian, stating that "there was no attendance, and "the house surrounded with poor objects, shivering in the cold!" Mr. Burke advised Mr. Hayes, that although it might not be strictly legal, he ought, assisted by the relieving officer, to hear and decide on the applications for relief; and the Commissioners perceive from a letter of Mr. Hayes, that he sat, unassisted by any other Guardian, until 11 o'clock, and decided on cases which included 600 persons.

It further appears that there are only ten entries in the Report Book of the Visiting Committee during the last year, and that of these, seven have been made by Messrs. Newport and Hayes, who are stated to be the only Guardians who have inspected the workhouse since June last. And the Commissioners are informed that Mr. Hayes stated openly to the Board on Thursday last, that he had ceased to make entries in the Report Book, because they were never attended to by the Guardians.

Waterford Union.

Moreover, it seems that but few of the ex-officio Guardians attend the meetings of the Board, and the management of the Union has, in a great measure, devolved on the Guardians of the City of Waterford Electoral Division, many of whom, however well inclined, cannot be expected to take upon themselves more than a fair share of the important and onerous duties which ought to be discharged at the present time by themselves and their colleagues conjointly.

On the whole, therefore, the Commissioners have arrived at the conclusion that the default of duty on the part of the Board of Guardians is of such a nature as to render it necessary for the Commissioners to exercise their powers under the 18th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act. They have, accordingly, decided to dissolve the Waterford Board of Guardians, and they will proceed with the least possible delay to appoint paid Guardians to manage the affairs of the Union.

The order dissolving the Board and staying further proceedings in the election of Guardians will be issued by the post of to-morrow night.

NEW ROSS UNION.

Mr. BURKE to the COMMISSIONERS: Dissolution of the Board of Guardians :—
March 8, 1848.

I HAVE received your letter of the 29th ultimo, acknowledging the receipt of my report of the 21st ultimo, relating to the New Ross Union, and informing me that you have addressed the Guardians on the subject of the out-door relief lists, and have forwarded a copy of my report to the Inspector of the Union, and requesting me to inform you whether the Guardians have applied the test of labour to those persons who have received out-door relief.

In reply I have to inform you, that having this day attended the meeting of the Guardians I inquired into the matter, and I found that the labour-test has been applied but in three electoral divisions, viz.:—The Rower, Graigue, and Saint Mullins. In the electoral division of the Rower, owing to the exertion of Mr. Chapman, an ex-officio Guardian, the labour-test is applied pretty fairly; but in Graigue and Saint Mullins' electoral divisions I should say it is not. In those electoral divisions Committees were appointed under your order; and it appears that those Committees assumed all the functions of a Board of Guardians, appointed stewards or superintendents of labour, contracted for meal, decided on the cases of applicants for relief, and gave relief not through the relieving officers, but through the stewards or superintendents of labour; such cases not having been brought before the Board of Guardians or initialed by the chairman, until done on my suggestion at the Board to-day. Having examined the relieving officer on the subject, I herewith forward his statement (marked A). The out-door relief accounts have not been checked by the clerk of the Union, nor have the relieving officers with their sureties executed their bonds; and I should say from the Board of Guardians endeavouring to do all their business on the one day in the week, instead of spreading it over three or four days, as I have recommended them, that the out-door relief system has been carried on in this Union in any but a satisfactory manner. With reference to your Minute of the 3rd instant, stating that Mr. Charles Tottenham, of New Ross, called to request that I would attend at the next meeting of the Board of Guardians, to investigate the conduct of the master of the workhouse, who is found to have been charging rations for more paupers than are in the workhouse; and who also stated that the schoolmaster is inefficient, and who has represented that the principal proprietors desire a paid Board; and also to your letter of the same date, stating that Mr. Tighe, chairman of the New Ross Union, had called at the office to state that it was very desirable that I should attend the meeting of the New Ross Board to-day, and adding your being desirous that I should attend accordingly; I have to state, with reference to the charge against the master, I herewith forward the master's statement (marked B). As to the excuses there given by him, I have to observe that had the master carried out the regulation of having the roll called daily, the charging of so many on the provision consumption account beyond the real number in the workhouse could not have occurred. You will find, on reference to reports which I have addressed to you, that I have frequently called the attention of the Guardians to the mismanagement of the workhouse, particularly to the idleness and want of discipline which prevails within it, and I have also had to call the attention of the Guardians to the manner in which the boys' school is conducted, but all to no purpose. On every occasion that I have brought before the Guardians matters connected with the mismanagement of the workhouse, and which brought into question the efficiency of the master, matron, and schoolmaster, my reports were met by statements from Guardians excusing those officers from every irregularity that I may have reported on. There is no regular Visiting Committee; and on looking at the Visiting Committee's book, I found but five entries of visits by Guardians in it for the last year, the latest visit being made on the 20th October last. I have had frequent occasion to complain of the manner in which the clerk's duties have been performed; and in addition to what I have stated as to the relieving officers' books not being regularly checked, I have to state that the collector's accounts are not regularly checked by him. He stated at the Board to-day, that it was impossible for him to attend to those important matters, although an assistant to him has been allowed by the Guardians.

You will see from the return of the attendance of Guardians for eight months, ending on the 29th February (marked C), that the attendance of ex-officio Guardians, with the exception of the chairman, Mr. Tighe, Mr. Brehon, Captain Budgeon, and Mr. Tyndall, averaged little more than twice during that period, that of the elected Guardians, the average attendance of six was twenty-four times, and of the remaining twenty-four was but nine times.

On the whole I see nothing but apathy and indifference on the part of the Guardians, with but a few exceptions, to the proper management of the affairs of the Union.

ENCLOSURES.

I beg to state that there are at present 248 cases of able-bodied persons with their families, comprising 904, who have been getting relief in the district of Graigue and St. Mullins.

The Guardians of those districts entered into contracts for meal, and employed those people under overseers to manage the superintending of the men, and the giving out of the relief, such relief being given by the overseers without coming through me.

PATRICK MURPHY.

Relieving Officer for Graigue and St. Mullins' District.

In consequence of a greater number of names appearing on the workhouse books than there appeared to be inmates in the house, when counted by Mr. Brehon, one of the Guardians, the master was called on for an explanation by the Board of Guardians. In compliance with this call the master most respectfully lays before the Board the following explanation:—

Having been ordered in the month of November last to take charge of the two extensive districts of Graigue and St. Mullin's, as relieving officer, and obliged to act as such for five or six weeks, during this period the pressure of applicants for in-door and out-door relief was extreme; the Board of Guardians sitting up until three o'clock in the morning, and then obliged to adjourn from day to day, so that crowds were daily assembled about the workhouse during those meetings. The admissions took place in several parts of the house; several and several admitted that never stopped, or if they did stop they slipped away next day or the day after with the crowd, there not being a sufficiency of clothing ready for such an increased number. To add to this the whole house was knocked down with influenza and measles, so that several of the dormitories in the body of the house had to be converted into sick wards; together with all this, there was the speedily fitting up and preparing accommodation for the Market house wards; so that the duties, until "some relaxation took place," nearly wore the master off his limbs; so that the inaccuracies complained of principally occurred in the way above alluded to. As soon as the master had any relaxation, he felt uneasy lest those things might have occurred, and had actually commenced revising the house a day or two previous to Mr. Brehon's visit; in fact he was at work the morning of that day with the assistant master, going through each division, and which he has continued until he went through the whole Union, and made such a minute scrutiny that he can safely say that there is not a name on the books at the present moment that is not actually and bonâ fide in the house. He merely states this to show he was not insensible of his position. He hopes the difficulty of the situation under such circumstances will be some palliation for the inaccuracies that have occurred.

As to the rations the explanation the master has to give is, that in the article of bread, for instance, though apparently rations are charged for a number of the healthy greater than what actually received them the overplus was afterwards allowed in the charge for the sick. So in the article of milk; in fact the milk actually consumed was not equal to what is actually allowed, if it could be got. One thing he is certain of, and is ready to verify the same, that a pound of bread has not been issued as rations except to those persons actually and bonâ fide in the house, as he is almost invariably present in the hall at meal-time, and has it so arranged that it is impossible it could occur. The arrangement is this: "sixteen persons are placed at each table and counted by the master;" two four-pound loaves are then laid on each table; the same system is adopted at every meal. With respect to the stirabout and milk, no bread diets to the sick are given except according to the medical officer's directions. Every Saturday night the provision store is counted, and finding the exact number of loaves of bread in store, and knowing the number in store the previous week, together with the receipts of the week, it will show the quantity actually consumed; the master only then placed to the infirm sick, as consumption, the difference between all other charges added together, and the actual consumption as stated above; although the infirm sick consume more bread than appears charged to them, so that the overcharge for the healthy is deducted from the sick. The same system is adopted in every article of consumption in the house, except the material for the stirabout; in that and that only any wrong calculation could occur, and in that even there is an increase of 700 lbs. of meal.

The master hopes the Committee will understand this statement; it is long, but the master felt it his duty to be as clear as he possibly could, as he stated nothing but what he can vouch as truth; at the same time he does not mean to say a cut of bread might not be taken by stealth, which might happen if the numbers were the other way. Neglect there was he must admit; at the same time it was next to impossible to avoid mistake. Known as long as he is master of the house, he will take care such mistakes will never occur again. The master will not say more, but leave himself in the hands of the Committee; his only anxiety is that nothing dishonest or dishonourable should be attributed to him.

The master, in conclusion, subscribes himself, with all due respect to the Board of Guardians,

Their most obedient servant,
(Signed) TERENCE J. ROGERS, Master.

Mr. BURKE to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 8, 1848.

THE clerk of the Union in reading the return of destitute persons relieved out of the workhouse, and not comprised in section 1, on coming to No. 6 district, comprising the electoral divisions of Graigue and Saint Mullins, said, that although the number stated in that return as—30, number of cases relieved, with 60 dependent on them—that there were 200 cases not comprised in this return receiving out-door relief, whose cases were not initialed by the chairman, or came before the Board of Guardians.

Mr. Chapman, an ex-officio Guardian, stated that a similar circumstance occurred with regard to the electoral division of the Rower.

Mr. Michael Brien, a Guardian for Saint Mullins, said that the parties who were receiving out-door relief in Graigue and Saint Mullins were entered on the relieving officer's book, but that the chairman on that day, Mr. Brehon, refused to initial the names, because none of the Guardians of these electoral divisions were present at the Board.

New Ross Union.

Mr. Chapman stated, that on the last Board-day, the 1st March, he and Mr. Brehon, and Mr. Rossiter sat until nightfall, and from the number of applicants outside the door, he was sure there were 200 cases not disposed of. Mr. Chapman, Mr. Rossiter, and Mr. Brehon then left.

The clerk states, that in about an hour and a-half, Mr. Howlett and Mr. James Galavan, two of the Guardians for New Ross, who had been out the early part of the day, returned, went into the applications from New Ross, and continued from half-past seven until near ten o'clock deciding on applications.

Mr. Galavan, a Guardian, stated that he and Mr. Howlett went home to dine; having agreed to meet again at the Board-room at half-past six, when they met Mr. Brehon, and they then proceeded with hearing the applications from New Ross.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—March 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their consideration a report which they have received from their Inspector, Mr. Burke, relating to the administration of relief in New Ross Union, by the New Ross Board of Guardians.

It appears from Mr. Burke's report that in one electoral division, (the Rower), out-door relief has been provided regularly, owing to the exertions of Mr. Chapman, an ex-officio Guardian of the Union; but it also appears that in St. Mullins and Graigue electoral divisions, out-door labour has been provided under the direction of a Committee which the Commissioners sanctioned, for hearing applications and reporting on them pursuant to the 6th section of 10 Vict., cap. 31, and which the Guardians have permitted to assume all the functions of a Board of Guardians, in ordering relief and making contracts for supplies.

It appears by the relieving officer's report that in these latter divisions 248 able-bodied persons are relieved with their families, comprising 904 persons, and that the relief is given by the overseers instead of the relieving officer.

It is further stated that the out-door relief cases in Graigue and St. Mullins divisions have never been brought before the Board; and that the out-door relief accounts are not checked by the clerk of the Union; and that bonds have not been entered into by the relieving officers and their sureties.

It is also found that the clerk is permitted to omit the checking of the collector's accounts regularly, although allowed an assistant.

On examining the financial state of the Union the Guardians appear to have been in debt, on the 31st of January last, 840*l.* beyond the amount in the treasurer's hands; and the current expenses for January were 215*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* being 73*l.* more than was collected; so that the Guardians have been allowing the debt of the Union to augment, notwithstanding that the rateable property is of the annual value of 109,748*l.*, and the population in 1841 was only 74,923.

Mr. Burke has also reported, that although he has frequently called the attention of the Guardians to the mismanagement of the workhouse, particularly the idleness, want of discipline, and the manner in which the boys' school is conducted, no remedy has been applied by the Board; and it is likewise stated that when irregularities were noticed by him, which brought in question the efficiency of the master, matron, and schoolmaster, the Guardians excused these officers.

The Commissioners are further informed that there is now no visiting Committee, and that only five entries were made in the Committee's book in the last year, the last being on the 20th October, 1847.

The consequence of the latter neglect of the Guardians is, that the roll has not been called daily in the workhouse, as required by the regulations; and the master has been charging in the provisions account for a greater number of persons than were in the house.

The master, in a report forwarded by Mr. Burke, ascribes his irregularity to his having been ordered in November last to act as relieving officer for St. Mullins and Graigue electoral divisions, where he was for five weeks; at which period he states that the Board of Guardians had to sit until three o'clock in the morning, adjourning from day to day.

However, the absence of the master and the pressure in the meantime on the house still more required the observance of the prescribed regulation of the daily roll call, which presents so easy and perfect a check on the accounts. New Ross Union.

The Commissioners have further to observe that the attendance of the Guardians at regular meetings to discharge the duties imposed upon them as a Board, has not been satisfactory.

It is shown by a return of the Guardians' attendance, that in eight months, ended 29th ult., the attendance of ex-officio Guardians, with the exception of the chairman and three others, average little more than twice, while seven did not attend at all; and that of the elected Guardians, although six attended twenty-four times on an average, yet as many as twenty attended only nine times.

On a consideration of all the above-mentioned circumstances, the Commissioners are of opinion that notwithstanding the valuable services of the chairman and of other individual Guardians, the Board of Guardians as a whole has failed, duly and effectually, to carry out the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts. The Commissioners therefore transmit herewith a sealed order for the dissolution of the Board, and they will proceed to appoint paid officers to manage the affairs of the Union.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 24, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians experience great difficulty in carrying out the instructions of the Commissioners with the present staff of workhouse officers; they are without exception quite incompetent.

They have given the master notice that as soon as another can be obtained his services will be dispensed with, and have issued a notice that they will receive applications from candidates for the office. The Vice-Guardians propose to do the same with the matron as soon as her health shall be sufficiently re-established.

The clerk, although allowed two assistants, has not obeyed the repeated instructions of the Vice-Guardians, and the tenor of his conduct is a tissue of excuses for his neglect, instead of attention to his duties.

Under these circumstances, the Vice-Guardians request the Commissioners' authority to procure another clerk in place of Mr. Barron, who they find it impossible to get to discharge his duties from idleness and procrastination.

Should the Commissioners have it in their power to recommend any competent person to undertake the duties of clerk, the Vice-Guardians will be most happy to give such salary as the Commissioners will sanction, and request he may be sent to New Ross forthwith. Perhaps, from the emergency of the case, the Commissioners may send a clerk from their office in the meantime.

From the state of arrear into which the business has been allowed to run, and from the remissness of duty on the part of the clerk, some of the collectors, and the officers generally, it is absolutely necessary that immediate measures be taken to prevent a total stoppage of the Union business, and the closing of the house.

REPLY to the above :—March 25, 1848.

The Commissioners fully approve of the Vice-Guardians taking active steps to replace any of the present Union officers by persons who will discharge the duties required, efficiently.

The Vice-Guardians will have the goodness to suspend, in accordance with the 41st article of the General Regulations, such of the Union officers as they may deem to be inefficient, stating briefly on the minutes of their proceedings the facts which have influenced them in their decision in each case. Such officers should then be called on to send in their resignations.

The Commissioners are prepared to sanction a salary of 80% or 90% for a competent clerk of the Union, and they would suggest that the Vice-Guardians should at once advertize for candidates for the office.

The Commissioners regret that it is not in their power to detach any gentleman employed in their office, to act as clerk of the Union.

New Ross Union.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to bring to your notice the following important subjects:—

Last evening between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock I happened to be out from my quarters, when I observed several paupers rambling about the town. I desired two of them to accompany me to the police-station, where I obtained the assistance of a constable, and then brought them to the workhouse. On my arrival at the house I found lights in all the dormitories, fires in the rooms, and numbers of persons, some employed in the washhouse, and others idling about. I desired that all persons should be sent to their beds, and the lights and fires extinguished. The master I desired to call the roll; he stated that the paupers were very disorderly, and "that it was as much as his life was worth."

This morning about half-past 10 Mr. Braddell and myself were in the act of transacting business in the Board-room, when the whole mass of paupers, male and female, rushed into the hall, and endeavoured to break down the door dividing the entrance from the Board-room stairs. (This door the porter had locked on seeing the rush of paupers from the main building). As I found the riot increase I desired the door to be opened, in order that I might see what was going on, and if possible appease the tumult. I was thus enabled to identify certain individuals, and Mr. Braddell some others of the ringleaders. The people proceeding to acts of personal violence to some of the paupers who endeavoured to defend us, throwing caps, cans, and sticks at Mr. Braddell, the porter, and myself, I desired the porter to go to the police barrack and obtain a party of men, and to give notice of the state of affairs to a magistrate. In the course of a few minutes a party of the 34th regiment arrived, and soon afterwards some police, when order was directly restored.

We selected the ringleaders, two men and four women, who were at once sent to the court-house, where Mr. Cooke, resident magistrate, Mr. Talbot, and Dr. Howlitt, magistrates, had assembled. After our depositions had been taken the whole of the offenders were taken from the dock to Wexford gaol, having been sentenced to the full penalty the laws allowed, viz., one calendar month imprisonment with hard labour.

I beg most respectfully to urge that the Commissioners will, if it be in their power, send persons to fill the offices of master, matron, and clerk. With all our exertions we cannot preserve order without competent officers to carry out our directions, and the proceedings I have stated above will I am sure show the necessity that exists for immediate assistance on this point.

I may mention that the paupers said their object was to get back their old Guardians and master who have been dismissed.

Mr. George Braddell who was with his brother was severely hurt, being struck with stones and pursued through the streets by the paupers to the police barrack.

Mr. Tottenham, one of the principal persons in this district, well described the house to me yesterday in a few words; he said "it was a pleasant hotel for paupers."

Mr. Braddell and I will do all in our power to render it what it should be. I attribute the riotous proceedings of this day to those steps we have taken to establish order, and which we will enforce; the paupers hitherto being uncontrolled.

I trust that the line of conduct we have adopted on this occasion will meet with the approval of the Commissioners.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 25th instant, relating to the disturbance which occurred in the workhouse of the New Ross Union on the 24th and 25th instant, and I am to state that the Commissioners entirely approve and thank you for the prompt steps which were taken to restore order. The Commissioners trust that the efforts of the Vice-Guardians to bring the establishment into proper condition will be successful.

If the master of the workhouse had not been already called upon to resign, the Commissioners would have issued an order under seal for his dismissal.

New Ross Union.

The Commissioners regret that they are unable to send down to New Ross a master and matron for the workhouse, and a clerk for the Union; they find, however, that the Vice-Guardians will be enabled to obtain at once the services of an efficient clerk, and they trust that they will be equally successful with regard to a master and matron, for whom advertisements should immediately be published.

A copy of a letter has this day been addressed to the clerk of the Union, notifying the Commissioners' intention to issue an order for his dismissal.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 27, 1848.

HAVING reference to my report of the 25th instant, relating to the riotous proceedings of the inmates of the workhouse, the Vice-Guardians have received information which induces them to believe that to certain of the officers of the establishment may be attributed the origin of these irregularities. I annex copies of statements made by some of the paupers, and it is the intention of the Guardians to have Michael Neal and the four women who assaulted Eliza Myers brought before the magistrates to-morrow, to be dealt with as the law directs.

The paupers are naturally dissatisfied at the change that is making in the habits of indolence and disobedience that they have so long indulged in, and the officers are opposed to a system that will entail on them attention to their duties and a less prodigal expenditure of stores.

I am daily more convinced that until a total change of the present set of officers be effected, there will be but little advantage to be obtained.

I beg to suggest that Mr. Burke be requested to inquire minutely into these matters on his next visit to this Union.

Mr. Hill, the officer of police, was present at the time the annexed statements were made to me.

It is worthy of remark that all the doors of communication had been unlocked, and that no attempt was made to preserve order by any officer of the house, with the exception of the porter.

STATEMENTS referred to in foregoing.

John Allen states that he heard Michael Neal, a pauper in the house, calling on the people to riot on the morning of Saturday, the 25th March, and he said that those who would not join were a parcel of cowardly fellows.

Anne Long states that Michael Neal, one of the paupers, came to the women's day-room, and told them to be ready to make a riot as soon as the Guardians came to the house. She also states that the acting matron gave a boy the key to let Neal into the women's yard; she was told that some men had received a bottle of whiskey. On some of the women (Kate Grady in particular) returning from the attack on Mr. Braddell, and saying "they had killed him," she (the acting matron) laughed and told them to go back again, and she did not open the door to let the women into their own building, until the police arrived.

Eliza Myers states that she was severely beaten by four women named Magee, Mary Holden, Bridget Connolly, and Biddy Kent, because they said she was an informer.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 28, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 27th instant, relating to the disorderly conduct of some of the inmates of the workhouse of the New Ross Union, and I am to state in reply that the Commissioners are of opinion with you that it will be advisable that inquiry should be made with a view to the punishment of the parties who may have been concerned in instigating the inmates in the disorderly conduct referred to.

Mr. Burke proposes to be at New Ross to-morrow, and he will be instructed to make the necessary inquiry at once. Should anything prevent Mr. Burke from attending at New Ross as proposed, the Commissioners request that you will be so good as to conduct the inquiry yourself upon oath, for which purpose

New Ross Union. you are invested with exactly the same powers as Mr. Burke, or any other Poor Law Inspector.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 30, 1848.

IN compliance with the instructions contained in your letter, dated 23th March, I have the honour to forward an abstract of the evidence I have been able to obtain on the subject of the disorderly proceedings of the 25th instant. The only important fact elicited is, that Johanna Dunphy, the acting matron, was cognizant of a riot being intended, and that she connived at it.

ENCLOSURE.

Thomas Roche, a pauper in the house, being duly sworn, states that on the morning of the 25th March, 1848, the doors of the sleeping-rooms were opened before the usual hour, much sooner than he had ever before known; they were opened by John Malowney.

John Finnerty, being also duly sworn, states, that a man named Thomas Allen told him that George Rogers, the master's son, came into the day-room on the 25th March, and asked the men why they did not join in the riot; Allen told him (Rogers) to go about his business. As far as evidence can ascertain, a boy, named Peter Keogh, obtained the keys from the acting matron to let the women out of their building.

Thomas Allen being duly sworn, states that during the riot on the 25th, four men, named Cooney, Tobin, Myers, and Butler, came in and desired the men in the day-room to turn out; evidence does not recollect having seen George Rogers on the 25th, or having told Finnerty anything about him on that day.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 6, 1848,

WITH reference to your communication of the 30th ultimo, forwarding evidences on the subject of the disorderly proceedings of the 25th ultimo, which occurred in the workhouse of the New Ross Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they have given directions for the preparation of an order directing the dismissal of Johanna Dunphy from the office of assistant matron of the workhouse.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 28, 1848.

New Ross Union.

IN continuation of my reports dated the 25th and 27th instant, I have to inform you that several of the paupers who were engaged in the riot of the 25th March were this day brought before the magistrates of New Ross, and were dealt with as follows:—

Michael Neal, to stand his trial at the ensuing quarter sessions.

Patrick Kelly, two months' imprisonment with hard labour.

Bridget Magee, Mary Holden, Bridget Connolly, each one month's imprisonment with hard labour.

Bridget Kent, fourteen days' imprisonment.

I forward copies of the informations sworn against Michael Neal.

ENCLOSURE in foregoing.

County of Wexford, } The information of John Allen, Thomas Roche, Anne Long, and to wit. } Catherine Fretton, paupers in the New Ross Union workhouse, who being severally sworn on the Holy Evangelists, depose and say as follows:—

The said John Allen saith, I remember a riot which took place in the New Ross Union workhouse, on Saturday the 25th day of March instant; Michael Neal declared in the room where I and other paupers were, that they were a cowardly set if they did not turn out, meaning to resist the newly appointed Guardians.

The said Thomas Roche saith, on the morning of Saturday the 25th of March instant, Michael Neal came into the ward where I and other inmates were, and said this is the time, now or never, to turn out and keep out the gentlemen, meaning the newly appointed Guardians.

The said Anne Long saith, on the morning of Saturday the 25th day of March instant, Michael Neal came into the womens' day-room in the New Ross Union workhouse, and told them all to be ready to make a riot, now or never; called out the mob, held up his hand, and called upon them to follow him, not to let them (the new Guardians) come into the house, to take their lives if they did.

The said Catherine Fretten saith, I recollect the riot in the Union workhouse, on the 25th of March instant. Michael Neal came into the women's day-room, said come on now, that they should have their own old master and mistress.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 4, 1848.

WE beg leave to inform you that we have devoted very considerable time and attention to an inquiry into the actual state and position of the New Ross Union, embracing the financial affairs of the Union, the economy and management of the workhouse, the state of its inmates, and the mode in which out-door relief has been administered,—an inquiry in which we have had to encounter obstacles of no ordinary difficulty, arising as much from the want of all method, and the absence of all order on the part of the clerk, in the transaction of the usual routine of his duty, the consequent confusion and disarray of his papers, and impossibility of obtaining access to the necessary documents from which information might be obtained, as from the most palpable neglect upon his part of the common and ordinary duties of his office; nor has this inefficiency been confined to the clerk.

The master appeared to us to have completely neglected the most important duties of his department, and to have delegated those duties to subordinate and irresponsible deputies. All the officers seem to have been originally selected without the slightest reference to fitness or capacity.

Our first step was, to call upon the Commissioners to dismiss those officers forthwith. The effect of this decisive step was exhibited in a regularly organised riot upon the part of the inmates, acquiesced in, if not originated, by the officers.

The doors separating the different apartments in the workhouse were on the morning of the 25th ultimo unlocked, the inmates of the workhouse in one mass rushed into the porter's hall, forcing the door, and attempting to break into the Board-room. Missiles of various descriptions were hurled against the Vice-Guardians. Mr. George Braddell having attempted to expostulate with the rioters, was instantly assailed with stones, knocked to the ground, kicked, and had several severe contusions inflicted upon different parts of his body; he succeeded in breaking away from them, and brought up the police and military to the rescue of the Vice-Guardians. Order was then restored, and some of the most turbulent rioters were at once brought before the magistrates, and dealt with according to law.

New Ross Union.

The financial position of this Union on the 14th day of March, shortly before our appointment, was most unfavourable; a balance of 73*l.* 2*s.* 5*d.* appeared by the Bank book to its credit. A considerable sum was then due to the various creditors of the Union, amounting (from what we can at present discover by our own unassisted exertions) to a sum of 1139*l.*, exclusive of officers' salaries. We are engaged in the investigation of those demands.

An appeal against the rate made upon the New Ross electoral division, with the grounds of which the Commissioners are already conversant, having been brought before the assistant barrister, he decided against the legality of the rate. We fear the effect of this decision will be embarrassing, and that the Vice-Guardians may be called upon to refund moneys already collected, creating thereby an increased demand upon their funds.

A rate appears to have been made in July last, amounting to the sum of 20,094*l.*; of this rate and arrears of the former a sum of 6668*l.* remained uncollected upon the 31st ultimo, of which sum 2348*l.* remained uncollected on the electoral division of New Ross at the same date.

On several divisions, viz., New Ross, Adamstown, Clongeen, Horetown, Templedeegan, and St. Mullins, the rate made exceeded 3*s.* in the pound.

We are informed, although no document to that effect can be produced to us, that the Commissioners have remitted so much of the rate upon those divisions as exceed 3*s.* in the pound; this, therefore, must diminish by that excess, the sum to be now collected.

From this statement of the amount still uncollected, it is obvious that the rate-collectors have not discharged their duties with due diligence, and that they have suffered that period to elapse at which it would have been comparatively easy to enforce the collection of the rates.

No proper examination of the collectors' accounts has been observed, and no possibility hitherto of ascertaining whether they retain any money in their hands. We have instituted a minute and rigid examination into the state of their accounts, and have examined their block checks from the commencement of the rate made in July; the result of this examination has been, that two of the collectors appear to have small balances in their hands.

One, Mr. White, on being notified thereof, appeared and undertook to lodge the amount forthwith; the other, Mr. Galavan, who got notice to the same effect, has written to excuse his attendance, on the ground that his haggard was burned by some malicious persons, and that he was engaged in serving the usual notices to recover the value. We consider the latter a most inefficient officer, and but that his collection is so near its close, would feel it our duty to call for his instant dismissal.

The conduct, however, of all the collectors has been so extremely dilatory, that we have served them with notice that they must lodge each week a certain sum proportioned to the amount remaining uncollected on their divisions; and have instituted a regular weekly examination of their Rate Receipt Check Books, and enforced from them the observance of the Commissioners' order of October last.

We attempted to obtain from them daily statements of their progress in the collection of the rates; but this we find inconvenient in practice, and difficult to enforce. We have fixed on the 24th instant for the final close of the collection of the rate, and the collectors' accounts.

The effect of this constant supervision over the collectors will be seen from the fact, that on yesterday, the 3rd instant, the balance in favour of the Union, as per treasurer's book, is 680*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*, and would have been considerably greater but for the damaging effect of the assistant barrister's decision, which has of course paralyzed the collection of rates in the Rossbercon portion of the New Ross electoral divisions.

We propose to make a new rate forthwith, that it may be put in process of collection about the 1st of May, and are now endeavouring to procure some data to show the amount which should be levied on each division.

The expenditure of this Union has been gradually increasing in amount, and threatened to absorb any rate that could be made unless arrested in time.

The expenditure for out-door relief amounted on the 23rd March to 276*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; the expenditure on foot of this account has, principally by our exertions in scrutinizing the out-door relief lists, been so far reduced as to amount now to only 164*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.* for one week. We propose making this scrutiny retrospective, and to examine every name on the lists with a view to such further reduction as may be expedient.

We fear that one at least of those officers, namely, Mr. Cody, has not hitherto been always guided by the provisions of the statute and the order of the Commissioners in his administration of relief.

In every other department there seems ample room for retrenchment: one further instance may suffice. We annex a table, showing the alleged consumption of wine and ardent spirits for the half-year ending 25th March last, together with the explanation given by the medical officer on the subject,—an explanation we deem inadequate.

We find that the books of account prescribed by the Commissioners have not been duly kept. There is not a figure in the Ledger since September, 1847.

Those very important books, the relief lists, have been much neglected; the abstract of the relief lists has not a figure since the eighth week of the last half-year.

The clothing books have not been properly written up and balanced; nor can the state of the clothing in store be collected from the Clothing Receipt Book.

Notwithstanding the number of bills for articles supplied, not a single entry is discoverable by us in the Inventory Book since August last. No Labour Book appears to have been kept; nor can we find that the Wants' Book has been kept by the master. The last entry in the Visiting Committee Book appears to have been made on the 2nd of October last.

The out-door register was not written up with sufficient regularity. The relieving officers' accounts were not regularly and properly examined, and great time has been expended in getting up the arrears.

The workhouse we have endeavoured to make available for such able-bodied persons as we must hold to be destitute; and we attribute the diminution of the out-door relief lists to the rigid application of the salutary test arising from the offer of the workhouse to able-bodied applicants for relief. We contemplate a personal examination of the inmates of the workhouse, in order, if possible, to make it still further susceptible of this test, by giving the aged and infirm the option of being relieved outside.

The discipline of the workhouse has been most lax; no proper classification has been observed. That restraint, without which a workhouse ceases to be a test of destitution, has been totally neglected; the paupers were daily to be seen wandering at pleasure, not only through the town of New Ross, but the adjoining county (living instances of mismanagement and abuse), to the great annoyance of the respectable portion of the community. An instance came before our notice, where one of those paupers knocked at a gentleman's door in the vicinity and demanded alms.

The workhouse grounds have been much neglected, and will probably remain for this season partially uncropped. Yet there are at this moment in the house 88 able-bodied men, and 47 strong healthy boys over 15. This we can only remedy by the exertions of an efficient master.

Accompanied by your Temporary Poor Law Inspector, we on Thursday night last, between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock P.M., inspected and examined the several dormitories. It would be difficult to convey the most faint conception of the utter want of ventilation that existed in those apartments; on the opening of each door, a dense steam of confined air, impregnated with the most noisome and pestilential effluvia, assailed us, almost intolerable to endure even for a moment. It is a matter of surprise how any living being could long exist in an atmosphere so polluted. We would, therefore, request that the Commissioners may be good enough to direct the attention of their architect to this subject, with the view to remedy what we conceive to be an evil of no ordinary magnitude, and calculated to engender contagious diseases. The children's dormitories did not appear to us to have had any grown person present for the purpose of giving such assistance as might be required to those helpless creatures, who lay in various attitudes about the room.

The dysentery ward appeared less objectionable, and more cleanly.

We inspected a building styled the Market-house, in which the male paupers sleep. We found it cleanly and well ventilated; it gives rise, however, to the inconvenience, unavoidable with the present staff of officers, of affording

New Ross Union. facilities to the roving habits of the paupers, and the relaxation of due restraint.

The day-room for male and female paupers appeared to us close and confined, and imperfectly ventilated; the paupers, able-bodied and infirm, huddled together, rendering the atmosphere insupportable.

Proper attention has not been given to ensuring a sufficient supply of water; recourse is too frequently had to the fever hospital pumps, thereby exposing the inmates of the workhouse to imminent risk of contagion.

The pipes leading to the laundry have been suffered to go out of repair, and for the purpose of obtaining a supply of water, the very objectionable course is adopted of admitting male paupers among the females.

We visited a building set aside for the children, styled the "College Ward," now under the superintendence of a ward-mistress of our own appointment. This ward does not appear to us to be at all suited for its present purpose. The ward-mistress reports that she cannot exercise due control over the nurses, who are principally young women, nor prevent their absenting themselves, there being no wall or enclosures to this place. We purpose, with the sanction of the Commissioners, to make another arrangement, and to place there instead, the sick and infirm paupers, who have neither inclination nor ability to wander, and for whom this place, from its position and elevation, is peculiarly adapted. The refractory ward is dilapidated, and, in its present state, unsuitable as a place for punishment.

We visited the schools, male and female, and examined the children as to their proficiency. The male school was not in a satisfactory state as regards the cleanliness of its occupants or general appearance; the female school was much more creditable, and the children appear to have been attended to.

We have observed that hitherto the streets of New Ross have been infested by hordes of mendicants plying their wretched calling with all the outward semblance of misery and want; yet on inquiry we find that those very persons are recipients of out-door relief. We have, therefore, required the relieving officers to notice them, that in future they will be struck off the lists if found begging.

The remedial measures we propose under this state of things are, in the first instance, the appointment of an efficient staff of active and intelligent officers, to assist us in the administration of the relief of the poor; the enforcement of the due collection of the rates, by a daily supervision of the progress of the collectors, and subjecting their accounts to a stringent systematic and weekly examination; and in future by the selection of competent collectors, at a fair remuneration, annexing a condition to the bond of those officers, that their collection must be closed within a fixed definite period; by obtaining, as far as possible, all supplies required by the workhouse at contract prices, for which we advertised, having previously placed the funds of the Union in such a position, as to enable us to avail ourselves of such tenders; by availing ourselves of the sealed order of the Commissioners, empowering us to hold meetings in various parts of the Union, and by personal inspection of the mode in which out-door relief is administered, by constant supervision of the discharge of their duties by the respective officers of the workhouse.

Out-door relief having been hitherto administered in money, we have substituted relief in kind by giving 1 lb. meal to adults, and $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. to all under 15 years of age, being of opinion that, independently of its value in an economic point of view, an additional test will be thereby obtained, and real destitution discriminated from its simulation.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report of the 4th instant, relating to the management of the affairs of the New Ross Union; and with reference to the amount of rate remaining uncollected in the Union, I am directed to request your attention to the Commissioners' letter of the 5th October, 1847, in which it is stated that where the rate exceeded 3s. in the pound, an instalment of this amount, duly calculated by the clerk, might be received in the first instance.

The portion of rate left unpaid may be now collected separately, or carried into the new rate under the head of arrears.

It will be observed that the order regulating the collection of rates directs a weekly attendance of each collector with his books, for examination, if the Guardians so require; and if any of them shall wilfully disobey this order, he may be proceeded against under the 102nd section of the Act 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 56, if the Vice-Guardians make a written direction for the weekly attendance, and have it served personally on each collector.

The Commissioners fully approve of the Vice-Guardians' revision of the out-door relief lists, and recommend that all the relief stations be occasionally visited, for which object they will be prepared to sanction an allowance for the outlay in providing conveyances to and from these places. If any relieving officer be found inefficient, he should be called upon to resign; and if more than inefficiency be proved in any case, the officer should be reported for dismissal by the Commissioners.

In reference to the quantity of wine and spirits consumed in the hospital, the Commissioners desire to draw attention to the annexed copy of a circular from the Board of Health, recommending the use of spirits instead of wine.

The observations on the neglect of ventilation in the dormitories have been communicated to the Commissioners' architect. The windows have been made to open, and care should be taken that they are not closed at night. It is also useful to place perforated zinc plates in the upper part of the windows to carry off foul air.

The proposed arrangement for placing in the additional building, called the College Ward, only the sick and infirm inmates of the workhouse, is very judicious, and should be at once carried into effect.

To check mendicancy in the Union, the proposed withdrawal of out-door allowances from all persons found begging, should be rigidly enforced.

The Commissioners regret to observe that so many able-bodied men and boys are in the workhouse, while the grounds are uncultivated; and they trust that immediate steps will be adopted for setting them to work in rendering the site available for some useful object.

Captain BURMESTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 6, 1848.

YESTERDAY I attended the weekly meeting of the Vice-Guardians. I acquainted them that I had received a letter of credit for 500*l.*, being the amount of a loan from the British Association to the Vice-Guardians, and that I had placed that sum in the hands of their Treasurer, to enable them to provide for the destitute poor, at the same time intimating that repayment of the loan will be required out of the proceeds of the new rate.

The Vice-Guardians have many very serious difficulties to contend with, owing to the total want of accounts and documents. The late clerk places every difficulty in their way; and it is almost impossible to obtain the necessary information regarding the state of the finances. As the Vice-Guardians have a portion of the clerk's salary in their hands, I recommend them not to pay it until he furnishes the accounts of the Union.

I am glad to be able to state that some energy has been shown in getting in the rates during the past week. One collector (Mr. Galavan), has been most remiss, and has been informed that steps will be taken against him unless he proceeds with more despatch.

The reduction of expenditure on account of out-door relief is also satisfactory, the reduction made being from 276*l.* to 164*l.* in one week.

The Vice-Guardians published a notice requiring all persons having claims on the Union to send in their accounts. Bills have already been sent in to the amount of upwards of 1300*l.* The due investigation of these accounts will be a matter of considerable difficulty, from the want of the necessary record. This debt of 1300*l.* includes only a portion of the salaries.

The late Guardians appear to me to have, in some instances, expended money in a manner not contemplated by the Act of Parliament. I find some charges for combs, beads, and books.

The expenditure of wine and spirits has been most unreasonable. The wine consumed from 29th September to 25th of March last was 1547 bottles of whiskey 347 bottles; porter 294; and brandy 62 bottles. The statement furnished by the medical officer only accounts for 554 bottles of wine, 97½ of whiskey, and 25½ of brandy. In fact, the system hitherto adopted in this workhouse appears to have been one of disorder, and misappropriation of public money.

New Ross Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 10, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 6th instant, relating to the New Ross Union, in which you state that you have recommended the Vice-Guardians not to advance the portion due of the salary of Mr. Barron, the late clerk of the Union, until the accounts of the Union are placed in a satisfactory condition; and in reference thereto I am to state that Mr. Barron is not entitled to receive his salary until the accounts up to the 25th ultimo have been audited.

I am at the same time to state that Mr. Barron should be informed that the Vice-Guardians will have to consider what proportion he will have to bear of any expense which may necessarily be incurred in putting the accounts which he has left in confusion into order.

As regards the items of expenditure mentioned in your report, I am to state that Mr. J. Burke, Poor Law Inspector, has been instructed to institute an inquiry into the circumstances. The attention of the auditor will also be drawn to the subject.

CAHIRCIVEEN UNION.

The KNIGHT of KERRY to the Right. Hon. Sir W. M. SOMERVILLE, Bart., M.P. :—
January 29, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit, for the information of the Government, an unexaggerated description of the state of the district with which I am connected.

ENCLOSURE.

Second Statement of the actual State of the Electoral Division of Valencia.

THE people of all classes were better off in the beginning of 1847 than in the beginning of 1848; their houses were better thatched; they had some furniture in them; they were better clad; they had some money laid by. The children were well clad; the small farmer had some stock on his ground; from one cow up to five or ten; they had more or less of potatoes in store; there was some stock of oats in the country; some gains were obtained from the public works, however improvidently conducted, generally speaking.

The potato lands have not been cultivated; oats (except in some instances where the seed was advanced to the farmer) are little sown.

In the present year the houses are miserably, if at all, thatched; the furniture has been sold for food; the clothing is in rags; all little hoards of money have been exhausted; the cattle have been sold, whether for rent, provision, or taxes; fishing, which generally supplied a large portion of food, has been unproductive from the unexampled severity of the weather.

People are making extraordinary efforts to restore potato culture; never before has there been so much sea manure collected at this season; it is of the greatest importance that the poor people may be enabled to apply it to seed for the ensuing year; many a poor man would forego a meal in the day to spare a little seed.

There is very little employment from independent sources, except what the proprietor may apply. The people are greatly less able to work in 1848 than in 1847; honest laborious men have continued to struggle on in their enfeebled state, until they have fallen over their spades in exhaustion, even in the lightest description of labour.

There are above 700 persons in the parish of Valencia in extreme want; another class comes after these, who are now a little less in want, of these not one-sixth hold land under the proprietors.

M. FITZGERALD, Knight of Kerry.
January 29, 1848.

To the Right Hon. Sir W. M. Somerville, Bart.
 &c. &c. &c.

Colonel CLARKE'S OBSERVATIONS on the foregoing.

THE comparative state of the people as drawn by the Knight of Kerry is unfortunately too true, and is equally applicable to the whole of this Union. and, I believe, every other in the south and west of Ireland; but the Knight's observations refer principally to the class of persons who cannot be relieved under the Poor Law; and though one-sixth of the destitute persons may not hold land directly from the proprietor, fully one-half of the remainder hold as sub-tenants, and appear on the rate-books. At the same time advantage has not been taken of the means of relief at command; and the people profess that their attachment to the island, of which the Knight is the lord, is so intense, that they prefer a lingering death by starvation, to crossing a ferry of one-third of a mile (which they do daily on the most ordinary occasions) and go into the workhouse.

Everything possible under the Poor Law has been done for Valencia; a separate relieving officer has been appointed on the Knight's own nomination; every name he had on his list, approved by the Vice-Guardians, and food issued to him for their support. In addition to this, 460 children are fed daily in the schools, which is a greater proportion than in any other electoral division; at the same time 200 labourers are constantly employed on drainage and the slate mines.

W. A. C.
February 9, 1848.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—February 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners beg to return the enclosed papers, referred to them on the 3rd instant, in which the Knight of Kerry draws attention to the present state of the poorer classes on the island of Valencia, as contrasted with their Cahiriveen Union. condition at the beginning of 1847, and the extreme want to which a large number of them are now reduced.

The Commissioners annex a copy of the observations made on these papers by Lieutenant-Colonel Clarke, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, resident in the Union.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 5, 1848.

I HAVE much gratification in being able to report to you that I do not yet feel myself called upon to recommend out-door relief to the able-bodied. To avoid this has been the more difficult on account of it having been resorted to in the adjoining Unions; but I have impressed so strongly on the rate-payers that such a measure would press most heavily upon them, that I believe a healthy spirit has been roused, and that there will not be that wholesale trade of imposition practised which prevailed during the last and preceding years; at the same time it must be admitted that there is much distress and misery amongst the small landholders, who will not give up possession; and it is this class that is alluded to in the various representations made respecting the island of Valencia.

The number now receiving in-door relief exceeds 1200. There are 200 female children lodged in two convenient houses close to the town (but separated by a branch of the harbour), where they sleep and are fed under the care of a superintendent and the schoolmistress. In the immediate vicinity of the workhouse a house is appropriated solely for nurses and infants: this is a great relief to the workhouse, as this class is always most difficult of management. About 350 men and boys occupy other houses near the workhouse as dormitories only. By these means the Vice-Guardians have been able to treble the in-door relief; and as soon as the sheds shall be made habitable, 120 more may be admitted.

The great evil is the want of clothing. I had made arrangements for the immediate supply of 300 suits; but it appears the contract had expired, and the Guardians did not feel themselves at liberty to sanction what I had done, but have advertised for tenders. I am sorry for this delay, but believe they have acted in strict accordance with your instructions.

Somewhat more than one-third of the 3s. rate has been collected, and many of the highest rate-payers have promised payment immediately after the fair, which takes place next week.

An application has been made by the Roman Catholic clergyman of Glenbeigh for a medical officer, recommending the appointment of his brother. It appeared to me very objectionable to place the whole operations of relief under the control of one family,—the one brother having the entire patronage of four National schools, in which 740 children are fed, another being the relieving officer; and it was not shown satisfactorily that sickness to any extraordinary extent was prevalent. The Vice-Guardians did not, therefore, feel themselves under the necessity of applying to you under the 5th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, which was communicated to the reverend gentleman, on which he wrote to the Vice-Guardians saying that the people were dying almost daily of disease and starvation; and though he felt bound in conscience to mention these things, that, of course, the Guardians would not notice them. I had the relieving officer before me on Thursday, when one of the clergy of this parish and many other persons were present, and examined him closely as to whether any person had died during the last three weeks, after applying to him for relief; if so, had he refused relief, and on what grounds; and whether the Guardians had supplied him with the means of relieving all cases of sudden emergency. He fully admitted that he had no knowledge of any such cases, that he must have known of them had they occurred, and that he had money at command. I was glad of an opportunity of giving so complete a negative to a grave charge, affecting not only my own character, but that of gentlemen who are unceasing in their endeavours to perform their arduous duties conscientiously.

The rate-payers generally are very desirous that relieving officers should be appointed for each electoral division. I think this might be done as a temporary measure under the present pressure. The electoral divisions of Caher and Killinane are at present combined; the population is about 10,000 and the area 46,000 acres, embracing the most destitute part of the Union; and though I recommended Prior and Killemanagh to be united, which, in appearance on the map, form a very compact district, I find the communication is intercepted by a range of mountains, is always difficult, and often impracticable. I think it would, therefore, be desirable to appoint temporary relieving officers for Killinane and Prior. Cahiriveen Union.

I have great reason to be satisfied with the manner in which the master and matron of the workhouse have conducted their duties under no ordinary difficulties. The house is kept beautifully clean throughout, and, comparatively speaking, there are few disorderly or refractory cases. I felt it so necessary to make a prompt example of any that might arise, that last week I had three tailors brought before the Court of Petty Sessions for refusing to work, who were sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour.

The deaths in the infirmary have been few—the last week only nine. I am informed that at this period of last year from 20 to 30 died weekly, when the inmates of the house only averaged about 350. I think, considering the character of extreme destitution which has always been attached to this Union, that the facts of no out-door relief having been required until within the last fortnight, and that out-door relief to the able-bodied is not yet absolutely necessary, show that the benefits I anticipated from the dissolution of the late Board of Guardians, were not overrated.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 8, 1848.

THE Commissioners are prepared to take into their consideration the reconstruction of the relief districts, as you suggest.

I am at the same time to request that you will have the goodness to communicate on the subject with the Vice-Guardians, in order that they may record on the minutes of their proceedings at their next meeting, the arrangement which they may propose to make.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report to you, that at the ordinary meeting of the Vice-Guardians, which took place this day, tenders were put in for the supply of clothing and bedding, which will relieve the most pressing necessity.

The clerk of works has arrived, and will proceed immediately to make the temporary sheds habitable, and erect the boundary wall. It is desirable that I should know the exact sum that remains from the building loan, in order to regulate the expenditure accordingly.

I am gratified in being able to state that there is a manifest improvement in the appearance of the paupers generally, and most particularly with the children; and when they shall be clothed it will make a very great improvement in their condition. There was this day 1241 in the workhouse and auxiliary buildings; of these, 155 were in hospital, not a very great proportion, considering the condition of those who came into the house. Deaths are very few, and from what I can learn, malignant disease was never less known in this part of the country.

There is much importunity for relief by those who will not go into the workhouse; but there is no turbulence nor disorder, and I believe the determined attitude assumed by the Guardians has been mainly instrumental in producing that effect. About 6000 individuals, including those in the schools, are now fed with the greatest order and regularity; and I believe few now remain who can be relieved under the Poor Law; but the lists will increase weekly by the addition of those whom circumstances will oblige to give up their land.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th instant, enclosing certain regulations adopted by the Vice-Guardians of the Ballina Union, for the employment of able-bodied paupers receiving out-door relief.

Cahiriveen Union.

I had given my attention to the subject, and was prepared to lay before the Vice-Guardians some suggestions not differing materially from those under consideration. It is well known throughout the Union that labour will be exacted from those receiving relief, either in or out of the workhouse; and the applications from the able-bodied are comparatively few; and as there will be additional room in the workhouse by the completion of the sheds, out-door relief to that class is not yet required.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 19, 1848.

IN my report to you of the 5th instant, I had the honour to bring under your notice the subject of a letter from the Roman Catholic Clergyman of Glenbeigh to the Vice-Guardians, stating that the people were dying almost daily of disease and starvation. I transmit herewith a return made by the relieving officer, by which it appears that only one person died who had made any application for relief, and that, before the Vice-Guardians had commenced their duties.

ENCLOSURE.

DEATHS within the ELECTORAL DIVISION of GLENBRIGHT during the three weeks ending the 3rd February, 1848.

January 30th.—Mary, wife of Owen Sullivan, of Curra, of influenza; held no land; aged 60 years; applied for relief before the 1st January.

January 17th.—Julia Griffin, 80, widow, died of old age at Ballinakilla; lived with her daughter, who has four cows; did not apply for relief.

February 1st.—Catherine Keane, 80, widow, of old age; lived with her son Simon; had no land; did not apply for relief.

January 6th.—Mary, daughter of Michael Riordan, at Coolnahorigal, aged 10; died of chin-cough; did not apply for relief.

January 22nd.—Mary, wife of John Griffin, of Reenuligaun, of fever; held no land; aged 32; did not apply for relief.

January 20th.—Margaret Shea, 55, wife to Tom Shea, of Curriheen, of fever; held a small portion of land; made no application for relief.

January 15th.—Joyce, wife of John Naughten, of Curriheen, aged 65; died of old age; held no land; did not apply for relief.

Daniel Murphy, 42, single, died of inflammation in the bowels; lived at Curriheen; held no land; did not apply for relief.

Killorglin.

February 4th.—Michael Brennan, 18, single, at Knocknaboulla, of small-pock, at the house of his mother, a poor woman without land; applied for relief, and was admitted into the workhouse a short time before.

Dated this 10th day of February, 1848.

Signed by me,
JOHN ENRIGHT, Relieving Officer.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

ON maturely considering the circumstances of this Union I cannot but arrive at the conclusion that the time has now arrived when the aid of the British Relief Association has become absolutely necessary.

The various reports I have had the honour to make to you, have put you in complete possession of every particular connected with the administration of the Poor Law since my appointment as your Temporary Inspector. When I arrived, I found the Union deeply involved in debt; credit at an end; and the workhouse without clothing for the inmates, and devoid of every necessary. By the unceasing efforts of the Vice-Guardians, all these evils have been greatly mitigated, and the in-door accommodation increased from 400 to 1,200. Debts of old standing nearly all paid off—credit restored; and I believe, a more healthy spirit of self-dependence engendered in the country; but unless the Vice-Guardians be enabled to maintain this position, a retrograde movement must take place; and at the expiration of my period of service, I should have the mortification of leaving the Union in as bad if not worse state than I found it.

The present rate will be mostly collected, and the most energetic measures are now in progress to enforce payment from those who are holding back; but it must be considered that to provide clothing and necessaries for the great additional number of in-door paupers, and to pay off incumbrances, will absorb almost to the last penny; and it is my honest conviction that the country is not able to bear any additional taxation at the present time. I would therefore suggest that your recommendation of this Union to the British Relief Association for immediate consideration, is highly important.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th ultimo, requesting a list of immediate lessors who have not paid their rates, and a special report on certain points connected with the collection of rates and the condition of the people.

I have called upon the collectors for a return of immediate lessors who have not paid, and I have reason to believe there will be very few cases in which it will be necessary to have recourse to legal proceedings.

The actual amount of rates collected since my appointment to the present time is about 2400*l.*, being somewhat more than 2*s.* in the pound; but this sum embraces part of a 1*s.* rate which was struck in July last, and the 3*s.* rate now in course of collection, of which about 1400*l.* is still unpaid.

The obstacles to the rate being collected arise from various causes:—the first and most prominent is the general impoverishment of the people by the failure of the potato, it being the only produce of the country; corn of any description being almost unknown. Grazing for one or two cows, with a potato garden, is the usual holding; the butter pays the rent, while the skimmed milk and potatoes form the only diet known. To elucidate more clearly the class of persons who form the bulk of the population of the Union, I will take an electoral division, which is not the most destitute, and show an analysis of the holdings, of which there appears 804 rated to the Poor Law:—

438	are valued under	£4
287	over £4 and under	10
52	„ 10 „	15
14	„ 15 „	20
10	„ 20 „	25
2	„ 25 „	30
1	the highest and only tenant rate-payer over 30 l.	47
804

This will represent about 4000 individuals subsisting on the land, and as the population is about 5250, 1250 are without any support whatever. This in itself shows a state of pauperism scarcely to be imagined in a civilized country, and it is surprising how the majority of these persons have contrived to pay 4*s.* in the pound, in addition to county cess, amounting in some instances to 1*s.* 9*d.* more, since July last.

The extreme poverty of the tenantry naturally affects the proprietors. I believe the rents are generally two years in arrear, and in many instances much more. I have knowledge of gentlemen in this Union who would make any sacrifice rather than have their names brought forward as defaulters; and yet are unable to meet the full amount of their present rates.

I do not think there is negligence or dishonesty in the collectors, but it is easy to imagine that men in their class of life feel diffidence in approaching their superiors, probably their landlords, to demand money; but I believe the rate will be mostly collected, and the defaulters, with very few exceptions, be those who are really unable to pay.

In consequence of the people not having tilled their land but to a very limited extent for want of seed, potatoes are now as scarce and dear as at the corresponding period of last year; and this being purely a pastoral country, there is no absorption of labour for money wages, by which other food might be procured; therefore the small farmers have been obliged to sell their milch cows, upon which they should depend, for their next payment of rent. There can be no stronger proof than this of the exhaustion of means; and the representation of the Knight of Kerry, upon which I submitted some observations under date of the 9th ultimo, most feelingly points out the actual state of destitution of the people generally.

I considered my appointment to this Union to embrace a two-fold duty:—in the first place to see that the laws for the relief of the poor were carried out in their fullest integrity; and in the second, to produce a moral revolution in the minds of the people, by convincing them that their well-being depended upon their own industry and exertions, and not in becoming craving recipients of food, wrung from the means of those scarcely better off than themselves. Had I arrived here in ordinary times, and found the Union clear of incumbrances, I could have pledged myself to success in both those objects, and even now I perceive signs of a more healthy state of feeling than has prevailed; but if additional taxation be now imposed, the people will sink in despair, become reckless of consequences, and the country be in a worse state than ever: and this feeling would be greatly aggravated by the fact of the Union having been selected as one to receive aid, provided every exertion were made; and I believe but for that expectation, the present rate could not have been collected, and that in place of active industry now displayed in cultivating the ground, the mass of the people would have given up possession and thrown themselves on the Poor Law for support.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 8, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' thanks for your report.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for an advance of 200% to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 6, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd instant, requesting my opinion as to how far it may be desirable to suspend, on the 18th instant, all orders under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

As out-door relief to the able-bodied has not yet been found necessary in this Union, the question is, whether it may not yet become unavoidable. If I were to be guided by the relief lists of last year, and that there is no prospect of labour being required, and that the months of April, May, and June are those in which distress is most severely felt in this country, I should be forced to the conviction that out-door relief to the able-bodied will become a necessity; but every day's observation the more strongly convinces me that the greatest imposition was practised under the Temporary Relief Act; and 300 persons of that class having discharged themselves from the workhouse during the last three weeks, induces me to hope it may be done without.

I have now about 3600 children attending public schools who are fed daily: this will be increased 200 in a few days; and I have made the system of the Count Strzelecki instrumental in establishing three additional schools in districts where education had been totally neglected, and is re-opening a National school that had been abandoned. Taking these, with about 4000 widows, orphans, and impotent persons receiving out-door relief, and 1200 in the workhouse, making a total of 9000, it forms a very large proportion of the entire population, and ought to be fully equal to the real wants of the Union.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I AM sorry to have to report to you that a spirit of insubordination has broken out amongst the able-bodied male paupers in the Union workhouse. On Thursday they combined in a determination not to work unless they were paid for so doing by additional food. I had about 30 of the most refractory brought before me, and was met by open defiance. I was apprehensive that they would have proceeded to violence, and sent the master to the nearest magistrate to acquaint him with what was going forward, and to request the aid of the police; but Dr. Barry was from home, and chief-constable Perry, commanding the police force in the absence of Mr. Fletcher, refused to give any assistance without the order of a magistrate. This state of things continued all yesterday; but this morning, Dr. Barry having returned, I have had informations sworn against seven of the ringleaders, who will be lodged in the Bridewell this night.

It is unpleasant being exposed to the attack of such ruffians without any protection, and it may be worthy of consideration if the Vice-Guardians should not be put in the commission of the peace. I have been consulted by some of the gentlemen of the country as to whether an appointment to the magistracy would be pleasing to me; but I have objected to any application being made, as I know every unpleasant duty would be thrown entirely on myself.

Mr. Power informed me yesterday that the most urgent and pressing private affairs required him to be absent from the Union for a few days. I informed him that I had no power to grant leave of absence, and that if he went it would be entirely on his own responsibility. I believe nothing short of the most absolute necessity would have induced him to absent himself at this particular time. Should he not return before the next Board-day I will make a special report to you on the subject.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of Government has been drawn to your communication with reference to the case of insubordination in the workhouse, and the want of protection for the workhouse officers.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 1, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you that I have received a communication from the Count Strzelecki, on the part of the British Relief Association, informing me that the demands upon their funds are so heavy as to oblige them to limit the period of affording relief to the 30th June, and requesting my opinion as to the most eligible mode of bringing operations to a close. I have been obliged, in my reply, to enter rather largely on the present state and future prospects of the Union, and as it embodies most of those points I was about to bring under your consideration, I do myself the honour of transmitting a copy of my letter to the Count.

I have endeavoured to collect the materials required for the return referred to in your letter of the 29th ultimo; but I find the clerk has kept no account whatever of salaries or liabilities, and I am convinced that every return he has furnished connected with finance is fictitious. I shall sit with him daily until every account is brought into a state of regularity and the returns completed.

With respect to the renewal of your sealed order authorizing out-door relief to widows with one child and orphans, I should not consider it necessary, but that our in-door accommodation will be contracted, as one of the temporary sheds will be occupied as an infirmary until the works now in progress shall be completed. It is, therefore, desirable that it should be renewed for two months.

ENCLOSURE.

Colonel CLARKE to Count STRZELECKI:—April 1, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 29th ultimo, which has received my most serious attention. I was apprehensive that the pressure on the funds of the British Relief Association would be such as to exhaust them before the time when the forthcoming crops would become available.

It is not to be inferred from the small number of persons in this Union on the relief lists, as compared with last year and other Unions, that extreme poverty and destitution does not exist; on the contrary, I believe there is no Union in Ireland where it is more universal. On examining the accompanying analysis of the rate books, it will be seen that only eight persons hold land and tenements, valued at more than 50*l.* per annum, and only 22 above 30*l.* The highest rate-payer in the Union is valued at 30*l.*, which comprises a salmon fishery; while the average proportional valuation is only 14*s.* 4*d.* to each individual.

Under such a state, it is not to be expected that rates can be collected from persons who are scarcely removed from absolute pauperism themselves; for it is universally admitted that there is not a farmer's family in the Union so well fed and clothed as the inmates of the workhouse, and but for the quarter-acre clause, I believe that four-fifths of the entire population would have been on the relief lists.

At a moderate calculation, the expense of maintenance of paupers to the 29th September next will be about 4000*l.*; this is exclusive of establishment charges. The amount to be col-

Cahirciveen Union. lected of the current rate, with the small balance in the treasurer's hands, will about discharge present liabilities; and the question remains, how this 4000*l.* is to be raised, and it has caused me much anxious thought. Looking to the circumstances of the people, I know that a rate struck at the present time would be unproductive, and ruinous in those cases where it might be enforced. In agricultural districts the growing crop cannot be seized; but here the growing crop is the cow, on the produce of which a man depends for the payment of his rent and feeding his children, and if he be deprived of it, as he might and would be, he at once becomes a permanent pauper.

I almost fear that my not having been an urgent claimant on the funds of the Association, may induce the belief that the Union did not require extensive aid; but my object has been to carry out the Poor Law in its utmost integrity, and to found a claim for assistance on showing honesty of administration, and that the country, after making every exertion, is not able to bear any additional burthen at the present time. In proof of the latter, I have only to state that within the last nine months poor-rates and county cess, to the amount of 5*s.* 9*d.* in the pound, have been collected, and to meet the expenditure up to September next, it will require 4*s.* in addition. If I am enabled to find food for the destitute until that time, I should entertain the hope of more prosperous times than have ever been known in this Union. The fearful calamity of nearly two years' famine has not been an un instructive lesson, and I perceive a healthy spirit of industry and exertion springing up, which cannot fail to produce a beneficial effect on the minds and habits of the people. I have never desponded; I have relied greatly on the natural elasticity of the Irish character, and if the germ of future prosperity should first take root in this remote spot, I shall consider my having been connected with it the most gratifying event in my public career.

I have given the subject of reducing the number of rations to the schools due consideration, and on the receipt of your letter, intimated that, as a general principle, 20 per cent. would be struck off the ration lists on the 30th April, to be followed by another 20 per cent. on 28th May, and that the period of the final close would depend upon your instructions; but that I thought it would not extend beyond the 30th June. I am of opinion that this arrangement is preferable to making a clear sweep at any one time, as seeing the number gradually reduced prepares the minds of those that remain; and I believe this is the view generally understood on the subject.

Cahirciveen, April 1, 1848.

WILLIAM A. CLARKE.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 5, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners will at once renew the limited outdoor relief order adverted to in your report.

The Commissioners assure you that they appreciate the value of your services, and they attribute the comparative absence of demands for pecuniary assistance from Cahirciveen Union to the course which has been adopted by you.

When there is an absolute necessity for further extraneous assistance to the Union, the Commissioners rely on your formally reporting to them again on the subject accordingly, as they are convinced that you will not request aid from the funds of the British Association prematurely or unreasonably.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 5, 1848.

WITH reference to your letter of the 1st instant, respecting the verdict returned on a coroner's inquest on the body of Daniel Brien, found dead on the high road, I have the honour to transmit the report of the relieving officer of the district in which the circumstances occurred.

ENCLOSURE.

Cahiriveen Union.

Mr. Joy, Relieving Officer, to the VICE-GUARDIANS of the Cahiriveen Union:—
April 4, 1848.

In reply to your communication concerning Daniel Brien, deceased, I have to inform you that it was proved before the magistrates who attended the inquest, that he was from Tuosist, in the Kenmare Union, and that he was strolling about Killorglin for four or five days; that he belongs to the Killarney Union; that he could get no lodgings there; that he strolled about until he got into a house in my district, of a man of the name of Patrick Robert, who treated him with the greatest kindness, and procured some boiled milk for him; that the following day he left Robert's house, and was found dead in a field on the lands of Annadale. In short, gentlemen, he was only a day and night in my district, and never applied to me for relief.

REPLY to the foregoing:—April 11, 1848.

I AM to state for your information that a copy of your report has been forwarded to the Under Secretary for Ireland.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 15, 1848.

THE good effects of a general system of regularity are already perceptible in the improved condition of the in-door paupers.

The only difficulty the Vice-Guardians have now to contend with is the want of funds; and how this is to be met is a matter for very grave consideration. I have a list of defaulters to the present poor-rate; and as each case will require investigation in order to decide upon ulterior proceedings, I have deemed it best not to take any step until the return of Mr. Burchaell.

The defalcation of the secretary of the Tralee savings' bank falls very heavy on this part of the country, and will form the ground of excuse for non-payment of poor-rate, even by those who were not depositors.

Colonel CLARKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—April 19, 1848.

As the period approaches when my term of office as your Temporary Inspector will expire, I am desirous of making you acquainted, not only with the present state of this Union, but as to the probable operation of the Poor Law in the time to come.

The various reports I have had the honour to make to you have put you in full possession of every particular as to the state in which I found affairs on my arrival, and the measures adopted to meet the pecuniary embarrassments and pressure of distress existing in the Union. These measures have been attended with more success than I could have anticipated; a great proportion of the outstanding debts have been discharged; clothing in abundance provided for the workhouse; the dietary of the paupers improved; out-door relief to the able-bodied not required; and not a single authenticated death from destitution. I am myself surprised at these results, particularly when I look at the returns from other Unions in this county, where there are rich proprietors, with extensive farms of the most fertile soil, with a proportionate valuation to the population trebling those of this Union.

This is a gratifying picture, but must not be mistaken for a sign of riches or prosperity, but as a proof that the Vice-Guardians and relieving officers have done their duty, and that the poor have been most patient and forbearing under their privations.

There never could have been a more unpropitious time for trying a gigantic experiment in political economy than that when the present law for the relief of the poor came into operation; with the mass of the people demoralised by being gratuitously and almost indiscriminately fed during the preceding two years, the effects of which will naturally clog the prosperous working of the law for years to come.

Could this Union be brought back to its nominal state before the failure of the potatoes, the expenditure under the Poor Law, at a fair moderate calculation, would be about 3200*l.* per annum, or an uniform rate on the Union of 3*s.* in the pound: this, though heavy upon so poor a district, would not be unsupportable. But circumstances are totally changed; there are upwards of 3000 persons, of Cahiriveen Union. the classes entitled to out-door relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, who may now be considered as permanent paupers. These were formerly supported by the charity of their neighbours and friends; but the dire necessities of famine have frozen up those kindly feelings, which were so prominently conspicuous in the character of the Irish peasantry; and the knowledge that they are entitled to relief under the Poor Law, leaves no prospect of any reduction of this number but by the death of the aged and infirm, and the growth of children into adults.

This consideration naturally leads to the question as to the capability of the Union to bear the expense of supporting such a body of paupers. By a return I had the honour of transmitting you on the 8th instant, it appears that, even supposing the present rate to be collected in full, an additional sum of 6980*l.* is required to meet the expenditure up to the 29th September next, to raise which would require an uniform rate of upwards of 6*s.* in the pound. The collection of such a rate upon an Union where only 40 ratepayers hold lands or tenements valued at more than 30*l.* per annum, would be problematical under the most prosperous circumstances; and at the present time I believe that to strike any rate would have the worst possible moral effect, and be totally unproductive. I know that, with the exception of the few parties who will be proceeded against, a great effort has been made, not only to pay the current rate, but to keep impostors off the relief lists, and that the workhouse and out-door relief can only be sustained until the next harvest shall become available, by the liberal aid of the Government and the British Relief Association.

In your letter of the 5th instant you did me the honour of expressing your conviction that I would not request aid prematurely or unreasonably. I am highly gratified with that assurance, and it emboldens me in reiterating my conviction that every possible exertion has been made by the Vice-Guardians and the people, and that the moment has now arrived when the promised aid may be legitimately demanded.

REPLY to the foregoing :—April 26, 1848.

I AM to state that, whenever the current rate outstanding in the Union shall be sufficiently reduced to leave only a moderate amount of arrears to be carried forward, a new rate should be made, although not put into collection at once; and that when the urgent necessities of the Union may require advances from the British Relief Association, the Commissioners will be prepared to recommend such aid to be given on applications from time to time.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 31, 1848.

1. HAVING been duly invested with the administration of the affairs of this Union by your sealed order of the 26th instant, we beg now, conformably to your communication of the 28th instant, to present a report on the aspect of the Union, and our proceedings.

Rates.

2. It appears that a rate of 2s. 11d. in the pound, conjointly for the purposes of Temporary Relief Act, and ordinary expenditure, amounting nominally to 11,920l., was signed by the late Board of Guardians on 27th November last. From disappointments in procuring collectors, the placing of the rate in proper collection has been delayed up to the present time. An arrangement, however, existed during a part of the current month, by which the clerk of the Union received rates paid at the Board-room, first through the medium of treasurer's receipts, and subsequently in cash; a rebate of 2s. 6d. in the pound was made for such payments. By this mode of collection a sum of 2,112l. has been lodged with the treasurer. In the greater number of the divisions we have discovered that the arrears had not been inserted previous to the signing of the rate, and in some their introduction is unfinished yet; these arrears, as returned in the collectors' arrear sheets, differ materially from the actual sums appearing by the minutes to be due of former rates, the differences being unaccounted for by the previous collectors. The rate-books in no instance express the chargeability of the immediate lessor by name, but merely by the words "immediate lessor;" and in all cases where the rate is so entered, the names of occupiers are altogether omitted, rendering the description of the person liable for the rate extremely vague, and identification hereafter by the collector possibly attended with difficulty. The returns made up by the clerk, of which copies are transmitted to you, show the rate and arrears amount to 11,920l.; but in reality when the rate-books are made up, from the defalcation in the arrears, the total will be considerably short of that sum.

3. With reference to the difficulty connected with the rates, we have already addressed a letter to you, in which we suggest a resignature of the books by us as paid officers, if that be practicable, so as to ensure the legality of a proceeding of such vital importance as the making of a rate; and the probability of appeals renders it more than ever a matter of the utmost necessity, that a rate should be able to stand the test of legal investigation. We have urged the clerks to greater diligence in finishing the books, so that they soon will be in a completed state.

Rate Collectors.

4. The services of four persons, Messrs. Scott, Fitzgerald, Shaw, and M'Culloch, from distant parts of the country, have been engaged for the collection of the rate. Being satisfied with their sureties we have duly appointed them. Pending your approval we have directed their bonds to be perfected; and they are in the interim making themselves acquainted with their duties, so that when all preliminaries are arranged, they may at once vigorously commence the actual collection of the rate.

Workhouse.

5. A review of this establishment exhibited to us many defects. In the points of management, we observed that the majority of the inmates, embracing nearly all the adults, were without the Union clothing, and remained in the tattered and miserable garments which form the dress, or rather absence of dress, of the pauper population. The supply of bedding was so meagre, that many of the inmates were huddled together in the dormitories, and, with the animal heat generated by close contact, tried to make up for the absence of covering. The schools appear most defective in the requisites for educational or industrial training. The serving of the meals most irregular, accomplished without system, and not until an advanced period of the day, calculated sadly to augment the progress of disease. Classification imperfect: the able-bodied men and the women, with the exception of a few females who sew a little, totally unemployed. Repairs to a considerable extent required: the pump in men's yard gone altogether to destruction, the well being only available by means of a bucket, and everything connected with the plumbing department being entirely out of order, the supply of water dependent on its conveyance from the Shannon river, half a mile distant; thus causing (or at least pleaded as an excuse for) the absence of cleanliness which characterizes the establishment, and the lateness in having the meals prepared. The glazing of the windows defective, and regulated ventilation, the medical officer states, thereby prevented; thus encouraging the spread of disease amongst the inmates. Whitewashing for a long time unused, which, independent of sanitary consequences, gives an unsightly aspect to the wards. The earthen floors, from inattention, full of pits and inequalities; the yards irregular and unclean; the drains allowed to become completely useless, so that in rainy weather some of the wards are completely inundated, though, from the position of the building, sufficient facilities for good drainage exist; the locks out of order, and every facility existing for the intermixture of the classes and sexes; cesspools requiring cleaning; sickness prevailing amongst the inmates, beyond those in infirmary, and patients suffering from infectious diseases, in dormitories of main building, amid the healthy; the mortality high, and appears to have been so for some time past; a defective supply of implements and utensils; dietary of an imperfect, but by no means of a correspondingly economical character; the infants in nursery wearing a miserable appearance, and the paupers generally exhibiting unhealthiness, although the house is not inconveniently crowded—indeed we think, by proper management, it might be made to contain many more inmates, as some wards are yet quite unoccupied; no contracts were in existence, and therefore the supplies of a most defective description, not even compensated by cheapness in price, and the deliveries of some articles irregular and opposed to the convenience of the establishment; no amount of stores, either as regards food or clothing, such as should be, to provide against temporary embarrassment arising any hour, causing much evil; any property there was, such as fuel or straw, unprotected from waste.

6. Few of the wretched habits of the paupers when living outside seem to have been corrected since their admission, and their state appears little ameliorated or improved save by their having the shelter of the workhouse walls.

7. We have had scarcely yet sufficient opportunity of forming an accurate estimate of the capabilities of the officers. The schoolmaster has tendered his resignation. The master, it appears, was withdrawn from his duties recently by illness, which occasioned some additional confusion. The temporary assistant master has scarcely exhibited that diligence since our arrival which we should desire. The matron and schoolmistress seem to be active officers, and we doubt not, under proper management, shall effectively perform the duties of their respective situations. However, future reports shall convey more minute and deliberate opinions with regard to the officials.

8. Our supervision has been exercised to correct, as far as possible, the evils to which we have referred. We have advertised for contracts, directed the introduction of several improvements in details of workhouse management, and we are preparing an amended dietary table. A schoolmaster will be forthwith elected in room of the person resigned. We have received, through Captain Wynne, a supply of clothing, which will be most usefully applied when properly marked (a process heretofore unattended to). We propose to convert the upper idiot wards to increased infirmary accommodation, opening a communication between them: to sink a new well, appropriating the machinery of old pump, now lumber, as far as possible for it; we would require to deepen the former well to make it of any use, and we think it better, and likely to be little more expensive to make a new well altogether in a more desirable part of the premises, and removed from the line of drainage.

We shall proceed to the important duty of employing the able-bodied male inmates so soon as the present severe storm is over, from this we expect salutary results; we arrange also for the more effective employment of the women. We have succeeded, perhaps to a slight extent, in arousing energy amongst all connected with the institution, already productive, we think, of advantage.

Account.

9. Nothing can be more miserable or hopeless than the aspect of the accounts; they are in the extremity of confusion, a state which has been in existence from a period many months past. The master's books, during the employment of a former officer, fell altogether into arrear, and of course all the accounts dependent on them ceased to be kept. The present master's accounts, from his late illness, were, for some weeks preceding our taking charge, left unattended to. He and his assistant have been employed during the past week in bringing them up; but of their correctness we must have doubts, as materials did not exist for preparing them (from the defective system of recording transactions) even for that recent time. The accounts, when a former clerk and master were in office, can never be made to represent the actual transactions of the Union—an unfortunate circumstance both in connexion with the economy of the expenditure and statistics. The waste and loss of Union property appear to have been great, but it is impossible ever to determine the extent of this loss, or indeed to draw a correct conclusion of any kind, where accounts are to be assumed as the basis.

10. Our especial direction shall be given to this part of Union affairs, so essential to the well working of the Poor Law system. The main safety in restraining waste and promoting honesty, arises from the punctual keeping of the accounts and adherence to the forms provided for same. When officers are not accurate in this department, they are usually found defective in every other. We will make it our object, by removing the ignorance of the officers, and exciting diligence with regard to the accounts, to effect as many improvements as possible. We are not without fears that the number of inmates appearing by the books to be in the house may not exactly correspond to the facts; and we shall, by an early enumeration, investigate this particular. The provision and ledger accounts, so important, shall be put in course of immediate restoration to order, and we will employ additional assistants for this purpose.

Funds.

11. In this particular, a balance of 603*l.* was at disposal. From the removal of the branch of the London and Dublin Bank, which acted as treasurer heretofore, we were obliged to transfer our account to the National Bank Branch in Boyle. We trust the sum at disposal will keep us afloat until the new rate collectors recruit our finances.

Out-door Relief.

12. These officers (nine in number) have been all before us: in most cases they appear competent, but not particularly conversant with their duties; their books were in a most defective state. The Application and Report Books, with the exception of a page or two at the commencement, had not been initialed by the chairman, or received the directions of the late Board, scarcely any relief being authorized by it. Many hundred applications recently received by the relieving officers had been yet uninquied into. No arrangements had been made for the relieving officers receiving proper supplies of food for distribution, nor stations provided them; they seemed to have relieved the able-bodied indiscriminately, although distinctly informed by Captain Wynne to alone send that class to the workhouse. It appears to us that, by the defective manner they have been managing their duties, applicants crowd upon them who have no claims for relief.

13. We proceeded to investigate the applications so far as we were able, and will complete the entire examination of the Arrear Book with the least possible delay. Until a provisions' contractor can be obtained, we have placed money in the officers' hands to purchase meal: we have instructed them to give no relief to the able-bodied without exacting a task of work; and to enable them to do this have directed them to employ temporary superintendents at 1s. per day, wages, and procure stones for breaking at 6d. per ton, until more formal arrangements can be made. We have applied to the offices of Public Works for hammers; and so soon as the weather improves, we hope to have the test of stone-breaking in full operation.

14. We are quite sure that, from want of a proper supervision of the relieving officers by the Board of Guardians, numbers have been provided with relief who are not proper objects for such: we are also disposed to think that many who should receive relief have not yet been reached by these officers. The test of the workhouse having been altogether removed by the late course adopted, of turning persons out of the workhouse to be placed on the extern relief lists, without regard to their length of residence therein, or the class to which they belonged, persons seek admission into the workhouse as a channel to out-door relief. The number of applications was increased from this cause, the applicants being unrestrained by the fear of an order to the workhouse; latterly, the relieving officers were even sending to the workhouse persons of the very classes which should have been kept on out relief. We conclude that the stone-breaking system, and using our available workhouse space alone for the able-bodied, will have a successful effect in restraining the pressure for relief; but it is unfortunate that it has already received such an impetus.

Temporary Fever Hospitals.

15. We have been called upon to make disbursements on account of the expenses of patients (30 in number) in temporary fever sheds. The expenditure has not been authorized by a relief committee, nor the accounts presented through them, and the cost per head of patients seem high. We conceive we cannot be considered unreasonable in asking the committee to perform their part by affording assistance in examining the accounts of this establishment, and enabling us satisfactorily to meet them, which we could not otherwise do. We have addressed a circular to the members of the Relief Committee, a copy of which we append.

Liabilities.

16. We understand that law proceedings are in course against the late Board of Guardians, for the recovery of debts due by them to contractors, &c., of the workhouse, and some law processes have been served since our taking charge. A communication has been made to these creditors, a copy of which is herewith.

ENCLOSURES.

COPY OF LETTER TO RELIEF COMMITTEE:—January 29, 1848.

SIR,

I AM directed by the Vice-Guardians to communicate with you relative to temporary fever sheds, under the control of the Carrick-on-Shannon Relief Committee, of which you are a member.

You are aware that this Committee still retains all its functions under Fever Act, and the exercise of these appears to be of considerable importance at the present time; the sheds are at present in operation, and can scarcely be expected to be less necessary for some time to come. The support of the patients now involves a considerable expenditure, and at a high rate (5s. per week being the average for each patient). This expense is expected, the Vice-Guardians learn from Dr. Sullivan, the medical officer under Board of Health, to be borne by the Vice-Guardians. Now, unless the Committee exercise its part of the duties, by supervising the management of the institution, and examining and authenticating the accounts, the Vice-Guardians would not feel justified in contributing to the expenditure, which they are otherwise disposed to do. Should you desire to make any arrangement with the Vice-Guardians, they shall be happy to confer with you at their next meeting on Saturday next.

I am, &c.,

JOHN CLARKE, Clerk to Union.

COPY of a LETTER to UNION CREDITORS:—*January 29, 1848.*Carriek-on-Shannon Union.

SIR,

I AM directed by the Vice-Guardians of this Union to communicate to you their views in reference to the proceedings which you have thought proper to institute for the recovery of certain sums you allege to be due you by the late Board of Guardians.

It appears to the Vice-Guardians that this course is dictated by a misapprehension of the actual prospects of the discharge of your claim which law proceedings afford.

The pressure of a legal action may operate favourably on a private individual in producing a settlement, but in the case of a Union, where the seizure of property or person need not be feared, the only result of an action at law can be the accumulation of costs.

It is notorious that there are no funds at the disposal of the Guardians beyond what is required to meet the immediate pressure of destitution, one penny of which could not be converted to any other purpose; law suits cannot, therefore, have the slightest effect in extracting the smallest payment; and whatever be the consequence of such proceedings, they must be passively endured. There are no stores in this workhouse, nor are any likely to be further than what is required for the wants of a day. Indeed all the moveables in the house, which could be rendered available under an execution, would be an equivalent but for a very trifling amount.

The seizure of these could produce little benefit to a creditor, nor difficulty to the Vice-Guardians; but if even the occupation of the workhouse was rendered no longer practicable by an act of this kind, which would not be the case, the expedient of transferring all the paupers to out relief could be accomplished, and the workhouse thus dispensed with.

One object of the administration of the affairs of this Union being transferred to us was, doubtless, that it should be placed in a position to liquidate its debts. This, on the part of the Government, is a great boon to the individuals who are creditors. The rates, the only source from which the finances of the Union can be recruited, will now be rigidly exacted; and if a shadow of hope exists to the creditors, it is from the law being properly carried out.

It is manifestly the interest of every person who expects the favourable consideration of the present Union authorities (who can be looked to as the only resource), not to provoke their displeasure by vexatious law proceedings; and further, it is their fixed course of action that the claims of those who persist in compulsory measures shall be the very last which shall receive the benefit of any future resources that may be available. The Vice-Guardians thus, for your own sake, desire to place you in possession of the real state of the case, so that you may not blindly be involved still deeper; though at the same time they think it right to state, that the line of conduct you may pursue is to them a matter of total indifference.

I am, &c.,

JOHN CLARKE, *Clerk to Union.*REPLY to the foregoing:—February 10, 1848.

I AM to express the great concern of the Commissioners at the deplorable state in which you have found the workhouse; but the Commissioners trust that by acting strictly on the regulations laid down by the Commissioners, and by constant and vigilant inspection, you will be enabled to restore the workhouse to a state of cleanliness, decency, and order.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 5, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that for the last week I have turned my attention to the following subjects:—

1st. The present state of the Union (as regards the amount and urgent nature of destitution) as compared with that which I found to exist in the end of November and the month of December last, when I visited the same localities.

2nd. The amount of destitution to which relief has not yet reached, and the causes which have prevented its doing so.

3rd. The amount of employment at present afforded in the Union.

4th. The probable amount of able-bodied applicants for out-door relief, should employment continue to be altogether withheld as at present.

5th. The selection of the most convenient situations for depôts for the employment of the able-bodied on out-door relief, taking into account the facility of obtaining stores, and probability of disposing of them advantageously hereafter, by reason of the proximity of contemplated works of drainage or finishing of roads.

I regret to say I find that destitution has increased to a fearful extent; in fact, in some localities it may be said to have reached the entire population. I could discern a palpable change in many of the persons whose appearance I recollected in December, and who were then comparatively in health and vigour.

Carriick-on Shan-

In most cases these poor persons are landholders, who, though apparently willing to surrender their land, still clung to their cabins, and were therefore unable to prevail on the landlord to take the land, and give them a certificate to that effect, which the relieving officers require. In some cases the multiplicity of applications to the relieving officers rendered it impossible for them to visit all the parties, place their names on the list, and issue rations, with that dispatch which would be desirable; but the preliminary steps are found to be indispensable, as all cases are represented as most destitute and urgent, and every species of fraud and imposition practised by the applicants.

I regret to say, that from personal observation, and from reports by the relieving officers, I do not think there are in the entire Union 20 labourers employed.

It appears to me that no effort whatever is being made in any branch of improvement or in agricultural operations, to employ the able-bodied; nor do I see any grounds for expecting any movement in this direction before the end of next month, when it is to be hoped that self-preservation will induce the farmers at least to undertake the necessary agricultural operations; till then, I see no other prospect of support for at least three-fourths of the labouring class than the Poor Law.

The out-door relief list amounts at present to 2268. The numbers in the workhouse amount to 830. The number of children receiving daily rations of bread, 4300, besides several families peculiarly circumstanced, to whom I afford relief from week to week.

The Commissioners will perceive that at this moment a very large amount of relief is given in the Union; yet such is the extent of the demand, and such the amount of misery and suffering from various causes, that in some localities our efforts are scarcely perceptible, their increasing exigencies keeping pace with those efforts to meet them. It cannot be denied that destitution is assuming a more formidable character than during any period of the past year; though food is cheap and plenty, there is but one mode of obtaining it by the mass of the people, that is through the medium of the Poor Law.

We hope to have the able-bodied at work generally throughout the Union, and to fix our depôts in such situations as will render the stones when broken valuable for drainage and other purposes.

Some gentlemen have intimated a wish to contract for broken stones for their drainage operations; but as such a course would in some degree interfere with private employment, I think it would be objectionable; there can be no doubt, if the landed proprietors ever put their projected improvements into execution, any quantity of broken stones may be advantageously disposed of.

In consequence of the vast numbers of able-bodied at present throwing themselves on the relieving officers for out-door relief, and the impossibility of visiting the residences of the parties within a sufficiently short time, consistent with the proper discharge of their other duties, I would beg to draw the attention of the Commissioners to the expediency of allowing them an assistant each for a fortnight or three weeks; the duties to be performed by this assistant should be confined to receiving applications and issuing rations, &c.; leaving those duties which involve responsibility, viz., visiting and reporting on the several cases, to the relieving officers; this would accelerate their movements, which at present are not as rapid as is desirable. I believe, however, they are doing their utmost, and that such is the standard of education in this country that we could scarcely expect to find more efficient persons to fill their situations.

Considerable improvements are being effected in the interior economy of the workhouse.

We are taking steps to put the supply of water on a better footing, as also to put the pipes and cocks in proper repair.

We have received the supply of clothing which I purchased when in Dublin, and which will effect a considerable improvement in the comfort and appearance of the house and inmates.

I regret to say that disease is gaining ground upon us in the house as well as out of it. There have been 37 deaths this week, all confined to recent admissions, who come to us in a most hopeless state, quite beyond human aid. There is considerable alarm amongst the officers in consequence of the increase of fever and dysentery.

Under existing circumstances I think it would be advisable not to admit the persons who present themselves; but we have no choice but admit them or allow them to die at the gate.

Numbers of children who have been placed for some time on out-door relief, and who have received rations, having lost their parents, are refused lodgings or admissions to the houses of their other relations on any terms, and are, consequently, sent to us in a state past all hope of recovery, from previous neglect: we must admit them.

No lodgings can be obtained; the remaining houses and cabins in the Union are crowded, and becoming fewer daily.

I shall call the attention of the Vice-Guardians again to the Elphin store, and request of them to visit it in the course of next week, with a view to making it available as an auxiliary workhouse.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 9, 1848.

THE Commissioners regret to be informed by your report of the 5th instant that destitution and sickness are both increasing in Carrick-on-Shannon Union to a very serious extent.

They are unable to point out any remedy applicable to the cases of those poor persons referred to, whose landlords will not take the land from them unless they also give up possession of their cabins; but whenever occupation is abandoned, there is no longer a question for inquiry, and relief may be given.

The Commissioners observe with apprehension for the result, that no effort is made in the Union to provide employment for the labouring population; and the owners as well as the occupiers of land will necessarily feel the consequences of this supineness in the augmented amount of poor-rates and the frequency of assessments.

The Commissioners concur in your opinion that the Vice-Guardians cannot enter into agreements with any parties to supply broken stone for land drains. It is to be hoped that persons undertaking drainages will employ labourers themselves for each portion of the work; however, it will of course be open to the Vice-Guardians to sell broken stone for any purpose, but in all cases the full price of broken stone should be charged, otherwise the labour of the paupers would be rendered as available to the profit of the purchasers and as detrimental to hired labour, as if the Vice-Guardians directly provided pauper labourers of the drainage works, by contract, in the way proposed.

The Commissioners object to the employment of assistant relieving officers to receive applications; they prefer that the existing districts should be divided, where the present duties require more than one officer; in which case additional officers should be temporarily employed; and there is not any reason to suppose that the persons who could be entrusted with the receiving and registering of applications would not be competent for all the duties. If, however, the assistance necessary can be limited to the issuing of rations, while the relieving officer is present, there is no objection to employing men for that purpose at moderate weekly wages.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 8, 1848.

1. We beg to provide our second weekly report on the affairs of this Union.

Rates and Rate Collectors.

2. We have succeeded in placing only one district, comprising two electoral divisions, yet in collection. The amount of rate on this district is 1717*l*.; 515*l*. of which has already been received in the Board-room under the arrangement of the late Board; the remainder 1201*l*., we trust, will soon be made available by the collector, Mr. M'Cullagh, who has received his warrant, and seems likely to prosecute his work with vigour. The delay in placing the remaining districts in collection has arisen from the bonds of the other three collectors not being yet perfected (arising from want of forethought previous to our arrival), to our great annoyance and disappointment. Prior to our next report we expect to have the rate of the entire Union in collection. The arrears are all duly carried into the collecting books, and it remains but for the collectors to be finally fixed in their office by the perfecting of their bonds, to have the warrants for all the divisions signed and the rate put in full process of collection.

Workhouse.

3. Our efforts have been vigorously exerted during the past week to effect improvement in the condition of the workhouse in its several departments. The dietary appears to us of primary importance, and suggests itself in connexion with the large and increasing amount of sickness amongst the inmates, one of the great evils at present of the establishment; some changes which we have made with the concurrence of the medical officer in this important particular shall appear in our next minutes. The illness of the master, feared from fever, has retarded our progress, and we are sorry that we have much reason to dread his being eligible for a continuance in the office; independent of his uncertain health, we are inclined to fear his incapacity to perform efficiently the duties of a workhouse master, although we admit he has exhibited considerable zeal since our taking charge. The recent supply of clothing we have received will enable us to accomplish most useful results.

Out-door Relief.

4. The pressure continues extreme; and without the workhouse test for the able-bodied, as we are at present, the administration of this portion of the affairs is by no means satisfactory. Our urgent and unceasing injunctions to the relieving officers for the vigilant and zealous discharge of their important duties, together with our lengthened examinations of their books, have tended considerably to provide more effectually for relieving the unhappy amount of destitution which surrounds us. The difficulties connected with the employment of the able-bodied men receiving out-door relief has retarded its introduction, but we shall persevere in the accomplishment of this necessary measure. One relieving officer has resigned, and we proceed at once to elect a successor.

Additional Accommodation.

5. When we complete the repairs of the shed adjoining male yard, and economize space by a better arrangement of the classes, which will be ere long, we hope to have room for the admission of able-bodied men. We are on the look-out for suitable auxiliary buildings wherein to place some of the present inmates of the workhouse, of classes suitable for the transfer. We are not disposed to organize auxiliary workhouses in distant parts of the Union, as has already been contemplated by Captain Wynne. From local circumstances, we fear such a project would be impracticable; the difficulties in procuring suitable houses, the impossibility of having them managed, and the impediments which would arise in a country like this to their working, removed from central authority, we fear must oblige us to consider the attempt hopeless.

Temporary Fever Sheds.

6. The accommodation afforded for fever patients by these sheds is of the most miserable kind, and the relief they provide extremely limited, or even questionable, and altogether inadequate to their expense: eleven wooden huts formed of thin boards, rags and mud, capable of containing three patients each, resting on a bog, surrounded by manure heaps which reach the interior, in danger of destruction by fire or storm, under no management, without proper nurses, no fixed dietary or adequate accounts kept, out of the way of any supervision, seems to us a very imperfect description of fever hospital, and its use we think should only be the last resource. There is no safety for the bedding or food required; the cost of each patient is at the high rate of between 4s. and 5s. per head per week; the number of patients admitted and discharged is beneath the proper proportion, and we think that persons would be more likely to acquire diseases therein caused by cold and wet than be cured of fever. The sort of gipsy life which a residence in these hovels engenders is congenial to the habits of the lower orders, and we are led to believe that the unfortunate people would prefer them to a better regulated hospital, and would even feign sickness to be allowed to continue inmates. We consider such a place discreditable to a community, and productive of injurious moral effects: we cannot suppose that the medical officer could have permitted such a state of things without strong remonstrances and demands for better provision.

7. We propose to erect a fever shed of cheap construction on the workhouse grounds, capable of containing 60 inmates, at a safe distance from the house, and we have solicited the Board of Health to permit our converting the timber of the present sheds to assist in its erection, and the patients in the huts on the common shall be provided for in new sheds; we are anxious to be informed if this procedure would meet your sanction, and shall, on receiving same, at once advertise for contracts and have them prepared.

8. The expense of the temporary sheds alluded to seemed so excessive, and their mode of management so unsatisfactory, that we felt reluctant to devote the Union funds to their support without proper control, that at first we asked the assistance of the old Relief Committee in the supervising of the accounts, which we believe would have been a legitimate exercise of their functions as continued by Fever Act, we designed it also as an act of courtesy; they however, with one exception (Captain Cox), refused to act. A number of this Committee, ex-officio members of the late Board, waited on us, and certainly they did not seem actuated by very benevolent or philanthropic motives; but under no circumstances, experience tells us, could these temporary sheds now be continued in operation.

9. Your order enabling us to have meetings at any part of the Union will afford facilities for the transaction of our business.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your report of the 8th instant, on the progress of your arrangements for the more effectual administration of the laws for the relief of the destitute poor in Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

The Commissioners regret to observe that you are delayed in proceeding with the collection of the rate, except in one officer's district, by the non-completion of the other collectors' bonds; but it is to be hoped that this object will not be further retarded.

The illness of the master of the workhouse should not, in the opinion of the Commissioners, preclude you from providing another master, if you have satisfied yourselves by an examination of the workhouse accounts, and your observations of the present officer's mode of executing his duties, that he cannot efficiently fill the office.

The Commissioners do not object to your erecting proper sheds on the workhouse site for reception of persons in fever; but the huts which you describe as the temporary hospital of the Relief Committee cannot be interfered with by you unless by sanction of the Board of Health, although you are bound to provide for the maintenance of such hospital accommodation while that Board may consider it necessary. As, however, the Committee will not act, and you propose to provide proper accommodation in lieu of the temporary huts which the Committee caused to be constructed, and which you consider unfit for human habitations, the Board of Health may probably sanction your using as proposed such portions of the timber in these huts as could be made available in the construction of proper sheds. The Commissioners will therefore forward to the Board of Health an extract from your report, and request the consideration of it.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have been engaged for the past week in the performance of the following duties:—

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I have visited many parts of the Union, with a view to ascertain the manner in which the relieving officers were discharging their important duties, and the effect produced by the relief already afforded, whether there were any, and just grounds for complaint which I had received against those officers, of inattention to the wants of the poorest classes, or whether they were using their utmost endeavours to visit and relieve every legitimate case in their respective districts.

The result of my observation, and of many investigations into particular cases, has been certainly favourable to the relieving officers, with the exception of Mr. Laird, who has been lately appointed, and in whom I am much disappointed. He came to us highly recommended, and possessing an extensive knowledge of the locality over which he has been appointed, having been clerk to the late Relief Committee during the operations of the Temporary Relief Act. He, however, does not appear to have any feeling for the sufferings of the people, and has certainly neglected to give precedence to the most urgent cases. I think we shall be under the necessity of dismissing him, inconvenient as such a step will be at the present moment, when every hour of the relieving officer's time is of the utmost importance, and when, therefore, every cause of delay should be avoided.

The other relieving officers are, in my opinion, using their best exertions, and endeavouring to retain their situations, but their books are still in an unsatisfactory state, owing, I think, to their inability to keep them better, particularly at this crisis in their affairs, when it must be acknowledged they have considerable difficulties to contend with and guard against, in the shape of fraud and imposition, every imaginable species of which is resorted to by the applicants for relief.

I yesterday visited Kilmore electoral division, in consequence of having received many complaints against the relieving officer, who is a young, active, and rather intelligent man. Captain Routh accompanied me, being anxious to see and make himself acquainted with the state of destitution in the Union.

I found no just cause of complaint against the relieving officer; on the contrary, he must have used much exertion and activity to have accomplished so much in the time.

We found a fearful amount of suffering from want of shelter and from fever amongst the adults, and dysentery amongst the children; but we also found that the relieving officer had done his duty as far as in his power lay. The sufferers were all, without exception, in receipt of out-door relief; but they were in the ditches, with a few sticks and a little straw thrown over them, forming their sole shelter from the severe weather that has just passed. In one of these abodes of misery we found the mother dead, with five children around her. She had been dead some time, and, no doubt, would have remained unburied, but that Captain Routh and I gave money to procure a coffin. She had died of fever.

The state of things on the townland on which we found this wretched family is not to be wondered at. 22 families, or 132 individuals, were unhoused on the 25th of October, the houses or cabins destroyed, and the wretched inhabitants sent wandering through the Union, half-naked, without any means of subsistence, not even a day's employment.

I give no opinion on the propriety or expediency of this step; but I do not hesitate to say, that it has given rise to a state of things that neither I nor any other person in my situation can cope with, under the circumstances of the Union, and the local difficulties they present.

No auxiliary workhouse accommodation can be procured in the Union.

There are but two buildings in the Union that would answer our purpose, Elphin store and the Jamestown mill. The former cannot be procured at present; while the latter is offered on conditions which preclude our acceptance, viz., "that the building should not be diverted from its original design and intention."

There remains, then, the alternative of building additional accommodation on the site of the present workhouse; but the scale on which this should be done, in order to meet the necessity of the case, renders the undertaking very formidable, and, in my opinion, impracticable.

Lodgings cannot be obtained, except in very few instances, and in the immediate neighbourhood where the wanderers formerly resided, where in many instances not a single cabin remains.

I fear, therefore, the poor sufferers must remain as they are at present, in huts erected in the ditches, and in the walls of unroofed cabins, where sickness, and contagion, and the inclemency of the weather will continue their work of destruction. All we can do with the great mass will be to supply them with food, which it is our determination to do as long as rates can be collected by the most vigorous and energetic measures.

In the electoral division of Kilmore, which I visited yesterday, and which is certainly the scene of more misery than any other in the Union, although, perhaps, the richest in point of soil, there are receiving relief under the Poor Law, between the out-door and in-door relief lists, 1680; add to this number 456 children, to whom I supply rations daily, and we have 2136: the entire population being, in 1841, 5164; and at present, I should say, 4500.

I have called the attention of the Vice-Guardians to that portion of your letter of the 9th instant, in which you express the objection of the Commissioners to the appointment or sanction of assistants to the relieving officers, and their preference for the appointment of additional officers where the present duties require such a step.

Under ordinary circumstances I should not have recommended the former course; but, under existing circumstances, I considered it better suited to meet our case, for the following reasons:—

The pressure is on us at the present moment, and may be reasonably expected to be removed in three weeks, before which time it would be difficult to make a careful and judicious selection of relieving officers, perfecting their bonds and teaching them their business, which we find requires a considerable time. Assistants would be available on the moment.

I am not of opinion that the duties of receiving and registering applications involve much responsibility, as in no case is the application refused; neither does that of issuing rations, as the recipients know the exact quantity to which they are entitled by the specific order in their particular cases, and by the general scale on which that order is founded, and are always ready to prefer a complaint if they conceive themselves aggrieved.

I conceive the important duties of the relieving officers to be, granting provisional relief in urgent cases, visiting promptly and reporting honestly on all others. These duties I should not wish to impose on officers selected without sufficient time to weigh and ascertain their qualifications and character, and who, I fear, being aware that their appointment was only for a short time, would not be operated upon by what appears to be the strongest of all incentives to the honest discharge of their duties, viz., the fear of losing their situations.

The Vice-Guardians have already authorized assistants, till such time as the Commissioners shall communicate their further wishes on this subject, when they shall be put forthwith into execution.

I have visited the workhouse daily, morning and evening, during the week; and, with the assistance and untiring exertions of the Vice-Guardians, have done all in my power to effect improvement in its condition and interior economy.

I regret to say we make but slow progress, owing to many causes which militate against our success.

The master, matron, and schoolmaster are laid up in fever, and have been so during the week. The consequences are, that discipline, which was making some progress, has retrograded for the last few days.

Disease is gaining ground in the house, and, indeed, in every part of the country; but does not appear to be of so malignant a type as heretofore.

I am of opinion that, if such a step will meet the wishes of the Commissioners, we may make the workhouse available for 200 or 250 additional inmates, which will again place the workhouse test within our reach, and enable us to dispense with the temporary fever sheds, which are not by any means a satisfactory establishment. The Vice-Guardians concur in this opinion, and I believe have already transmitted a specific plan.

I am most anxious to put into operation the test of stone-breaking, and have fixed on several depôts which appear advantageously circumstanced. We have not as yet got the hammers from the Board of Works, which is now the only cause of delay. Our out-door relief list is increasing with alarming rapidity, being now 7701.

The inmates of the house amount to 769, in consequence of some discharges in the course of the week.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

We have received the clothes which I purchased in Dublin, and are appropriating them as judiciously as we can.

An overcharge of 11*l.* 11*s.* has been made by Mr. Cosgrave, in consequence of which he has not yet been paid.

I have written to Mr. Cosgrave to correct the error in his account and settle the matter at once, so as to entitle the Union to five per cent. for ready money, as per agreement.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners recommend that the Vice-Guardians should immediately require Mr. Laird to resign, or suspend him with a view to his dismissal under order, and proceed to obtain the services of a more fit person for the responsible duties of a relieving officer.

They consider it of much importance to have the relieving officers' books properly kept ; and trust that the Vice-Guardians will promptly adopt measures for this object.

In reference to your observations on the proposal of the Vice-Guardians to appoint assistants to the relieving officers, the Commissioners desire to state that if such aid be only required for so short a time as you mention (three weeks), it would not be advisable to alter the districts as already settled, and it would be more advisable to employ persons to execute the clerk-work described, with a view of allowing the officers more time for visiting the abodes of applicants for relief.

The Commissioners have read with much concern your account of the destitute condition of families who have been deprived of their cabins, and for whom workhouse accommodation has not been as yet provided, although you subsequently state that you consider it practicable to provide additional accommodation at the workhouse for 200 or 250 inmates. The Commissioners trust that for this object such means as may be available, will be immediately applied.

Mr. O'REILLY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 15, 1848.

I BEG to be favoured with the views of the Commissioners on the following subject :—

A property in this neighbourhood over which the late Mr. Waldron, who was recently shot, had been receiver under the Court of Chancery, has residing on it a great number of pauper tenants, who are every day applying to the relieving officer for relief, but he finding them in occupation of more than a quarter of an acre of land, refuses relief; these people are anxious to give up possession of their land, but know not to whom they should surrender; the bailiff refuses to take it, and there is as yet no agent or receiver appointed, meanwhile the people may die of starvation as we cannot take them into the workhouse. Under these circumstances I would wish to be favoured by the Commissioners, at their earliest convenience, with their opinion as to what would be the best course for me to adopt.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 16, 1848.

I AM to state that by the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, it is merely the occupation or non-occupation of a quarter of an acre of land which is made a criterion of destitution, provided that an applicant for relief may otherwise be deemed entitled to it.

Hence the Vice-Guardians, as far as that clause is concerned, are warranted in relieving any body who is not in such occupation; and they are not bound to investigate title at all, or to ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined by surrender or otherwise.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that on consultation with the Vice-Guardians this day on the subject of some pressing demands upon us, and the probable amount of funds which may be immediately available to meet those demands, it was deemed expedient to apply to the Commissioners for a loan of 500*l*.

I must at the same time say that I am very much averse to seek foreign aid, and would greatly prefer depending wholly on our own resources which I have little doubt will be available as soon as we shall require them.

The four collectors are now in action, and I have no doubt will be found to discharge their duties zealously, vigorously, and with credit to themselves.

The delay that has taken place in getting the collection into operation is much to be regretted.

I feel tolerably confident we shall not require to touch the loan should the Commissioners be pleased to grant it, and for my own part I should consider it more creditable to myself to dispense altogether with it, nevertheless, as it may be the more prudent course to have it available in case of need, I deem it right to forego every other consideration and make the application.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 18, 1848.

I AM to state that application has been made to Count Strzelecki for a loan of 500*l*. to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the immediate wants of the destitute poor in the Union, pending the collection of the poor-rate.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 16, 1848.

1. Our report of the past week's transactions in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union is as follows:—

Rates and Rate Collectors.

2. No rate has yet been lodged by the collector, who has already been at work, and we will not likely ascertain his progress until next meeting. We yesterday placed the remaining rate collectors in operation, their warrants being signed by us, so that the rate in all the electoral divisions of the Union is now in progress of collection. The collectors seem zealous in their duty, and our vigilance and attention shall be directed to this service to the fullest extent. The unavoidable delays (from the position in which we found the Union in respect of rates) in placing the rate in collection, has left us short of adequate funds to meet our expenditure for the extensive relief in operation, and we have already applied to you for a loan of 500*l*., which application we trust may be successful.

Workhouse.

3. The illness from fever of the master, matron, and schoolmaster, has created much inconvenience in the management of the workhouse during the past week, still we think the state of the house is not retrograding. Our personal exertions have been much engaged with the duties of the workhouse officers. Some improvement has been effected in the dietary, and in numerous minor arrangements. One great defect is the want of adequate means of keeping employed the able-bodied men in the workhouse; this can only be remedied by a more effective staff of officers. We obtain, on Friday next, the services of Mr. Heran as temporary master, from whom we expect good assistance; and we have also elected a schoolmaster and assistant-clerk. As the minutes of our meetings contain full details of our proceedings, we need not allude to such here at greater length.

Out-door Relief.

4. From the delay which has taken place in receiving implements from the Board of Works, we have yet been unable to set the able-bodied men to stone-breaking. Superintendents are engaged, stones contracted for, and every thing ready to commence the system of employing the able-bodied. This test, together with the employment that will likely soon be given by the farmers, the numbers we will be able to admit to workhouse, so soon as we get more effective officers, and the additional clothing we have ordered, will we doubt not effect a great reduction in our lists, upon which are now almost 8000 receiving out relief. We are proceeding as rapidly as possible to bring up the arrears in the relieving officers' books; and the applications hitherto unattended to have now been nearly all visited.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

5. We have every hope of the affairs of the Union shortly presenting a better aspect than they have for some time exhibited.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have found it necessary to turn my attention for the past week to the Boyle Union.

Numerous communications have been addressed to me, representing in the strongest terms the vast extent of destitution, and the consequent suffering existing in that Union, and the urgent necessity for the prompt application of the funds of the British Relief Association on an ample scale.

In order to make myself acquainted with the extent of the evil, and to determine the scale on which relief would be necessary, I made a personal inspection of many localities, from which, and from all the local information I was able to obtain, I came to the conclusion that no sufficient grounds existed for those strong and urgent representations.

Many townlands exhibit strong marks of the march of the enemy, in the multitudes of ruined cottages or cabins, the absence of every description of cattle, and the neglected state of the land; yet these contain less destitution, and stand less in need of relief, than the most favoured townlands in the majority of the electoral divisions in this (Carrick-on-Shannon) Union.

I have established three bakeries in the Union, which I think will supply ample means of relief; the workhouse oven at Boyle, two small ovens at Keadew, and two at Clogher. They are already in operation, and I hope to be able to supply in the course of next week as large a quantity of bread as may be required to meet the wants of the juvenile population.

The Guardians have allowed me to erect a second oven in the workhouse, which will be in operation on next Monday week, when I purpose supplying the entire Union from the two workhouse ovens, which will greatly facilitate control and supervision, and the prevention of fraud.

I have supplied during the past week 18,620 rations to 2,660 children attending 38 schools in the Boyle Union. I have made arrangements to add next week one-third more, which I hope may be found sufficient.

I regret to have to observe that, beyond incessant letter-writing, I find still less disposition to active assistance and co-operation on the part of the patrons of schools in the Boyle Union than I found in this; nor can I induce any individual or Committee to incur the trifling expenses of sending proper carriers and baskets for the bread. This, however, I attribute to the fact, that the case of Boyle is not nearly so urgent as that of this Union.

Nothing can be more satisfactory than the rationing of the schools in this Union. All parties appear aware of the vast benefit which is derived from it, and consequently render much more assistance than in the commencement; in fact I have now little trouble with this portion of my duties.

I have issued the past week 28,363 rations to 4242 children, attending 62 schools in this Union.

Our out-door relief list has increased very considerably, and I think will amount next week to 9950.

As yet we have not received the implements applied for to the Board of Works; this delay is productive of the worst consequences.

We have fixed on the necessary depôts for stone-breaking in the several relief districts, as also fit and proper persons as overseers, and are quite prepared to go to work the moment we receive the implements, when I fully expect our list will rapidly decrease.

Notwithstanding the vast amount of destitution to be contended with in this Union, I think the amount of relief now afforded ought to be ample to meet it. You will perceive that next week 25 per cent. of the entire population of the Union will be in receipt of relief from various sources.

The collection of the rates is in full operation, and although not as large as might be wished, the week's receipts are, as I anticipated, quite sufficient to enable us to confine ourselves to our own resources, which I am most anxious to do as long as possible.

The amount actually collected is 276*l.* 11*s.* 2½*d.* The collectors whose duties lay in the rural districts were not anxious to receive cash on their first application, but preferred, as the safer course, serving the six days' notice, and being paid at their office in Carrick-on-Shannon; hence the amount collected is not as large as it otherwise would have been.

With one exception, there has been no violence or threat attempted towards the collectors, nor do I anticipate much, so changed is the state of the country by the proclamation, special commission, and the relief afforded.

The exception referred to was the case of a gentleman of some importance in the county, who threatened to shoot Mr. Shaw if he called again. We mean to try the matter with him on Monday, and by the adoption of strong measures, endeavour to nip the system in the bud.

We appointed a relieving officer (Mr. George Mills, of Cherrybrook), in the room of Mr. Bird, late relieving officer of the Elphin electoral division.

He is of a better class than those persons heretofore appointed to the office in this Union; and I should recommend that his salary should be raised to 35*l.* per annum; 30*l.* (the salary which his predecessor received) being, in my opinion, inadequate remuneration for such a person as it is desirable to employ in a situation of such heavy responsibility. The district is not so extensive as many others in the Union, but the duties are very onerous.

The relieving officers generally are, I believe, exerting themselves to their utmost, but from their inefficiency and ignorance of business habits, their books are not yet in a satisfactory state.

We shall avail ourselves of the first opportunity of dispensing with the services of Mr. Laird, relieving officer.

I shall feel obliged for the Commissioners' sanction of Mr. George Mills' appointment; he is already acquainted with the duties, and ready to go to work without delay.

The state of the workhouse has improved during the past week, but by no means to that extent which might be expected from the judicious arrangements of the Vice-Guardians, and their indefatigable labours to carry them out. Disease exists to a formidable extent, though the type is certainly considerably mitigated. We have at present 160 in hospital, and 21 deaths during the past week, exhibiting an increase of disease and a decrease of mortality, by more than a third; the deaths which have taken place have been confined almost exclusively to recent admissions.

We have effected much improvement in the arrangements for the supply and management of water for the house; the pipes, cocks, and boilers, are now in good working order, and a commensurate improvement is discernable in the kitchen and laundry operations.

We have at present only 760 inmates in the house, and we hope that after we have thoroughly cleansed and whitewashed the entire house, and fitted up the shed already standing on the workhouse site, we shall be able to accommodate 350 additional inmates, and again apply the workhouse test to the able-bodied.

The books are again in arrear, in consequence of the illness of all the officers, except the clerk. I trust, however, that this may be the last time I shall have to report this circumstance, as our new master is determined to use every possible exertion to bring them up during the next week.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 24, 1848.

I AM to state that the attention of the Board of Works has been drawn to the application for implements for the employment of the able-bodied persons receiving out-door relief in the Union.

The Commissioners await answers to the usual queries relating to Mr. Mills, whom the Vice-Guardians propose to appoint relieving officer for the Elphin electoral division.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

1. WE beg now to afford our weekly observations regarding the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Rates.

2. The progress of the collectors cannot be fully known until Saturday, up to which time it is our wish they should give their undivided attention to their duties in their respective districts, and we have therefore not called on them for attendance on us. We have much confidence in their vigorous discharge of the duties, and hope in our next report to be able to afford satisfactory evidence in this respect. We are endeavouring to ascertain the amounts in the hands of former rate-collectors, which amounts arise from two sources, viz.:—Sums which appear to have been collected by them and not lodged, and sums which they have returned as arrears, although actually received by them, and receipts given. When we ascertain clearly these defalcations, we shall proceed to consider what proceedings shall be adopted against the defaulters. From these causes a great deficiency will arise in the proceeds of former rates—a deficiency arising altogether from want of proper supervision of the rate-collectors' accounts during the existence of the late Board, and which will amount to many hundred pounds.

Workhouse.

3. The temporary master (Mr. Horan) we employed, has been most efficient, and under his superintendence we have strong expectations of great improvement in workhouse management. One important point is the restoration of the establishment to a state of healthfulness. The prevalence of sickness (attributable to the imperfect dietary among other causes) exhibited so painfully in the children, requires that the greatest attention should be given to arrest its progress.

Out-door Relief.

4. The applicants still continue numerous, and the relieving officers all unite in testifying to the wide-spread distress which exists in the Union, justifying the extended relief which is being given at present. From the delays in procuring the implements from the Board of Works, the labour-test has not been introduced, but hope however for its immediate introduction; and in our next report shall likely be able to describe its working. We are not disposed to think that many evils have yet arisen from the relief to able-bodied men being untested; but for a further period that system we are convinced would be most disadvantageous.

5. The order on Commissariat stores for 500*l.* worth of provisions which shall aid us usefully in meeting our expenditure for relief until the rates are made available.

Fever Shed.

6. We shall proceed with all possible promptitude to substitute a proper shed (the erection of which we are taking measures to accomplish) for the present wooden huts; but some time must necessarily elapse from the defective description of operatives in this country before its completion, unless we can manage to get a contractor from another locality.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 26, 1848.

CONSIDERABLE improvement has taken place in the interior economy of the workhouse; discipline, order, and cleanliness have advanced even beyond my expectation; the culinary and laundry machinery are in good order, and the operations of those departments regular and satisfactory; classification has progressed, every inmate able to do anything has been put to work; our new clothing has been appropriated; whitewashing, cleansing, and ventilation are going on in various parts of the building; the yards and gardens are being put in order, and the entire establishment begins to wear a totally different aspect from what it has done heretofore.

The sanitary condition of the house is decidedly improving rapidly; and we may now with perfect safety apply the spare accommodation which we have prepared in the house to the admission of 300 or 350 from the out-door relief list, which, if honestly and judiciously done by the relieving officers, will most probably strike off 2000 or 3000 from that list. We have placed from 20 to 30 vacancies at the disposal of each of these officers, directing them to test in the first instance those on their respective lists on whom the test is most likely to operate, and intimating that we shall judge of the judgment and zeal with which they have discharged this important duty by the results in each particular case.

I anticipate the most beneficial results from this move, if judiciously and dexterously executed, but the stupidity, awkwardness, or dishonesty of our subordinates mar to a certain extent our best considered plans.

The out-door relief list still continues to increase with alarming rapidity, and this week has reached the enormous number of 14,700, notwithstanding that we are rigidly enforcing the quarter acre clause, but destitution is almost universal in this Union.

In consequence of complaints preferred against the relieving officers by individuals, I investigated many cases during the past week; the result has led to the conclusion that very few persons are at present receiving relief on our out-door relief list who are not legally entitled to it, and none who do not stand in need of it.

The complaints were principally of non-feasance on the part of the relieving officers, few of mis-feasance were made, and none proved.

We have now in receipt of relief in this Union 20,600 individuals, more than one-third of the entire population. On the in-door and out-door lists 15,400, rationed in the schools 5000, and receiving cash and food according to their necessities, being cases to which neither of the aforesaid sources are applicable, 200.

The clamour for relief still continues, and still the streets and roads are disgraced by beggars, who although receiving relief are allowed to continue their profession as an auxiliary, in consequence of an apparent determination on the part of the magistrates not to enforce the Vagrant Act.

Complaints have been made during the past week of the difficulty of obtaining labourers, in consequence of the out-door relief to the able-bodied; but we found that the complainants required services either in liquidation of old debts, or for "their bit," as this mode of remuneration for labour is termed; in neither of which cases did we consider that we would be justified in directing that the recipient of relief should be struck off the lists.

The relieving officers have orders in all cases where fair terms are offered by the applicant to the recipient of relief, to strike off the latter in case of his refusal.

In consequence of the very serious amount to which the expenditure on out-door relief has now reached, the consideration of the best means to promote economy and prevent fraud and imposition has become of still greater importance than heretofore.

As the best means of achieving these important objects, I should strongly recommend the adoption of cooked food in the shape of ryemeal bread, or bread made of that material mixed with either Indian corn meal, or, what is better and cheaper, barley meal. This bread possesses many advantages over any other form in which I have as yet seen food relief dispensed. Its appearance in a house at once stamps the owner as a recipient of charity, or it is evidence of fraud which may easily be detected. It cannot be so easily converted into money as the raw material. It is decidedly the cheapest and most wholesome food, as is evident from the improved appearance of those children who have received it for the last 10 weeks in this Union, and is peculiarly suited to the present condition of the Union, where there are such vast numbers of the poor who have not any means of cooking meal, not having houses of their own, and in many cases not being able to procure lodgings.

Impressed with the value of this description of bread, as applicable to purposes of out-door relief under the Poor Laws, I have directed my attention this past week to the erection of ovens in the workhouse, and will transmit a plan and specification to the Commissioners in course of next week. I would propose to place them, four in number, off the mill-room, making that apartment available for peel room, &c., and a loft to be erected over it for bread and meal store—the cost would be about 50*l*. The oven which I have been allowed by the Guardians to erect in the Boyle workhouse, together with the peel-room, will cost about 8*l*.; it is nearly finished, and will be in operation next week.

In this Union rye-meal bread is produced for three-fifths of a penny per pound, as follows:—

Meal, per ton	7	0	0
Salt	0	1	3
Baking, per ton	1	0	0

Producing 3000 lbs. of bread at a little more than three-fifths of a penny per pound.

In the Boyle Union, where I bake in the workhouse, the baking costs but 5*s*. per ton, which reduces the bread to a little more than a halfpenny per pound.

Bread of rye and Indian meal, in equal quantities, stands in five-sevenths of a penny in this Union, and something over four-sevenths in Boyle Union.

The weekly cost of the youngest class of children on my list is 2*d*. in this Union on bread of two meals, rye and Indian.

	d.
Second class	3½
Third class	4
Average	3½

In Boyle it is less. Weekly rations of ryemeal bread stand in the Boyle Union for—d.

Youngest class	2
Second class	2½
Third class	3½
Average	2½

The daily rations are 8 ounces, 10 ounces, and 12 ounces.

I regret to say the collectors have not succeeded as I expected in the past week's collection, the total amount being only 153*l*. 7*s*. Mr. Scott has been detained the greater part of the week at Roscommon assizes, and consequently unable to do much; the other collectors report that every gentleman's door was shut against them, and that they received no rates except from the poorest class, the highest amount paid by any individual being 15*s*.

Upwards of 1000 notices are served, but, as there will be no sessions till after the assizes, it is the determination of the collectors to drive the next week every gentleman's lands who may be a defaulter. The poorer classes appear to pay whenever they are able.

I am of opinion it will be necessary to renew the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied, which will expire on the 29th instant, for a period of two months.

In this the Vice-Guardians coincide with me.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 2, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be good enough to furnish the Commissioners with a statement of the extent to which committals under the Vagrant Act have been already made in the Union, and the number of arrests made where committals were subsequently refused, stating the grounds of refusal, and the names of the magistrates in each case.

I am at the same time to express the Commissioners' thanks for your observations with regard to the advantages to be derived from the issue of cooked food to recipients of out-door relief.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 29, 1848.

WE have the honour to submit to the Commissioners our usual weekly statement regarding the affairs of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Rates.

2. The collectors have made the following progress :—

	Collected during the week.	Collected altogether since employed.
Mr. Scott	£8	£230
Mr. Shaw	60	60
Mr. Fitzgerald, unknown, as he did not attend.
Mr. M'Culloch	£70	70

These sums are made up chiefly of payments from the smaller class of occupiers, very little yet having been received from immediate lessors, or those liable for large amounts. The collectors state, however, that from the arrangements they have made, considerable payments are expected during the current week from the latter classes. These officers evince every anxiety to prosecute their work with vigour, and we are urging that course by all the means in our power. The difficulties which the collectors had to contend with at their outset, in becoming acquainted with the localities—and few people being disposed to pay on the first demand—together with the absence at the assizes of many of those by whom large sums are due, perhaps sufficiently account for the small progress made last week in the collection; next week, when these causes may not exist to the same extent, we trust will bring a large accession to the finances of the Union.

Funds.

3. The small amount of rates made available has rendered our finances incommensurate to meet the demands upon us for the supplies for present consumption. At our meeting on Saturday, the bills contracted for articles furnished under our own orders amounted to 500*l.*, and only a sum of 260*l.* was in treasurer's hands. This deficiency we hope will not again exist.

Workhouse.

4. Under the management of Mr. Horan, our recently appointed acting master, the house is assuming a greatly improved appearance. All the defects are being remedied, and we hope ere long the institution will approach a satisfactory condition. The accounts are commenced on a new footing, and for the future, at least, the keeping of proper records, and accuracy in them, will be ensured. The improved sanitary state of the house, the introduction of adequate arrangements for the diet, clothing, and all the physical requirements of the inmates, and the establishment of discipline and order, have placed us in a position to receive almost immediately an increase to the numbers to the extent of 300.

5. Mr. Kelly, the master, still suffering from fever, has tendered his resignation. The new schoolmaster is giving fair promise; and we have removed from the establishment, according to previous arrangement, the former schoolmaster, the assistant schoolmaster, and the assistant master, and find advantage from the condensation and alteration in the workhouse staff.

Accounts.

6. The clerk has been employed at the arrear accounts, and has a prospect of having those for the half-year ending 25th March, 1847, completed in a few days. Although the backward state of his work is presumptive evidence of his neglect, still we must testify to his extreme industry since he came under our observation. We have every hope that at no distant time the accounts will all be made up, and the Commissioners' order in this respect fully complied with.

Out-door Relief.

7. We have issued instructions to each of the relieving officers, that they have power to transfer 10 able-bodied men and their families from the out-door relief lists to the workhouse. The spare space in the house already alluded to, we think, has warranted us in this procedure; and we are convinced that if the relieving officers exercise the power they possess, in thus ordering actual admission into the workhouse to 10 cases, they may at once exclude almost all the doubtful persons of the class of able-bodied men from their lists. They have been directed to offer the workhouse to those least likely to accept it; in the event of the first 10 to whom they order this relief refusing its acceptance, to extend the test to a further number, until they get 10 cases who will really enter the workhouse. This will also be a preparative for the labour test, which we are prepared to introduce the day the implements are obtained from the Board of Works. The proposed mode of managing the employment of the able-bodied, we append a statement of (vide Enclosure No. 1), which is probably as simple and economical as could be adopted, and as likely to succeed as one which would involve a more expensive staff. Proper contractors could not be procured to supply the rations to the poor; and more frequent issues than weekly could not be accomplished by the present number of relieving officers. We look forward to our relief lists soon containing those alone whose destitution is ascertained by an adequate test.

8. From our observation we are not disposed to think the out-door relief provided in this Union, extensive as it is (14,000 being on the lists last week, and the relieving officers' estimate of provisions required for succeeding week amounting to 40 tons), exceeds what the occasion demands. From the character and position of the country, the total absence of manufactures or any employment, and almost sole dependence on the produce of the land, a large proportion of the population were, for some months preceding their being relieved, dependent for support on the most slender means. The deficiency of food and the inclemency of the winter, with the inadequate means of resisting the latter, had reduced this helpless section of the community to a state of the greatest debility and attenuation, of which full and sad proof was afforded by their aspect. At the same time we doubt not that many of these persons would have rejected workhouse relief or relief when subjected to a labour-test; they would have endeavoured to sustain existence, but the effort would have rendered them too weak now for work, and prepared them for the ravages of disease. Those persons who had recently merged into subjects for relief by relinquishing their small holdings of land would, from a sense of degradation, have been peculiarly likely to reject relief which was to be obtained through the medium of stone-breaking or the workhouse. It appears to us, therefore, that numbers who, however industriously disposed could not find employment, would have sunk into comparative starvation rather than accept the tested relief. Further, those who might have accepted relief, submitting to the test of stone-breaking, would in all probability have acquired the germ of disease by the exposure to the severe weather of the past season, and the burden upon society of widows and orphans, and the helpless beings with shattered frames and broken constitutions, already weighty (the consequence of the employment under Labour Rate Act), would have been increased. The work, however, which is opening to some extent at spring labour, will now afford a resource to those really destitute who would not accept relief in the workhouse or with labour, and the present becomes a suitable time for the introduction of a full test. Its being further deferred we are sensible might foster indolence; but the object has been effected—the able-bodied who could be legally relieved have been fed and kept in strength (it is hoped) to meet the ensuing labour; their constitutions have not been sapped nor the elements implanted for a coming season of renewed pestilence; and we trust the moral evils which under ordinary circumstances are the result of out-door relief to the able-bodied have not resulted.

9. For the purpose of drawing the attention of the relieving officers to the prevention of the abuse likely to arise when the labour-test is commenced from able-bodied men deserting their families, and relief being given to persons not destitute, we propose, with your sanction, to issue to them the instructions contained in Enclosure No. 2.

10. The Commissariat meal was so defective in quality that we could not take advantage of the full amount of the order for 500*l.* which we received from the British Association, and only used two hundred and four pounds' worth. We have, however, made adequate arrangements for the proper supply of all the relieving officers.

Liabilities.

11. We have formed an estimate of the expenses of the Union until the 1st of November next, previous to which time another rate could not be made available; and we have also estimated the amount likely to arise from the rate at present in

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

ENCLOSURES.

I.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON UNION.

Electoral Division.—Labour List.

[illegible]

NOTE.—This Form may be printed to suit a number of Weeks.

The superintendent is to devote his whole time to the working parties, observing that each man attends with regularity, and performs his work properly. At the close of the week he is, under his own personal inspection, to have each man's work during the week measured, the quantity noted in column of list, and the stones removed to a heap in some safe and convenient place. He is to attend at the relieving-house on the day they are served to give in the list and receive it when revised. The quantity of stones in reserve heap must correspond with the total of the column in list, to be ascertained by a monthly measurement of heap. The superintendent to keep an account of stones received from quarry contractor, and to be accountable for all implements.

The relieving officer, in issuing rations both to able-bodied and infirm, to use tickets, which will be provided him. These tickets to be given by him to the paupers; they then to present them to the relieving officer's assistant (who acts as storekeeper, being in constant attendance there, the relieving officer being responsible for all he does), who weighs out the quantity stated in ticket. At the close of the day the tickets in hands of assistants should be given up to the relieving officer for re-issue, and should correspond with the sum of relief lists, and be in accordance with the stock. If possible, the place where the relieving officer issues the tickets should be a little apart from the store.

The bills for the payment of assistants and superintendents to be presented on the first Friday in each month to the clerk to the Union; each bill accompanied by the receipt of the party, without which no bill will be paid. The wages allowed are as follows:—

Assistants, per week		6s.
Superintendents, do.		7s.

II.

SIR,

Carriek-on-Shannon, February 29, 1848.

I AM directed by the Vice-Guardians to request that you will take prompt measures for the apprehension of all persons, any members of whose families they are liable by law to support, are on your relief list, and whom they have deserted. A copy of the Vagrant Act, empowering you to take such proceedings, is enclosed, and also forms for convictions, which, if necessary, you can supply to the magistrates before whom you bring the cases.

I am also to request you will make a record of the amount of all relief you may have given to persons subsequently ascertained not to have been proper objects for relief, with the view of measures being hereafter taken, under the 5th section of Irish Poor Relief Act, for the recovery of the cost of such relief, which in these cases is to be considered as a loan, to be repaid.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

JOHN CLARKE, Clerk to Union.

To

Relieving Officer of

District.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON UNION.

Notice.

THE Vice-Guardians request that all persons having claims against the late Board of Guardians of the above Union will furnish their accounts forthwith to the clerk, with the view to an arrangement being made with regard to same, at as early a date as possible. Each account will be required in detail, and supported in every item by the Guardians' order, otherwise there will be a difficulty in their settlement.

Board-room, February 26, 1848.

By order of the Vice-Guardians,

JOHN CLARKE, Clerk to Union.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON UNION.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

SIR, Carrick-on-Shannon, February 29, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians perceive, by a statement furnished the Poor Law Commissioners by the accountant of the Relief Commission, that a balance of £ was left in your hands as Chairman of the division, at the close of the operations under Temporary Relief Act.

I am directed by the Vice-Guardians to request you will have the kindness to inform them if such sum still remains in your possession; or, if disposed of, the purposes to which it has been converted.

I have, &c.,

JOHN CLARKE, Clerk to Union.

To
Chairman of Relief Committee.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had before them your report of the 29th ultimo, relating to the Carrick-on-Shannon Union; and they perceive with satisfaction that the collectors of poor-rate have entered fully upon the discharge of their duties. The Commissioners fully approve the determination to proceed with promptitude and vigour in the collection of the rate due by the wealthier class of ratepayers, from whom you state that little has as yet been received by the collectors; and the Commissioners rely upon the Vice-Guardians and the collectors taking energetic steps to obtain, and, if necessary, enforce, payment from all classes of ratepayers, bearing in mind only the ability of the parties to pay, and the necessity which exists for the supply of funds to relieve the destitute poor of the Union.

The Commissioners regard the prospect of the establishment of order and regularity in the workhouse with much satisfaction.

As regards the issue of rations to persons receiving out-door relief, the Commissioners are of opinion that great efforts should be made to introduce the system of giving rations in cooked food daily.

The Commissioners have reason to believe that where rations of meal have been issued weekly, they have sometimes been entirely consumed during three or four days of the week, to the great detriment of the paupers during the remaining days.

The great point to be borne in mind is the due relief of destitution in the manner which is at the same time the most effectual and the most economical. The Commissioners think, in reference to the improvidence which has been found to exist, this end can be best secured by daily rations of cooked food.

The Commissioners do not object to your giving instructions to your relieving officers, as proposed, for taking the necessary proceedings before magistrates against persons who desert or wilfully neglect to maintain their wives or children; but they consider that some additions may properly be made to the instructions appended to your report. The relieving officers should be apprized of the liability of husbands and fathers under the 53rd section of the 1st and 2nd Vic., c. 56; also that in case of persons in such relationship offending against the 10th and 11th Vic., c. 84, proof of the offence should be given before a magistrate, according to section 5, and then a warrant is to be executed with a view to the ultimate proceeding directed by section 2.

The further instruction proposed, as to declaring relief a loan, also requires revision; the declaration being necessary when the relief is offered, and not after the paupers shall have received it.

The Commissioners recommend you to postpone the consideration of the amount of additional funds that may be required in aid of the amount which can be collected out of the rate already made; but they approve of your arrangements for ascertaining the actual amount of debt due to the late contractors; and your clerk will shortly receive forms, on which he is to prepare an estimate of the expenses and income of the Union to the 29th of September next.

The Commissioners do not object to the letter proposed to be addressed to Chairmen of Relief Committees requesting information as to the expenditure of the balance in hands at the close of the relief operations under the Act 10 Vic., c. 7.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

THE workhouse continues to improve in every department. The staff of officers is now perfect, with the exception of the newly-appointed schoolmaster, who I regret to say is in fever. The various operations of the kitchen and laundry are carried on with regularity and satisfaction. Whitewashing has extended over the greater portion of the building; classification is nearly perfected; our new clothing has been appropriated; and, altogether, the establishment wears an entirely altered aspect.

Before, however, I shall be able to report that the house is in such a state as will satisfy me, I think it will be necessary to put the walls in a better condition than they are in at present, as in their present state the house can never be neat, clean, or comfortable in wet weather.

The temporary shed has been put in repair, and is now ready for any purpose to which we shall find it expedient to appropriate it.

Considerable improvement has been effected in the hospital arrangements, and although there are 151 at present in hospital, yet decided improvements in the sanitary condition of the house has taken place.

There have been 20 deaths during the week, principally from chronic dysentery.

We still retain the workhouse test in our hands to nearly the same extent as last week. As I anticipated, the relieving officers have not used the means placed at their disposal with that judgment and discretion which more efficient officers would undoubtedly have done; the result, therefore, is not so satisfactory as it might be. They have struck off 537; only 27 have accepted the alternative of the workhouse, and even those have been badly selected, there being but four able-bodied amongst them. I have no doubt but that 3000 names would have been struck off our out-door relief list, if the test had been judiciously used by the relieving officers. We have now ordered them to send all the able-bodied to the workhouse; and if they can only discriminate between able-bodied and the reverse, the lists will be greatly reduced before our 300 vacancies are filled up. Simple and easy as this duty appears to be, it would seem to present insurmountable difficulties to these officers, who by their inability or unwillingness to separate the two classes embarrass all our proceedings in which they are concerned, and render our best-considered plans comparatively abortive.

I am as yet unable to give an opinion of the working of the labour test in this Union, as it cannot be said to be in operation yet; I however expect more beneficial results from the workhouse test as a practical measure.

The collectors have made but little progress this week, notwithstanding every possible exertion on their part; they report to me that every gentleman's house is shut against them, but that the poorer classes have paid in most cases, and have been civil in all. Circumstances prevented the adoption of strong measures for the enforcing of payment during the past week.

There were not any petty sessions held, in consequence of the assizes, nor could the assistance of police be obtained, from the same cause; these obstacles are now removed, and during the ensuing week I hope to see the law carried out. The entire collection for the week only amounts to 119*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.*

In my progress through this and the Boyle Union I was glad to observe a commencement of agricultural employment, as also of drainage operations. Should this movement increase to any considerable extent, I am of opinion that the expediency of continuing out-door relief to the able-bodied beyond the middle or end of this month will become very questionable. I propose to make a tour of my district next week, in order to obtain the best information on this subject, and ascertain what may be the prospects of employment for that class.

I shall transmit by next post the plan, specification, and estimate for the erection of four ovens in the workhouse, by which I would propose to bake bread for out-door relief for the entire Union, as well as for the purposes of the house.

The very satisfactory manner in which the baking is going on in the Boyle Union workhouse has confirmed me in the opinion I have already expressed on the value of a large baking establishment in every workhouse, and the advantage baked bread possesses over every other form of food relief for out-door purposes.

I have employed a baker for three weeks, and already the paupers have acquired such proficiency that I shall be able to dispense with his services immediately.

Notwithstanding the untiring exertions of the Vice-Guardians, and the exercise of the strictest control over the relieving officers, the out-door relief list amounts this week to 19,466.

I have investigated many cases of persons stated to have been improperly placed on the list, but in no instance did I find the statement well founded. Land has been given up very generally; and where the landlord has refused to accept of it, it has been made over to a neighbour for a trifling consideration.

We may render our relief as little attractive as possible, and thereby force the able-bodied to accept service with the employer on terms which he otherwise would reject; but should even these terms not be offered, or should the employers not extend their scale of employment very considerably, I greatly fear our tests will either prove unproductive of good or in some instances (if vigorously applied) productive of evil results, so entirely dependent are the mass of the population of this Union on the provisions made for them by the Poor Law.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 7, 1848.

As regards the relieving officers, I am to state that the Commissioners trust that they will become more efficient by means of instruction and experience in the discharge of their duties, or that the Vice-Guardians will be enabled to replace them by better officers.

With respect to the collection of the rate, I am to state that the Commissioners are desirous of being furnished with lists of the immediate lessors and other parties who owe 4*l.* and upwards for poor-rates, who are still defaulters. Forms for this purpose are enclosed herewith, which you will probably be enabled to have filled up and returned with your report for the week after next.

With reference to the probable absence of employment adverted to in the latter part of your report, and the evil results which you apprehend from a strict adherence to the tests of destitution, the Commissioners feel it necessary to observe, that residence in the workhouse, or out-door labour, should be required from every able-bodied man, in return for the subsistence supplied to him and his family by the Union, conditions which involve no hardship that should be regarded as productive of evils to the recipients of relief, while they are necessary to guard against the evil of reliance on pauper relief, in preference to independent labour, where available.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—March 6, 1848.

IN reply to printed circular of the 2nd instant, requiring my opinion on the expediency of determining or suspending out-door relief to the able-bodied in this Union on the 18th of March instant, I have the honour to state that I do not conceive it would be prudent to relinquish the power of relieving this class till such time as a decided agricultural movement shall manifest itself in the Union, or till a disposition shall appear on the part of the proprietors to commence operations under the Land Improvement Act, as an extensive employment can alone determine the necessity which at present undoubtedly exists for the relief of this class.

I have observed with pleasure that the movement which I reported last week has increased considerably for the last 10 days. This I attribute in a great measure to the alarm created by the amount of out-door relief and the conviction on the part of the employers of the necessity for employment as the only means of self-preservation.

I do all in my power to promote this feeling, and trust by next week I shall be enabled to report employment to a considerable extent.

REPLY to the foregoing :—March 9, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to state whether the state of the Union is such that the provisions of the accompanying order to Listowel Union could be carried into effect.

It will be observed that under that order single men; and men with only two children, are thrown on their own resources.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 7, 1848.

1. We beg to state, with reference to the past week, as follows:—

Rates.

2. The progress of the collectors has been far short of our expectations, the sum collected being under 100*l*. They state the tardiness of those liable for large amounts as the cause of their limited collection; but the period having expired which had been given to those parties for payment, they will now commence most vigorously law proceedings for the recovery of the sums due by such defaulters. At the fortnightly examination of the collectors' accounts, which takes place on to-morrow, we trust they will exhibit an improved aspect for the current week; but until the pressure of law proceedings is applied large payments will not result.

Workhouse.

3. The establishment is continuing to improve; and we have no doubt that when the master (Mr. Horan) becomes thoroughly acquainted with his duties, and the matron's health quite restored, that no fears need be entertained for its successful management. The schoolmaster, whom we recently appointed, is suffering from violent fever, with which he was attacked soon after his arrival. Some admissions have been made during the week, and a considerable increase is expected for some days by the admissions of able-bodied men and their families from the out-door relief lists.

Out-door Relief.

4. The application of the workhouse test to the able-bodied men is reducing the number of that class most satisfactorily. The space we managed to render available has performed a most important service; and we hope, by means of the 300 admissions we were in a position to make, many hundreds will be swept off the out-relief lists. We have accomplished the employment of the able-bodied, to whom the workhouse could not be offered to a considerable extent. Stone-breaking and the sweeping of the streets of towns (brooms being provided by us for the latter purpose) will, we trust, drive to independent exertion all who can possibly do so. The out-door labour test we confine to labourers with large families; all others being selected for the workhouse.

5. We visited several of the relief stations during the week, and shall continue to give to them close inspection. The necessary steps are being taken for the erection of four ovens at the workhouse, estimated to produce sufficient bread for the entire Union. When the completion of these ovens enables us to give a bread ration, we have little doubt that the out-relief system will be immeasurably improved.

6. From the difficulty in procuring supplies of provisions here, being dependent on one merchant, who, of course, is not so easily dealt with in consequence, and the possibility of considerable inconvenience being suffered if he should cease to supply, we would beg to solicit an application from you to procure a further quantity of Commissariat provisions, the cost of which we shall repay at the earliest period the collection of the rates will permit.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the Commissioners have made application to the British Association for a further loan of 500*l*., to assist you in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

This advance should be repaid at the earliest possible period.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have considered the terms of the Order to Listowel Union as applicable to the present state of this Union, and can see no valid objection to its adoption, on the contrary I think it desirable, taking into consideration the season and prospects of employment.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 14, 1848.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I AM to inform you that, in accordance with your recommendation, the Commissioners have given directions for the issue of an Order in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union similar to the Order issued in the Listowel Union.

The Commissioners request that you will have the goodness to inform the Board of Guardians accordingly.

COPY of ORDER above referred to.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON UNION.

(Out-door Relief.)

To the Paid Officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union; to the Clerk and other Officers of the said Union; and to all other Persons whom it may concern:

Whereas, it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the said Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded therein to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled, or destitute poor persons disabled by sickness or accident, or destitute poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them; or to destitute poor persons, being able-bodied men who are not married and are above 18 years of age, or, who being married, have not more than two children dependent on them respectively; and it is expedient to authorize and empower the paid officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the said Union to administer relief out of the workhouse to such destitute poor persons for a limited time as hereinafter mentioned.

Now, therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, do hereby authorize and empower the said paid officers to administer relief out of the workhouse in food to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled from labour by reason of old age, infirmity, or bodily or mental defect, and not being persons disabled from labour by reason of severe sickness or serious accident, and thereby deprived of the means of earning a subsistence for themselves and their families, whom they are liable by law to maintain, and not being poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them; and not being able-bodied men who are not married and are above 18 years of age, or being married, who have not more than two children dependent on them respectively, for the period from the date of this Order to the first day of April next, inclusive.

And we do hereby make the following rules and regulations as to the granting, ordering, and giving of relief to all persons who shall be relieved by the said paid officers, under the authority of this Order, that is to say:—

1. Every person relieved under the authority of this Order shall be relieved in food only, and such food shall, as far as is practicable, be cooked food.

2. Every able-bodied male person relieved under the authority of this Order shall, so far as is practicable, be set to perform a task of work during eight hours at least of every day for which he receives such relief.

3. No able-bodied person who shall be in employment, nor any part of his or her family, shall receive relief as a destitute person under the authority of this Order.

And for the more effectual administration of relief under this Order, we do hereby authorize and direct the said paid officers to appoint so many relieving officers as shall be found sufficient, from time to time, to superintend the labour of such persons as shall be set to work, in pursuance of the regulations in this Order contained, and otherwise to assist in the administration of relief under this Order, as the said paid officers, subject to our approval, shall direct.

Sealed with our seal this eighteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight.

Captain WYNNÉ to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that in compliance with the request contained in your letter of the 2nd instant, I have used my best endeavour to furnish the statement required thereby.

I am unable to do so with that accuracy which I should wish, from the circumstance of there not having been any record kept of arrests where no committal took place. Such appears to be the practice of the constabulary, to whom I have made application, and whose return I herewith transmit.

I am enabled to state, from my own knowledge, that previous to 18th of January, 10 persons were brought by the police, at my instance, before Mr. La Touche, J.P., and were discharged without any reason having been assigned, except "that the clerk of sessions required payment for his services before-hand," or something to this effect.

Carriek-on-Shannon Union.

Six persons were also brought by the police before Captain Cox, J.P., at my instance, and were discharged by him on the grounds (as stated to me by the police) of his having too much business of his own to attend to.

Several other arrests were made by the police of which I have not any note, with similar results.

On the 18th of January, 37 persons were brought by the police before Mr. Kelly, R.M., of whom 12 were committed for 7 days to the gaol, 13 sent to the workhouse, and 12 discharged with a caution not to appear again in the streets begging.

In every case a conviction was had; of the 13 sent to the workhouse 7 left it the next day and were again on the streets, of the 12 discharged 8 continued on the streets, and of the 12 committed, 8 are this moment in the streets having resumed their occupation at the expiration of the 7 days' confinement, 6 remain in the workhouse, and 4 have not since appeared.

The reasons assigned by Mr. Kelly for not committing the entire party were, "first, the crowded state of the gaol; secondly, the expense of a prisoner being so much heavier than that of a pauper in the workhouse," the former 3s. 6d. per week, the latter 1s. 9d. During the remainder of the month I sent parties almost daily before Captain Cox, some committals were had which do not appear in the accompanying constabulary report, but in most cases the parties were discharged on condition that they would go to the workhouse, while in others, without any reason having been assigned that I could learn.

On the 1st of February a large number of persons were brought before Captain Cox and Mr. Peyton, J.P., of whom 8 were committed, the remainder discharged.

On the 2nd of February another party was brought before Captain Cox, of whom 2 were committed.

I regret I am unable to furnish the Commissioners with the exact number of arrests made by the police, but I can take upon myself to say, that the proportion of arrests to committals has been as 10 to 1.

The reasons generally assigned were, the crowded state of the gaol, and the expense of a prisoner on the county.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

THE Commissioners are unable to suggest any mode of overcoming the difficulties to which you have drawn attention, as they appear to originate in the crowded state of the gaol, and the non-existence of a house of correction.

If the latter could be provided, the discipline, labour, and diet, might be so regulated, as to render confinement in it an effectual check on vagrancy; but these are arrangements within the province of the local magistrates and county authorities.

The Commissioners observe, that paupers taken before one of the magistrates on the 18th of January last were discharged, on a question with respect to the fees of the clerk of petty sessions. However, on referring to the 4th and 7th sections of the Act 10 and 11 Vict. cap. 84, it will be seen that vagrancy cases are not intended to be tried at petty sessions, but before any justice of the peace as soon as reasonably practicable after arrest, and such justice is to transmit a copy of the conviction to the next petty sessions in the district.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 11, 1848.

I HAVE great pleasure in reporting the steady progress of improvement in every department of the workhouse establishment, but I regret to say we are deprived of the valuable services of our new master, by an attack of fever with which he is this day confined to his bed.

I fear this circumstance will greatly check our progress, particularly as the new schoolmaster is also in fever, and the matron scarcely able as yet to do anything.

Every means have been resorted to to expel infection from the house. The entire establishment has been cleansed and purified, the walls and ceilings whitewashed, the inmates newly clothed, and constant ventilation kept up. Still there is no doubt infection still lingers in the house.

These measures have however produced their effects on the general health and appearance of the inmates, and in the decreasing mortality, which the last week amounted to only 15, one-half the average of January last.

There still remain in hospital 150, principally cases of chronic dysentery, and for the most part hopeless.

The number on this day in the house is 747; 89 able-bodied have entered during the last week, but many of them will not remain.

Our collection for the past week has disappointed my expectations; the doors of the better class closed as heretofore against the collectors, who are using the best exertions to discharge their duties.

Nothing has been effected as yet by means of summons, although many have been issued, but the sessions are not regularly held.

The collectors have found driving to be the most effective means of enforcing payment, and have adopted this course wherever distress could be found on the lands.

A large number of summonses have been served for next week, and it is my intention to attend the several courts in person.

I hope I shall be able to report a much larger collection next week; every possible exertion shall be used to accomplish it. In very few instances has payment been refused; in most cases a few days have been requested, and in no case has any violence been resorted to; in fact the district is now perfectly quiet and the people peaceable.

I have visited in the course of the past week many of the labour depôts, where the able-bodied paupers are now at work; in some the system has been put into operation cleverly, while in others the inefficiency of the relieving officers has again marred or retarded our proceedings.

As yet this test has not produced much effect, even where well and judiciously applied; but I have no doubt but that the moment an extension of the ordinary employment of the country offers a choice to the recipients, the results will be different. A few persons have not come to work at the time appointed, and have been in consequence struck off the lists.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Some of the relieving officers have applied the workhouse test more judiciously and with more effect this week, the consequence is, that 1619 have been struck off the lists. Had all these officers discharged their duties properly, and as directed, this number would have been considerably increased.

We still retain 253 vacancies in the workhouse, which I think will go far towards testing the entire out-door relief list, if the test works as it has done for the last week.

There are (as might be expected) a great many complaints and a good deal of discontent amongst those persons struck off, but having investigated many of the cases I think there are no valid grounds for them.

The general employment which I observed in the commencement of the week was, I regret to say, checked by the unfavourable change in the weather; but I trust it will be resumed on Monday. Many extensive employers have stated to me their intention of assisting us to reduce the out-door relief list, by giving increased employment at a fair rate of wages paid weekly in cash.

Many offers have been made of employment which could not be accepted in the present circumstances of the people, viz., to pay off old debts for the maintenance of the individual employed, or with a distant and precarious prospect of remuneration.

I regret to be obliged to repeat my complaint of the non-enforcement of the Vagrant Act. Our streets and roads are worse than ever; groups of half-naked children are to be seen till twelve o'clock at night, when I am under the necessity of sending them for lodging to the workhouse, from which they demand their discharge next day and resume their occupation.

I need not enumerate the many and serious objections to this course, but I have only the alternative of allowing them to die in the streets.

Both the Vice-Guardians and I feel strongly that the management of this Union can never do us any credit so long as we lack the power of remedying this disgraceful state of things.

I have used the only means in my power, by withdrawing relief from the parties who send out their children in the manner I have mentioned; but it is very difficult to trace these children to their parents, being in all cases taught to say they have none.

The rationing of the schools goes on in both Unions most satisfactorily; indeed each week impresses me more strongly with the value of baked bread as a form of out-door relief.

The new oven at Boyle is in operation and fully answers our expectations.

The expense will be about 7*l.* 15*s.*

The Vice-Guardians and I are very anxious to hear from the Commissioners on the subject of our projected bakery in the workhouse of this Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 15, 1848.

I AM to inform you that the attention of the Government has been drawn to the irregularity on the holding of the petty sessions, and the non-enforcement of the Vagrant Act, as stated in your report.

I am at the same time to request that you will have the goodness to state more particularly the points upon which you wish a communication with reference to the proposed bakery in the workhouse.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 13, 1848.

WE now afford our usual weekly statement regarding the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Rates.

2. The following abstract exhibits the progress of the collection up to Friday night last:—

Collectors.	Collected last Week.			Lodged last Week.			Collected since commencement.			Lodged during same time.

Mr. Fitzgerald . .	36	5	7	"	"	"	113	0	0	79	0	0
Mr. Shaw	62	18	0	98	0	0	202	0	0	168	0	0
Mr. M'Cullagh . .	24	13	9	15	5	6	110	0	0	86	0	0
	175	4	0	188	5	10	733	0	0	610	0	0

Subsequently Mr. Shaw lodged 94 $\frac{1}{2}$ l., and Mr. Fitzgerald 80 $\frac{1}{2}$ l., which sums do not come into the past week's accounts. From the expectations and prospects the collectors possess for the current week, we shall be much disappointed if the lodgments in it do not exceed 500 $\frac{1}{2}$ l.

3. The collectors complain much of the tardiness of those gentlemen who owe large sums, and the difficulty of procuring a settlement from them. The days mutually arranged for payment have frequently arrived without producing a satisfactory result to the collector. The embarrassed circumstances of many of the persons possessing property in the Union doubtless occasion these defalcations; in some cases the amount claimed for holdings valued not exceeding 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ l., being (as stated) incorrect, is the alleged or real cause. After the expiration of the week, extreme measures must be at once resorted to against these parties for the recovery of the sums due by them, and the collectors have been so instructed; failure on their part being on pain of proceedings against themselves, to enforce the penalties of their bonds.

Finances.

4. The slow progress of the collection has reduced our funds to a state occasioning much inconvenience. An expenditure approaching 400 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. per week (which however will soon be considerably reduced), has a fearfully exhausting effect; your prompt attention to the request contained in our last report, that you should procure us an advance of 500 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. worth of Commissariat provisions, however, relieves our position. The rate to be collected this week will, we are pretty confident, meet our liabilities; and the amount of the loan referred to will, we trust, equal the demands upon us, until the further collection of the rates places the Union beyond the reach of immediate embarrassment. We shall not fail in making repayment of this loan at the earliest possible period.

5. On other grounds it is most desirable we should be able to avail ourselves at all times of Commissariat provisions. The commercial position of this locality is such that we could not depend on the ordinary channels of supply, through traders, for the quantity we require, without incurring the risk of imposition, undue prices, or entire disappointment; and this week, had it not been for the order on Commissariat, we should have been most disagreeably situated, in consequence of the refusal of the only merchant we could look to in the place to supply. We would therefore take the liberty of suggesting that the necessary permission should be extended to us by which we may be enabled to procure our supplies, by purchase, from Commissariat stores, and that a sufficient supply being kept on all occasions at the Carrick-on-Shannon depôt might be ensured; and would beg to request you to make an application on this behalf. From 20 to 25 tons per week will probably be the quantity we shall require for some time.

Workhouse.

6. It is with extreme regret we have to state that Mr. Horan, our recently appointed master, has been seized with violent fever. His activity and efficiency during the brief period we have had his services, elicited our entire approbation, and conferred the greatest benefits on the establishment. Both our newly employed officers, the master and schoolmaster, from whom we anticipated such good results, of which we had the earnest, have thus fallen victims. The matron, who we also found very active, has been suffering from dysentery, so that the state of the establishment is, to our pain and discouragement, again retrograding. We have recalled our late assistant-master, and will make summarily such arrangements, and employ such others officers as the urgency of the case demands. One satisfactory circumstance is, that the health of the inmates is improving—the mortality last week being reduced to 15, a number beneath average—and fever declining considerably. A strange continuance of misfortunes seems to be attached to our officials, and will, it is to be feared, deter proper persons undertaking the duties. It is certainly no slight pain to us, that just at the period when the establishment was merging into order, the transition should be arrested, and new difficulties interposed; we shall, however, adopt all the measures in our power to meet the exigency.

Carriick-on-Shannon Union.

7. We are proceeding to provide for the erection of four ovens (as already notified); the hiring of a house wherein to place the fever patients, at present in the miserable sheds; and to obtain suitable ground for a cemetery for deceased workhouse inmates, removed the prescribed distance from the building. We are much gratified to learn that the necessary funds can be obtained through you for the erection of a permanent fever ward in connexion with the workhouse, and have selected a site for it, and will proceed to advertise for contracts when the plans are prepared.

Out-door Relief.

8. By means of the 100 admissions into workhouse made the last ten days, 1600 persons of the class of able-bodied men and their families have been removed from the relief lists. We have instructed the relieving officers to relieve alone by an order to the workhouse, those able-bodied men still remaining on lists who have not more than a wife and two children, preparatory to the issue of the forthcoming sealed order, withdrawing the power of relieving out-of-doors that class. The labour test on a simple, economical, and what we think will be an effective plan, is being applied to all other able-bodied men. With all the reductions which tests will accomplish, still the amount of relief required in this impoverished and famine-stricken Union will be enormous. The deepest concern must be felt that no tendency is apparent on the part of the farmers to give employment. Little progress is being made in preparations for the tillage of the land, so that it is impossible to be sanguine as to the restoration of society to a healthy basis. The farmers look on with seeming indifference with their land untilled, while the able-bodied are being supported in unproductiveness—the cost of which they must eventually bear. Numerous fresh applications for relief have been made during the past week, many of whom have recently surrendered their land. We are using every means to urge the relieving officers to the vigorous and discriminating discharge of their duties; any failure in which we are determined to visit with a severe penalty.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

I AM to state, that the Commissioners will communicate with the Commissariat dépôt, relating to the supply of provisions for the use of destitute poor persons in the Union.

The Commissioners regret to perceive by your report that the collection of the rate proceeds so unsatisfactorily, and that the prospect of employment for the labourers in the Union is so unfavourable. The Commissioners can only recommend you to see that every means which the law has placed at your disposal shall be used with promptitude and energy for the making and collecting sufficient rates for the relief of the actually destitute poor persons in the Union.

As regards the proceedings which it is necessary to take against immediate lessors who are defaulters, I am to draw your attention to the Commissioners' Circular of the 14th January last; and I am to observe, that it is requisite that you should yourselves give specific directions to the collectors in each case in which proceedings are to be taken by notice and summons before the magistrates. In either of the other two modes of enforcing payment of the rates, you, and not the collectors, will institute the proceedings. In every case in which the rates are not paid, proceedings should be immediately commenced and vigorously prosecuted.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 18, 1848.

The health and appearance of the inmates who have been some time in the house are undoubtedly much improved; but we are constantly obliged to admit poor persons who, although for some time recipients of out-door relief, from various circumstances, such as sleeping in the open air, and eating badly or uncooked food, in consequence of their inability to procure lodgings, are a mass of undefinable diseases; and from my own experience, I feel convinced that it is constant contact with those deplorable cases that proves fatal to the health and services of every officer we place in the house. Our probationary wards are often intolerable, notwithstanding the adoption of every precaution within our reach, ventilation, fumigation, &c.

We have at present persons employed to discharge the several duties of the house, but I greatly fear we may find some difficulty in procuring future services unless things improve.

I have turned my attention for the last week to the state of employment in the Union, feeling as I do the vast importance of the subject as regards our future operations.

I have visited many of the labour depôts, and in all cases found the men working cheerfully and, with few exceptions, fairly.

I also received many complaints from employers of the difficulty of obtaining labourers, in consequence of the encouragement they received under our system of out-door relief.

On making inquiry I found that the wages offered, taking into account the prospect of punctual payment, were not such as could be accepted.

I also found on inquiry that the labourers at present employed in the district, were not receiving in any case more than 6*d.* per day, while many were working for their bit (as they termed it).

It was stated to me by those labourers that they would take service with any employer at 6*d.* per day, if punctually paid weekly; and indeed there appears no reason to doubt this statement from the fact, that they are at present working at the rate of 4½*d.* per day paid in meal, and giving (at a fair valuation) 10*d.* worth of labour.

This will appear from the following calculation:—

Take five as the average family, according to our out-door scale of rations they will receive 4 lbs. of meal daily, or 2 stone 4 lbs. weekly, being at the present prices of meal, 2*s.* 4*d.* per week, or 4½*d.* per day, (if there be but one able-bodied in the family), if two 2½*d.* per day.

Now I think when a preference is given to terms so unprofitable and so undesirable, it must be obvious that employment is at present on an unsound footing, and that before any permanent improvement can take place in the condition of the labouring classes, and the present pressure on the Poor Law can be effectually removed, an adjustment of this important question must take place on sound principles.

We are reducing our out-door relief list rapidly and extensively, by means of the workhouse test; but if employment be not given as rapidly and extensively, we shall have the parties very soon applying again, and in such a state as will render them proof against all tests.

At present the employers see that the system of money wages is inevitable, yet hesitate to commit themselves to any standard of wages which it would be desirable to see permanently adopted; while, on the other hand, want of confidence in the punctuality of weekly payments militates against the acceptance on the part of the labourers, of terms which (although quite inadequate to the wants of the people, and far below what it would be desirable to see established as a permanent settlement of the question) would be considerably more remunerative than those which they now appear so anxious to obtain, viz. 4½*d.* worth of meal per day.

Thus stands at this moment employment suspended between both parties, at a time when there is an ample field for the labour of the entire able-bodied population for two months to come, in the preparation for and sowing of the spring crops, the digging of stubble and second digging fallow, would in itself achieve this object, and repay in harvest next fourfold the amount expended. These operations are performed in this country by spade and not ploughs as elsewhere.

I am of opinion that in this juncture of affairs the labour test, if judiciously managed, may be made the instrument by which much permanent good to the country may be effected, by forcing both parties to an arrangement of this all-important question on sound principles.

On the one hand it must clearly show the employers "that our relief lists are in their hands, and that they alone possess the power of reducing them and with them their own taxation;" "that the able-bodied are in absolute and undoubted destitution, from the fact of their accepting of 4½d. worth of meal for a fair day's work;" and that the reconsideration of the terms heretofore offered to them by the employers is absolutely necessary, from the fact of 4½d. worth of food being preferred to those terms.

On the other hand, it will always be in our power to force acceptance of such terms as may appear reasonable, and likely to lead to the establishment of a better adjustment of this question.

The collection has proceeded more prosperously the last week. Extremely active measures have been adopted by our collectors; driving has been resorted to in most cases of refusal, wherever distress could be found, and a number of magistrate's decrees obtained.

On Thursday I attended the petty sessions of Drumshambo, where Mr. Fitzgerald, (collector,) had issued forty summonses. We obtained a decree in each case, with the exception of two, in which the parties pleaded having paid their rates to the late collector, without having taken a receipt: these cases were postponed to next sessions' day.

The magistrates, Mr. Lindsey Burchell and Mr. Kelly, R.M., gave us every facility and assistance. Many of the parties paid in the Court.

I trust the zeal and activity of our collectors, will show the ratepayers the difficulty of resisting payment of their rates, where they possess the means of paying. Some most salutary examples have been made during the past week.

The amount collected this week, I calculate at 450L, but Mr. Scott has not as yet sent me the return which I require from each collector on Saturday.

We have at present in the house 831, 115 of whom have been admitted during the week.

We have 153 in hospital, with 13 deaths during the week, showing a small decrease in hospital, and a very large one in mortality. There can be no doubt as to the improvement in the general sanitary state of the house. Fever has decreased, as has also dysentery, but the latter has assumed a more malignant type. The officers are now the chief sufferers.

1933 have been struck off the out-door relief list this week. There still are 12,716 on. The workhouse test has been applied more judiciously by the relieving officers then heretofore.

The rationing of the schools in both Unions, is going on very satisfactorily. In Boyle, some inconvenience has been experienced in consequence of the master, Mr. Breaky, being laid up in fever, some sacks were burned and some bread stolen.

The new oven in the workhouse is working exceedingly well, and clearly demonstrating the advantages of a small over a large oven, when worked with turf fuel and pauper labour.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

WITH reference to the past week we beg to report as follows:—

Rates.

2. The rate-collectors have lodged during the week less than we expected. Mr. M'Culloch, we regret, is making but slow progress. The other collectors, we are convinced, are using exertions to the full limits of their powers. We at once proceed to institute the necessary proceedings for the recovery of sums due by immediate lessors, and those owing sums exceeding in amount the jurisdiction of the local courts. We trust the abstracts of the collectors' accounts, which will be provided you at the close of the week, will present an improved aspect.

Workhouse.

3. The imperfect staff of officers renders the management of the workhouse a source of considerable anxiety. The business of the establishment is, however, proceeding with as little disorder as could be expected. We await the result of Mr. Horan's illness before taking any step towards providing another master. The temporary wardmaster we have employed is, by his activity, materially assisting in the due employment of the paupers; and the house, as regards the health of the inmates and general cleanliness, is perhaps not losing ground.

*Out-door Relief.*Carriek-on-Shannon Union.

4. The application of the workhouse test has reduced considerably the numbers of able-bodied men hitherto receiving out-door relief. All of that class now on the lists have large families, and from them the required portion of labour is rigidly exacted, of which we are convinced by personal inspection. We have no doubt that did employment exist in the Union to any extent, our lists should not contain a single able-bodied man; but at present their only resource from starvation is the relief we extend to them, and its paucity, compared to the work they perform, is, we conceive, unerring evidence of their destitution and the total absence of any means of independent exertion.

5. The facilities which are now afforded us for the purchase of Commissariat provisions, will be of the greatest service to the interests of the Union, and will prevent disappointments in providing the relieving officers with the necessary supplies.

6. The general question of the financial position of the Union, we hope we shall soon be enabled to submit for your consideration, when the return in reference thereto which you have called for shall be furnished: this, with other returns, and the half-yearly accounts, our clerks are busily employed in preparing. From the extreme confusion which existed in every department connected with the accounts, the preparation of returns, and the bringing up of the books, is a task of no ordinary difficulty. Indeed, the amount of labour thrown upon the clerks, as well as ourselves, is of the most weighty and harassing description.

Additional Accommodation.

7. The erection of the temporary hospital is receiving our attention; and we hope soon that our arrangements will be completed for the occupation by the female children of the house, to contain 100 inmates, about which we are in treaty.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 25, 1848.

CONSIDERABLE exertions have been made by the temporary officers for the past week, which, with the judicious measures adopted and carried out by the Vice-Guardians, have in a great measure re-established order, discipline, cleanliness, and general improvement.

The health and appearance of the inmates are much improved, particularly of the children, who show the effects of improved dietary and care. Employment is general throughout all classes, and much useful work heretofore never attempted in Carriek-on-Shannon workhouse has been performed.

The sanitary state of the house is certainly improving, although the cases which have recently occurred of fever and dysentery are of a very malignant type.

The number in the house is	870
The number in hospital	152
The number of deaths during the week . .	18

I have brought the state of the probationary wards, and the circumstances which induce that state, &c., under the notice of the Vice-Guardians.

It appears to be a state of things inseparable from the existing circumstances of the Union, viz., the vast numbers of houseless wanderers, the insecurity afforded them in the vocation of begging, although receiving relief, and the necessity of constantly being obliged to afford them shelter in the probationary wards, or allow them to perish in the streets. We however adopt every possible means of diminishing this evil by fumigation and ventilation, removing all persons into the body of the house (who do not demand their discharge after their night's lodging) with the least possible delay.

I have visited during the week many of the labour depôts, and have found the men performing their task of work cheerfully and well, and in all cases evincing great anxiety to be continued at work.

Very many of these men have been struck off during the week, by the application of the workhouse test, by which I think the entire of the able-bodied will be struck off, and permanently, if employment be given, but not otherwise.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

The number struck off this week 607, leaving on the out-door relief lists at present 11,857.

Employment has increased during the week, but by no means to the extent necessary, and in some instances I have found that an improved rate of wages has been given.

The Shannon Commission is about to resume operations, and some works under the Land Improvement Act are about to commence; but I fear little will be done this year under that Act in this Union.

The collectors have used all possible exertions during the week to accomplish the collection of the rates. I have attended (where time would permit) at the petty sessions, and in every case a decree has been obtained.

The magistrates have given every facility and assistance on these occasions.

£428. 3s. 10d. have been collected during the week, and in most cases the collectors have been obliged to have recourse to compulsory measures, more especially with the better orders.

I send the return of all defaulters whose liabilities amount to 4*l.* and upwards, as called for by the Commissioners. I have only just received it from the collectors, who plead their close application to their ordinary duties as the reason why it was not furnished sooner.

The return contains but few names, as the bulk of the rate is composed of liabilities varying from 9s. to 2*l.* 10s.

The relieving officers are, generally speaking, improving in the execution of their duties. I have investigated many complaints against them during the week, and have not found any valid cause to exist; perhaps in some few cases the quarter acre clause has been used with too much vigour from their inability to exercise the discretionary power which we have given them. I fear we shall be obliged to dismiss two of them for want of capacity.

The Vice-Guardians and I have inspected the grounds adjoining the workhouse, with a view to selecting the best site for the erection of the proposed fever hospital.

The site on the western side of the workhouse grounds would be preferable to that on the eastern, but from the nature of the tenure by which it is held it is not available.

The site on the eastern side appears to me unobjectionable, and may be had on fair terms, as it is held by a yearly tenant, who agrees to receive for his interest the award of arbitration. The landlord also agrees to take the same terms as those on which the workhouse grounds are held.

There does not appear therefore any cause for delay.

I have received the plan and specification of the ovens about to be erected in the workhouse, and shall proceed with the work at once.

From practical experience, I have no doubt of the advantages of two small ovens over one large for workhouse purposes, where pauper and unskilled labour is used, and particularly where the fuel is turf. With skilled labour, coal fuel, and the increased exertion of tradesmen working for wages, the case would be different. One of the 6 feet 6 inches by 6 feet ovens will bake sufficient bread for the consumption of the house; will require less time and less fuel to heat it, and less skill and exertion to charge and draw it.

I also find that at the Boyle workhouse it bakes as much as the large oven.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners having had before them your report of the 25th instant, in which you refer to the practice of permitting destitute persons to remain in the probationary wards of Carrick-on-Shannon Union workhouse, as shelter for the night, without being intended for admission into the house,—and also to a rigorous application of the clause in the Relief Extension Act, which prohibits relief to persons occupying more than a quarter of an acre of land,—the Commissioners request that you will draw the attention of the Vice-Guardians to the necessity of applying a remedy in each case.

The Commissioners are aware of the difficulty created in this Union by depriving many families of their cabins, and the only remedy in this case appears to be, an extension of workhouse accommodation by sheds or auxiliary houses. The practice of admitting persons for night shelter to the probationary ward, must be productive of many evils, and tend directly to encourage mendicancy.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

The Commissioners recommend a rigid enforcement of the Vice-Guardians' power, in checking corrupt practices of relieving officers, wherever it shall appear that they have lent themselves to the promotion of any object, affecting the administration of relief, which shall not have been in strict conformity with their defined duties.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS.—April 1, 1848.

THE workhouse (notwithstanding the illness of our master, and the difficulty of procuring an efficient person to discharge his duties) is improving rapidly under the indefatigable and well-directed exertions of the Vice-Guardians.

Every individual of every class who is able to do anything is employed.

Meals are prepared and given at regular hours, of well-cooked food, and in proper quantities; cleanliness, ventilation, and fumigation are strictly attended to, and the effects are discernible in the improved health and appearance of the inmates and the decreased mortality, which for the past week only, amounts to 12, most of whom were recent admissions labouring under chronic dysentery.

We have admitted during the week 46, and discharged 23, and have at present in the house 883, which leaves the workhouse test still available.

We have this week 12,063 on our out-door relief list, notwithstanding that 230 able-bodied have been struck off by the application of the workhouse test; but many applicants have given up their ground who have hitherto clung to it, this accounts for the increased number since last week.

There are only 107 able-bodied at present on the list, consequently I found the labour depôts, in most cases, deserted, in others a few men working very well.

The ensuing week will dispose altogether of this class, when we shall apply the workhouse test to such class or classes as the circumstances of the Union shall, from time to time, render it advisable to strike off the lists.

We contemplate commencing with able-bodied women single, or widows with not more than two children, as these classes could be usefully employed at this season in the agricultural operations of the district.

We also propose to commence immediately our issue of out-door relief in bread (rye and barley meal), and, pending the erection of the ovens in the workhouse, to bake by contract in those parts of the Union where bakers can be had. I hope to be able to report the most favourable results from this experiment.

In some parts of the Union a decided increase in employment has taken place within the last week, and particularly in those where the relieving officers carried out their orders with zeal and ability, and have thereby clearly demonstrated that the rate-payers and employers must either support the able-bodied unprofitably to themselves, or give extended employment with fair and adequate wages and weekly payments, or else, in the event of their inability or unwillingness to adopt the latter alternative, that they must give up their position to others of more industrious habits and in better circumstances; as also that the sooner they take this step the better for themselves and for the community.

In Elphin electoral division, where we have our best relieving officer (Mr. Mills), very considerable employment is being given; indeed a large portion of the able-bodied are employed in spade labour.

I observed in a field of about 10 acres 120 men engaged in spade tillage, their wages varied from 8d. to 10d. The employer is Mr. Loyd, of Croghan. A few such would soon lighten our labours.

The amount of the past week's collection is not as large as I expected; 357l. 10s. has been collected, and 302l. 12s. 10d. lodged with treasurer, a very small portion of which has been collected without the adoption of extreme measures on the part of the collectors, and the incurring of legal expenses on the part of the rate-payers. I trust the latter will see the folly of continuing this system of passive resistance.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I have called the attention of the Vice-Guardians to the necessity that exists for taking immediate steps with a view to obtaining a better description of men to discharge the important duties of relieving officers, as our establishment must be imperfect while some of the present men remain in office.

We are taking active steps towards the erection of a temporary fever-shed, as also for that of the workhouse ovens, which we hope to have in operation in three weeks.

The rationing of the schools in both Unions is going on extremely satisfactorily, as is also the baking in the Boyle workhouse, where the small oven is baking a larger quantity than the large, or two batches for one.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—April 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to lay before the Commissioners the following particulars in reference to the condition and management of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I am enabled to report uninterrupted progress of improvement in every department of the workhouse; the inmates looking extremely well; the clothing good and clean, bedding good, clean, and abundant; the dormitories neat, clean, and well ventilated; and what is of paramount importance, all classes, able to work, fully and usefully employed.

The house contains at present 939, so that we have nearly lost the workhouse test.

We propose to draft 100 of the female school children to the new school in the town on Monday, which will give us considerable additional accommodation in the house for adults, and enable us to work on till we can obtain auxiliary workhouse accommodation, which will become indispensable, and which, I trust, we may now entertain a reasonable hope of being able to obtain.

The mortality has increased for the last week, the number of deaths being 23; however 10 were recent admissions, who entered the house in a dying state a few days, and some a few hours before their death; there can be no question as to the improved sanatory state of the inmates of the house.

I regret to say that, in many parts of the Union, the reverse is the case, and that where employment has not yet been in some degree commensurate with the reduction which we have lately effected by means of the workhouse test, the parties struck off have fallen considerably into destitution, and very many into fever. I may instance Drumshambo, Kilglass, and Coothall, where very little employment is, as yet, afforded, and where fever and dysentery have greatly increased with destitution.

I anticipate, as I have already stated in my report of the 4th of March last, that many of the parties struck off at that time by the workhouse will immediately become applicants again, and I fear in such a state as will render them proof against any test that may be applied.

Employment cannot be had as yet by one-third of the able-bodied, and cheap as food may be considered to be, there is no other way by which the remaining two-thirds can procure it, but the Poor Law.

There is a good deal of tillage going forward; but the labour is performed for the most part by holders of the land, and perhaps a few labourers working for their bit; there is scarcely to be met with an instance of employment on sound principles, such as would lead to the indulgence of any reasonable hope of a termination to the present lamentable condition of the people, both physical and moral.

Nothing can be more singularly melancholy than to see hordes of able-bodied of both sexes lounging about unemployed and now no longer seeking employment; but devoting their entire energies and ingenuity to the practice of every species of device, subterfuge, and fraud, in order to procure the largest possible amount of relief, as their only means of subsistence, having almost entirely abandoned the hope of procuring employment.

This picture is rendered still more melancholy when you see at the same time two-thirds of the district comparatively waste and unproductive.

In the electoral division of Elphin, and a few other localities, a large amount of employment is being given, and the parties struck off within the last five weeks are, for the most part, at work, and in some instances at tolerably fair wages.

As therefore for the reasons which I stated in my report of the 4th of March, and which I have now adverted to, we may expect a heavy pressure on the workhouse; we have turned our attention again to the Jamestown mill as the only building in the Union suited to our purposes as an auxiliary workhouse; and which, I think, we shall now be able to convert to those purposes, without diverting it from its original design and intention, which appeared to be the only condition on which we could obtain it from the Shannon Commissioners.

I have had a plan and specification prepared, showing the contemplated alterations, which I propose to take up to the town on Sunday night, in order that I may make any further explanations the Commissioners may require; and at once close with them, if possible.

Dispatch is of the greatest importance; we feel the pressure for the last few days, and expect it to increase rapidly—already have the Guardians been obliged to send some able-bodied to stone-breaking, to avoid filling the house and losing the test.

The mill will only require repairs of floors, roof, and doors, with some new ones broken out, which will not alter the design of the house; it will also require glazing.

We estimate the expense at 100*l.*, and think it will accommodate 250, reserving the necessary storage room for the Commissioners.

We are of opinion that by this arrangement, and that which we have just perfected, and which we hope in a few days to see in full operation, viz., bread rations for the entire Union, we shall effect a saving of 150*l.* weekly; and a material improvement in the general health of the pauper population, as many instances have come under my notice where health has suffered irreparable injury by exposure to the inclemency of the weather, and eating uncooked or badly cooked Indian meal.

The out-door relief list has increased a little the last week; many husbands have deserted their wives and families, some to England, others to Leinster, some have remained in the country, and a few of the latter we have committed to gaol on the informations of the wives; but the same difficulty, viz., "the crowded state of the gaols and the heavy expense of a prisoner," will be found to exist in the carrying out of this provision of the 1st and 2nd Vict., cap. 56, as in the case of the Vagrant Act.

This week, like last, considerable difficulties have been experienced by the collectors, and in some instances opposition of a very serious nature was shown; however, by determination on the part of the collector (Mr. Scott), and extremely prompt assistance on the part of the police, the collector carried his point in every case, and succeeded in lodging this week 210*l.*

I have used my best endeavours to organize the Committee necessary to enable the small and needy farmers of this Union to avail themselves of the advantages of obtaining seed held out to them by the Central Committee. I fear, however, that no such Committee can be formed; nobody appears inclined to stir in the matter, and I think that this valuable opportunity will be lost to this Union. This is more to be regretted, as there is the greatest anxiety to plant potatoes wherever seed can be obtained. Household furniture, stock of every description, and every marketable commodity, is being sold to enable the sellers to buy a few stone of potatoes, which are, strange to say, 40 per cent. dearer in this market than they are at Ballahadereen, 20 miles distant.

Unless some means of affording a facility for the purchase of seed for those farmers who still possess some means, and for a loan to those who possess none, be adopted, I fear the potato crop will be a very short one, as also the oat crop—the country is not suited to barley.

It was proposed to call a general meeting of the Union to take this subject into consideration. I objected to this course, as such a meeting in the present times would be likely to take a political turn; and recommended calling together those gentlemen only who were in a position to become members of the required Committee, as the first step necessary to be taken.

This course was adopted; with what success remains to be proved.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—May 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 26th ultimo, enclosing a copy of a communication from the Under Secretary's Office, relative to the decease of a poor man named Patt Crosbie, stated in verdict of coroner's inquest to have died from "want of food and general debility."

In reply, I have to state that, after the most careful investigation into the circumstances of the case, and the examination of such witnesses as were likely to throw any light on the subject, I am unable to discover any valid grounds for the verdict.

I am of opinion that the inquest was called for with a view to obtaining a coffin; indeed, the foreman of the jury (Mr. Maxwell) stated that circumstances came to their knowledge after they had returned their verdict, which left no doubt on their minds that such was the motive in calling for the inquest.

Deceased received relief (out-door) up to 29th of March, when, being able-bodied, and there being room in the workhouse, he was offered admission, and having refused, it was struck off.

Relief was continued to deceased's mother and two children under sixteen, who still receive it.

From the period of deceased being struck off till that of his death, he occasionally procured employment for his bit (never receiving wages).

When no employment could be procured, even on these terms, deceased shared with his mother and brothers their weekly allowance of one stone and a-half of Indian meal.

On the day previous to his death, deceased eat as good a dinner as at any time during the distress, but would have eaten more if he got it; he went to bed perfectly well, called to his brother in the night for a drink of water, became cold immediately after he had taken it, and was dead before his mother, who was called at once, could light a candle.

Deceased's mother (whom I examined on oath) was unable to assign any reason or cause of death, but fully corroborated the facts stated above, of the truth of which I have not the slightest doubt.

Deceased never at any time laboured under general debility, as stated in verdict, but was a strong healthy young man, of 23 years.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON :—May 8, 1848.

WITH reference to the communication referred to them on the 19th ultimo, relating to the death of a poor man named Patt Crosbie, in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of a report which they have received from Captain Wynne, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, on the subject.

It appears, from Captain Wynne's report, that the deceased never at any time laboured under general debility, as stated in the verdict, and that the inquest was called for the purpose of obtaining a coffin.

No sufficient grounds appear to have existed for the verdict.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—May 6, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit, for the information of the Commissioners, the following particulars in reference to the condition and management of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union for the past week.

The workhouse continues to improve in all respects; the inmates are healthy and in good spirits, well fed, and well clothed: the dietary appears to agree with all classes, and particularly with the children, who are completely metamorphosed.

Every part of the house is in a highly creditable state, as regards cleanliness, order, and regularity. A great deal of work of various kinds is being done in and about the house; in fact, it is at present a busy scene.

The sanatory condition of the house is still further improved; the deaths for the week are 12. There are in the house 939, and in hospital 130.

The out-door relief list has increased during the week, in consequence of the numbers of women who have been deserted by their husbands.

We have obtained warrants against many of the latter, and some are already in gaol.

Many parties have been lately evicted from lands, and have fallen on the poor-laws now that the disability is removed; this has also tended to increase the out-door relief list.

There are still a few able-bodied on the list, and employed at stone-breaking; but as we shall have room in the house next week, they will be offered admission, and we propose to abolish the few labour depôts still remaining.

There are at present on the out-door relief list 11,408; struck off during week 140.

Employment has improved during the past week, and in many instances fair money wages have been given; still, working for the individual day's food is very general.

I met with several instances of respectable farmers who for 20 years have not handled a farming implement, and who are now struggling to till their land with their own hands. Such is the scarcity of money, and the anxiety of those who have it, to hold it. The Board of Works are resuming their operations, and have this week set nearly 600 to work.

Many have left the workhouse for the purpose of being employed, and the anxiety generally manifested throughout the district to obtain a share of this employment is very great.

The opposition to payment of poor-rates appears to increase: during the past week the collectors met with obstructions of rather a serious nature, though overcome without the aid of police; as an instance, Mr. Shaw spent two days in the recovery of 14s., with ten men employed, some of whom were knocked down and otherwise maltreated, and the cattle twice rescued; he however succeeded in impounding and getting the money. Several instances of this description occurred during the week; but no serious injury has been sustained by any party. Amount lodged this week, 287*l.* 10*s.* I look forward to increased facility of collection for some time to come; the grass land must now be stocked, and afford the collectors something tangible; the spring fairs are nearly over, which kept the cattle in a constant state of transition, and the prompt and energetic steps being taken against defaulting lessors, must greatly facilitate the collection and increase the available fund.

In the mean time the Vice-Guardians will be under the necessity of seeking a further loan from the British Relief Association, to meet the current expences for the relief of the destitute. After repaying on this day the 300*l.* which they borrowed on this day week, they were obliged to borrow 247*l.*, to obtain the week's supplies, or rather part of the week's supplies, from the Commissariat.

The bakeries and depôts have been established throughout the Union, and will be in full operation next week, when it is my intention to inspect each, and examine the bread, which appears, from the samples sent in, to be very good.

I would suggest that the best receipt for making barm (wholesome and economical) should be procured and furnished to all bakers who are required to use that ingredient in their bread; as, generally speaking, the art is but imperfectly understood in the provinces, and much mischief is to be apprehended from the use of deleterious ingredients.

The samples we have received are not much improved by the addition of barm, and not at all where rye meal formed the principal ingredient, without the mixture of wheaten meal, which cannot be procured in the local markets.

The relieving officers have improved very much, with the exception of two, who appear hopelessly indocile. The Vice-Guardians, however, issue their orders in language which it is difficult to mistake.

The transaction for the Jamestown Mill, as an auxiliary workhouse, has not been as yet concluded with the Board of Works, but the terms are agreed on, and the Vice-Guardians are taking steps to have the necessary repairs and alterations put into operation.

The Vice-Guardians also contemplate taking Liscarban House, near Drumshambo, as a temporary fever hospital, and have requested my opinion as to the fitness of the building for the purpose, and the probable expenses of repairs and alterations that would be required.

The building of the ovens at the workhouse progresses satisfactorily.

CASTLEREAH UNION.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 13, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners that I have been employed the most part of the last week for the British Association. I have 7400 children in daily attendance at the schools, receiving weekly 51,919 rations; there will be a further increase this week. I am afraid that there will be great abuse, as I find it impossible to visit all the schools. I had two boys brought before the stipendiary magistrate for stealing two of the tubs belonging to the workhouse, but we failed in the prosecution. The Guardians turned them out of the house.

Yesterday I had to attend the sessions. Captain Gray, a magistrate, was summoned for poor-rates. He came before the Guardians the week before, and promised to pay both yesterday. To my astonishment he had a barrister employed to defend him. After a long trial I had him decreed. Yesterday, when the order was read to dissolve the Board of Guardians, there was a most stormy debate; at first they refused to grant the supplies to carry on the house. After a deal to do I got them to grant them. Mr. O'Connell, the stipendiary magistrate, goes to-morrow to French Park, with the military and police, to assist the rate collector.

REPLY to the foregoing :—February 16, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 13th instant, relating to the Castlereagh Union, and expressing your fear that abuses would occur, as you find it impossible to visit all the schools in the Union.

In reply, I am to state that in other large Unions one Inspector visits all the schools; and that Captain Wynne, Temporary Poor Law Inspector for the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, visits those of two Unions.

I am at the same time to recommend you to appoint a meeting with Captain Wynne at Carrick-on-Shannon, and there learn the course adopted by him.

The attention of the Under Secretary for Ireland has been drawn to that part of your report which relates to Captain Gray.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 20, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners that Mr. O'Reilly, one of the Vice-Guardians, arrived here yesterday. There was no business done, except to sign orders for the expenditure of the house. I had Mr. O'Reilly round the workhouse, and he highly approved of the clean manner in which it was kept. I can state with confidence that no workhouse can be kept more clean, or better ventilated. I have made it my business since I came here to be there four hours a day, and to visit daily every part of the establishment. There is still a deal to be done outside the house. I have been much engaged during the week on the part of the British Association. Friday I attended at a sale for poor-rates, as I was determined to see that John Duffy, the collector, did his duty; he sold a quantity of hay and oats belonging to a Mr. Thurston, for 18*l.* due; the man was well able to pay; the collector could not get carts to draw it away; he is to get a number of men to-morrow to thresh the corn, and I have got him a police protection. Patrick Giblin, another collector, had the military and police at French Park for two days and a half; he seized upwards of 40 head of cattle, and collected 147*l.* John Costello, another collector, had a police protection for one day last week, which was of great service to him. Michael Waldron, another collector, states that he was assaulted last week three times while on duty; he cannot collect the rates without a protection. Thomas Rogers also states that he could not get any person to pay him last week, and that he was afraid to go on the lands to look for the rates without the police. The resident magistrate here states that when the assizes of Roscommon are over he will give them every assistance. Mr. Gray has paid his poor-rate. Amount lodged this last week by the collectors, 564*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* For the first time since I came here there is standing to the credit of the Union the sum of 22*l.* I regret to state that the distress is daily increasing. Mr. John Hurley came to the Board-room yesterday; he states that there is a family of seven persons in his district who have been living on horse flesh for some days.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 22, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to request that you will have the goodness to state whether in your opinion it has now become necessary to issue an order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men in the Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

I BEG to forward you a letter from Mr. Knox, the resident magistrate at Tubbercurry, to show you the difficulty there is in procuring police protection for the rate collectors in this Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. KNOX to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—February 19, 1848.

I SHALL at all times attend to the rate collectors of my district, when in my power, with much pleasure; but as I am at present situated I can be of very little use to them. I have six petty sessions to attend, and the nearest magistrate ten miles from me. I have seven poor rate collectors to protect also, and I find it impossible to give each of them the assistance I would wish. I am situated thus as to duty for the next week:—

Monday February 21st	Ballaghaderreen Petty Sessions.
Tuesday	Coolavin ditto.
Wednesday	Coolony ditto.
Thursday	Tubbercurry ditto.
Friday	Swineford ditto.

Saturday the 26th I can attend Costello, at Ballaghaderreen, collecting the rates, but not sooner; and I think it would be advisable to send him carts as he cannot procure them in his own neighbourhood.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 25, 1848.

I AM to state that although the same difficulties necessarily exist in other Unions, the rates are still enforced through the activity of the Inspectors, Vice-Guardians, and Collectors.

Mr. Knox's communication is herewith returned.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 23, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that we have commenced our duties here as Vice-Guardians, and have received your letter of the 19th instant, in reply to which we assure you no exertion on our part shall be wanting to have your directions carried into effect.

We have as yet been able to acquire very little information as to the collection, not having been able to see the collectors. We have perceived that there is a large sum due by immediate lessors, and that returns of them have been sent to you. We would suggest that we should be sanctioned by you in taking immediate legal proceedings for recovery of same.

When we first visited the house on the 20th, in company with the Inspector, we found it clean and well ventilated; and the paupers in general clean. On visiting yesterday we found the provisions generally of a very inferior description, and have adopted steps to prevent such occurring in future. We found no industrial work of any kind going on except stone-breaking. We would respectfully suggest that we should have your permission to employ a shoemaker and tailor to instruct the boys in their trades; and also to employ the women and girls in spinning wool, and in knitting stockings for the use of the paupers.

The books of the Union do not appear to be regularly kept; the ledger has not been posted since the 25th of March last. The clerk states that he was unable to do so, as the relief lists do not agree with the provision check account. This state of things cannot be permitted to continue.

The clerk and master both appear active and zealous; but we consider that they would both require assistants to enable them to discharge their duties efficiently; and would suggest that the clerk's salary should be increased, so as to enable him to provide his own assistant; and that we should be permitted to appoint an assistant master; the present master has had fever, and is still weak.

We will, as soon as the funds permit us to commence giving out-door relief, take care that the house shall be available as far as possible for the able-bodied.

In conclusion, we beg to state, that our most earnest attention shall be devoted to the collection of the rate, and to finances in general; and shall keep you continually informed of the progress we may be enabled to make respecting them.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 24, 1848.

I AM to state, that the Commissioners approve of your taking steps to have the payment of the outstanding rates enforced from the immediate lessors as well as other defaulters. The Commissioners think it will be better that the summary mode of proceeding against immediate lessors by notice and summons should be resorted to when practicable, in preference to taking proceedings in the superior courts; where however that course is deemed necessary, the Commissioners will readily consent to proceedings being taken, on your forwarding to them a list of such immediate lessors.

The Commissioners have no objection to the appointment of a shoemaker and tailor to be employed in the workhouse as you propose; and they are prepared to sanction an increase in the clerk's salary, and the appointment of an assistant to the workhouse master.

MR. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 25, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners, that I have had a communication with the manager of the National Bank in this town. He has informed me that there would be no difficulty in borrowing a sum of money from the directors (say about 4,000*l.*) at five per cent., provided the Commissioners would sanction the loan to be re-payable in instalments out of the rates. From the great necessity there is for commencing out-door relief immediately, I see no other means of our beginning.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 26, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' approval of the proposal to obtain a loan from the Union Treasurer for this purpose, and to state that the Commissioners will guarantee the payment of interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, for six months, or such shorter period as it may be required, on any loan, not exceeding 4,000*l.* which the Vice-Guardians may be able to obtain from their Treasurer.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 29, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that our attention has been constantly applied in endeavouring to establish discipline and classification in the workhouse. We have in some degree succeeded, but much remains to be done.

We would again call your attention to the advantage of having the female paupers employed in spinning wool and knitting stockings; and request your sanction for same. We do not propose to use fire in doing so.

Castlereagh Union.

We have endeavoured to ascertain the state of the finances in this Union; as yet we have not been able to do so, in consequence of the manner in which the books were kept. We are of opinion, as is also Mr. Auchmuty, the Inspector, that a person conversant with the details of Union accounts should be sent here by you to investigate and wind up to this time all the accounts of this Union. The late Guardians have been in the practice of giving checks on the treasurer to the contractors and others, though they had no funds in his hands to meet them. We have not as yet been able to ascertain to what amount such checks are still outstanding.

We have had before us most of the collectors, they are 14 in number. Some of them appear to be very inefficient; collecting books and receipt checks very incorrectly kept. In some instances no entries made in their books before they came to the clerk to check their accounts. Some of them are the tenants (one the bailiff) of large proprietors and immediate lessors, all of whom they have permitted to continue defaulters to this time. We have had the collectors served with notices to pay in 50*l.* each on next Saturday. In case of their not doing so we intend, with your approval, to have them summoned to petty sessions for disobedience of orders. We have also directed them to serve 15 days' notice on all defaulting immediate lessors who have residences within the county, and recommend that all who have not such residences should be proceeded against without delay in the superior courts.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 1, 1848.

You have full authority, and it is part of your duty, to have the female inmates of the workhouse employed, without receiving any special sanction for the purpose from the Commissioners. In any matter affecting the insurance of the workhouse from fire, you should communicate with the agent of the insurance company who have insured the workhouse premises.

As regards the Union accounts, the Commissioners must decline at this time to detach from this office an accountant to arrange the books of the Castlereagh Union; they suggest that you should communicate with the auditor on the subject, and advertise for a competent person to do what is required in that respect, charging the due proportion of expense on each of the present or former Union officers through whose default the arrear has occurred.

With respect to the collectors of poor-rate, I am to state that it will be an important part of your duty to take such steps as may be necessary to render those officers attentive and zealous in the discharge of their duties. In any case of continued neglect or inefficiency you should suspend the officer, in pursuance of the 41st article of the General Regulations, and the Commissioners will immediately take the case into consideration, with a view to the issue of an order of dismissal. The collectors should be informed that they and their sureties will be held responsible under their bonds for any neglect or disobedience in the discharge of their duties, and also that in case of dismissal they and their sureties will still be legally responsible under their bonds for any rates which shall be shown to have been lost by their negligence or default.

You will have the goodness to report to the Commissioners the names of the immediate lessors in the Union against whom you shall recommend that proceedings should be instituted in the Superior Courts of Record, stating at the same time the amount due by each, and the steps which may have been taken to obtain payment of the rate.

MR. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 2, 1848.

I ATTENDED yesterday at Ballaghaderreen relative to cattle that Thomas Costello had impounded for poor rate. There was a meeting of magistrates, and Mr. Dillon, the solicitor, attended. The magistrates ordered that the cattle should be returned to the owners, and that Costello should pay all expenses, on the ground that the regular 31 days' notice had not been served by the collector. The Vice-Guardians have ordered Patrick Giblin to give up two cows that he had in pound, on the same grounds.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 3, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to report to the Commissioners the reasons why the collectors, in the cases referred to, proceeded against the occupiers of the lands instead of against the immediate lessors.

The collectors should in all cases where immediate lessors are rated use every means to recover the rate from them; and the provisions of the 3rd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act should not be resorted to except under peculiar circumstances.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 4, 1848.

THERE are upwards of 10,000 children receiving relief under the British Association. The population in 1841 was 92,864. We have not commenced out-door relief here as yet. The Vice-Guardians and I are of opinion that relief should be confined to the 1st section. We are in hopes that employment will now become general.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 8, 1848.

IF the Vice-Guardians provide accommodation in the workhouse, by discharging on out-door relief all classes coming under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, they will probably be enabled to make room for the reception of able-bodied applicants for relief.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 5, 1848.

I HAVE been in attendance on the Vice-Guardians the entire week. We have been actively employed in examining the rate collectors' books. I regret to state that some of them have been very negligent in their duty, but I hope in another week that there will be an improvement; if not, the Vice-Guardians and I are determined to take active steps against them.

We have had the relieving officers before us with their books. The moment we have funds we will commence out-door relief. I regret to state that distress is increasing every day.

I was much pleased on going to Ballaghadereen to see the men employed on the land. Potato planting will be carried out there extensively, as seed is plenty and not dear in that locality.

Mr. Darcy, a magistrate, has promised me next week to give the collectors at Kilkerrin and Glaunamodda a police protection, and to go with them himself. Mr. O'Connell goes with the military and police on Wednesday to Ballyhaunis for three days to assist the collector.

I think that unless I am empowered to call on all the local magistrates to give the collectors assistance, and in case of their refusal to represent their conduct to the Castle, the poor-rates will never be effectually collected.

I have further to report that I have got every assistance from Mr. Baker in carrying out the discipline of the house. The entire establishment is clean, and I have at last got all the paupers well clad.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 9, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to inform the Commissioners of the result of the application for a loan which the Union treasurer was stated to be willing to advance.

As regards the assistance required by the collectors of poor-rate, the Commissioners recommend you to apply for the assistance of the magistrates, and to report the result of your application.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 9, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that we have been principally engaged since our last report in investigating the collectors' accounts, the greater part of them are now in a satisfactory state. We consider some of the collectors very inefficient, and would without hesitation suspend them did we not fear our doing so would retard and confuse the present collection; we hope that by close attention and keeping them strictly to their duties that we will be able to get in the present rate sooner than by dismissing them. We regret to say that the directors of the National Bank have declined advancing the loan of 4000*l.* which you sanctioned our applying for; they say they are ready to lend us a smaller sum, say 2500*l.*, provided we guarantee that the rates as collected shall be appropriated to the payment of that loan; our doing so would not place us in a better position than we are at present. As far as we can ascertain there is considerably over 2000*l.* due to contractors and tradesmen.

From the great distress prevailing in this Union we felt ourselves called on to commence giving out-door relief in money to the parties included in your first order for out-door relief. We were enabled to do this by the Inspector, Mr. Auchmuty, inducing the manager of the National Bank to advance 300*l.* for that purpose; we hope that this sum will enable us to afford considerable relief, and that an increased collection of the rates will permit us to continue doing so for some time.

There still remains over 9000*l.* of the rate to be collected; but from all the information we can procure, we fear that about 4000*l.* of that sum cannot be collected, being principally due by parties unable to pay, and who have nothing to be distrained. The state of the workhouse as to discipline, classification, and the appearance of the paupers, is much improved. Our attention is still directed to the accounts of the Union, which we hope will be soon in a satisfactory state.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 11, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' regret that you have not been able to obtain the proposed advance from the Union treasurer.

I am at the same time to state that it appears to the Commissioners that if you communicated personally as well as by letter with the manager of the Bank, you might still be enabled to obtain an advance on terms sufficiently advantageous to warrant you in availing yourselves of it.

The Commissioners rely upon your attention being continually directed to the collection of the outstanding poor-rates with promptitude and vigour.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 12, 1848.

I HAVE been employed at the workhouse with the Vice-Guardians the entire week. We have had all the relieving officers before us. I am happy to say that out-door relief is given under the first section. We will have room for a good many able-bodied paupers in the house from the changes that we are making, and I am in hopes after a time I shall be enabled to get the grounds about the workhouse into order. One of the contractors for the fever-sheds will have his part done in about a fortnight; it will accommodate 50 patients. Mr. O'Connell has been at Ballyhaunis since Wednesday with the military and police. I cannot state what money has been collected, as I have not seen the collectors. I have had Commissary Dobree and Mr. Flanagan here during the week. I think they both seemed pleased with the clean manner the workhouse is kept.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 14, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that since our last report, we have been chiefly engaged in initialing the relieving officers' books, for those persons entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Poor Relief Extension Act. Those three classes we regret to say are very numerous, we cannot exactly say the number; by a rough calculation we found it necessary to give the relieving officers cheques for 215*l.* on the treasurer, to afford relief to those we directed. Yesterday a number of persons, over 300, came from the relief districts of Ballymoe and Ballinakill to the workhouse to demand relief; we admitted a few of them to the Board-room, and explained to them the extent to which we could legally extend relief; they were perfectly peaceable and respectful in their conduct, but said that if they were not relieved that bad work would take place in the country. We offered to admit many of them to the workhouse, but they refused, with the exception of one man, who has a very large family; and they generally said that they would rather die by the ditches than come into the workhouse. Many of them held small portions of land, and they appeared much disappointed when we explained to them the impossibility of our giving them relief, while they continued to hold more land than a statute quarter acre. John Hurley, the relieving officer of this district, stated that all those poor persons were desired on the previous Sunday at Ballymoe, by Mr. Thomas N. Baggot, a magistrate, and late ex officio Guardian, the parish priest, and himself, to go to the Vice-Guardians to the workhouse, as they themselves could do nothing for them. We have applied by letter and personally to the manager of the Bank here for a loan of 2500*l.*, to be paid out of the rates in harvest next. He has forwarded our application to London, but has not as yet received an answer. We are of opinion that the collectors generally are using increased exertions; the stipendiary magistrate has been assisting some of them with the police and military. No exertions shall be spared on our part to keep them to a strict discharge of their duties. We have discharged from the workhouse numbers of persons who can get out-door relief, under the 1st section, and will endeavour to make the house as available as possible for the able-bodied.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

I AM to request that the Commissioners may be informed whether you recommend that an order should be issued, authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

THE relieving officers of this Union have stated to us that many persons have applied to them for relief who hold more than a statute quarter acre of land, and that to entitle them and their families to relief they have offered the landlord possession of the land, retaining the house, and in some instances the house and the quarter acre. In many cases the landlord has refused to accept the possession without getting possession of all. The Vice-Guardians request to know if they may afford relief to such persons, though they may still continue to occupy such land under the above-mentioned circumstances, provided they are otherwise legally entitled to it.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 16, 1848.

I AM directed to state, that the mere refusal of a landlord to accept a surrender of land does not disqualify a person who has ceased to occupy more than a quarter of an acre of land from receiving relief.

By the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, it is merely the occupation or non-occupation of a quarter of an acre of land which is made a criterion of destitution, provided that an applicant for relief may otherwise be deemed entitled to it.

Hence as far as that clause is concerned, you are warranted in relieving anybody who is not in such occupation, and you are not bound to investigate title at all, or to ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined by surrender or otherwise.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

IN reference to your letter of the 14th instant, enclosing an extract of a report from Deputy Commissary-General Dobree, we beg to say that we have commenced to give out-door relief (as stated in our report of yesterday) to those entitled to it under the 1st section of the Poor Relief Extension Act, and would have done so at an earlier period had the funds of the Union permitted our doing so.

From every information we have been able to obtain, we are of opinion that out-door relief to the able-bodied, and to a great extent, is required in this Union. We would request the advice of the Commissioners in what way we should procure funds to afford such relief in case the Commissioners may deem it expedient to issue an order for our doing so. We have, together with Mr. Auchmuty, visited the house at Wilsgrrove, and consider it in every respect admirably adapted for affording further house accommodation, but the state of our funds for the present precludes us from availing ourselves of what would be of the greatest possible advantage to this Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 15, 1848.

I BEG to forward, for the information of the Commissioners, a letter received from the manager of the National Bank. I regret the application has not been successful. We have a communication with the manager, who is of opinion that if a new rate were struck, that the application would succeed. I think that a new rate of 2s. 11d. should be struck over the entire Union. I am of opinion, from the number of applicants now pressing on us for relief, that we must extend it to the able-bodied. There are only ten undertakings under the land improvement in this Union, and some of the applicants have not got money. I have been most particular of late, in making inquiries from persons that I could depend on; and there is scarcely any proprietors who will give employment.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. POWER to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—March 15, 1848.

I SUBJOIN a copy of a letter received this morning from the Court of Directors referring to your application for an advance of 2500*l*.

(COPY.)

SIR,

YOUR letter of the 9th instant, together with that from the Vice-Guardians of the Castlerea Poor Law Union, applying for an advance of 2500*l*., have been laid before the Committee of Management, by whom I am instructed to acquaint you that the Directors cannot entertain the question of any advance to the Board of Guardians which is not guaranteed by them to be repaid out of the rate struck, and in course of collection.

Your obedient servant,

J. N. Power, Esq.

V. S. KING, Secretary.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

THE Commissioners approve of the striking of a new rate immediately after the 15th of April, when the law proceedings for recovering the outstanding portions of the existing rate, may be expected to enforce payment in the majority of cases.

The Commissioners, however, do not approve of the indiscriminate rating proposed.

If in the rate of August, 1847, provision were not made for repayment of the advances under the Temporary Relief Act, it will be now necessary to make such provision, in addition to the current Union expenditure; but if in any case the amount necessary for both purposes shall exceed 3s. in the pound, this amount of rate only is to be levied in any such division.

With a view to the speedy commencement of proceedings against immediate Castlereagh Union. lessors, so that the writs may be returnable on the 15th of April, the Commissioners request that you will recommend the Vice-Guardians to transmit without delay a list of the lessors to be sued, and to apply for the necessary consent.

The Commissioners return the letter of the local manager of the National Bank, declining to make a loan which is not to be repaid out of a rate already made and in progress of collection.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 17, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that the Vice-Guardians and I are of opinion that out-door relief would be most desirable to be extended to the able-bodied, but from the state of the funds of this Union we cannot see how it will be carried out.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners will issue an order authorizing relief to be afforded to the destitute able-bodied poor in the Union; and the Commissioners would make an application to the British Association for assistance to the Union if they saw due exertions made by the ratepayers to pay the rates.

The Commissioners observe, however, by the last return received from the Union clerk, that upwards of 9000*l.* remain uncollected of the last rate made in the Union; and the Commissioners are unwilling to do anything at the present moment which would encourage the idea that the funds of the British Association are about to supersede the necessity of local honesty and local obedience to the law in the payment of poor-rates in Castlereagh Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 19, 1848.

I AM of opinion that in some parts of this Union that the rates cannot be collected unless the collectors get a police protection. Michael Waldron, one of the collectors, collected during the time he had a police protection 292*l.* Connell, another collector, only lodged 8*l.* last week. He states to me that if he gets the police protection, that he would collect 200*l.* in a few days. The people have the money, but boast that they will not pay unless the law is enforced.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 20, 1848.

I AM to state that the collectors of poor-rate who require assistance should make application to the magistrates in the usual manner.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—March 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners have deemed it advisable to make application to the British Association for an advance of 300*l.*, to assist the Vice-Guardians in providing for the maintenance of the destitute poor in the Union.

As it appears from your report of the 19th instant, regarding the collection of the rates, that the ratepayers have the means although they decline to pay; the Commissioners rely on your not letting it be generally known that any assistance has been granted by the British Association in aid of the funds of the Union.

At the same time, the Commissioners perceive that no relief has yet been given in the Union, even under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, and as they believe that the time has arrived when arrangements for this purpose ought under any circumstances to be made, they will feel a satisfaction in learning that such arrangements have been accordingly made, and that out-door relief under the 1st section has actually commenced in the Union.

WE beg to inform you that we have been busily engaged during the past week with the relieving officers, enabling them to afford out-door relief to the impotent classes. We have completed the initialing of all the books except that for Castlereagh, the relieving officer of which was totally unfit for the office. He has resigned, and we have appointed a young man who we hope will give satisfaction.

Some of the collectors have been successful in collecting the rate to what we consider a fair amount; others of them state to us the total impossibility of collecting the rate without the aid of the civil power; one of them stated that he was only able to collect 8%, but if he had the aid of the police he would be able to collect 200% in the week. We very much fear that any effort or exertions on our part to impress on the landlords or occupiers in this Union, a moral sense of their duties to the destitute poor would be of very little avail, as, with some exceptions, they appear from the report of the collectors to be most desirous to delay the payment of their rates by every means in their power. No exertions on our part shall be spared to carry your directions into effect, respecting the speedy enforcement of the rates; but we consider the continuous aid of the civil power absolutely necessary to enable us to do so with effect. The contractors are becoming very importunate for money; if we give them cheques we shall not be able to continue out-door relief.

We nearly completed the taking contracts for provisions yesterday. We consider we have obtained them on favourable terms, as, on an average of the present consumption, there will be a saving of about 1000% per annum.

We are preparing for you a list of immediate lessors in this Union who, we are of opinion, should be sued in the Superior Courts.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—March 25, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of a report which the Commissioners have received from the Vice-Guardians of the Castlereagh Union; and I am to request your attention to the portion of the report relating to the assistance required by the rate collectors in the discharge of their duties.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 22, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Commissioners that out-door relief has been given out in this Union under the 1st section of the Poor Relief Extension Act since the 7th of this month. I have further to report that the military and police will be employed the entire of next week in protecting the poor-rate collectors in execution of their duty. I have further to add that if we get a grant from the British Association, no persons except the Vice-Guardians shall know from what source it comes.

REPLY to the foregoing:—March 23, 1848.

THE Commissioners are to-day informed by Count Strzelecki that he has transmitted to you 300%, to assist the Vice-Guardians of the Castlereagh Union in providing out-door relief in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, that it would be most desirable that the Vice-Guardians should, if possible, obtain from the Union treasurer a loan on terms which would be advantageous, and the Commissioners wish that they should again communicate with the Union treasurer on the subject.

The Commissioners request your attention to the subject of the new rate to be made in the Union, and the steps which have been taken to relieve the destitute poor therein, since the dissolution of the late Board of Guardians.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—March 26, 1848.

I HAVE been engaged the entire week with the Vice-Guardians. I have had four carts and horses and all the paupers employed in removing the clay and rubbish from the workhouse grounds. I expect to have upwards of three acres of potatoes planted. There were three paupers admitted last week who are good masons; I have them employed in repairing the walls of the workhouse. The Vice-Guardians have made new contracts for supplying the workhouse with provisions; and, from the reduction they have made in the prices, there will be a saving of 1000*l.* a year to the Union. John Duffy, one of the collectors, brought in here yesterday, market-day, four head of cattle he distrained for poor-rates. I got plenty of bidders for them, and they were sold at fair prices. The amount of money lodged this week was not as large as I expected, 304*l.*; but as Mr. O'Connell and the military will be employed the entire of next week in protecting the collectors, I am in hopes that a large sum will be paid in.
